NEWARK PUPIL WINS CONTEST

High School Boys Compete in Extemporaneous Debate Here.

LOCAL ENTRY SECOND

Richard Borden is More Logical and Forceful, But Loses to Better Speaker—Colgate Promoted the Event.

Frederick H. Groel, representing the South Side High School, of Newark, won the first prize at the extemporaneous speech contest held under the auspices of Colgate University at the Plainfield High School last night. While the address of Groel was more smooth and his delivery nearly perfect, his arguments were not so strong as those of Richard Borden, who represented the Plainfield High School, and who won second place in the contest. He was awarded a gold medal. C. Extine, representing the Englewood High School, was awarded third prize, a bronze medal.

Former Senator Austen Colgate acted as chairman of the contest, and a large crowd attended. There were eleven contestants, and each was permitted to speak for six minutes. They were called together an hour before the contest and told that the subject would be that the administration program for the increase of army and navy would be for the best interest of the country. Each boy was assigned either the negative or affirmative by the judge, but the order in which they spoke was decided by lot.

All judges were graduates of Colgate University, and were very much interested in this plan of promoting extemporaneous speech through public contests in different parts of the State. The judges were the Rev. Robert E. Farrier, of Passaic; Henry B. Rathbone, editor of the New York Press; Professor Preston H. Smith, superintendent of schools, Bayonne; George L. Bennett, principal of the Hackensack High School, and Professor Nelson L. Greene, a member of the faculty of Princeton University.

The contestants were: Asbury Park High School Hilman Jensen; Bound Brook High School, George Prove; East Orange High School, Rogers McCullough; Englewood High Cchool, C. Extine; Keyport High School, Kenneth Hand; South Side High School, of Newark, Frederick Groel; New Brunswick High School, Eric Fleming; Paterson High School, Eugene Heber; Plainfield High School, Richard Borden; Rahway High School, Samuel Forster, Woodbridge High School, Chester Birkholz

ACCEPTS CALL TO HOLY CROSS CHURCH

Rev. Harold St. George Burrill, of St. Agnes' Church, N. Y., Here May 30.

The Rev. Harold St. George Burrill, senior curate of the staff of St. Agnes chapel, New York city, has received and accepted a call to the rectorship of the Church of the Holy Cross, North Plainfield. He will succeed Rev. C. H. Kues, who resigned several months ago, since which time the parish has been without a regular rector.

Mr. Burrill received his early education in Canada and his theological training at the General Theological Seminary, New York city. He was graduated from the seminary in 1907 and spent the first three years of his ministry in Boston. He has spent nearly six years of service in Trinity parish, New York, where he is greatly beloved throughout the parish.

Mr. Burrill has arranged to begin his work in Holy Cross parish on Sunday, May 30. The announcement that the church is to have the services of Mr. Burrill has been received by the parishioners with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction.

DOLLARS AND DIMES NEEDED FOR THE FUND

Battleship Could Not Be Built of Ten Cent Pieces Alone Statistics Show.

Acting on a suggestion offered at their meeting Thursday night, members of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. O. S., Fraternity of the World, contributed $2 to the Plainfield Daily Press fund for Marjorie Sterrett's battleship, and Harry Swivel, chairman of the executive committee, has sent the following letter with the donation to the Press:

"A duty, and a most pleasant one, devolves upon me to offer you, in the name of the Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, twenty dimes toward the construction of Marjorie Sterrett's battleship 'America.' The good cause will certainly come out triumphal and by furthering this patriotic movement you are only doing what an American newspaper should do for the protection and defense of our beloved country.

"We have chosen as our leader and ideal, Abraham Lincoln, and were the spirit of the great departed to return I am sure he would point with pride to the little share Abraham Lincoln Chapter has been able to do for the protection of our country.

"Your big feature photoplay, 'Defense or Tribute?' recently shown at Proctor's, has, indeed, instilled more national pride in our hearts and it is with due reverence that the I. C. S. boys claim at least a nail in the new battleship 'America'."

Helen E. and Margaret Sprowl added their names to the list of contributors this morning with ten cents each, and Emma Krieger sent a dime today with the following note: "Hope it will be the largest ever."

The school children of Plainfield and the borough have entered into the spirit of the Marjorie Sterrett battleship fund with surprising interest, and the dimes have been coming into the Daily Press office with each mail. But if all the children in the country contributed a dime each to the fund, it would hardly be enough to build a monster battleship which would be a credit to the United States. The dollars for the grownups are needed and each individual interested in United States' preparedness should list his or her name with the Plainfield Daily Press fund.

Dollars will have to be added to the dimes and Plainfield will have to boost its fund considerably to be in the running with other cities of its class when the total is turned in to the United States Naval Department.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY TO GIVE BIRTHDAY LUNCHEON

It will matter little whether one's birthday comes in lovely May, or bleak November on April 4, when the women of the First M. E. church hold their birthday luncheon. Neither will it matter as to years, as twenty-five is the age limit. The twelve tables representing the months of the year will be decorated in accordance with the seasons and holidays, and other unique features will be introduced to make the affair an interesting one. The six ladies in charge of tickets and arrangements are Mrs. A. Crone, Mrs. H. Gee, Mrs. D. Dunavan, Mrs. J. Stewart, Mrs. L. D. Albin and Mrs. N. Hull. The committee is asking that all requests for tickets reach them by Monday, April 3, as none can be sold after that date.

ENGLAND TAKES A BIG ZEPPELIN

Captured Raider Sinks in the Thames, However, and is Lost.

LONDON AGAIN RAIDED

90 Bombs Dropped Last Night and Much Damage Done—Germans Take More Ground at Verdun.

London, April 1.—Twenty-nine persons are known to have been killed and forty-four injured as a result of the Zeppelin raid over England last night, according to an official announcement by the Press Bureau.

London, April 1.—It was officially announced by the Admiralty today that a damaged Zeppelin airship was in the Thames and that its crew had surrendered. A naval patrol captured the airship and attempted to tow it to shore but the Zeppelin sank. An attempt will be made to raise the aircraft and a careful examination will be made of all its mechanism by aeronautic experts if the efforts are successful. The craft is one of the five that took part in last night's raid over the eastern counties, dropping 90 bombs and causing much damage.

Sink Another Neutral Boat.

The sinking of another neutral vessel, the Norwegian steamer Norne, 1,185 tons, was announced this afternoon. All members of the crew were saved.

The Memento is Sunk.

Despatches received at Lloyd's state that the Memento, a Norwegian steamship, has been sunk. One sailor is missing. The remainder of the crew has been rescued and landed. The vessel registered 1,076 tons displacement.

Dock Strike is Settled.

The Mersey dock strike has been settled, it was authoritatively announced today.

Germans Still Gaining.

Paris, April 1.—German troops renewed their terrific attacks against the fortifications of Verdun lying on the east bank of the Meuse during the night. They delivered two attacks with strong forces against Vaux. The first one, according to the official communique issued by the War Office this afternoon, was checked by rifle and artillery fire, but in the second the Germans directed their efforts to the west of Vaux and succeeded in gaining a foothold in the outlying houses. The communique says that the Germans suffered heavy losses in these assaults. No further infantry attacks were launched by the Germans in the Malancourt region during the night, but it is expected that another offensive will be opened there in a few hours.

Germany Is Investigating.

Washington, April 1.—Secretary of State Lansing announced today that Ambassador Gerard at Berlin reported that he had been advised by German officials that the German Admiralty is investigating the attack on the Sussex and the sinking of the Englishman supposedly by submarines. Mr. Gerard added that they assured him they would inform him at the earliest moment of the outcome of that investigation.

FINED BOYS $2 FOR TABERNACLE CRAP GAME

George Lyons, Edward Fay, Jacob Balenki and Harold White, all boys, were arraigned in police court this morning, charged with having shot craps on the Biederwolf tabernacle grounds, and were fined $2 each. The White boy was colored. Lyons and Fay were arrested by Patrolman Martin, Thursday afternoon, when the officer surprised the game. The other two were arrested yesterday. Judge De Meza assessed a fine in each case because of the place the boys picked out to gamble.

TICKETS ON SALE FOR "THE TAMING OF THE SHREW"

Tickets for the play to be presented by the Senior class, "The Taming of the Shrew," in the High School Auditorium on Saturday, April 8, went on sale this morning, and already the house is half sold out. Harold Biddle, a member of the High School faculty, is going to put the finishing touches on the cast during the coming week, and has called rehearsal for the members of the cast, and when the curtain raises on Saturday night a full house will be certain.

MANY BAPTISMS REPORTED.

Under the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, all departments of the First Baptist church are in a flourishing condition. During the past few weeks baptisms have occurred regularly each Sunday evening, the new members being young men and older boys. Three more will be baptized tomorrow evening, while others are awaiting the ordinance, but have come too late to be baptized before the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign, during which all individual church work will cease.

GERMANS HOLD A BISMARCK NIGHT

Gesang and Turn Verein Gives Banquet to 220 on Eve of Chancellor's Birthday.

MUSIC AND ADDRESSES

Captain of World's Biggest Ship and Men High in Professional Ranks Among the Guests—Prof. A. W. Hauck, Master of Ceremonies.

Members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein and guests from the metropolitan district to the number of 220 in all enjoyed a banquet in Saengerbund Hall, last night, in celebration of the 101st birthday anniversary of Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor of Germany. It was a most pleasing and successful affair in every way, many of those present being distinguished in the professional life throughout this vicinity. A true German aspect was lent the occasion by the presence of a stringed orchestra of six pieces from North German Lloyd ships interned at Hoboken; Captain Karl Heussler, of the Hamburg American liner "Vaterland," the biggest ship in the world, also interned at Hoboken, and a corps of stewards from the "Vaterland," who served the banquet.

Professor A. W. Hauck, president of the Gesang and Turn Verein, acted as master of ceremonies and after extending a cordial welcome to the visitors, told in an informal way of the plans for the gathering. He afterward introduced the following speakers: Rev. Dr. G. C. Berkemeier, director of the German-American Orphan Asylum at Mount Vernon, N. Y., whose subject was "Bismarck;" Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, of Plainfield, who spoke on "American Citizenship from the Standpoint of a German-American," and Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, whose remarks were of a general nature. Dr. Berkemeier's address was a masterpiece of oratory, dealing with the spirit of the German people during the Bismarck regime and comparing it with the same national spirit uppermost today. Part of the speech was in German and part in English.

When Dr. Moldenke concluded speaking he proposed a toast to Prof. Zeuneck, who was present and spoke briefly. Prof. Zeuneck was at the head of the wireless department in a German university when the present war broke out and taking his commission went to the front as a captain of infantry. He was on the firing line at the storming of Antwerp and other big engagements, being awarded the iron cross for bravery. He came to this country recently as expert witness in the legal fight between the Anglo-French wireless company and the German concern operating the Sayeville wireless station. Prof. Zeuneck responded to Dr. Moldenke's toast by proposing another to the members of the Gesang and Turn Verein who are veterans of the Franco-Prussian War of 1879-71, one of these, William Steinway, was present and he was given a bronze medal as a souvenir of the anniversary. Dr. Franke, of New York, acted as spokesman in extending thanks to the society for the evening's entertainment.

The music for the occasion was excellent as the orchestra from the North German Lloyd is composed of reputable artists. The singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein rendered a number of selections and one of them in which the orchestra accompanied was especially acceptable. The program concluded with an open toast to America and the singing in chorus of "My Country 'Tis of Thee." The menu for the banquet was an excellent one and was prepared by Hubert von den Hoff, of this city, a member of the society. The hall was attractively decorated with American colors, and the flags of the Central Allies.

The committee which arranged the affair was composed of A. W. Hauck, chairman; E. A. Janke, Ernest Wagener, F. W. Engel, Augustus Hermges, C. W. Krausse, Henry Haurand and John Alster.

Prince Otto Edward Leopold Bismarck was born in Schoenhausen, Magdeburg, April 1, 1815, a few weeks before Napoleon met his fate at Waterloo, which was on June 15, on the field which has figured the past year and a half in the greatest war in history.

He went through the rigid discipline of school in Berlin, and studied in Friederich Wilhelm Gymnasium, and in 1830 went to the University of Gottingen for five years, participating in all the frolics of university life, including the duels, and withal, passed a good examination. Later he studied in an agricultural school to prepare to manage the landed estates left by his father, in Pomerania. His eccentric behavior won his title of "The Mad Junker."

He engaged in politics, and held various offices, one of them as member of the First Landtag of Prussia. He opposed extension of parliamentary rights as advocated by the Liberals, and insisted that Prussia must preserve its Christian state.

In 1851 he represented Prussia in the Federal Diet, the King having decided he was the best man to bring about a renewal of friendly relations with Austria. In 1859 he was appointed president of the Ministry of State and Foreign Affairs. In his first speech he enunciated his policy that "questions which cannot be settled by compromise become questions of strength, and those who possess the power will act according to

RACIAL BISHOPS ARE NOT WANTED

Newark Conference Defeats the Proposed Resolution by Vote of 57 to 53.

DEBATE IS SPIRITED

Ministerial and Lay Delegates to Saratoga Convention Are Elected—Chaplins Want Beter Recognition in the Army and Navy.

Newark, April 1.—The proposition to permit the election of racial bisheps was defeated when presented in the form of a resolution at yesterday afternoon's session of the Newark Conference. The vote was 57 to 53 against the resolution. It was strongly opposed by Rev. Dr. Jacob A. Cole, Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbert and Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, all of whom agreed that when the time came to permit such an election the colored and white people can very properly separate.

Rev. Dr. E. L. Sarp, former pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, and Rev. Dr. Perry Bascom, supported the resolution, claiming that many leaders were in favor of it. They were of the opinion that it would serve to be of great benefit to the colored people. The proposition to allow such elections came from the Mississippi conference, where there is a strong feeling for its adoption.

Another important matter that was generally discussed was a resolution setting forth that the chaplains of the navy and army are discriminated against and that the law under which they are appointed is unjust. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the chairmen of the army and navy committees in both branches of Congress. The chaplains want to be placed on the same footing as physicians, professors and construction engineers. They claim that under present conditions their efficiency, influence and manliness are seriously interfered with.

These delegates and alternates were chosen to the quadrennial conference to be held in Saratoga in May:

Ministerial—Rev. Dr. W. P. Ealmer, Paterson; Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy, Rev. Dr. V. G. Vogel and Rev. Dr. Jacob A.Cole, Newark; Rev. Fred Claire Baldwin, East Orange; alternates, Rev. Dorr F. Diefendorf, Roseville; Rev. John Krantz, Paterson; Rev. F. J. Hubach, Plainfield.

Laymen—Dr. James R. Joy, Plainfield; B. F. Edsall, Newark; S. S. Day, Morristown; J. W. Pearsall and S. Earl Taylor, Jersey City; alternates, J. K. Cook, Paterson; J. W. Walker, Newark; Samuel Bingaman, Plainfield.

The anniversary of the Epworth League was held last night, the Rev. Dr. W. F. Sheridan, of Chicago, the general secretary, being the principal speaker. In his remarks he said that he had been informed that Nicholas Murray Butler had said that Root was a much-talked of man throughout the West, but he wanted to say that he had heard Hughes' name mentioned one hundred times to one for Root, which provoked much applause. When he mentioned the name of a man living at Oyster Bay as also being in the public eye, there was also considerable applause.

The delegates to conference are in executive session today, cleaning up some of the odds and ends. Tomorrow will be devoted to devotional services at which time Bishop Wilson will preach the conference sermon. The various appointments will be made some time Monday.

CECIL AYRES POSSESSES MASTERY OF THE PIANO

Cecile Ayres, who gives a recital in the Hartridge Auditorium on Friday evening, April 7, for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund, is not only iinteresting by reason of her striking exponent of what can be accomplished by the Leschetizky school of piano playing. Although of slight physique, she possesses complete mastery of the modern grand piano.

Miss Ayres shows the marvelous results of proper muscular development, playing with a force and fire amazing in one of her youth and build. Seats are on sale at Miller's drug store, or may be obtained by telephoning 1010.

SAMPLE SHOE STORE.

With a full line of new stock, including a choice assortment of sample shoes, the Globe Sample Shoe Company opened a store at 156 East Front street, this morning. SURPRISE PARTY ON 8TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schuldenfrei Honored by Many Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schuldenfrei, of Sandford avenue, were given a surprise last evening in honor of their eighth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Schuldenfrei attended the services at Temple Sholem, where Mr. Schuldenfrei is secretary, and after the services they were invited to the Doyle-McCormack studio, where friends and members of the Sisterhood entertained them. As the couple entered an orchestra struck up "Here Comes the Bride." Music and refreshments added to the enjoyment of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Schuldenfrei were presented with a handsome silver vase. Samuel Rothberg made the presentation speech and both responded in a happy manner. Louis Schuldenfrei, an attorney in New York, was called on, and expressed his appreciation of the popularity of his "brother and sister." Mr. and Mrs. Schuldenfrei have been residents of Plainfield eight years and during that time they have won a host of friends who sought yesterday's event as a time for the expression of their love and esteem.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIES IN JERSEY CITY

Mrs. Catherine O'Keefe Sheehan, wife of Cornelius Sheehan, and for many years a resident of Plainfield, died early this morning, at her home, 64 Claremont avenue, Jersey City. Mrs. Sheehan was seventy-four years old, and, beside her husband, is survived by the following sons and daughters: Thomas Sheehan, of Montclair, vice-president and general manager of the Durham Duplex Razor Company; John Sheehan, former police commissioner of Jersey City, and now holding an official position with the Lehigh Valley Railroad; William, Daniel and Eugene Sheehan, all of Jersey City; Mrs. Andrew Brannigan, of Chatham, and the Misses Catherine, Mary and Ellen Sheehan, of Jersey City.

Mrs. Sheehan is also survived by the following sisters, all of Plainfield; Mrs. Abbie Flynn, of Spooner avenue; Mrs. Eldridge Bebout, of West Fifth street; Mrs Margaret McInerney, of South Second street, and the Misses Mary and Elizabeth O'Keefe, of Rockview avenue. The family left Plainfield about twenty years ago, but have always visited here at regular intervals. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church, this city, Monday morning, at 9:30. Interment twill be in St. Mary's cemetery.

DETAILS ARRANGED FOR MOTHER GABRIEL'S FUNERAL

It was announced today that the funeral of Mother Gabriel, who died at Mt. St. Mary College yesterday morning, would be held in St. Joseph's church, the borough, at 10.30 Tuesday morning, at which time a solemn high mass of requiem would be said. It will be open to all the friends of Mother Gabriel, and there will be many prominent Catholic clergymen and Sisters of Mercy in attendance.

The mass will be celebrated by Rev. P. J. Hart, assisted by Rev. Father Zimmer, of Raritan, as deacon; Rev. Father O'Connor, of Metuchen, as sub-deacon; and Rev. Father Baldwin, of Mt. St. Mary College, as master of ceremonies. Rev. Monsignor Mulligan, of Camden, will deliver the eulogy. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

SENATE COMMITTEE ACTS FAVORABLY ON BRANDEIS

Washington, April 1.—By a strictly party vote, the Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee today acted three to two in favor of the confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston, to be a member of the Supreme Court bench.

REPEAT CANTATA.

The cantata, "Queen Esther," given by the young people of the young people of the Netherwood Reformed church, at Trinity Reformed church, Thursday night, was repeated last night with equal success. There was a large audience, and all thoroughly enjoyed the cantata.

G. O. P. MEETING.

D. Fred Aungst, supervising principal of the North Plainfield schools, will address the North Plainfield Republican Club at its meeting to be held on Tuesday evening of next week, instead of Monday, the regular meeting night.

Miss Lena May Jackson will have charge of the service in the Salvation Army Hall, 157 East Second street, tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock.

VILLA, WOUNDED, STILL IN HIDING

His Forces Defeated, Bandit's Capture is Matter of Only a Few Hours

DODD WINS VICTORY

Four U. S. Soldiers Shot in Fierce Running Fight—Outlaw Now Has Only Few Friends to Protect Him.

El Paso, Texas, April 1.—His forces decisively deefated and scattered, himself crippled by a broken leg where an American bullet struck him, Francisco Villa is today hiding in the mountains of Southern Chihuahua, with a small army of thoroughly-incensed United States fighting men beating the bush in desperate efforts to bring him out. The capture of Villa is but a matter of hours, according to Gen. Funston. Col. Dodd met five hundred Villa men Thursday night, and, after killing many in a running fight, completely routed the force. Today the bandit is protected by only a handful of badly-frightened friends. The expedition into Mexico has narrowed down to a manhunt—a search of huts, cactus groves and water holes.

Details of Battle.

Washington, April 1.—The War Department today received word from Gen. Pershing, telling of a decisive victory of the American troopers in their clash with the forces of Pancho Villa. Col. Dodd's force came in contact with 500 of Villa's band at 6 o'clock Thursday night at Guerrero. Villa himself, who had a broken leg and a lame hip, was not present. More than sixty of Villa's band was found killed, and it is supposed that a number of other dead were carried off. Of the American forces were four enlisted men wounded, but none seriously. Two machine guns were captured by Col. Dodd, and also a number of horses. The conflict was a running fight over a ten-mile stretch and lasted for nearly five hours. The Villa band was dispersed and driven into the mountains. A large number of Carranzistas, prisoners whom Villa intended to execute, were liberated. Col. Dodd's forces marched fifty-five miles in seventeen hours to reach Guerrero, and the attack was a complete surprise. All efforts are being made to ascertain Villa's whereabouts.

Villa Hit in the Knee.

Queretaro, Mexico, April 1.—General Alvaro Obregon, Minister of War, was notified today that Francisco Villa was wounded during the recent battle between Carranzistas and bandit forces at Namiquipa. Villa was shot in the knee.

CARRANZA MONEY GOOD.

Queretaro, Mixeco, April 1.—General Carranza has sent to all State governors a decree that the present constitutionalist money shall continue to be legal tender until July 31, despite the fact that new paper probably will be in circulation before that time. The first chief has also directed that the contents of all business houses that close in the future shall be sold under government direction.

U. S. BASE AT GUERRERO.

San Antonia, Texas, April 1.—Col. George A. Dodd, commanding the American troops pursuing Francisco Villa and his shattered force, has established a field base at Guerrero, the town where the Carranza garrison was massacred by Villistas, according to report that reached Fort Sam Houston this forenoon. From this point detachments can be sent to round up the different bands into which Villa's bandits have split.

Hong Kong, April 1.—The crew of the Japanese liner Chiyo Maru remained aboard their ship today, all the passengers having been rescued. Efforts are being made to release the steamer, which stranded off the Boma Islands yesterday.

SEASON'S FIRST GRASS FIRE.

West End Company, No. 3, was sent out yesterday on a telephone alarm for a grass fire on the premises at 731 Monroe avenue. The flames were beat out with brooms before any damage occurred. This is the first grass fire of the season and with the warmth of the last few days it is probable that the usual spring crop will soon be here.

L. Y. K. K. CLUB MEETS.

The L. Y. K. K. Club held a business meeting at the home of Miss Ethel Wendell on Arlington avenue Thursday evening. Following the business meeting there was a social hour during which refreshments were served.

The service tomorrow night at the Park Avenue Baptist church will be the last evening service for six weeks because of the Evangelistic meetings. In the morning the monthly communion service will be held.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MISS SARAH HILL HELD

The funeral of Miss Sarah Hill, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Hill, of Madison avenue (south), was held at the late home at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and numerous floral tributes. During the service Mrs. William W. Giddes and Mrs. A. C. Halliburton sang, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break." Burial was at Bound Brook. The bearers were the four brothers, Augustus, Charles, Henry and James.

P. O. OF A. GIVE A SUCCESSFUL BOX SOCIAL

The box social held in W. G. Holton Hall Thursday evening, under the auspices of the P. O. of A., was attended by about fifty persons, all of whom had such a fine time that the affair will be repeated in the near future. Each woman brought a lunch box, an apron and necktie. The women put on the aprons and the neckties were sold at auction to the men. Each man then found the woman wearing the apron the color of his necktie, who was to be his companion during the evening and she with him her lunch box. The lunch boxes were not opened until 11 o'clock. Up to that time the evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and dancing.

E. C. KEPLER IS BADLY BURNED WITH HOT METAL

Ernest C. Kepler, who is employed by a Westfield plumber, was painfully burned by hot lead Thursday afternoon. Mr. Kepler was down on his hands and knees making a plumbing connection in a Westfield house when his helper, who was standing above him, in some manner upest a pot of the hot metal, a portion of which landed on the back of Mr. Kepler's neck and ran down his back and arms. Kepler, writhing with agony, was shortly taken in hand by a physician, who had been immediately summoned. The physician administered healing lotions to the burns and swathed them with cotton bandages. Kepler was taken home and yesterday he was able to come down town.

COW STOPS TRAFFIC.

A black and white cow, being led toward Plainfield between the trolley rails, held up the 8 o'clock Bound Brook trolley for two minutes opposite David S. Campbell's store last night. The trolley motorman was obliged to vigorously apply his brakes to keep his car from running the cow down. It took the concerted efforts of the trolley crew and the man in charge of the cow to pull it off the track.

George Waldron has taken a position as fireman at the Bayrta Chemical factory in New Market.

Le Roy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith, has tonsilitis.

Mrs. William H. Clum, who has been ill for the past three weeks, is improving.

Mrs. George H. Richter entertained a number of friends from Plainfield Thursday evening in celebration of her birthday.

Miss Mae Wahl is spending two weeks in New York city as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. H. Wahl.

Mis Lillian Garretson is entertaining Miss Sadie Horn, of Paterson, over the week-end.

Rene Von Minden, son of Justice of the Peace Von Minden, has taken a position with Hiram J. Scandell, the ice dealer and hackman of Dunellen.

BEEF WAGON UPSETS.

The delivery wagon of the Union Beef Company, of Plainfield, driven by James Moxie, colored, upset while being backed up to the Card Beiler store yesterday. After considerable trouble the wagon was righted and reloaded and Moxie, after delivering his consignment in the Beiler store, was able to proceed on his way.

Mrs. Hannah Roantree, of Maple avenue, who has been spending sometime with her daughter, who lives in Newark, returned home yesterday.

Miss Ethel Conover will spend tomorrow with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Conover, of Whitehouse Station.

Mrs. Robert Gray and son, George, of Trenton, have terminated their short visit with Mrs. Gray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bunting.

TO GIVE A DANCE.

At a meeting of the Klever Klover Klub held at the home of Miss Anna Rinehart Thursday evening, its members decided to run another dance, which will be the fourth of the season. The dance will be an invitation affair like the others. It will be held in Debele's Hall, North Plainfield, on the evening of April 27. Berrell's orchestra, of Bernardsville, will furnish the music.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE.

A union service of the young people's societies of the New Market and Dunellen churches will be held in the Presbyterian chapel at 6:45 tomorrow evening. The meeting will be addressed by Mr. Estes, of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. His topic will be "Our Co-operation in the Coming Biederwolf Campaign."

Mrs. Paul Ratti, who has been in poor health for the past eight years, went to New York yesterday to consult a specialist.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY.

About thirty friends of Miss Belle Daniels, of Scotch Plains, tendered her a surprise party in Meyers' Hall last night. Victrolas furnished music for the dancing until a late hour, when refreshments were served.

HOME DEPARTMENT SOCIAL.

An enjoyable social, under the auspices of the home department of the Baptist church, was held in the Parish House last night by some thirty-five people. Games and music and the rest of an entertaining program arranged by those in charge filled the evening.

PARISH HOUSE FORUM.

The meeting time of the Parish House Men's Forum for tomorrow afternoon has been moved forward one-half hour, and will start at 3:30. The subject under discussion will be "Transportation," and as the guest of honor, William C. Hope, general passenger agent of the C. R. R. of N. J., will speak on "Problems of Present-Day Railroading."

NO MORNING SERVICE.

As the Rev. Raymond E. Marshal is attending the Methodist conference in Newark, there will be no morning service at the Methodist church tomorrow. The evening service will be conducted by a member of the Anti-Saloon League. The meetings of the Sunday-school and Epworth League will be held at the usual hours.

BASKETBALL GAME OFF.

For the first time in many weeks there will be no basketball games at the Parish House tonight. On Tuesday night the first team will travel to Rahway to play a quintet at that place.

GUILD MEETING.

A meeting of All-Saints' Guild of the Episcopal church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Mineszek, of Midway avenue. There was a large attendance, and considerable work was accomplished.

TO REHEARSE EASTER MUSIC.

At the 11 o'clock service in the Episcopal church tomorrow morning the Rev. Oscar S. Michael will administer the two sacraments of holy baptism and the holy communion. The rehearsal of Easter music will start at the meeting of the Sunday-school at 10 o'clock.

ANNUAL TRUSTEES' MEETING.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Baptist church will be held in the Parish House on Monday night. The reports of the various officers will be read and yearly business transacted.

FIREMEN TO MEET.

The April meeting of the Bucket and Engine Fire Company will be held in the firehouse, on Partle avenue, tonight, at 8 o'clock.

TO PLAY IMPERIALS.

The Parish House bowling team will get in action Monday night, when the Imperials, champions of the Plainfield Bowling League, come here for a game.

TO GIVE AN OYSTER SUPPER.

An oyster supper, under the auspices of the Ladies' Circle, will be held in the Parish House on Monday night, between the hours of 6:30 and 8.

SECOND LENTEN SERMON.

The Rev. J. Madison Hare will preach the second of his Lenten sermons at the morning service in the Baptist church tomorrow on "Jesus Christ's Pen Picture of Himself." The Bible school will meet at 9:30, and at 7:45 an interesting meeting of the B. Y. P. U. will be held in the lecture room. The church stage will run from the Fanwood Postoffice a quarter of an hour before each morning service.

YOUNG PEOPLE BOWL.

A party of Fanwood people enjoyed several hours' bowling last night at the Parish House, and later were entertained at the home of one of the members.

Warrenville.

Miss Dorothy H. Underhill is visiting in Staten Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, recently of Summit, have leased the Johnson place on Mountain boulevard.

Miss Helen L. Schmidt, a student at the Trenton Normal School, is spending her spring vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Anna H. Underhill has been entertaining Mrs. Stewart H. Ogilby, of West New Brighton, N. Y.

The Watchung Chemical Engine Company will hold its regular meeting, Monday evening.

The Watchung Indian Legend Players held its regular meeting Thursday evening in the Improvement Hall. Plans are being made for the fifth annual portrayal of the Watchung Legend in June. The next meeting will be held April 10.

Rev. Mebane Ramsay will preach tomorrow morning at the Wilson Memorial church on "Judas Iscariot," which was the subject of the first sermon Mr. Ramsay preached in Watchung. The song service will begin at 7:45 p. m. R. L. Davis, of Monticello, Ark., will preach at the evening service, beginning at 8 p. m. Mr. Ramsay will conduct the Young Men's Bible Class at 2:45 p. m.

Henry R. Kennedy conducted the Christian Endeavor meeting in Wilson chapel last evening. Mr. Kennedy's topic, "Great Home Missionaries," was well presented, and illustrated with pictures of many interesting missions in the United States. Miss Elsie F. Schmidt led the Biederwolf Campaign Prayer Circle at the close of the meeting.

A large number attended the dance given in the Improvement Hall last evening for the benefit of the Chemical Engine Company. Storr's orchestra furnished music, and the ladies auxiliary of the Improvement Society served refreshments.

METHODIST CHOIR TO SING "THE CRUCIFIXION"

The quartet choir of the First Methodist church, assisted by additional voices, will sing the oratorio, "The Crucifixion," at the service on Sunday evening. This Lenten oratorio is very popular and no doubt many will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this splendid rendition of the oratorio. Miss Ethel Grace Kinnaman, contralto of the quartet, will be the soloist. The assisting voices will include Miss Irma Good, Mrs. F. Clyde Doane, sopranos; Miss Ruth Voorhees, Miss Margaret Tubbs, contraltos; F. Clyde Doane, tenor and William Smith, bass. The service will be under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and director.

LOYAL DAUGHTERS TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT AND SALE

The Loyal Daughters of Hope chapel Bible school have completed arrangements for the entertainment to be given on Tuesday night. An interesting program has been planned, which, in addition to solo singing, will include two bright playlets and an exhibition by the well-know group of athletes from the Young Men's Christian Association. In addition, Mrs. Hazen's class will conduct a sale of home-made candy, while the Daughters will sell cake, also home-made.

GOING TO NEW BRUNSWICK.

The members of Division No. 4, A. O. H., and Ladies' Auxiliary will attend an entertainment given in Columbia Hall, New Brunswick, tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. National President Joseph McLoughlin will be among the many speakers. It is expected that a large delegation from Plainfield will attend.

AUTHOR OF "STAMBOUL NIGHTS" LIVES HERE

H. G. Dwight Has Written an Interesting Story of Life in Far East.

There is considerable interest in the story of "Stamboul Nights," just published in book form, for the reason that the author, H. G. Dwight, is a resident of Plainfield. He was born in Constantinople, though and Venice are the first places of which he has any early recollections. The Dwight line is of the oldest New England stock, the family dating back to 1630. It has been closely associated with Yale, and supplied that university with two of its distinguished presidents.

"Stamboul Nights" is a group of stories, all dealing with the East, and particularly with the Turks. The first tale in the book, "The Leonard of the Sea," was recently included in a list of the year's best fiction, and is a wholly delightful piece of work. The tales run the gamut from humor to tragedy, and they have all caught and held in a wonderful degree the lure of color and mystery that is in the East. The book is published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Mr. Dwight's schooling was divided between Constantinople and Vermont. In the latter place he attended St. Johnsbury and then entered Amherst, class of '98. He is an Alpha Delta Phi man, was on the staff of the college magazine and wrote the prize essay upon a literary theme.

HOW TO QUALIFY TO VOTE IN APRIL

But One Change Made in Election Law Governing Primaries.

Many voters are in a quandry as to the qualifications necessary to vote at the Presidential primary election on April 25.

Under the old election law the county committeemen were permitted to make out affidavits and register voters by filing the affidavits with the district boards of election. That system is superceded by the new law, which requires those not otherwise qualified to register by filing affidavits with the clerk of the municipality in which they reside at least ten days prior to the primary election. Therefore, April 15 will be the last day for filing of such papers.

Persons who voted at the last general election may vote at the approaching primary without registering by affidavit. The law governing the subject is set forth in sections 22 and 23 of the supplemental act of April 19, 1911, as follows:

"Every voter whose name shall appear on the poll book of the last preceding general election in the election district in which he offers to vote, or has been registered by affidavit as hereinafter provided, shall be entitled to vote in the primary of his political party held under this act for the election of delegates and alternates to National conventions. No person shall be allowed to vote at said primary unless his name appears on said poll book, or unles he has been registered by affidavit as hereinafter provided; nor shall any voter be allowed to vote in the primary of one political party if his name appears in the primary book of the other political party as made up at the last preceding election in said election district.

"Any voter qualified to vote at the general election in this State, who did not vote at the general election preceding any primary election to be held under this act for the selection of delegates to National conventions, may register for said primary election and be entitled to vote thereat by filing with the municipal clerk of his municipality at least ten days prior to the day of the primary an affidavit in the form now required by law for registering voters for any general election. From said poll books and affidavits, and from said primary books, the board of registry and elections shall make up a primary registry list for said primary election, with the letter 'R' or the letter 'D' opposite the names of those voters whose names appear in said primary books, respectively; and from said lists shall determine the right of each voter offering to vote at said primary.

This year's Legislature made but one change in the law, which was an amendment providing for the holding of the primary on April 25 instead of on the fourth Tuesday of May. The primary will be held between the hours of 1 and 9 p. m.

HE RID WORLD OF LAST OF ALLENS

Will McGraw on Trial for Killing Famous Virginia Feudist.

Hillsville, Va., April 1.—At the April term of the Carrol County Court, which will sit in the same courtroom where the Allen clan "shot up" the court, killing the judge, the prosecutor, the sheriff, a juror and a witness, four years ago, a hearing will be given Will McGraw, the self-confessed slayer of Jack Allen, the last of the Allen clan. McGraw rid the world of the last of the Allens during a fight in the home of Mrs. Roberta Martin, five miles from Mount Airy, N. C., on March 17. It was four years almost to the day from the "shooting-up" of the little courtroom here, which astounded the country.

McGraw, who is known as a bad man all through this section, will plead self-defense. He claims that Allen objected to his remarks concerning the Allen clan, and was about to take his life, when, in self-defense, he shot Allen through the head. At the time of the shooting the women and children in the house had fled. Two shots were heard. McGraw, hatless and coatless, plunged from the doorway of the house and disappeared. Sheriff Edwards, of Carroll county, went after McGraw and brought him into Roanake for safe keeping.

The killing of Jack Allen raises the total of deaths resulting from the courtroom shooting here, on March 14, 1912, to eight. Five died in the little mountain courthouse. Floyd Allen, brother of Jack Allen, and his son, Claude Allen, were executed March 28, 1913, at Richmond. Jack Allen, who met his death March 17 last, was the eighth.

The victims of the Allen clan were Judge Thornton L. Massie, one of the most prominent jurists in Virginia, who was presiding at the trial; County Prosecutor William M. Foster, Sheriff Lewis A. Webb, Juror Augustus Flower and Elizabeth Ayers, a witness.

A trivial incident led to the shooting up of the court. Two nephews of Floyd Allen, Wesley Edward and Sidna, had been arrested for disorderly conduct, growing out of a church meeting in which a kinsman of the Allens, who was not in favor with remainder of the clan, was given a beating. The arrest of the nephews touched the pride of Floyd Allen, a great, big mountaineer. With his followers, he boasted that no Allen ever had gone to jail. He beat up the sheriff that had his nephews in charge and liberated them. Then Floyd Allen himself was arrested and ultimately convicted of interfereing with an officer.

The shooting took place a dramatic moment on the day the prisoner was to have been sentenced to one year in prison. Seven persons, in addition to Floyd Allen, were accused of having taken part in the shooting. Besides Allen and his son, Claude, who later died with him at Richmond, the accused men were Sidna and Wesley Edwards Allen, the two nephews; Sidna Allen, a brother, a co-leader of the Allen clan that had terrified the Blue Ridge Mountains for three generations; Victor Allen, another son; Freel Allen, a nephew, and Byrd Marion, a cousin.

Victor Allen was acquitted for lack of evidence. Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards Allen were caught at Des Moines, and the former was sentenced to thirty-five years and the latter to twenty-seven years in prison. Byrd Marion became a State witness and was discharged. Freel Allen was caught two weeks after the courtroom slaughter and, although only seventeen years old, was given eighteen years in prison. Sidna Edwards Allen went to jail for fifteen years for his part in the shooting bee.

JOHN NEYLON QUITS POLICE DEPARTMENT

Will Return to His Trade as Carpenter for Better Pay and Shorter Hours.

John Neylon, who for two years has been a member of the local police department, today tendered his resignation that he might return to his former trade as carpenter with the firm of John Wyman & Son, by whom he was employed before being appointed patrolman by ex-Mayor Percy Stewart. The resignation will take effect at once and he will start on the new job next week. Neylon was one of the three new patrolmen recommended by former Mayor Stewart in 1914, the other two, John R. Fritts and Joseph Hayle, having quit the department some time ago.

Since his appointment Patrolman Neylon has proven an efficient and thoroughly reliable officer and his resignation was tendered solely because of the prospects of boom for members of his trade here this spring. He joined the department at a time when building operations were dull throughout the country but a period of prosperity is now anticipated by the building trades and he foresees better wages and shorter hours in resuming his carpentry work.

LAST SAD RITES FOR MRS. FRANK FLETCHER

The funeral of Mrs. Julia A. Fletcher, wife of the Rev. Frank Fletcher, whose death occurred Wednesday morning, was held this afternoon at two o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Giddes, of Grove street, the borough. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the service and a large gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance. The numerous floral tributes included set pieces from Lydia chapter, O. E. S., of which Mrs. Giddes is a member, Plainfield Lodge of Elks, to which Mr. Giddes belongs, and the choir of the First Baptist church.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. Fletcher's four sons and son-in-law acted as pall bearers. These were William Fletcher, of Somerville; Loren and Frank Fletcher, of Boston; Gilbert Fletcher, of Plainfield, and Robert L. Giddes, of the borough.

MISS McKEEN TO SPEAK.

Miss Laura McKeen, general secretary of the Phillipsburg Association, will speak at the "home hour" tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. She will speak of the Y. W. C. A. work among factory girls. Miss Mary Runkle will sing severay seections.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB PAINS FROM SORE, LAME BACK

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old, penetrating St. Jacob's Oil.

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had a backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Rose Judson, Trustee for Plainfield Plumbing, Hardware and Paint Supply Company:

By virtue of an Order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Ernst Kubler is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the 8th day of May next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said Bill is filed for the purpose of foreclosing a mortgage given by Daniel J. Devoe to Jersey State Realty Company, and now held by the complainant, dated April 1, 1912, covering premises in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey, and you are made defendant, because it is alleged in said Bill that in the conveyance which you made to the Plainfield Plumbing, Hardware and Paint Supply Company, your trusteeship was erroneously described, and that the said deed is not sealed by you, and thereby you may claim to have some interest in the mortgaged premises, a sale of which is prayed for in said bill.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No. 1, Plainfield, says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand, and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me almost immediate relief, and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally, when a cold settles on my kidneys, and they act as a preventive of any serious trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wahl had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

CHIEF IS WOUNDED IN HIP

Colonel Dodd's Troopers Surprise 500 Mexican Raiders at Guerrero—Scatter Them In Running Ten Mile Fight Lasting Five Hours—Four Americans Wounded.

El Paso, Tex., April 1.—In his first clash with the United States troops Pancho Villa, wounded in the hip, escaped from his pursuers on Wednesday. Villa lost thirty men killed, two machine guns and a number of saddles, rifles and horses. The American loss was four men wounded.

The Americans were commanded by Colonel G. A. Dodd, temporary commander of the Second cavalry brigade of the United States army.

The battle took place in the edge of the town of Guerrero, capital of the district dominated by Villa in the days when as a bandit he defied for years the forces of Porfirio Diaz. Villa was taken from the field in a carriage, according to reports of the United States officers with Colonel Dodd and confirmed by Mexicans made prisoners by the Americans.

These Mexicans claimed to be Carranzistas whom Villa was holding as prisoners for execution. They are being held for investigation, as the American officers believe that some of them belong to the bandit band. All the prisoners are to be turned over to the nearest Carranza commander, who will identify and dispose of them.

Villa was surprised at daybreak by the Americans. He had just captured the town from the Carranzistas the night before and was resting when the American forces, composed of the Seventh cavalry, the famous Custer regiment, swooped down upon his band and began to pour a rain of lead into their ranks.

The American cavalry dismounted as it dashed up within firing distance of the camp of the band and, leaving their horses in charge of details, crept upon the Villistas from arroyos and other shelter. This accounts for the execution among the Villistas and the small number of Americans wounded.

As the Villistas awoke from their drunken slumbers they were shot down by the Americans. As the Mexicans fled the Americans' horses were brought up and pursuit was given, the American cavalrymen charging on the heels of the retreating bandits as long as they kept in the open country, but giving up the chase when the Mexicans took to the mountains.

This is the system Villa used in his fighting, according to the American scouts' reports several days ago. In the event of a battle his men are instructed to scatter, to meet again at some previously appointed place. Guerrero had been the last rallying place. The Americans are attempting to locate the next meeting place from the prisoners captured in order that they may surround the place.

Villa's retreat was toward Chihuhua City, according to the reports. His band scattered and took to the hills, making pursuit temporarily impossible.

Lopez Reported Killed.

An officer named Lopez was among the Villa wounded, according to the report sent General Pershing by Colonel Dodd. General Pershing thought this might have been Pablo Lopez, who commanded the bandits who killed sixteen Americans at Santa Ysabel in January.

Lopez has been killed or wounded, however, in every battle since that time, according to the first reports brought out. Carranzistas gave out the report some time ago that Villa had abandoned him, wounded, at El Valle in his retreat south, but the American forces did not find him on arrival there.

A man supposed to be Lopez was captured shortly after the Santa Ysabel horror and executed by the Carranzistas, his body being placed on exhibition in Juarez, but Americans never believed it was the real Pablo Lopez. Carranza advices state the Carranza commander in Juarez received the following bulletin:

"Chief of staff of American expedition at Tres Alamoz camp, instructed by General Pershing, had informed me that the Seventh cavalry on March 30 at San Geronimo fought a Villista column composed of 500 men under Eliseo Hernandez.

"Villistas lost Hernandez and thirty men. American forces had several wounded. Confirmation received that Villa was wounded at last fight with Constitutionalists and is hiding in neighborhood of Guerrero."

Later it became known at Columbus, N. M., that General Pershing has sent through information regarding the fight, and correspondents were permitted by the censor there to send messages to their papers "to watch Funston at San Antonio and Bell at El Paso." These two officers were soon in possession of the information which all the United States had been waiting.

Fragments of information came through by way of Juarez and Columbus. A message made public at the latter place late said that Colonel Deros Cabell, chief of staff to General Pershing, had wired that Villa was present in person at the battle and that he escaped in a carriage, wounded. The wound was not believed to have been inflicted in the fight with the Americans, however. General Pershing had previously reported the belief that Villa was wounded.

Garrison at a Dance.

Details of the capture of Guerrero from the Carranzistas by Villa prior to his defeat by the Americans came through to Juarez. The dispatches said that Villa had cut the telgraph wires along the Mexico Northwestern railroad between Madera and Guerrero and had burned some of the smaller bridges along the railroad which his band did not fire when they destroyed all the larger ones several months ago.

General Cavazos, who commanded the Carranza garrison at Guerrero when Villa attacked that town, was attending a dance being held in honor of his officers in the town hall of the mountain town. When Villa started his attack General Cavazos is said to have jumped out of a window and escaped with a number of his officers and men, the remaining troops of the Carranza garrison having been killed or made prisoners. Some of these men are believed to be those who fell into the hands of Colonel Dodd's men on Wednesday morning.

As a refutation of the recently circulated report that General Luis Herrera had deserted the Carranzistas and intended to fight with Villa against the Americans, Andres Garcia, Mexican consul in El Paso, exhibited a letter from Herrera in which that general says he is preparing to take the field with a view of making Villa a prisoner.

He says he will execute him and send his head to Consul Garcia to prove that it really was Villa who was captured by the Carranza troops. Consul Garcia also received a telegram from Chihuahua saying that General Herrera and 1,200 men had left Chihuahua City for Temesachio with the intention of capturing Villa. He left Chihuahua City on Wednesday, according to the message.

Americans acquainted with the condition of the country surrounding Guerrero assert that Villa cannot escape through the mountains if he is too badly wounded to ride a horse, as the country is too rough to permit of any means of travel except horseback and that at a very slow gait. They believe he will head south across open country for San Andreas, southeast of Guerrero, where he has friends among the natives.

FIELDER TALKS OF LEGISLATIVE WORK

Says People Are to Be Congratulated on Adjournment.

Governor Fielder, answering the statement made by Majority Leader Rathbun, of the Senate, who sought to defend the course of the Republicans in the Legislature, and Minority Leader Ackerson, entering into a general criticism of the majority's stewardship, issued statements relating to the work of the session just closed. The Governor construed Mr. Rathbun's remarks to be nothing more than an apology for the manner in which the Republicans lived up to their platform pledges to the voters. The Governor's statement in full follows:

"The first impression that strikes one on reading the opening lines of Senator Rathbun's statement is that he is presenting an apology and, as we continue through to the concluding paragroph, our opinion is confirmed that he is laboring to set out specious explanations for the legislative mismanagement of his party and offering an apology for many acts of omission and commission. After comparing the Republican platform with the results accomplished, I can understand his difficult task. I do not wonder he congratulates himself upon final adjournment. He should be glad for the relief from incompetent and political messing with such an important subject as the people believe legislation should be considered. The whole people will heartily congratulate themselves that the session is finally at an end and they will ask why all the serious work done could not have been completed a month ago.

"The Republican steam roller has been in excellent condition from the beginning to the end of the session, notwithstanding constant use, but the only bills passed of any importance to the public generally are the two to which Senator Rathbun refers—the budget bill and the State purchasing agent bill—and both were measures advocated in the Democratic platform. They fall far short of what they should be, as the first year's attempt to operate under them will disclose. With the exception of these bills the list of achievements mentioned by Senator Rathbun consists of the appointment of various commissions to investigate matters of legislation upon which the majority had promised definite action when they were seeking votes before election. This is a wornout excuse for doing nothing and I do not think it can be used to fool the people again.

"The legislation enacted will not inure to the good of the State, because it was passed in the interests of Republican politicians, such as extending the terms of Republican office-holders, increasing their salaries, depriving the Governor of the power of appointment and giving it to the Republican President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, preventing the appointment of the prosecutors of Cape May and Gloucester counties, because the men named are guilty of the crime of being Democrats, increasing the pay roll of legislative employes and wiping out the provisions of the election law that make for honest primaries and elections.

"I tried to stop the flood of bills of this kind by many vetoes, but, with the precision of a well-oiled machine, the votes were set at naught and we have had added to our voluminous laws 300 now ones as the net result of this session. While less than the number passed last year, it greatly exceeds the number of those of the year before.

"What of economy? We might be excused for forgetting that such a thing exists in State management, because it had no place in this year's proceedings, and, as a result, the total of the appropriation bills exceeds by $1,300,000 the total of the State's expenses of last year. A tremendous increase in expenditures must necessarily follow the kind of legislation to which we have been treated. Instead of a serious, business-like attempt to keep down our budget, this year of Republican legislative rule is driving us again toward the brink of a deficit, from which the Democratic Legislature of 1914 rescued us by devising the requisition and inheritance tax acts and by conservative management of State funds."

The Book of Job

Greek Homer, Italian Dante, English Shakespeare, and German Goethe are the world's greatest poets. Yet not one of them ever produced a work equal to the Book of Job. It is the culmination of all human thought, beyond which the mind of man cannot go. It is epic, it is lyric, it is dramatic. We dwell in a realm of the loftiest inspiration; "we are in the presence of forces above and beyond our present human understanding." We take part in a soul-searching discussion of the deepest problem of philosophy. We exhaust all solutions. We are present at the arbitrament of human existence itself. The judgment is final; there is no appeal.

The lore and wisdom of all the ages is in the Book of Job. It is logic; it is philosophy; it is reason; it is inspiration. Its theme is the Mystery of Human Suffering; without which there would be no human world, no need for laws, for government, for institutions. It presents five solutions of this wrinkled, world-old problem, the last of which answers the question of Man to his Maker.

The voice of God is heard in heaven and on the earth. He answers Job out of the whirlwind. His words are like unto peals of thunder in infinite space that die away amidst the awful majesty of the storm, whilst the lightnings dazzle with lurid splendor. And Job answers and says: "I have heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye seeth Thee."

You cannot understand literature unless you know the Book of Job! It is the most-quoted work in the language. In Shakespeare's Hamlet, next to the books of the Bible the oftenest quoted piece of literature, there are 260 familiar quotations; in his Macbeth, the next in order, there are 156; but in the Book of Job there are 610 phrases, sentences, paragraphs, that have become so much a part and parcel of our speech, that every writer from Chaucer to Kipling, has appropriated and made them his own.

It will pay you richly to read the Book of Job again and again. Your vocabulary will be multiplied; your taste will be improved; your mind will gain in vigor and insight; and you will imbibe wisdom from its fountain-head.

NEWS OF INTEREST IN THE PLAINFIELD BUILDING WORLD

$8,000 APARTMENT FOR THE BOROUGH

Nathan Bernstein Will Erect Structure on Duer Street Just Across the Brook.

Nathan Bernstein, who has done considerable property development in Plainfield in the past few years, has had plans prepared for an ornamental four-family apartment on the property just across Green brook, on Duer street. The site is the low ground to the right of the street which is now being filled in preparatory to operations. The premises were originally those of John I. Brokaw, who occupied the house located at Duer street and Craig place.

Plans for the proposed structure have been drawn by Architect F. L. Lancaster, and they call for a building that will be absolutely unique, nothing like it being in Plainfield at the present time. It will be of hollow tile, with an exterior finish of white cement stucco of the "stipple" type. The roof will be of Spanish style, with an ornamental cornice that will be both attractive and durable. A terrace effect will lead from the sidewalk instead of a porch, and the main entrance wil have a handsome tile finish.

The interior of the building will be divided into four apartments of five rooms each, finished off with oak and chestnut. Each apartment will have private baths finished off with white tile, and heat will be furnished by a large steam boiler in the basement.

Plainfield contractors are now at work figuring on the plans, and it is believed the building will cost between $8,000 and $10,000. No bids have been submitted as yet, but Mr. Bernstein expects to have them all in hand within the next two weeks.

ALLEN CONCERN LEASES FOURTH ST. BUILDING

Pharmaceutical Company Will Remove From Present Quarters Before May 1.

Owing to the rapid increase of its business, the Allen Pharmaceutical Company, which manufactures tooth powders and toilet accessories, has leased the Morey-LaRue building at 121 East Fourth street, and will remove there sometime previous to May 1. The concern is at present located in the upper part of the Corey building, at Front street and Park avenue, where the manufacturing was originally commenced. Joseph C. Allen, the managing head of the company, had been in conference for several months with Messrs. Codington, Coriell and Endress, for the erection of a suitable factory at the rear of the Cousson property on West Second street, near Park avenue, but this fell through.

The Morey-LaRue building is a three-story structure and has been used for various purposes since it was put up by Morgan Bird many years ago. Beside the Morey-LaRue Company, which has been the principal tenant for the past ten years, a portion of the upper floor space has been leased recently by the Nichols Press. Mr. Nichols is now removing his business to the top floor of the Brunson building on East Front street, while the Morey-LaRue Company has not yet announced its plans. The Morey-LaRue Company is the owner of the building which it is to vacate, and Mr. Allen's lease gives him the right to purchase at the end of a term of years.

When the pharmaceutical company becomes fully established in the new East Fourth street quarters, the business will be broadened out and a considerable additional amount of help will be needed. It is quite probable that the plant will become one of the important industries of the city in the next five years.

HOTEL CHANGES WILL COST $100,000

New Packer House at Amboy Will Give P. Floersch a Metropolitan Hostelry.

Peter Floersch, proprietor of the Queen City Hotel, and his son, William Floersch, returned yesterday from Perth Amboy, after a conference with Mrs. H. G. Mendenhall, owner of the Packer House at that place, which is to be practically rebuilt previous to the Plainfielder returning to manage it. The alterations and addition will result in an expenditure of $100,000 and will give Mr. Floersch one of the finest hostelries outside of New York City. It is probable that when he takes possession it will be called "Hotel Floersch" in place of the "Packer House," as it has been known for many years. According to Mr. Floersch, the new hotel building will be 175x62½ feet in size. The main dining hall will be 100x27 feet in size. The office and writing parlor will be 80x17 feet. The office and other prominent parts of the building will be elaborate in detail. It will be fitted with a marble counter and a marble staircase. The entire ground floor will be tiled, including tile wainscoating. The structure will be fitted with an up-to-date elevator capable of carrying twelve passengers.

The cafe department of the building will be 80x17 feet in size. It will be equipped with private dining rooms. The hotel will have seventy sleeping rooms, each with hot and cold water and telephones. There will be twenty-seven private baths. A large reception room for ladies will be fitted up on the second floor. The hostelry will be fitted up with a rathskeller, barber shop, bootblack parlor and sample rooms for traveling men.

The dining room and office will be constructed on the style of those in Hotel McAlpin, New York. The front of the building will be of rich colonial style with brick and trimmings to suit.

A garage to accommodate eight machines at a time will be attached to the hotel and special attention will be paid to automobile parties.

It is planned to have the building completed, furnished and ready for occupancy by September 1 next. The hostelry will be formally opened at that time.

MR. SMITH'S NEW LOCATION.

Contractor Arthur E. Smith, who used the lot on West Fourth street, adjoining the West End fire house as a storage place, has purchased the Callahan property on East Third street, between Washington and Richmond streets, and is now removing his materials there. Mr. Smith intends to erect a workshop and tool house on the premises within a short time.

MANY BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

Eleven Granted by Inspector Doane in Past Two Weeks Aggregating $56,472.

PAST MONTH ACTIVE

March Closes With Applications Passed Amounting to $175,166, Which Total, Since January 1, Reaches $242,436.

Eleven permits in all were issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane during the last two weeks of March, the total value of new buildings, alterations and additions, amounting to $56,472. The permits granted were for three dwellings, two alteration jobs, four garages, one addition job and that of the new State Trust Company building. According to the permits issued the total aggregate expenditures for the entire month of March amount to $175,166 and for the entire year since January 1, $242,436.

The largest permit issued during the period was that to the State Trust Company, for the erection of their new home on the former Vanderbeek property at the corner of Park and North avenues. The approximate cost of the new structure is rated at $40,000. The contract calls for a brick and limestone building with concrete foundations, brick piers and court walls of structural steel. The building is to be three stories in height, including the mezzanine floor. The building will have a frontage, facing Park avenue, of about 41 feet and a depth on the North avenue side of over 64 feet. Mowlray & Uffinger are the architects and Thomas J. Steen Company, of New York, the general contractors. The entire building is expected to be completed about October 1 and when finished will be one of the handsomest structures in the city.

Of the three new dwellings which will be erected this spring, the permit issued to Leslie E. Palmer for the erection of a two-family dwelling, two and one-half stories high, at 648-650 East Second street, figures in the largest expenditure. The cost will be about $6,500.

W. C. Kinney is to have erected a single family frame dwelling on Osborne avenue, two and one-half stories high, measuring 34 to 25 feet and costing $3,500. George H. Fisher, Jr., is the architect, and William D. Burd the general contractor.

J. A. Wilson, at 1233 West Sixth street, has a permit for the erection of a dwelling costing $3,000. The architect and contractor is not mentioned.

Alterations to the dwelling at 333-335 East Second street, costing about $2,200, will be made by S. Lizzie Mundy, and Harry S. Davidson, of 63 Laramie road, will make alterations to the two-story and attic building at that place. His plans call for an expenditure of $200. A permit covering a 12 by 20 frame addition has been granted James Baker, of 1655 Prospect avenue, which will cost $50. The work will be done by the owner.

Raymond H. Smith is to erect an 18 by 20 foot frame garage at 928 Madison avenue at a cost of $302. George D. Wilson is the general contractor. Max Moraller is to erect a 12 by 16 foot frame garage at 1101 West Eighth street at a cost of $120. George Reufert is the contractor. Permits were also issued to Lewis A. Williams, Jr., of 903 West Eighth street, and to Carey Coles, of 126 East Ninth street, for garages at a cost of $300, respectively.

MARTIN CUNNIFF PUTS UP BEAUTIFUL PLASTER EFFECT

One of the handsomest white plaster panel freizes ever executed on a local building job is that now being completed at the Thompson garage on Park avenue by Cunniff brothers, who have the contract for the mason work. The design was made by Martin Cunniff, who is personally making the frieze, and it sets off the handsome show room in a manner as to attract a widespread attention. The design in some respects is of simple proportion, but the cleverness of Mr. Cunniff in white plaster work gives it the appearance of being the work of a sculptor. The remainder of the finishing in the show room gives the Thompson Company an admirable place for exhibiting cars.

Cunniff Brothers have become numbered among Plainfield's best-known contractors in the past five years, and they have erected many fine structures in this vicinity. One of them is St. Joseph's church. The members of the firm are experts in their line and the panel work described is one evidence of their ability.

SPECIAL MUSICAL SERVICE.

There will be a musical service in Warren chapel tomorrow night. During the service Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon. The soloist for the evening will be Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Miss Helen Thompson and John Richards. The choir will be assisted by Martin I. Koss, violin; Whitney Frazee, cornet, and Mr. Donnegar, trombone. All those interested in Warren chapel are invited to attend. The service will begin at 7:45.

BUILDING PROSPECTS IN THE WEST END

Large Number of New Structures Soon to Be Erected in That Part of the City.

The spring building boom has given impetus to operations in the West End, and that section of the city is one that will shortly see a large number of structures being erected. Among those not mentioned heretofore is a pretentious two-family house which Patrick Nugent purchased from Den. J. Galbraith, who owns the entire corner at the northeast side of Clinton avenue and Fourth street.

According to the plans, the house which Mr. Nugent proposes to put up will be superior to the ordinary type of this kind in the West End, and will cost at least $5,000. It will be fitted with all improvements, including steam heat, tile bath, gas and electric light. Contractors are now preparing figures.

Another West End house that is soon to go up is one for E. F. Tilley, plans for which have been drawn by George Fisher, Jr. It will be located on Stelle avenue, near Grant avenue, and will cost between $4,500 and $5,000. Mr. Fisher has also completed plans for a $4,000 house to be erected for A. W. Peck, at Sixth street and Monroe avenue, on a lot which Mr. Peck purchased a short time ago through Alvah Lindabury. It will be fitted with all modern improvements and will be occupied by Mr. Peck himself. John Wilson has broken ground for a house on West Sixth street, near Monroe, which is to cost $2,800. Howard Huff has received the mason contract, and the others are to be given out today. Maurice Israel has all plans completed for a two-family house on West Fourth street, opposite Darrow avenue, and will break ground within a week or two.

A large number of alteration jobs to West End residences are included in the prospective work that contractors are figuring on, one of the most extensive of these being to the home of Charles L. Moore in West End Park, and altogether that part of the city which lies to the west will not fall behind in the spring building operations.

CHEMICAL FACTORY AGAIN IN OPERATION

Plant Wrecked by Explosion Has Been Completely Remodeled.

The work of repairs of the damage caused to the plant of the Middlesex Aniline Chemical Company, of Lincoln, by the recent explosion, having been hurried right along in order to permit of work being taken up again on the making of the chemical product, has now reached a point where the ordinary business of the concern could be resumed, and it was accordingly started up again about a week ago and is now working to capacity producing this very valuable basic chemical for the manufacture of dyes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rankin, of Dunellen, have moved from the house on Front street, where they have lived for a year or two, to the house of Bernard Siriski, on North avenue, west of the Kuldoshes properties.

Henry Bambach has rented one half of the double house on Dunellen avenue owned by the Dunellen Home and Investment Company, and which is the most easterly of the company holdings at that point.

Stanley Krom, of Dunellen, will move the latter part of this week from the house on Penfield place to the rear of his factory on North avenue, just over the line in Plainfield, where he recently built on a residential addition.

Fred Russell and family, formerly residing in Three Bridges, and who at previous times had also resided in Dunellen and Piscataway, have moved to Middlesex and taken up their home on the Fitzsimmons place at Dewey Park.

On Saturdays the editorial column of the Daily Press is conducted, at our request, by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is William Newcorn.

BOOSTER vs. KNOCKER.

Every community is made up of those who are optimistic, commonly called the booster; the indifferent, who are satisfied to drift along, who neither build nor tear down; and the pessimist, who is called the knocker.

In this respect, Plainfield does not differ from any other city, and the optimists, the indifferent and the pessimists are just as plentiful here as elsewhere.

We have a city that justly we should be proud of; a cosmopolitan population, composed of the banker, the business man, the merchant, and men in every walk of life; streets and dwelling houses kept in excellent condition, police and fire protection second to none; schools and a school system that is praised throughout the State; gas, electric light, sewerage, water, and other municipal improvements; churches and theaters adequate for the requirement of the city; stores that compare favorably with those of any city of its size; factories that give employment to many men; a city government composed of men of intelligence, who devote the best that is in them, sacrificing time and pleasure to promote the interest of the people of the city, and providing an efficient and economical government without any compensation or expectation of reward.

With all this, there are many who continually find fault, who have not a pleasant word to say of the city, its people, its institutions, its stores, its government; men imbued with a spirit of discontent and are a detriment to the growth and development of the community.

In this glorious country of ours, the most precious gift possessed by man is the privilege of citizenship; of the right to take part in the functions of government; of aiding and assisting in the administration of its affairs and of participating in all civic movements. The exercise of this gift in a proper manner requires sagacity and discernment, and its application to local affairs should be towards the betterment of conditions both civic and political.

While everything in our midst may not be as perfect as we would like to have them, nevertheless we should appreciate what we have and make the most of it. Let us not stint our praise for what has been accomplished, nor withhold the credit from where it belongs; let us not hide our beauties under a bushel basket, but proclaim it aloud in our midst and elsewhere, every day, every hour, every minute.

Co-operative team work in our city will eliminate the knocker and invigorate the booster; it will promote civic pride; it will result in the growth and development of the city, which will inure to the benefit of all.

Therefore, let us make this our ideal, and put it before us, and dare to recognize it, and believe in it, and to build for it.

WILLIAM NEWCORN.

SPRING POET ARRIVES; MODESTLY STATES THAT SHAKESPEARE IS IN THE SAME CLASS WITH HIM

The author of the following "spring poem," the initial effort of the kind sent to the Daily Press for the season of 1916, is an Assyrian. He assures the editors that were his name not at the bottom of this effort, people would mistake it for a product of the pen of William Shakespeare, and we pass it on to our readers for their earnest consideration, as to whether or not the Bard of Avon has a chance when his work is compared with that of Dimitree Farhat. Incidentally, please note the date at the top of the page. Here is the "effort:"

TOUCHING SCENES IN EUROPE.

Alas how sad this terrible war, the guns still thunder from shore to shore,
The peace is still far, they will slaughter more, the result will be disastrous to all.
Oh Europe, the land of slaughter and woe, your best sons are crushed by the sword of the foe,
Oh Europe, the grieved, draped in black, your sons went away and never come back.
There in France they quit the dance, this terrible war put them in a trance,
And even the Germans would like to quit, as they had enough and would enjoy a rest.
England the great has just waked up she is ready to strike to be on the top.
Serbia is asleep and will rise again. She had some rest and healed from the strain.
Belgium the brave, beloved of all, the moment will arrive and you'll get your goal,
Russia the land where Cossacks rove, their enemy fell as soon they drove,
Turkey the land where prophets came there in the Dardanelles they won great fame
Bulgaria the place where cheese is made, he quit his trade and shined his blade.
Montenegro the place where heroes lived never before they ever been licked,
Austria the place of such a mixed race, Vienna the pretty is a sad looking place,
Greece is watchful and looking ahead, she doesn't believe in her blood to be shed.
...
Romania is afraid to join so late as she isn't sure what would be her fate.
Italy the land of music and art, she carried her sword and taking a part.
Wouldn't it be a joy if they all shake hands with the coming spring time and its lovely green grass!

BIBLE READING HAS ITS EFFECT ON MEN IN TRENCHES

An English writer, James Sherliker, desiring to get the unbiased opinion of Tommy Atkins regarding the European war, recently visited one of the hospitals, and interviewed a number of the patients. Among others, he found a workingman who had enlisted and had an eye shot out.

"Ah don't mind admittin'," said the wounded man in response to a question by Mr. Sherliker, "that I prays occasionally that none of my shells will ever blow a German's eye out. Understand, ah'm no less a Britisher. Simply 'uman. Ah knows wot it is to lose an eye, see? And Ah can imagine what it'll be to lose two. Besides there's no 'arm in prayin' for your enemies. The Bible says as 'ow we should."

It would seem from this that the Bible is read and remembered in the trenches. That its teachings, especially those of the New Testament, will be a factor in the final arbitrament between the Nations, there is no doubt; for civilization is founded upon the Bible, and its teachings must prevail. The present war is simply a lapse, or perhaps, it was necessary in order to eccentuate the need of Biblical ethics among Nations as among individuals. This necessity has brought about a universal revival of Bible reading, and the Big Print Red Letter Edition offered by the Daily Press meets a vital want. The coupon elsewhere in today's issue explains the terms which make it almost a gift. —Adv.

On the Spur of the Moment

Peace.

I would rather be a hero in the place that I cal home
Than to rule a mighty continent from Petrograd to Rome.

I would rather play tin soldiers with a little boy of mine
Than to lead a mighty army through the valley of the Rhine.

I would rather have him cuddle with his head upon my breast
Than to wear a dozen medals of the legion on my chest.

I would rather have him call me
"dear ol' daddy" than to hear
The voices of a multitude proclaiming me with cheer.

The American Mule's Lament.

Whenever nations go to war,
At once they think of me;
They send their buyers from afar,
And take me o'er the sea.

They make me pull their wagon loads,
Amid the shot and shell;
And if I balk, a soldier goads
Me in the flank like, O everything.

What do I care for England, or
For France or Germany?
And what should I be fighting for
Where I've no sympathy?

I'm kincking to get home again,
On old Missouri soil,
Where I can live at peace with men,
And feed well for my toil.

Proper Feeding for Baby.

Never allow a child to eat corned beef and cabbage before he is three months old, although he may be very fond of it.

Don't allow the three-months' old child to eat spaghetti or macaroni and cheese with the left hand. Teach him to use a fork.

Five-months'-old children should not be allowed to eat salmon, turbot or garlic too soon before retiring at night. Common sense should guide the parents in these things.

No child should be given rock rock candy or roundhouse steak before it has teeth.

One Way to Figure It.

Here's a sad story of a workman who thought his pay was insufficient and took the matter up with his employer. The employer took a sheet of paper, quoted a few statisticians, and produced the following figures:

	Days.
Days in year	365
One-third for recreation	122
	243
One-third for sleep	122
	121
Vacation	14
	107
Sundays	52
	55
Noon hours for year	28
	27
Saturday afternoons off	26

"And inasmuch as you do not work Christmas, there is nothing left. I can't see where you feel called upon to ask for an increase in pay," declared the employer.

Of course there's another way to figure it.

ASTOR THEATRE

The production of Mark Twain's great master-piece, "The Prince and the Pauper," at the Astor Theatre, seems to meet with great approval by Plainfielders. Dainty Marguerite Clark, the idol of millions of photoplay fans, is the star of this wonderful productions. Every man, woman and child is familiar with the great American humorist's inimitable story of the ambitious little prince, each of whom craved the life and freedom of the other. It is a rare combination of quaint humor, rich with sparkling satire that has made the name of Mark Twain revered and loved the world over, and the occasional dash of pathos which makes the laughter the richer. And there is now and then a real thrill that shows the master touch of the gifted author. It is the sort of a story that all will delight in and the photo production is one that can well be called part of a liberal education, since it introduces to the motion picture public the work of one of the nation's greatest men of letters. In addition to this wonderful picture we will show "The Paramount-Bray Cartoons" and others. This is the only theatre showing first run Paramount pictures in Plainfield. Get the Astor habit.

JULIAN MITCHELL TO DIRECT FETES

Annual Summer Carnival of Entertainments at Asbury Park Are Announced.

Asbury Park, April 1.—With the announcement today of dates for the annual summer carnival entertainments here it became known also that Julian Mitchell, the theatrical man, will produce and direct the fetes, including the baby parade on August 30. Mr. Mitchell has already been in conference with Mayor Clarence E. F. Hetrick, head of the carnival commission, on the program.

The first notable carnival event will be the Sunset Lake fete on July 20. Afterwards will come the ball for the princesses of the court on August 11, the coronation of the carnival queen on August 16 and the mardi gras on September 1.

A feature of the 1916 entertainment program, on file next week at the Information Bureau, is the Arthur Pryor concert dates for the Arlade. Mr. Pryor opens the season here June 26. Besides a series of six Wagnerian programs during the season, Mr. Pryor will devote special programs to grand and light opera, the classical composers, "popular" music, folk songs and American composers.

The Medical Society of New Jersey will celebrate its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary during its annual convention at the New Monterey Hotel here June 20 to 22. The Jersey society is the oldest medical organization in America. Representatives from many other State societies are expected to attend the celebration.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

THE CRAIG A. MARSH LAW LIBRARY.

Lawyers in our own city and contiguous towns are fortunate in having right at their elbows, so to speak, so workable a collection of law reports, digests and law text-books as are represented in the Craig A. Marsh Law Library, presented to and housed at the Public Library.

This collection is in the west end of the main room of the old building; a quiet spot, well lighted naturally and artificially, with ample table and shelf-room. The collection is accessible from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. When properly charged at the delivery desk, law reports and digests may be borrowed over night, and text-books for two nights.

- Proctor's Theatre -

A more fascinating picture in every respect could not be found than the Metro. production presented at Proctor's today. It is "Man and His Soul," and features no other than Francis X. Bushman, the popular screen idol who has hosts of friends and admirers in this vicinity. "Man and His Soul" is a most gratifying and worth-while subject, and points out the sordid and grasping side of every-day business life, and it convinces because that sordidness converts a man with a conscience into an inhuman money-making machine in a very realistic way. This is not an allegorical and preachy drama, for there are but a few allegorical scenes. Mr. Bushman in the leading role, is supported by an extremely capable cast, which includes Beverly Bayne, Jack Davidson and a host of other equally as well-known. In addition, today, two comedy features have been provided for the amusement of the little folk. One is Charlie Chaplin in "The Woman," one long and continuous howl of laughter and aching sides, and the other, "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer," with Harry Watson as chief funmaker. A well-balanced program, indeed, and one appealing to all tastes and classes of amusement seekers. Monday is a gala day, indeed, for it is then that Paramount Pictures are introduced to the patrons of Proctor's. With the consummation of the presentation of these pictures, Proctor's becomes the home of all the leading photoplay productions in the world, including the Paramount, Triangle, Fox and Metro. photoplays. On Monday, Pauline Frederick, one of the most popular Paramount stars, will be seen in "Zaza," one of her most popular picturizations. In addition, three exceptional comedies will be shown—Si Hopkins (the original) will be seen in a laugh-provoking comedy; Frank Daniels will appear in another, and those two funny fellows, Ham and Bud, will cut up some of their comic capers in a third. There will also be cartoon and scenic subjects to round out a program that is resplendent with variety and wholesome amusement. Mary Pickford will be seen on Friday of next week in one of her most charming pictures, "The Girl of Yesterday," and Theda Bara will soon appear at Proctor's in her latest production entitled "Gold and the Woman."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What Finally Happened to the Little Girl, Karen.

It Seemed as if She Were In Church Too.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

THIS is the fairy story daddy told Jack and Evelyn after supper:

"There was once a little girl who loved her shoes so well that she wore red ones to church and thought about nothing else all the time she was there. Then an old soldier with a red beard who stood outside the church door touched her shoes, and from that time on they danced and danced till she had no rest. After dancing night and day for a long time she came to live with a parson's wife. Here she did her work very well and was so kind to the children that they all loved her. But when Sunday came they all went off to church and left her home alone. As she sat in her bare little room, reading out of her prayer book, she suddenly heard the notes of an organ. She raised her head to listen and saw her room full of sunshine, which lay on the white robes of an angel, who held a beautiful green branch covered with roses in his hand."

"Oh, daddy, what did the angel do?" cried Jack.

"The angel touched the ceiling of the little girl's room with the branch, and it rose to a great height. Wherever the roses touched stars came. Then the angel touched the walls, and they spread out till her room became just like the church, and she could see and hear the organ. She saw all the old folks and little children who had come to church, and she heard them singing. Then it seemed just as if she were in the church, too, and when the song came to an end the people all looked up and saw her and said, 'It is a good thing that you came to church, too, little Karen.'"

"They remembered her, didn't they?" Evelyn understood.

"Then Karen was glad that she had been able to leave her little, bare, lonely room and join all the other children who were singing nice hymns. The organ sounded beautifully through the little church, and the children's voices echoed sweetly through the choir. The warm sunshine streamed in brightly through the open window of the church. It fell right on the bench where Karen sat, so that she felt very happy and glad. Her heart was so full of sunshine and joy and peace that it broke, and her soul flew out of the window and mingled with the sunshine which went to heaven, and no one there in the church ever remembered to ask about her little red shoes," daddy finished.

"Is that a true fairy story, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"It's as true as any fairy story ever written!" cried daddy. "And now give me two hugs and skip off to bed like good children."

"Good night, daddy!" Jack called back from the top of the stairs.

Household Hints

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Peach Skin Conserve—Wash peaches before paring, then grind or chop skins; to three pints of skins add quart sugar and pint of juice after peaches are canned (water will do). Cook slowly about one and one-half hours or until thick, then add half or three-quarters box raisins; boil five minutes longer. Just before removing from fire add half pound English walnut meats (chopped, not ground). Grease kettle with butter to prevent sticking.

Peach Sirup—When canning peaches save peelings for peach sirup. Wash peaches before peeling, save peelings, and cover with cold water. Let boil twenty minutes, set off to cool; when cool put into bag and let drain. Take two parts juice and one part sugar. Boil to sirup. Fine for pancakes.

Peach Marmalade—To one quart peach juice add one-half pint peaches mashed fine, and as much sugar as juice; cook till it jellies when tested on a cold saucer. Put in cans and seal. This is a fine spread, and the peach juice, which is often thrown out, can be used to very good advantage.

Canned Peppers—Half bushel sweet green peppers; cut tops and remove seeds. Place peppers in deep kettle. Put one teaspoon salt in each pepper, and completely cover with boiling water; let stand one hour (this takes away the raw green taste). Arrange peppers in fruit jars. Put one inside the other and stand with tops up. Peel and slice one peck of ripe tomatoes, boil ten minutes and pour over peppers; seal cans while hot.

BABY'S DRESSING BOX

Get from the grocer a box that held packages of flower seeds. Varnish the outside and line with mercerized sateen. Inside of the lid tack a piece of ribbon to match the lining. Tack to form pockets in four places. In these slits put comb, brush and small scissors.

Make a pincushion of sateen, the width of the box, and tack in place at one end of the box.

In the box may be kept vaseline, medicated cotton, boric acid, baby syringe and powder, also soap and wash cloth in rubber bags.

This is much better than the baby basket, as everything is protected from the dust.

THE TABLE

Baked Fish—Clean fish for baking, season with pepper and salt; wrap in a well oiled piece of heavy white glazed paper; tie it securely and bake for one-half hour; when done remove the paper and serve with melted butter.

Cereal Bread—One cupful rolled oats, four level tablespoonfuls barley flour, two level teaspoonfuls salt, one quart boiling water, one pint scalded milk, one yeast cake, about two quarts of whole wheat flour. Recipe makes three loaves. Mix oatmeal and barley, stir this into the boiling water, cook slowly one hour. Rub through a sieve, adding sufficient water to make three cupfuls. Add milk, salt and when lukewarm dissolved yeast. Stir in flour to make a soft dough. Beat with a wooden spoon five minutes. Cover, stand in a warm place until double its bulk. Add more flour, beat; do not make a stiff dough. Pour into greased pans, let stand until light; bake forty minutes. This is moist and porous. Pearl barley may be used in place of barley flour. Soak one-half cup over night, cook with oatmeal.

Peach Pudding—One cupful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, two cupfuls fine bread crumbs, one-half cupful chopped nuts, two tablespoonfuls lemon juice, one cupful sugar, two cups peaches, three eggs. Mix all dry ingredients, add beaten eggs, lemon juice and peaches. Beat well. Pour into buttered molds and steam two hours. Serve with cream.

New Cake Filling—Take two tablespoons peanut butter, two cups powdered sugar, add cream or milk to make a soft paste; put between layer cake or on loaf cake.

"MARRYING FOR MONEY" WILL BE RESUMED ON MONDAY

Say! for the love of Mike desist. Cease omitting every warm day, the chapter about Ortrude and J. C. Your whole paper is good, but that story is choice. When pressed for space cut out anything else that may be necessary, but spare us our few minutes with Ortrude and J. C.—at least until J. C. recovers."

Thus is expressed a protest on the back of a postal card received at the Daily Press office yesterday regarding the "Marrying for Money" articles, written by Mrs. Leonard. The publishers of the Press regret that on two different occasions recently there were a few days intervening between installments of this story. The first was due to the fact that while moving one week's installment was mislaid, and it was necessary to write to Cleveland for duplicates. When those came, through some mistake on the part of the syndicate house, we failed to receive subsequent issues, and this was not discovered until the last installment ran out on Wednesday of the current week. New copy was immediately sent for, and the Press hopes to resume publication of the serial not later than Monday. The mail service has been so uncertain of late, however, that until the copy is actually in the Daily Press office, no definite promise can be made, other than that the adventures of Ortrude and J. C. will be set forth until the end at some time.

That the articles are read by scores of readers has been proven by the fact that at both times when the publication has been temporarily discontinued, there have been many protests. So long as articles by Mrs. Leonard are procurable, the Daily Press will continue to print them, as they have been found to be the best pulling serial ever published in this newspaper.

The Plainfield Lyceum will meet tomorrow afternoon at Bethel chapel, at 5 p. m. All are welcome. William Mayse will be in charge of the program.

PRINCETON SENIORS INSURE THEIR LIVES

Novel Method Adopted by Students to Raise Alumni Memorial Fund.

Princeton, April 1.—Insuring their lives in favor of their college is the latest means which has been devised by the senior class at Princeton University for raising an alumni memorial fund. The system has been approved by both the Princeton Graduate Council and the board of trustees, and it is expected that after twenty-five years the class will have at least $60,000 to present to the university.

The insurance policies will be taken out individually by the members of the graduation class, and the premiums will range roughly from $4 to $15 per year, bringing in a return of from $100 to $400 each. The policies are to be held by a large insurance company and will be divided into three classes, the entire principal being paid to the university after twenty-five years.

This is the first Princeton class to have undertaken this system of raising funds. Previous classes have organized memorial committees and through these committees secured individual contributions each year. In addition to the insurance scheme, the present seniors have also offered to make individual contributions.

Success Results From Hard Work

Girls or women who have to work will, if they wish to make themselves more valuable to their employers, learn all they possibly can about the particular work in which they are engaged. If you are a saleswoman in a store you should make a close study of the goods you sell, should arrange your stock attractively and take a whole souled interest in the people who stop at your counter. Such a girl certainly will make herself valuable to her employer and when promotions are going the rounds she may be sure she will be remembered.

The girl in the business office has countless opportunities to grow "bigger" than her position if she has sense enough to see these opportunities and take advantage of them.

In every office there is always some one who is singled out for doing such and such work, simply because he or she uses comomn sense and can be relied upon, but suppose that Miss or Mr. Blank is suddenly called away for a day. In a twinkling the office is in an upheaval. No one feels competent to go ahead with the interrupted work and every one envies the talented Miss or Mrs. Blank, who is sorely needed at the moment.

Being able to fill in in an emergency is certainly a feather in any one's cap, and the wise girl or woman will not, as the saying is, "let the grass grow under her feet," but will utilize her spare time studying her work and studying the people above her. Thus should an emergency arise and she be called upon the chances are she will acquit herself most creditably.

Some time ago a prominent manufacturer, who, by the way, handles the firm's orders personally, was suddenly called away from his office. Several important orders lay on his desk. "Miss Blank," he called to his stenographer, "do you think you can write out these orders correctly for the foreman?" The girl had seen him do the work and had studied it. She assured him she could take care of the orders. That was at nine o'clock in the morning. At three in the afternoon the goods were boxed, ready for shipment. Had this girl been a dreamer instead of a hustler she never would have been called upon to do this important piece of work.

Influence Unnecessary.

Unfortunately many girls think that influence is very necessary toward obtaining anything like a desirable position, but all the influence in the world will not help one if one is not willing to work and work faithfully. Most of those who hold good positions had to work up to them. Influence did not help them to succeed.

Success comes only after hard, faithful, painstaking work, and the person who thinks success is at the end of a short-rose-bordered path is very, very much mistaken.

The girl or woman, who wishes to make good in any line must put her shoulder to the wheel—must do her very best. Hard work and success go hand in hand, and the girl who works hard will succeed. She will not have to rely on influence to make good.

The Engaged Girl in Business

It's a well known fact that employers dislike having engaged girls on their staff. One who seeks a new position is heavily handicapped, and is apt to find her employer regarding her with rather different eyes.

Apart from the fact that he knows the stay of an engaged girl cannot be a long one, there are other things that have made the employer distrustful of the girl who wears a diamond half-hoop on her left hand. As a general rule, he finds his assistant, after her engagement, less hardworking and altogether less efficient.

Moreover, the engaged girl generally belongs to the clock-watchers—hateful tribe! All the afternoon she keeps count of the minutes, and almost before the hour has struck she is monopolising the glass to do her hair afresh and put on her hat at the most becoming angle.

The chief notices the clock-watching, and he notices the frowns and pouts when his assistant is asked to stay an hour late to finish a rush job. No wonder he begins to lose confidence in her. No wonder, if she doesn't pull herself up in time, that she is told there will be no further need of her, and the money which was to furnish the bottom drawer must then be spent on bread and butter while she is seeking another post.

She will find it a difficult thing to obtain, for few men want an engaged girl, especially one who has been dismissed from her former position.

REST CURE FOR RAZORS.

Barbers tell us the razor gets tired and is improved after a rest. This is true in a scientific sense. It is not exactly a rest that the razor needs, although that term will express it pretty well.

It seems that any razor, after constant use on the human face, will become not exactly dull, for the barber can sharpen it, but rather sluggish, and refuse to work as smoothly as when it has lain for a few weeks without work.

Constant use and continued sharpening put the molecules in a sluggish condition, and it is impossible to get the same edge as when the steel has not been used for some time.

When the razor lies idle and the electric current is passing off at the edge the particles are being toned and tempered, and the edge actually becomes more smooth and really sharper and more fit to remove the beard.

It is claimed that a razor wrapped in rubber cloth and placed in a drawer away from any damp will not be as benefited by the rest as will a razor that is simply laid away rather carelessly without any isolation. It is the same if the razor is enclosed in a glass case, for the insulation prevents the electric current from passing through the metal.

Don't Kiss in Public

An idea prevails among men that girls waste their kisses to a considerable extent. Not, of course, that a girl should not kiss her chum or her family circle, but she should use sense and discretion in the matter.

It is not a sight to move anything but a tolerant smile to see two girls kissing one another in public, as a rule. Yet there are many girls and women, too, who seem to imagine that a street in a busy thoroughfare, or a place of entertainment, are quite suitable spots for caresses.

They are wrong; indeed, their action is in hopelessly bad taste, and degrades a friendly and beautiful act.

Perhaps the sole exception may be found in the parting at a railway, where privacy for the moment cannot be secured, and where separation is very real. Then the onlooker feels not amused tolerance but sympathy.

To Clean Looking Glasses

Take part of a newspaper, fold it small, dip it in a basin of clean cold water, and when it is thoroughly wet squeeze it out as a sponge, and then rub it hard over hte face of the glass, taking care that it is not so wet as to run down in streams.

After the glass has been well rubbed with the wet paper, let it rest a few minutes and then go over it with a fresh dry newspaper, till it looks clean and bright, which it will do almost immediately.

The inside of windows may be cleaned in this way, and they will look beautifully clear.

Uses of Herbs

Every housewife should learn the uses of savory, health-giving herbs. The following will be helpful:

Mint, for mint sauces.

Angelica, for flavoring cakes.

Lavender, for oil and toilet water.

Sage, for sausage and meat dressings.

Sweet fennel, leaves used in fish sauces.

Dill, the seeds are used to flavor pickles.

Borage, leaves boiled and eaten like dandelion or spinach.

Thyme, in gravies and dressings for stuffed meats.

Chives, used for flavoring soups and salads.

Tarragon, leaves useful in giving a delicious flavor to vinegar and pickles.

Coriander, fennel and carraway seeds are used for flavoring syrups and cakes.

Among the medicinal herbs are included:

Arnica, hops, catnip, bone, pennyroyal, belladonna, sage, rue, horehound, marshmallow, wormwood, hyssop and peppermint.

Purity in Eggs

The feeling generally prevails that one egg is as wholesome and as clean as another. We may fret and worry about the possible germs that come to us in the ice. We properly take no end of precautions in favor of a pure milk supply. We insist on wrapped bread and germless oysters and a dozen other kinds of pure food.

We trust the hen. Few of us ever realize that any germ or uncleanliness can penetrate the smooth surface of the egg shells. That opinion just shows that we do not know it all when it comes to the pure food proposition.

The very fact that eggs grow "stale" is proof enough that trouble does penetrate the shell. For this staleness is produced by the presence of micro-organisms, which in growing produce poisonous products productive of ptomaine poisoning.

So, too, eggs laid by hens not hygienically cared for may be carriers of uncleanliness. To insure the perfectly clean eggs, the hen must have clean nests, clean runs and an abundance of clean, pure water.

Gem Superstitions

Most precious stones have some superstitious belief attached to them. A piece of agate worn on the person is supposed to be a safeguard against lightning. The beryl was formerly held to promote happiness between man and wife. The turquoise is said to be a protection against falls and sudden injuries.

The topaz was highly prized on account of its supposed magical powers of dispelling enchantments and calming frenzy. The green emerald is held in high esteem by the Peruvians, many of whom believe that the mines whence emeralds are extracted are guarded by terrible giants and dragons. Perhaps more superstition attaches itself to the opal nowadays than to any other stone.

On the other hand, the people of long ago, considered that this fiery gem had the power of rendering its owner lovable, and of bestowing on him or her the gift of invisibility.

LIBRARY PASTE.

Dry a pint of flour in the oven. When hot wet with cold water and stir into a smooth paste, then add gradually sufficient boiling water to make a thin starch, stirring until thoroughly smooth. Then force through a sieve to remove lumps, and when lukewarm add a teaspoon of carbolic acid to preserve. Put in wide-mouthed bottles and cork.

HUMMEL WILL BE NAMED.

Francis F. Hummel, editor and publisher of the Dover Index, will be appointed postmaster of Dover next week. The nomination was agreed upon after former Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., conferred with United States Senators Martine and Hughes.

Rose Bushes, Shrubs and Flower Seeds

Our Holland-grown rose bushes this year are as fine as we have ever seen. Their roses will bloom well in the open and keep their richness of color unimpaired by the Summer heat; they are roses of sturdy growth; roses blooming freely; roses bearing distinctively formed buds; roses that bloom profusely and roses that are perhaps more beautiful but less prodigal of bloom. They are winning a most unusual lot of praise—and they are at the old low prices—15c each; $1.75 a dozen.

The first orders for rose bushes receive prior attention, and are always filled, whereas late comers may find that the stock of the desired variety has been exhausted.

JACK JOHNSON, JUST PASSED HIS THIRTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY, SAID TO HAVE LOST ALL HIS FORTUNE

England is the most hospitable country on the map. She has proved it time and again by affording refuge to deposed monarchs, wild-eyed anarchists and bloody-handed nihilists. There are limits to John Bull's generosity in such matters, however, and it seems that John's stomach has been turned by Jack Johnson. The ex-king of the heavyweights was informed that England could manage to get along without him. "Here's your hat," said J. Bull, politely. "What's your hurry? There's the door. Must you go? Don't forget your wife." And so Jack went away from there, bound, it is said, for South America by way of Spain.

Jack was thirty-eight years old yesterday, as he was born in Galveston, Tex., March 31, 1878. In spite of his vain boastings to English newspaper scribes, to whom he recently expressed the belief that he was able to lick any man breathing, Johnson is surely through as a boxer. According to the English papers, Jack didn't make any big hit as an actor-man, and added little to his pile by that means. The money he received from his battle with Willard in Havana has practically vanished, and the big smoke is said to be on the verge of that condition popularly described as being "broke." When at last he reaches that condition, there will be a great scattering of the hangers-on who have fattened on Jack's past prosperity, and the big black will find himself friendless and alone. It will only be a case of history repeating itself, for scores of fighters, white as well as black, have traveled that route. It is a well-beaten trail, but it is no longer popular with the majority of the top-notch pugilists.

Johnson is an example of too much prosperity. At the beginning of his career Jack was an affable, polite, modest fellow, and his famed golden smile had real friendliness in it. Like so many of his race, he was a child in temperament. Money made him a spoiled child. He was afflicted with an exaggerated ego, and came to believe that his money and his position as champion gave him a right to do as he pleased. The strong arm of the law grabbed him and gave him a rude awakening. An exile from his native land, he has since been a wanderer over the earth, hustled about from pillar to post.

Johnson insisted in England that he laid down to Willard. "They promised me that if I would consent to be defeated by Willard I would be permitted to return to the United States and would enjoy the freedom any other man would. I would be allowed to see my old mother, and I would have my motor cars and other property restored to me. It sounded very attractive, and I fell for it, but they played the double-cross on me."

That is a very entertaining sort of yarn, but if Jack was faking in Havana he was a far better actor than he has proved himself to be on the stage. Jack has nothing to lose by spinning such a yarn, and he may find a few people who will believe it. Jack has one consolation, and that is that there are mighty few things he could say or do that would besmirch his reputation.

There isn't any doubt, however, that Jack is very much in earnest when he gives expression to his longing to return to the United States. Few people have sympathies broad enough to include Jack Johnson. He is a man without a country, and doubtless he deserves his fate. Since his exile, however, Johnson has sounded one note of deep sincerity which is to his credit—his love and longing for his "old mammy." The heart of the black outcast still beats true to that universal instinct of humanity which enshrines the name of "mother" in the holy of holies.

DECLARES BASEBALL FANS DEMAND NOISE

"Riding" Players and Umps Adds Life to Games on Diamond.

The rough-neck stuff on the ball field is not desired, nor words that will not be accepted by the national board of censorship, but a debate between an ump and the manager, or a bit of racket from the bench, adds spice to the matinee, and many baseball fans indorse remarks by Manager Miller Huggins that there is a tendency to put the lid on too tight.

An additional clamp has been put on by the National League's rule that managers and players shall not draw pay during periods of suspension.

For suspensions really merited this is all right, but there is some fear the new rule may be oppressive by the over-zealousness of Mr. Tener and his umpires, just as some think has been the case in the American League.

The National League chief already had put his feet and his hands down on anything loud inside his parks. He issued his instruction to his umpires last season and each afternoon the umps conferred with the rival managers, informing them in these words: "Nothing goes today, you know. That's from the boss, and I'm acting for him." Inasmuch as a fine or suspension was the penalty for breaking the rule, the ball games in the National League became very tiresome and tame.

We do not support the silly kicks and complaints from the ball players and the managers. It becomes tiresome to see a batter argue with the umpire on every strike that is called, but to attempt to convert a ball game into a pink tea social event is a mistake and President Tener will realize this.

It's worth the price of admission to watch Jawn Evers poke fun at the umpires, and it's worth the price of admission to match Charley Herzog "ride" Huggins and the Cardinals from the first inning to the finish. That's what the fans want—they want the pitcher and the swing from the batter. These verbal battles supply the needed interest to the fan.

There's a limit to everything—we'll agree to this, but show us a player who accepts everything without a word in defense and we'll show you a ball player who does not hit around .300.

The treat of the 1914 season was the games between the Boston Braves and the Cardinals. Stallings and Boston won that National League pennant because they outgamed the Cards and because their attack had the greatest effect. With the first pitch Evers led the parade. He "mounted" the pitcher and he "was on" the batter, who was up there with a chance to drive in several runs with a hit. These tactics won that flag for the Braves.

The bitterness between the Cardinals and the Braves was so intense that the umpire was watching the moves of the players more than the decisions he had to render. In almost each of the 22 games one or more players were lifted from the box score, and it was a common sight to see half a dozen or more bench warmers on their way to the clubhouse because they were too fresh in their remarks. But, Tener, that's the stuff that fills the ball parks! Take away this aggressiveness from baseball and a film performance will be just as exciting as a noiseless ball game.

PUBLIC PARKS GOLF COURSES PLAN NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

Provided sufficient encouragement is received from New York and other centres, the movement in Chicago to form an organization to be known as the Public Parks Golf Association will be successfully launched as a national organization. The purposes of the new association are set forth as follows:

"This organization, though primarily intended to embrace only the public clubs attached to public courses in the Chicago district, will eventually be extended to include all public links in this country which may wish to become affiliated.

"Its main object is to improve the standard of public golf by having a governing body with powers to conduct interclub matches, public tournaments and in general promote the interests of public course players. To put at the service of corporate bodies all over the country which are considering the establishment of public golf the knowledge gained from experience on the Chicago municipal course.

"As the public course players are not as a rule invited to take part in private tournaments it shall be the purpose of the new league to promote public course championship so that in time they may become national in scope."

In due time it is expected that a tabulated list of all the affiliated clubs will be published in which the officers of the organization, the members and their handicaps will be given, which will be of great advantage in the conducting of tournaments. Plans will be made for home-and-home team matches beginning at the early part of the year.

The golfers identified in this organization are those vitally interested in the growth and spread of the game of golf over public courses. This should command the attention of devotees of the games, for the rapid growth of public links will soon make a national question as to this venture, which has every hope for success.

TWENTY-FIVE P. H. S. BOYS TRY FOR NINE

None of the Positions Have Been Assigned Yet—Open Next Saturday.

With the first game of the season only one week off and a host of new material to be tried out, Coach Ralph Patch and Captain Roy Apgar had the P. H. S. baseball candidates out on Crescent Oval for practice yesterday afternoon and this morning. Twenty-five men showed up for the first training and there are six or seven who will be out later.

None of the positions are decided yet, although it is probable that Apgar will return behind the bat for another year. A whole new pitching staff has got to be found and the bases will also have several new guardians. Philip Mills, who is practically certain of covering a section of the outer garden, will not be out for several days on account of a cut hand and injuries are also holding back several others. Victorson, a last year's regular, is pretty sure of a berth, probably at third base, and Butler will be one of the hurling staff. There are two or three out for each position and no idea of the regular team has yet been formed by Coach Patch.

Those out for the two practices included Butler, Alpaugh, Lewis, Noonan, Kriney, Dealaman, Victorson, Apgar, Eder, Kyle, Venable, Davidson, Kline, Semer, Terry, Wagner, Vail, Wiltse, Hylan, Dunham, Coudray and McDowell.

WELSH BADLY BEATEN BY LEONARD; STAYS LIMIT

"Freddy" Welsh, of Pontypridd, Wales, is still the world's lightweight champion, but only because of the fact that under the New York State law decisions cannot be voiced in boxing bouts. Had it been otherwise New York would today have its first lightweight titleholder, for "Benny" Leonard, who has been coming along like the flash of a meteor for the last few months, gave Welsh the beating of his career last night in a ten-round contest at the Madison Square Garden.

It is a rather unusual thing to find a real champion go through a ten-round bout without as much as laying one of the sessions to his credit. This is how it was with Welsh. Leonard had eight of the ten rounds, the first four and the last four. The fifth and sixth were about even. In some of the rounds that he lost Welsh held his opponent close, but "Benny" always managed to show the necessary speed to carry out a little bit ahead, if, indeed, it did not happen to be one of the rounds in which he had made up his mind to force matters to the limit.

RUTGERS TRYING TO FILL HARRY JENNINGS' SHOES

The chief task of Sandy Piez, who is coaching the Rutgers baseball team this year, is to fill the position formerly taken care of by Harry Jennings, the local pitcher. Jennings was seriously injured in an accident last summer, and was unable to return to college. Rutgers' opening game will be played April 14 against Colgate.

MANY AT INITIAL N. P. H. S. TRYOUT

Enough Candidates for Four Nines Reported to the Practice Yesterday.

FIRST GAME PUT OFF

Bernardsville High Postpones Match Scheduled for Next Saturday—Team Will Open at South Orange April 11—Hyde Field in Condition

The North Plainfield High School baseball candidates indulged in their first practice of the season yesterday afternoon on Hyde Field, thirty-five reporting. The large squad was put through the usual preliminary drill by Captain Oscar Dilts.

Hyde Field was in fairly good condition with the result that the infielders were given an opportunity to cast their eyes on the spheroid as it rolled along the ground. Andy McDonough appeared behind the plate, with Al Seidel on the initial sack. Douglas Stewart, who is striving for the vacancy at the midway station, gives promise of developing into a rattling defender of this territory if his showing yesterday is a criterion. Dawe and Townley completed the circuit, being situated at short-stop and third base, respectively.

Contradictory to a previous announcement, the boroughites will not open their season a week from today with Bernardsville High School. Manager William Seidel received notice from the mountaineers that they will be unable to appear at that date, the contest being switched further into the season. The locals have been deprived of opening on their own soil, so they will have to travel to South Orange on the eleventh of this month to meet the Seton Hall Prep team.

Practice will be held again today. Those who appeared yesterday were: Elmer Causbrook, Lawrence Robinson, Anthony Seidel, Vincent La Porte, Victor Levitz, Stanley Burner, William Barry, Robert Parsch, Douglas Stewart, Alfred Willett, Newton Mair, Brooks Carson, Andrew McDonough, Oscar Dilts, Edward Yates, Lawrence Dawe, Martin Mc Donough, Alexander Milne, Sherman Chandler, Charles Roll, William Seidel, Earnest Prudon, Roy Adams, Jack Cannon, Le Roy Force, Almond Doty, Clarence Roddy, Martin Althorn, Leslie Daly, Kenneth Laurie, Alec Dipplock, Stephen Bloore, Randolph Douglas, Earl Cook, Channing Peck and Warren Townley.

PROS AND AMATEURS IN PINEHURST FOUR BALL

Pinehurst, N. C., April 1.—The weather conditions yesterday were ideal for the sixth annual professional-amateur four-ball match, which opened the men's North and South golf championship. "Alex" Ross, Detroit Golf Club, and Charles Skehens Wood's Hole, easily led the field, with 69—66—135, best ball for the thirty-six holes over the No. 2 course. N. Mother, Wilmington, N. C., and P. V. G. Carter, Nassau, the junior metropolitan amateur champion, were second, with 138.

For third prize there was a tie of 140 between "GH" Nichols and E. C. Beal and Herbert Lagerblade and E. L. Schofield, Jr. First prize for the professional of the winning pair was $100, and for the amateur a silver trophy.

EDDIE FEIHL ROLLS ANOTHER 300 SCORE; AVERAGES 247.2

Eddie Feihl, Elizabeth's champion bowler, rolled another perfect score Thursday afternoon on Jackie Clarke's Branford place alleys, Newark, in a match against William Wintergreen, a Newarker. Feihl took ten out of twelve games. Wintergreen was given a handicap of thirty pins in the first two games, fifty pins in the next five and sixty in the last five games.

Feihl's 300 score came in the third session and all were clean pocket hits. His average for the series was 247.2 Arrangements are now under way for a home-and-home series between Feihl and Al Weber. The games will be pinned on Bock's alleys and the Tuxedo chutes.

MANY IN ROCKAWAY HUNT.

Although entries do not close for more than two weeks, nominations for the annual hunter and pony races of the Rockaway Hunting Club indicate that record-breaking fields will start in these events. This meet, to be held at Hewlett Bay Park, Long Island, on April 29, will open the amateur thoroughbred racing season of 1916.

GETS FIRST JERSEY PERMIT.

Rising out of obscurity after several years of inactivity, the Warren Athletic Club, of Jersey City, last night received the first sanction to conduct amateur boxing bouts under the new law recently enacted in New Jersey. The dates granted were April 19 and 21.

P. G. S. WINS FINAL GAME OF BIG SEASON

Closes String of Successes With a Verdict Over Roselle G. S.

The Plainfield Grammar School's basketball team finished its basketball season yesterday afternoon, when the Roselle Grammar School team went down to a 27 to 9 defeat on the P. H. S. court. At no time did the visitors have a chance. For minutes at a time the locals carried the ball all over the court, with the Roselle team chasing after them. Nearly everybody took a hand in the locals' scoring, but Mowen, although playing guard, did some fine shooting. The P. G. S. team had a very successful season, winning a large majority of its games.

The club will be known as the "Shackamaxon Country Club" and the eighteen holes will total 6,615 yards. The clubhouse and grounds, according to present plans, will be elaborate in construction. A beautiful lake is located in the middle of the links, and furnishes ideal water hazards.

It is a Plainfield course as much as any other local links. A Plainfield man is responsible for it, and a Plainfield woman chose the name. Wadsworth A. Parker, of West Seventh street, suggested the project, and Mrs. Parker, after spending several weeks tracing the early history of New Jersey, found that the Shackamaxon Indians, a tribe of the Delawares, lived in the vicinity of where the club is to be, probably on the very same land. Shackamaxon street in Philadelphia is a landmark of the spot where William Penn signed his treaty with the Indians.

Mr. Parker is an officer of the American Type Founders Company, of which Walter S. Marder, exalted ruler-elect of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. Elks, is secretary. The country home of Robert W. Nelson, president and general manager of the American Type Founders Company, was selected as being ideally suited for a golf links.

Probably many residents of Plainfield can recall the old Lambert Mills section of Fanwood township, for this is where the Shackamaxon Country Club is located. The old Lambert farm—where the Lamberts resided for one hundred and fifty years or more—a place at one time famous for its wonderful applejack — was purchased some eight years ago by Mr. Nelson, who has since made it his summer residence. For some time past this beautiful spot of farm land has been sought by New York golf enthusiasts, for indeed the property possesses unusual advantages for a golf course, and it is doubtful if another lake like the one there can be found within the confines of the Metropolitan golf district that could be used so advantageously for the ancient and royal game of golf. But not until Mr. Nelson had purchased considerable additional acreage from J. E. Gallagher, was it finally decided to build the golf course. The additional property was needed to make possible what was required by A. W. Tillinghast, the well-known golf architect and journalist, to design what he conscientiously considers an unusual golf links.

The length of the holes, printed today for the first time, follows:

Hole	Yds.	Hole	Yds.
First	253	Tenth	641
Second	429	Eleventh	140
Third	328	Twelfth	441
Fourth	392	Thirteenth	479
Fifth	593	Fourteenth	233
Sixth	426	Fifteenth	403
Seventh	364	Sixteenth	469
Eighth	178	Seventeenth	196
Ninth	310	Eighteenth	340
Total out	3273	Total in	3342

Total for 18 holes, 6,615 yards.

Work on the course has been held up by the weather, but an extra gang has been hired to start on the job Monday morning. The organization meeting of the club will be held next month. The first nine holes will be ready for play before the Fourth of July, but the other nine will not be completed until later.

Printers, and others interested in the graphic arts, will constitute a large part of the club's membership. Most of the proposed members are from New York, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Newark, Westfield and Plainfield.

Water hazards cross the line of play on seven different holes. The lake is crescent-shaped, is situated in the middle of the links, and is three-quarters of a mile long and from one hundred to three hundred and fifty feet in width. The ninth green is on an island. The first 242 yards of the hole is uphill, and the approach from the top of the rise down to the green, which is surrounded by a ditch twenty feet wide. To play the seventeenth straight for the pin requires a carry from the tee of 140 yards over the pond.

The club plans to correct the "golf widow" evil by attractions that will appeal to every member of the family. A flotilla of twenty-seven boats for the lake were purchased Tuesday of this week. There will be a total of thirty-five rowboats and canoes. One part of the pond affords excellent swimming, and will be fringed with a strip of beach. In the angle of the V formed by the two arms of the lake is a dense grove which makes a splendid place for recreation. The club will be open all the year round, and skating and other winter sports will be provided.

Alterations of the house began this morning. The plans call for the additions of two wings, in which will be the dining rooms, bed rooms and baths. Locker rooms and a power plant will be in the basement. It is possible that a grill, a billiard room, bowling alleys and a swimming pool will be additional features. Wide verandas will flank each side of the house, which will be located at the northeast end of the lake, near the first, seventh and tenth tees, and the sixth, ninth and eighteenth greens. The links will be dotted with summer houses and rustic bridges. The town of Westfield is macadamizing a street that leads directly to the club. The course is bounded on three sides by Martine avenue, Raritan road and Radley road, all well-known thoroughfares.

Although the men back of the new club have avoided publicity, more than two hundred applications for membership have been received, most of them from printers, advertising men and those engaged in allied professions. Each clear Sunday brings many automobilists to visit the course, but tomorrow will be an exception, because Terrill road, the main approach now, is temporarily closed.

Operations on the golf links were begun last August, and the first nine holes were practically completed before freezing time. During the winter, a force of men has been busy cutting down timber and clearing the fairways of brush and stumps.

A temporary building will be used until the erection of the club house is completed.

The tenth hole, 641 yards long, will replace the third at the Park Golf Club as being the longest hole on a local course. As it was at first laid out, the tenth was the longest hole in the world, but it was decided to forego this distinction, and the length was reduced to 641 yards.

The new club will draw members from this city, especially from the Netherwood section, to which it will be the nearest course.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO CAPT. PARLIN

Father of Mrs. Charles A. Eaton Found Dead in Bed at "Sunbright."

SERVED IN CIVIL WAR

Commanded Massachusetts Company of Volunteers and Was Honored for Bravery—Was Talented as a Musician—Funeral Wednesday.

Captain William D. Parlin, a member of an old New England family, and bearing one of the most brilliant Civil War records of any Massachusetts volunteer, was found dead in bed early this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Eaton, of "Sunbright," Watchung. Death had ensued during the night from a stroke of paralysis. Captain Parlin has been a sufferer for a number of years from arterial sclerosis, but all of yesterday seemed to be feeling his customary health. He attended service at the Wilson Memorial chapel, and after passing the evening with the members of the family, retired at his usual time. His relatives heard no call from him, and it was not until he was to be summoned for breakfast that his lifeless body was found.

Captain Parlin was born in Natick, Mass, seventy-seven years ago this, his forebears having been located in New England from the earliest days of its settlement. His paternal grandfather was a revolutionary captain, and was severely wounded at the Battle of Bunker Hill. When only a young man Captain Parlin entered the hardware business at Natick, and built up one of the largest establishments of that kind in Massachusetts. He conducted it personsonally for fifty years, retiring in 1906. For the past five years he had made his home at Watchung with Mrs. Eaton, and by his local residence had become widely acquainted throughout this vicinity.

When the Civil War broke out, Captain Parlin responded to the call for volunteers, and because of his military knowledge was placed in command of a company. He went to the front in the early months of wounded twice, but fully recovered until one month before the surrender at Appomattox. He was severely wounded twice, but fullly recovered each time. At the time of his discharge he was listed as a captain in full standing, with recommendation from superior officers for bravery and attention to duty. Here are still a number of survivors of his company, and they will act as escort when the funeral and interment take place at Natick, Thursday.

Although he never used it as a means for financial gain, Captain Parlin possessed extraordinary ability as a musician. He was especially proficient on the pipe organ, and for forty years played the beautiful instrument at the First Baptist church at Natick. He also acted as choirmaster during this time, and because of his mastery of music gave the church a most enviable reputation throughout Massachusetts as the possessor of an organist and choir worthy of the largest metropolitan congregation. He was passionately fond of music himself, and gave of his talent for the benefit of others, frequently rendering selections at the largest concerts in New England. Beside Mrs. Eaton, Captain Parlin is survived by one other daughter, Mrs. Russell Coutts, who also resides at "Sunbright;" one brother, Louis Parlin, of Littleton, N. H., and a sister, Mrs. Mary Balcom, of New Bedford, Mass., Mrs Parlin died at Watchung two years ago. Captain Parlin was a member of the Loyal Legion, but had no other fraternal or patriotic affiliations. A preliminary funeral service will be held at "Sunbright" Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. It will be in charge of Rev. Dr. R. F. Y. Pierce, of this city, assisted by Dr Eaton. The body will then be taken to his native home at Natick, where the military honors will be conferred by his old comrades, and the casket borne to the grave by his most intimate friends of other days.

STOLE FROM GRANDMOTHER, MOTHER HAS HIM ARRESTED

Arrested on a complaint sworn out by his mother, charging that he stole money from his grandmother, Joseph Moore, a thirteen-year-old negro boy, is being held at the police station until he can be sent to a reformatory. Joseph has been in court several times on charges of petty larceny and his mother admits that he is incorrigible. Last week he stole fifty-one cents from his grandmother's home and his mother asked Patrolman Martin Welch to arrest him.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Lynch have moved from the New Madison to Summit avenue, North Plainfield.

WILLIAM HOLMES TO LEAVE BAPTIST CHOIR

Will Give up Position After 23 Years' Service—Mrs. Frank Also Resigns.

Within the coming month important changes will be made in the First Baptist church choir. William Holmes, who has been the baritone soloist there for twenty-three years, and Mrs. Edith Hallett Frank, soprano soloist, for the past two years, have resigned and will take positions elsewhere. They will conclude their services at the above church on Easter Sunday. Mr. Holmes has not announced his plans for the future, but Mrs. Frank will devote her time more to concert work in which she has had much success.

The retirement of Mr. Holmes as soloist at the First Baptist church is greatly regretted by his many friends who have enjoyed his splendid singing for so many years. Not only in the work of the chorus, but as a soloist, has his rich bass voice added greatly to the rendition of sacred music. With the exception of a comparatively short time when he underwent treatment for a throat affection, Mr. Holmes has scarcely missed a Sunday throughout his twenty-three years of service, which practically covers his whole career as a church soloist.

Mrs. Frank before coming to Plainfield was soloist in the Washington Heights Baptist church, New York. Her singing here has been a feature of the music at the local church. In addition to concert work, Mrs. Frank will continue as soloist at Jewish Synagogue, Fifth avenue, New York. It is not known who will succeed the retiring singers.

BOROUGH COUPLE FORTY YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston Observe Event at Family Dinner and Reunion.

In honor of the fortieth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, of the borough, arranged a family reunion and dinner, at their Fairview avenue home yesterday afternoon. The couple were the recipients of messages of congratulation throughout the day as well as many floral gifts. Among the latter was a large bouquet from the children. Among those present at the family dinner were Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Woodland and daughter, of Belmar; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Arbuckle, of Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. J. C Fox, of Plainfield, daughters and sons-in-law; Mr and Mrs. Charles Woolston and Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Woolston, of Plainfield, sons and daughters-in-law, and Miss Marguerite Woolston, a daughter, also of the borough. Mrs. E. D. George, Jr., another daughter was the only one of the children absent, she and Mr. George living in Virginia and being unable to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Woolston were married in Camden, April 2, 1876, the maiden name of Mrs. Woolston being Miss Mary Robinson Buckle. The major part of their married life has been spent in the borough, where they hold the friendship of a large circle of acquaintances.

Mr. Woolston is engaged in the painting business, he and his brother-in-law, former Mayor James F. Buckle, organizing the firm of Woolston & Buckle. Several years ago the latter retired from the concern, and Mr. Woolston still conducts the business under the firm name. He is also a former councilman of the borough, and has always been greatly interested in the civic affairs of the city and borough. He is a prospective candidate for sheriff of Somerset county on the Republican ticket.

MANY ATTEND MUSICAL SERVICE AT WARREN CHAPEL

Six members were received at the communion service in Warren chapel yesterday morning, three by confession and three by letter. In the evening a musical service was held the Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, preaching the sermon. His topic was, "As a Man Is So Is His Strength." The soloists for the service comprised Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Miss Helen Thompson and John Richards. They were assisted by Martin A. Korff, violin; Whitney Frazee, cornet, and Mr. Donnegar, trombone.

FRACTURES HER HIP.

Mrs. Mary J. Fisher, of Linden avenue, the borough, is at Muhlenberg Hospital, under treatment for a fractured hip. The woman, who is 80 years old, met with the accident a few days ago, when she fell at her home. An X-ray photograph of the break was taken at the hospital to determine the extent of the injury.

DEMOCRATS POSTPONE MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club announced for tomorrow night has been postponed for one week to Tuesday night, April 11.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Local Branch of Letter-Carriers Meet and Receive Encouraging Reports.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

New York Association to Send Marching Body of 2,000 Men With Four Bands—Newark Will Have 400 Men in Parade.

The local branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers, of which every carrier in the local office is a member, met in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, Saturday night and transacted much business. J. W. A. Bauersachs as chairman of the convention committee, made a splendid report and urged every member to work hard for the success of the State convention on May 30.

Reports from the New York letter carriers were received and they promised a marching body of 2,000 men, with four bands, for the parade. Newark carriers were also heard from and they will be represented by 400 men in line with their own military band, the members of which are letter carriers. Elizabeth carriers will also be led by a military band.

Arrangements have been made with W. C. Hope, general passenger agent of the New Jersey Central, to run special trains to bring the visiting organizations to this city. Other cities were heard from and all promise a large representation of carriers in the parade. Local organizations were heard from. These include Co. K, Second Regiment; Knights of Pythias, uniformed rank; Jr. O. U. A. M., uniformed rank—who will participate in the parade and help to make May 30 a red-letter day for Plainfield.

To finance this large undertaking is a serious problem for the local organization of letter carriers, and it would not have been possible without outside help. The carriers appreciate the interest and help of various civic bodies through whom a citizens' committee was formed to give financial assistance. About half the amount needed has been subscribed.

William Floersch is treasurer of this committee, and he is working hard to raise the necessary amount of money to make convention day a big success, and, incidentally, advertise Plainfield far and wide as a live-up-to-date city. The committee on banquet reported that Columbus auditorium had been secured and that about 250 delegates and guests would be provided for. The committee on speakers reported acceptances from several Senators and Congressmen to speak at the banquet. George Keen, head of the local branch of letter carriers, presided at the meeting.

F. L. BROWN NEW HEAD OF RANSOME CONCRETE CO.

The Ransome Construction Company, of Dunellen, has been reorganized and executive offices established at 115 Broadway, New York. F. L. Brown, of San Francisco, formerly with the Washburn & Moen Co., the Western Power Company, and other large concerns, has been made president and general manager. E. L. Ransome, founder and creator of the concrete machinery business, has been made chairman and consulting engineer.

On the new board of directors are G. F. Steele, general manager of the News Print Manufacturing Company, of Chicago; H. K. Brooks, vice-president of the American Express Company; F. M. Smith, known as the "Borax King"; H. M. Brittan, a constructing engineer; A. J. Norton, secretary of the company, and J. J. Givens, treasurer.

YOUTHFUL TRAVELERS GET INTO TROUBLE AT DUNELLEN

Two young men, both aged 17 years and giving their names as Augustus Puren and George Haud, and their residence, Easton, Pa., were arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell at Dunellen, Saturday, on a charge of taking a bottle of milk from the home of Thomas Beck, of that place. They told the Recorder that they had taken the milk because they were short of funds and needed nourishment. After giving the boys some fatherly advice, Recorder Campbell allowed them to go on their way.

OPERATORS ENJOY VACATIONS.

Henry Bitzenberger, night operator at the Western Union office, has returned from a two-weeks' vacation spent in Pennsylvania, and Harry Swivel, also an operator in the same office, is now enjoying a vacation, one week of which will be spent at his former home in Kingston, N. Y.

TRUSTEES OF HEAVENLY REST.

Members of the Board of Trustees of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will meet in the Parish House Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Several important business matters are to be transacted.

FULL PROGRAM OF DEDICATION

Biederwolf Tabernacle to Be Opened to Public Friday Evening.

DR. CARSON SPEAKER

Famous Brooklyn Pastor Will Be Principal Speaker—Chorus Choir and Orchestra to Be Heard for First Time.

The Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, of Brooklyn, is to be the principal speaker at the dedication of the Biederwolf Tabernacle in Plainfield at the services on Friday evening of this week. Mr. Carson is pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in Brooklyn, and is an able and eloquent speaker. He was formerly moderator of the Genaral Assembly.

The Rev. J. Y. Broek, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dedicatory services this morning, announced a program in full. Many local pastors will take part, and it is planned to make this service one prophetic of the evangelistic campaign of Dr. Biederwolf, which begins Sunday morning.

The full chorus-choir will take part, and instrumental music will be furnished by the campaign orchestra. The services will begin at 7:30. The program follows:

Song service, conducted by Clifford A. Braider.
Invocation, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of First M. E. church
Responsive reading, Rev Edward S. Ralston, pastor, Netherwood Reformed church.
Hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers."
Lesson from Old Testament, Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor, Presbyterian church, Dunellen.
Lesson from New Testament, Rev. William L. Imes, pastor of Bethel chapel.
Hymn, "What a Friend We Have In Jesus."
Prayer of dedication, Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor of First Baptist church.
Hymn, "Just As I Am."
Dedicatory address, Rev. J. F. Carson, D. D., pastor, Central Presbyterian church, Brooklyn.
Hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."
Benediction, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector, Church of Heavenly Rest.

PLAN FUND FOR RELIEF OF MINISTERS

Newark Conference Decides to Reward Preacher's After Long Service in Church.

Newark, April 3.—Plans for an increased fund for the relief of retired ministers and their widows were discussed at this morning's session of the Newark Methodist conference. It is believed that the session will end today. Last year, $14,451 was raised for the steward's fund, but it is believed that $2,000 will be needed this year. The plan is to pay a retired minister fourteen dollars a year for each one he served in active work, and one-half this sum to his widow. This year, the amounts paid will be nine dollars for each year of service to retired ministers, and half this amount to widows.

The statistician, this morning, announced that members of churches in the conference had increased 3,117 during the past year. Ministerial support cost $398,865 last year, or an increase of $6,391 over the year before. The conference has 316 churches, or five less than in 1915, and the total value of its buildings is $5,991,600, which is $46,102 more than last year. During the year, $64,000 was paid on indebtedness of churches in the conference, leaving total incumbrances $797,172, or almost $100,000 less than in 1915. Current expenses of all churches last year were $244,953, an increase of $21,915. There are 69,704 students in conference Sunday-schools, or 2,958 more than last year, and the baptisms in the past year totaled 4,298, an increase of 960 over the same period reported on in 1915.

Five elders and eleven deacons were ordained by Bishop Wilson yesterday afternoon.

POSTOFFICE STATISTICS.

Commencing today and continuing until Saturday, the letter carriers and clerks at the postoffice will keep a record of all mail which passes through their hands, counting and weighing each parcel, and keeping a record of the time consumed in the sorting, distribution and delivery of all mail. This is required once a year and the results will be forwarded to Washington, where the record is filed.

LAST UNION SERVICE.

The mid-week union service will be terminated with the service at the First M. E. church, Wednesday night. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will have charge of the service.

INVITE GENERAL CONFERENCE HERE

Seventh-Day Baptist Church in Annual Session Vote to Entertain Body in 1917.

PASTOR IS RE-ENGAGED

Rev. Edwin Shaw to Continue Here for Two Years—Officers Are Re-elected—Reports for the Year—Supper is Served.

The Seventh-Day Baptist church, of this city, in annual session yesterday, voted to extend an invitation to the general conference of the denomination to meet here in 1917. This conference is made up of all the churches of the denomination throughout the world, including England, Holland, Germany, South America, Africa, as well as this country. The conference, which lasts about one week, is generally held in August. It is many years since the conference met in this city. The entertainment of delegates will be arranged by the local church, and the gathering will be an important one in the history of the denomination as well as the Plainfield church.

The annual meeting of the local church began at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued up to 9:30 o'clock last night, with an hour's intermission for supper and social. It was during the afternoon session that most of the business was transacted and officers were elected.

Rev. Edwin Shaw was re-engaged as pastor for a term of two years. Joseph A. Hubbard was re-elected trustee for five years, and the following were re-elected:

Clerk, Asa F. Randolph; treasurer, William M. Stillman; assistant treasurer, George E. Stillman; auditors, Charles H. Dunham and Arthur L. Titsworth; organist and chorister, Miss Jessie M. Utter; ushers, George M. Clarke, chairman; Dr. Otis B. Whitford, Raymond C. Burdick, Rolland M. Davis, Arthur J. Spicer and Harold Spicer.

During the day there was conducted a campaign to provide for the church expenses for the current year, and a sufficient sum was secured to cover the annual budget. Owing to some extraordinary repairs made last year there was a slight deficit, and this was taken care of through subscriptions received yesterday.

Letters from forty absent or non-resident members were received, they being in the nature of greetings to the church. During the afternoon and evening there were vocal solos by Roy E. Titsworth, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. William C. Hubbard and vocal selections by a quartet comprising Dr. Otis B. Whitford, Roy E. Titsworth, Charles Potter Titsworth and Ernest C. Whitford.

The devotional exercises were in charge of Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor, and Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder. During the intermission from 6 until 7:16 o'clock supper was served by members of the Woman's Society for Christian Work, after which general reports of the year's work were presented. The attendance at both the afternoon and evening meetings was unusuallly large.

MRS. CATHERINE BLOCK PASSES AWAY IN NEWARK

Mrs. Catherine Block, wife of Henry A. Block, formerly a resident of the borough passed away at her home in Newark last Saturday.

Mrs. Block was born in North Plainfield sixty years ago, and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Uhrhahn, who came to Plainfield over seventy-five years ago. She resided in the borough up to three years ago, when she moved to Newark.

She had been an invalid for the past fifteen years, but despite her suffering, was always cheerful. She was beloved by all who knew her, and will be sadly missed by her many friends.

Beside her husband, she is survived by a son, James H. Block, of Newark, and three daughter, Mrs. Joseph Jacob, Mrs. Theresa Connors, and Mrs. Maria Angeline McWilliams, all of Newark. Two brothers and a sister also survive her. They are William and Edward Uhrhahn, and Mrs. William Ricketts, of Plainfield.

The funeral will be held in St. Joseph's Church, the borough, Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, and interment will take place in St. Mary's cemetery.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson, of North Plainfield, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Carson, to George Wraight, also of the borough. The wedding will take place early in May.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in the Frost building, on Park avenue.

The Riding Season.

FIND STOLEN SILVER HIDDEN IN A TREE

Alexander Messler, While Chopping Wood Discovers Property of E. L. Wicket.

While cutting wood on the Bell property, off Westfield road, Scotch Plains, Saturday, Alexander Messler, of that place, accidentally discovered a valise full of silverware which, it was afterward learned, belonged to E. L. Wicket, of North avenue, Scotch Plains, and in the opinion of the police it may help to clear up the mystery concerning several burglaries in the Fanwood Scotch Plains section.

The silver was turned over to the police by Mr. Messler and it was through an investigation that it was discovered that the goods belonged to Mr. Wicket. He explained that he had found the valise hidden away in the trunk of a tree he was about to cut down. With the first fell of the axe his curiosity was aroused by a hollow sound and an examination disclosed the silverware.

Mr. Wicket's house was entered by burglars about five weeks ago, the matter being reported to the police at that time. Since then he has been living in Plainfield. There were nine pieces of silverware in the valise, and the Fanwood police seem to think that they have a good clue which will lead to an arrest in a few days. The booty was found about one mile from Mr. Wicket's home.

LOCAL MAN KILLS SELF IN NEWARK

George Mount Had Left Wife and Two Children in Plainfield.

Newark, April 3.—George Mount, 35 years old, who roomed at 30 Orchard street, having become estranged from his wife and two children in Plainfield, early yesterday morning, in what was apparently a sudden fit of pique, shot himself in the right temple in the home of Mrs. Florence Johnston, 35 Wakeman avenue. He was hurried to the City Hospital, where he died shortly before 6 o'clock.

Police investigations disclosed that Mount and Mrs. Johnston, whose livery stable on Belleville avenue he managed, had attended an "April Fool" party together in the neighborhood of the Johnston home. Leaving the party about 3 o'clock in the morning, Mount saw Mrs. Johnston to her home and stopped in for a moment's conversation. This opportunity Mrs. Johnston availed herself of to upbraid Mount for his over-indulgence in cocktails at the party, when, to her surprise, he suddenly drew a revolver and fired a bullet into his temple. A hurry call was sent to the City Hospital for an ambulance, and upon its arrival, Mount was found lying unconscious on a couch in the living room of Mrs. Johnston's apartment, fully dressed and with gloved hands. Mrs. Johnston has a husband from whom she lives apart.

TO LECTURE ON LAST WEEK IN LIFE OF CHRIST

The Rev. Henry Mesler will give an illustrated lecture to the Sunday-school of the church of the Heavenly Rest, Friday afternoon at 4:30, in the Parish House. His subject will be" The Last Week in the Life of Christ." The public is invited.

ENDICOTT RICH WEDS MISS HAZEL BROWN

Miss Hazel Brown, of Brooklyn, and Endicott Rich, of 68 Willow avenue, were quietly married yesterday afternoon by the Rev. C. H. Mallory, pastor of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, in the church parlors. The bride was attended only by her brother, while the mother and father of the bridegroom were the only other witnesses. The couple will leave at once for a tour of the West, where Mr. Rich must go on business. They will return June 1, after which they will make their home in Plainfield.

TO GIVE WHIST PARTY.

The Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Society will hold a whist in the Y. M. H. A. rooms tomorrow night. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the local Hebrew school. Attractive prizes have been donated for the lucky winners in the play, and the committee in charge have arranged an interesting program of features that will keep everyone entertained.

MISSION SOCIETY MEETING.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will meet in the church parlors Friday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The subject will be "The Freedman," and there will be an address by Mrs. F. W. Wilcox, secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions of the Congregational church.

ZEPPELIN RAIDS CHANNEL PORT

Bombs Did Little Damage in Dunkirk, Says French Report.

MORE STEAMERS SUNK

Achilles and Perth Victims of Submarines—No Warning Given—Germans Fail to Make Gains Before Verdun Forts.

Paris, April 3.—Dunkirk has been bombarded by a Zeppelin airship, it was officially announced today. The bombs hurled from the aerial raider upon the French channel port killed two civilians but from a military standpoint the attack was a failure, only insignificant damage having been caused. The lone raider that assailed Dunkirk is believed at the French War Office to have been one of the Zeppelin's selected for reprisals against England and France for the recent raid on the German Zeppelin base in Schleswig-Holstein.

Germans Enlarge Attack.

French war statement:

"According to this afternoon's bulletin issued by the French War Office fighting continued during the night in the Verdun region east of the Meuse, between Doumont and Vaux. The issue turned generally in favor of the French who gained ground in the northern part of the Caillettee wood, which was occupied by the Germans yesterday west of the river. A bombardment was carried on near Haumont without effect. This statement says that in yesterday's fighting the Germans lengthened their front of attack about two miles."

Two More Steamers Sunk.

London, April 3.—The British steamers Achilles, 7,043 tons gross, and Perth, 653 tons, have been sunk by submarines. The Achilles was attacked without warning, according to the announcement issued here today, and four of the crew are missing. The other sailors were landed. The loss of the Achilles became known last night. The Perth hailed from Glasgow. Six of her crew perished, eight more rescued. The vessel was unarmed and it is understood to have been attacked without warning.

Clyde Strike May End.

Glasgow, April 3.—Officials of the ministry of munitions believe that the end of the strike of munition workers on the Clyde is within sight. Many of the strikers went back to work today, while others have promised to do so later in the week.

Dock Workers Return.

Liverpool, April 3.—All the dock workers who struck last week were back at their usual tasks today. The liner St. Paul will sail Wednesday, it having been delayed four days by the strike.

Expect Reply from Berlin.

Washington, April 3.—The State Department today received word from Ambassador Gerard saying that the German Foreign Office expected at an early date to give definite and formal reply to the query as to whether a German submarine sunk the Sussex and the Englishman.

VILLA NOT CAUGHT; GETS MORE TROOPS

Washington Fears Line of Communication to Troops May Be Cut.

Washington, April 1.—Reports have been reaching the United States through various sources this morning that Villa had been captured by United States troops. They are without official confirmation, however, and are not believed here. Instead of that it is feared that whatever news has reached the War Department from its agents in Mexico and across the border has been bad, and that threatening revolts of Carranza troops now endanger the American line of communications. Should this thin line between General Pershing's expedition and main camp at San Antoine be broken it would mean the sacrifice of many lives. Villa appears to have escaped Col. Dodd and his Seventh Cavalry troopers after the severe defeat of last Wednesday afternoon and is being reinforced by friendly peons and revolting Carranzista soldiers. Col. Cano, who was said to have joined him almost two weeks ago with more than 900 well armed and well mounted men, is again reported to be with the bandit band. The attitude of General Herrera is also causing considerable worry.

Col. Dodd has not been heard from since Saturday. His last laconic report stated that he was pursuing Villa's band northwest from Guerrero.

ANNUAL PARISH MEETING.

The annual parish meeting of the First Baptist church and congregation will be held on Wednesday evening, April 12. The annual business meeting of the church will occur at the same time.

A Free Pass Good on Any Railroad

A pass is a mighty acceptable thing--and that is practically what you get by saving Travelstamp mileage. You simply accumulate the Travelstamps given you with your purchases at the stores--and when you have sufficient mileage to take you to some desired point--exchange for a railroad ticket.

TRAVELSTAMPS

PAY YOUR FARE EVERYWHERE

Thousands of patrons of retail stores of every description and of moving picture theatres, are now enthusiastically saving these new trade coupons "of definite value."

It isn't a fad—for Travelstamps have come to stay—and live merchants know it. A more utilitarian project has never been presented to the public.

Travel is the keynote to our daily life. We travel to and from business. When we are run down in health the doctor says "Travel." When we plan our honeymoon, we plan to travel. When we think of vacation time we think of travel.

Let Travelstamps pay your fare hereafter, and you'll have more money for your living expenses.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

"FOX OF THE ROAD" IS SADLY FOOLED

"Bill" Sheehan, Veteran Central Conductor, looking for Perpetrator of Joke.

"Bill" Sheehan, the veteran conductor of the Central Railroad and hero of this tale, needs no introduction to the commuting public of Dunellen.

For years "Bill," because of his great keenness, has been known from Somerville to Jersey City as the "Fox of the Road," a title which makes him especially feared by that class of the traveling public which fails to believe in the motto of "Pay as you go." In fact, Bill's reputation for shrewdness has caused him to be regarded as the one exception to Lincoln's famous saying that "You can fool all of the people some of the time."

Now there are some people in Dunellen whose turn of mind qualify them for citizenship in the State of Missouri, for, instead of accepting a man's reputation at its face value, they have to be shown, and the wider a man's reputation the more eager their desire to best it.

Accordingly, on Saturday morning, April 1, as the 7:11 train from Somerville pulled into the Dunellen station and Bill hustled off to hustle passengers on, a boy stepped up and handed Bill a special. When a railroad man receives a special he knows that prompt action of some kind is demanded, and so Bill tore open the envelope and read the following message:

"Reserve two seats in fourth car for W. G. Besler."

An occasion to be of service to the president of the road does not fall to the lot of the average railroad man very often, and dreams of the possibilities in the situation flitted through Bill's mind as he hurriedly ordered the faithful brakeman, Dan, to make all haste in reserving the desired seats.

Bill took every possible precaution, for not only did he have the cushions taken from two seats, but he stationed Dan to guard the seats from the voracious clutches of the commuters. At Grant avenue, which is W. G. Besler's commuting station, Bill did not wait for the train to stop, but jumped to the ground and stood at attention in order to be the first to greet the prepared-for guest.

But the president was not there, and Bill, assuming that he would surely be waiting at the Plainfield station, gave minute details to Dan of the manner in which the seats were to be defended against the Plainfield throng. Dan carried out his part nobly and turned a deaf ear to all importunities—yes, and a few cures, for commuters do not believe in the reserved seat idea.

When Mr. Besler failed to put in an appearance at Plainfield, the commuters in the fourth car who, somehow or other, had been tipped off that something unusual was happening, were unable to entirely hide their feelings, and the fox began to smell a rat, with the result that for a few minutes there was some mad Bill, but gradually, as the full force of the situation impressed itself upon him, and he saw that his prestige was sadly threatened, he became a sad, crestfallen figure.

The perpetrators of this April fool joke have not been discovered, but the foul finger of suspicion, he says, wavers between Harry Swackhamer and J. Travis Sutphen.

REV. D. W. C. RAMSEY SEEKS ANOTHER CHARGE

Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church, who was recently extended an invitation by his congregation to return for another year, has let it become known that he has made a request to Conference that he be transferred nearer New York City, for the convenience of his son and daughter, both of whom are commuting to the city. Such transfers as are made by the Bishop will be announced at the close of the Conference this evening.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Giddes and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Giddes were present at yesterday's session of the annual conference of the Elizabeth district of the Methodist Episcopal church, which is being held in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dineen entertained their son, John T. Dineen, of Brooklyn, over the week-end.

Marion Tinsman, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tinsman, has inflammatory rheumatism.

TAKES A POSITION.

Joseph Gaff, who makes his home with his sister, Mrs. Weimer Snyder, has left school and taken a position in the local office of the Hall Printing Press Company.

Miss Alice Gooch, of Fourth street, has returned from Brooklyn after an absence of three weeks.

Mrs. Albert Russell, of Front street, has returned from Philadelphia, where she went a week ago last Thursday to visit her mother, Mrs. Anna Gerlach.

OPENS A HOTEL.

George Kosheck, who recently sold his butcher shop to Louis Boudola, has moved to Newark, where he has opened a hotel on Ferry street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson moved on Friday to the W. A. Woodruff house, recently vacated by J. M. Barto.

by the Smith auto express.

Mrs. Meyer Mihalowitz, of New York City, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Victorson, for the past two weeks, returned home last evening.

Mrs. I. J. Hackel and son, of New York City, spent the week-end in the borough, the guests of Mrs. Hackel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Victorson.

Joseph Watson and family, who have been spending the winter in the Isham Park apartments in New York City, have returned to these parts and re-opened their home in Harmony village.

MOVE TO NEWARK.

Frank Gaige, who purchased the Frank Broshart house on Front street three or four months ago and subsequently moved here, will move to 15 Madison avenue, Newark, tomorrow. Mr. Gaige has rented his house to an out-of-town family, who will move here shortly.

J. O. Green and family, of Greenbrook road, will move to Lincoln, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheehan, of Sanford avenue, have returned from Washington, where they were called last Tuesday by the death of Mrs. Sheehan's mother.

JOHN McMAHON ILL.

John McMahon, the old Dunellen catcher, has been ill the past two weeks and is at present under the doctor's care.

Alexander Bareny and family have moved from the Mohan and Clawson house, on Front street, to Clinton avenue.

KEPLER UNABLE TO WORK.

Ernest C. Kepler, who was severely burned by molten lead at Westfield Tuesday afternoon, continues to suffer from shock and has only been able to obtain lapses of sleep. It will be at least two weeks before he will be able to return to work.

Word has been received from Florida that Frank Van Nuis is very ill.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

NEARLY LOST MACHINE.

John Ford, the local taxicab man, nearly lost one of his machines Saturday afternoon, when a backfire from the muffler set it on fire. Ford was passing Herman Frowery's hotel at the time, and Mr. Frowery ran out with a fire extinguisher and put out the blaze before it did much damage.

Miss Susan Scudder, of East Broad street, is spending several days at Philadelphia.

Mrs. Augustus Sheelen, of North avenue, has been entertaining her sister, Mrs. Wright, of Jersey City.

RETURNS AS AGENT.

The many friends of Amasa Storr, former agent of the C. R. R. of N. J., will no doubt be pleased to learn that the railroad officials have returned him as agent again after an absence of several weeks. The order took effect Saturday, but illness will prevent his return for a few days.

The Entre Nous dancing class meets tomorrow night in Meyer's hall on Park avenue.

ENLARGES HIS PLANT.

Charles VanKough, of Martine avenue, who conducts a business on Front street, Plainfield, has enlarged his plant during the past two weeks, owing to increase in business.

PROBLEMS OF TRANSPORTATION

W. C. Hope, of New Jersey Central, Adresses Men's Forum at Scotch Plains.

QUESTION OF RATES

Railroad Official Points Out How Company Suffers Heavy Losses Through Competition of Trolleys and Increased Pay to Employes.

A few of the many perplexing problems that confront a big railroad corporation in the proper carrying of passengers were related by W. C. Hope, general passenger agent of the New Jersey Central, at the largest attended meeting of the Scotch Plains Men's Forum, in the Parish House yesterday afternoon. More than sixty men heard the address which was given in connection with the assigned program of "Transportation Day" and was to have been supplemented by another on trolley matters by Colonel E. W. Hine, of Newark, but the latter was unable to be present. The reasons were explained in a letter from him which also stated that he would be very glad to address the Forum when its meetings are resumed in the fall. The session yesterday was the last of the course that has been underway since the first of January.

Mr. Hope is a railroad man of wide experience and his explanations of transportation matters were both interesting and illuminating. He stated at the outset that like everything else there are two sides to the heedless criticism frequently directed against a railroad but the public very seldom sees but one. He touched upon the government's control of passenger carrying rates, competition from trolley lines, the carrying of mails and other problems that railroad officials are always trying to handle with advantage to themselves and the public. Mr. Hope showed that the average cost of running an ordinary local passenger train is one dollar per mile and that in some States the restricted rate of two cents per mile for each passenger means a loss to the company.

In suburban New York the two cent rate could be shouldered as the hauls are short and the traffic big, but in western States, where a train has to run through sparsely settled counties for miles before getting any traffic there is a distinct and unavoidable loss. Mr. Hope expressed the belief that more discretion should be shown in compeling the railroads to charge certain amounts, as the above facts present a proper argument.

Mr. Hope also showed where railroads have had a great decrease in passenger carrying receipts since the trolley idea for local traffic became prevalent. These highway lines have made enormous inroads into the steam railways' local traffic and many trains are now run at a distinct loss, although an indignant protest would arise from the public if the companies attempted to take them off. Another thing that the railroads consider an injustice, Mr. Hope said, was the method adopted by the postoffice authorities in having the mail sacks handled. The rate for this is based upon a standard taken once every four years, the mail of all classes being weighed with absolute precision during the month of February. He contended that the mail should be weighed every February and that the pay for that year should be based upon its results.

The problem of competent help was another matter Mr. Hope touched upon, and he pointed out where it is becoming more and more perplexing every day. The various railroad brotherhoods have so strengthened their organization that it often taxes a company to meet demands, yet it must be done and at the same time a series of long conference between the State, government and city officials must be held with the railroad directors before the latter have any chance of getting better rates to offset the rapid rise in employes' pay. Despite all these obstacles, however, Mr. Hope concluded, the railroads attempt to serve the public with advantage to both and at the same time give a square deal to everyone of its employes. The address was followed by an open discussion during which Mr. Hope answered numerous questions put by men who have been the New Jersey Central's patrons for many years.

A letter was read from A. B. Wilson, local manager of the New York Telephone Company's Plainfield district, in which he explained for the benefit of the Men's Forum the reason for the telephone company listing all Scotch Plains subscribers under a Fanwood heading. This was done primarily, he said, because the company wishes to centralize all points as far as possible. The letter in full will be given in the Daily Press later. Rev. J. Madison Hare presided at the gathering yesterday and was greatly delighted with the success of the program. The meetings have been held every week since January and have proved a great profit to community interests in both Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

CHILD OVERTURNS LAMP IN HOME OF O. GUNTHER

The overturning of a lamp by a small child in the home of Otto Gunther at 255 East Second street called out the fire department at 7:40 Saturday evening. An alarm was turned in by Katherine Hanson. The damage was not more than $25.

URGES SUPPORT FOR BIEDERWOLF CAMPAIGN

Rev. John Sheridan Zelie Sees Great Good for City in the Revival.

Rev. John Sheriden Zelie, preaching at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday morning, urged the congregation to give their support to the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign, which starts next Sunday. Taking as his text, Acts 10: 19-20, "While Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee. Arise, therefore, and get thee down and do with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them." He said in part:

"A week from today we shall begin to do something which in its way does violence to our cherished habits in much the same way as Peter was called to do. It will lead us a good way out of our groove, and for many it is not easy to go with these strangers who are coming to us—doubting nothing. They can think of all sorts of things to doubt. Is this necessary? Could we not have done all that is needful by using the means we have and pressing them a little further?

"Can we turn our backs upon all these well-established ways which have come to fit us like a glove? What will be the outcome of it all afterward? Will not the drop afterward be just as marked as the lift at the beginning? Will there be anything left to show for it? Is it not a forced and manufactured event rather than a spontaneous thing? We can doubt everything connected with these coming evangelistic meetings, or we can lock up our fears and doubt nothing. It is open to us to decide which. Nothing can be more forced and mechanical than much of the religious life that is all around us this long time. How much spontaneity has there been in our lives that we should dread lest these services should be forced? You have only to think of how forced and reluctant has been so much of the service we have been able to get throughout our city in order to dissipate all our fears that we shall see more of it in these new days. All the Christian workers of the city will say that there has been no such impulsiveness this long time as its likely to be endangered by our coming change. No one pushed this campaign through at any cost and over the wishes of our people, and, take it altogether, it is perhaps the most spontaneous movement that we have made in our city.

"When Peter started out for Caesarea I suppose he dreaded that he would hear many things and experience many things which would be trying and would grate upon his nerves. I hear people asking what kind of a theology Dr. Biederwolf will have? Will he say things that will jar upon refined ears? Will he be narrow? Well, when you consider what things we have patiently listened to in every quarter concerning our faith, and how we have tolerated hearing everything we value most trifled with, picked to pieces, derided or treated with silent contempt, when we have gotten used to pocketing the snub or the refusal of pretty nearly every effort, we can go without any fear to listen for some weeks to an earnest man who comes to us with a single motive and that to honor and advance the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ."

BLACK EYES DIDN'T SHOW MUCH ON HIM

As positive proof of the fact that a "black list" is enforced in Plainfield saloons there appeared in police court this morning one Charles Cassett, of hue so dark that the two badly blacked eyes he wore could not be seen more than a few feet. It seems that Charles imbibed too freely at some saloon downtown during the evening and later went to one in which John O'Malley was employed as bartender seeking more liquor. He was refused a drink on the ground that anything more given to him would have to come out of some other man's share—that he already had his allotted quantity for the week. Cassett couldn't or wouldn't understand the principle of the "black list" and he abused the bartender, demanding whisky, and threatened to whip everyone in the place if he didn't get it. O'Malley stood it longer than his name would indicate, but finally the negro tried to take whisky for himself and as a result he left the place hurriedly and without regard for possible injuries in alighting on the sidewalk. Patrolman Muir came along and arrested Cassett. O'Malley was also ordered to court. Both men were arraigned this morning but the case went over until April 4.

MANY PLAINFIELDERS TO CHANGE PLACE OF RESIDENCE

SHOW VALUE OF PROPER TRAINING

Physical Education Given in Pageant Form by Pupils of the Public Schools.

ATTRACTIVE DRILLS

Novel Entertainment Presented Under the Direction of Miss Addie Parker Jackson, Assisted by Miss Wean and Mrs. C. L. Lewis.

Physical education historically presented in pageant form by the pupils of the High School and the different grades, attracted a capacity audience to the Plainfield High School Auditorium Saturday night. The entertainment, the first of its kind presented here, was under the direction of Miss Addie Parker Jackson, physical director of the public schools, assisted by Miss Ruth Wean and Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, accompanist.

The program was divided into three parts, the past, present and future, and the pupils gave a faithful portrayal of each in clever fashion. Each class executed many difficult movements perfectly, showing the greatest care in training under the thorough system adopted by Miss Jackson. To the majority of those present the demonstration was a revelation as to what is being done in the public schools to develop healthy, strong bodies, and even the representatives of the Open Air School in the brief glimpse of their work, showed its many advantages. With each succeeding presentation the audience was most generous in its applause.

The program was as follows: The past—Grecian period, development of pois and artistic expression! Roman period, development of endurance and muscular co-ordination; German period, development of stregnth and military precision; Swedish period, development of muscular control and elasticity of movement; French period, development of rhythmic sense through harmonizing movements, all given by high school girls' classes.

The present—American period as developed in the Plainfield public schools: Our physical training. Value—association of principles of physical education with exercise; memorized march tactics. Value—accuracy of action, Bryant and Lincoln Schools, fifth grade. Folk games. Value—recreation in organized form, Irving and Jefferson Schools, fifth grade.

Musical military drill. Value—development of muscular control, Whittier Schoo,l sixth grade. Corrective exercises. Value—corrective of round shoulders, upper spine stoop and flat chest, Irving and Jefferson Schools, sixth and seventh grades.

In part three, "The Future," was shown health possibilities, with disease, dirt and darkness vanquished by cleanliness, sunshine and fresh air bringing to America health for all, in which pupils of the Whittier, Franklin, Grammar and High Schools took part. Disease, dirt and darkness were represented by small children who were dressed in the plainest fashion and upon the appearance of Stella Butler, Marion Green and Jennie Van Zandt, representing cleanliness, sunshine and fresh air, they dropped on the stage, indicating that they could not stand those things which combine to give health and strength.

During the evening Miss Lyle Smith played a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis at the piano. Miss Erma G. Dobbins portrayed the character of "Father Time," representing the passing away of the different periods.

3 KILLED IN EXPLOSION AT OTIS ELEVATOR PLANT

Buffalo, April 3.—Three men were killed and fifteen injured in an explosion at the Otis elevator plant at Northland and Grider streets about 8:30 this morning. It is not known yet what caused the explosion.

BROKE A WINDOW OUT OF SALVATION ARMY HOME

Joseph Ginhart, aged 51, evidently could not see anything but the "army" on the sign Saturday night, due to the fact that his vision was impaired by looking too long onto the wine while it was red, and as he passed by Salvation Army headquarters on Second street he thought of the struggle of his brothers across the water and declared war himself. The total damage done was a broken glass in front of the building and the losses were all on Joseph's side. He lost a good night's sleep by having to stay at the police station. Judge De Meza heard his explanation of the broken window this morning and decided that Ginhart would make good if given another chance so the pledge was b[illegible]t out and Joseph went down for a year.

REV. B. M. BOGAN LAUDS THE MAYOR

Approves His Action in Preventing Exhibition of Questionable Motion Picture.

In his notices to the five congregations assembled in St. Mary's church yesterday morning, Father Bogan took occasion to express his gratification at the instant and decisive action taken by Mayor Leighton Calkins and the chief of police in stopping a reported immoral film exhibition advertised during the past week. "A vitiated business sense," he said, "puts a commercial value upon a pulpit or press denunciation of such productions. The managers—as the perpetrators are called—boast of their desire for such a notice as an index directing to the place and time, and they depend upon the vulgar sense to take up the scent and follow it to the box office.

"That the appeal of the panders to the unchurched or dischurched multitude finds an answer in crowds before the film may find defenders of the Vox Populi strife in every community who label license 'Liberty,' just as the sanctuary of patriotism shall ever be the last resource of scoundrels. But so long as the morality of right authority shall be the motive of its administration law shall be the people's protection ever exercising its duty with dignity above the clamor of the man or the multitude.

"And so may you rightly trust the reputation of our city to the executive of law while he has at heart, as was evidenced in this instance, the high-toned interest of this conservative community. Under such watchfulness and protection the reputable places of amusement will gain in the permanent confidence of our people and the other be avoided with the distrust it deserves."

STOLE TRINKETS TO MAKE CHILDREN HAPPY

In order that she might make her two small children happy when she went to visit them in a public home yesterday, Sophie Grimes, a Polish woman, aged 30 years, Saturday night picked up some small trinkets in the Woolworth store. Manager Swingle did not know her story, and ordered her arrest. Patrolman Kelly brought the woman to the police station, but when her story was told, all parties interested, including the judge, agreed that the case was not one for a court, so she was released.

HOLLAND WANTS TO BUY WHEAT FROM U. S.

New York, April 3.—Advices from the Hague say that the Dutch government intends to buy 100,000 tons of wheat in America in addition to the normal 60,000 tons a month in order to increase its reserve which is now abnormally low. Several Dutch ships are said to have been requisitioned to carry these supplies. Should the British government grant the request for the increase of Holland's present insufficient import supply of 75,000 tons of corn monthly then the purchase will be correspondingly increased. About 100,000 tons of corn is needed every month. Cotton manufacturers are manifesting uneasiness lest the requisitioning of cargo space by the government may interfere with the importation of the needed supplies of raw cotton from America.

JOHN DEADY SUCCUMBS AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING

John Deady, a native of this city, and widely known in both the city and borough, died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, 329 Liberty street, following an illness of five years. He was striken originally with paralysis, and after partially recovering, suffered a second stroke. He has been a helpless invalid most of the time since the original attack.

Mr. Deady was born in the West End forty-nine years ago, and had always made his home in that part of the city. At the time his illness began he was one of the oldest conductors in the employ of the Public Service Corporation. He began his duties more than twenty years ago, and at the time paralysis made him unfit for service he was employed on the Arlington avenue line. The corporation afterward placed him on its pension roll for meritorious service.

Mr. Deady had a host of local friends whose sympathy is expressed to the bereaved family. Beside his wife, he is survived by four daughters and two sons, all living at the parental home. These are the Misses Madeline, Mary, Catherine and Elizabeth Deady, and James and William Deady. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's church, and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

BOROUGH COURT CASE.

Richard Perrine, of 30 Harmony street, was arraigned before Recorder Hand in the borough court this morning charged with being drunk. He was released under a suspended sentence. Perrine is on the "black list" and upon being cross questioned, it is said, revealed the name of the person who sold him the liquor. This person will be given a hearing tomorrow.

Chief Weiss, of the borough police, is moving today from Duer street to Somerset street.

"RABBIT" JUDGE IS GOING TO MIGRATE

Thomas N. Snape, Who Put Boro on the Map, to Go to Linden.

"Dame Rumor" is heralding the report about the borough today that North Plainfield is going to lose Justice Thomas N. Snape, the magistrate who put North Plainfield on the map by sending nineteen year old Oscar Phillipson to the Somerset county jail for a ninety day sojourn because he sent a bullet into the carcass of a cottontail that strayed into his mother's cabbage patch one fine day last spring. The justice is said to be packing up his duds preliminary to migrating to Linden, a small hamlet on the Pennsylvania road.

Incidentally it has been remarked that Linden has as its police court magistrate an old "residenter" who has weathered ninety odd summers and some of Mr. Snape's friends are uncharitable enough to believe that he may have designs on this old-timer's office.

During his five years' service as a silver shield wearer in North Plainfield Justice Snape has became widely known throughout the country, his chief claim to notoriety being his strict interpretation of Jersey laws last spring by sending one of the borough's young sons to jail. Newspapers throughout the country questioned the right of the justice to levy a ninety day sentence for so insignificant an offense as "popping" a bunny ad so much emphasis was brought to bear on the prisoner's youth that Justice Snape finally yielded to the sob stories and signed an order for his release.

He has resided in North Plainfield for a decade or more and now lives at 21 Wilson avenue. He is a familiar figure along Somerset street any morning in the year.

PRESBYTERIAN BIBLE SCHOOL ELECTS OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the officers and teachers of the Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church, held yesterday afternoon, the following were elected for the coming twelve months: Superintendent, F. O. Dunning; assistant superintendent, R. H. Radford; second assistant superintendent, Miss Jessie L. Holt; secretary, Frederick L. Palmer; assistant secretary, Arthur Dunning; treasurer, Jesse Lounsbury; librarian, Warren Townley; assistant librarian, William Sowden, superintendent, beginners' department, Mrs. George A. Ballantyne; primary department, Mrs. Leslie Bond; junior department, Mrs. Geo. M. Karner; intermediary department, Mrs. Jessie A. Holt; senior department, R. H. Radford; home department, Rev. Lewis Bond, and pianist, William Sowdon.

MASS IN ST. MARY'S FOR MRS. CORNELIUS SHEEHAN

A large gathering of relatives and friends was present in St. Mary's church this morning when a solemn high mass of requiem was said over the body of Mrs. Catherine O'Keefe Sheehan, wife of Cornelius Sheehan, whose death occurred at her home in Claremont avenue, Jersey City, Saturday morning. Rev. Father B. M. Bogan celebrated the mass, with Father McGrath, of Stony Hill, deacon, and Rev. Father McDonald as subdeacon. There were many handsome flowers from relatives and friends of the family, both here and in Jersey City. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, six friends from Jersey City acting as pallbearers.

Although Mrs. Sheehan had made her home in Jersey City for the past twenty years, no funeral service was held there today, but a solemn high mass of requiem will be said in St. Patrick's church, that city, of which she was a communicant tomorrow morning.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. R. W. West, executive secretary of the New Jersey Baptist Convention, will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church on Sunday morning, April 16. Easter services will be held at this church, Sunday morning, April 23.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held in the church parlors this afternoon, when officers will be elected.

The Missionary Guild of Trinity Reformed church will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. F. S. Cutter, 36 Sandford avenue, when reports for the past year will be presented and officers will be elected.

CHAUFFEUR ARRESTED.

Fred Karelson, a chauffeur, will be given a hearing in the borough court tomorrow morning on the charge of driving a limousine recklessly up Somerset street this morning. Roundsman Keller acting in the capacity of assistant chief today received word over the telephone that an automobile was coming up Somerset street in a manner which endangered traffic. He ran out in the road just in time to hail Karelson, who stopped the car as quickly as possible.

W. J. Trembath went to Lambertville today to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Massey, who died in her 88th year.

NAB TWO SCHILLER AIDS IN BOMB PLOT

Charged With Attempt to Destroy Steamer Pannonia.

New York, April 3.—Ernest Schiller, the young German who single handed captured the British ship Matoppo on the high seas, might have become a very nice international problem for the state department had not Captain Tunney of the bomb squad caused the arrest of two men on the charge of acting with Schiller to attempt to place dynamite on board the British steamship Pannonia at Pier 54, North river.

Captain Tunney was confident that he had sufficient evidence to show that Schiller planned the blowing up of the steamship some time in March. The two men whose arrest he caused, the captain says, admitted that Schiller had outlined his scheme to them; that they listened carefully and had appeared to work with him simply to get some of his money, but that they really believed him to be mentally unbalanced.

With this turn in the case it was regarded as probable that the federal authorities would not have to worry any more about Schiller. Earlier both the secret service and the local bureau of the department of justice had announced that they could not prefer any charge against Schiller for his piratical enterprise and they advised his shipment back to Delaware. There was danger there of international difficulties because Schiller might have raised the issue that he was a German reservist, that he committed his act on the high seas and that he was really engaged in war.

POLICE WILL HAVE TWO FORD AUTOS

Board to Buy Patrol Wagon and Touring Car for Use of Department.

Two automobiles, both Fords, will be purchased for the use of the Plainfield police department, just as soon as arrangements for the purchase can be made by the Councilmanic board. One is to have a patrol wagon body, and the other a touring car body. At Saturday night's meeting of the police board, members discussed various makes of automobile patrol wagons, and decided that a Ford car would give the best service at the lowest upkeep cost.

"Fords will cost less at first and cost less to maintain," said Mayor Calkins, "and it has been demonstrated by the police department of New York, where many are in use, that they give good service in police work."

The touring car is to be used by the chief and other officers, especially on emergency calls. There are many times each day when it is necessary to send one patrolman on a hurry call. If he goes on a bicycle and makes an arrest he must leave his machine and walk back or wait for the patrol wagon. Other times, two or three policemen are needed on such a call, and a five-passenger car may mean the saving of much property or even life at almost any time.

The resignation of John Neylon was before the board. It was not acted upon. Several patrolmen were up for reprimand.

SOMEBODY "WON" IT.

P. J. Melvin, the North avenue restaurant proprietor, is mourning the loss of a Peerless bicycle which someone "borrowed" Thursday afternoon, while it stood in front of the new city hall site. Mr. Melvin is anticipating the return of the rubber-tired steed, and if the one who appropriated it does not wish to disappoint him he will have to bring it back soon.

Miss Bertha Debele, of Rock avenue, has resumed her duties in the ice cream and candy store of W. G. Debele, after her annual winter' vacation.

MORE RAIDS ON BRITISH COAST

Zeppelins Attack Thrice In Forty-eight Hours.

59 KILLED, 166 INJURED.

Scottish Shore Towns and Eastern Counties of England Visited by Bomb Throwing Airships—Germans Lose One Zeppelin In Thames—Much Damage Done, Says Berlin.

London, April 3.—Within forty-eight hours the Scottish coast and the northeastern and southeastern counties of England have been raided three times by Zeppelin airships.

Details of this latest raid have not yet been received, and there is no information regarding casualties. According to official reports, at least fifty-nine persons were killed and 166 injured in the first and second raids.

Sixteen persons are known to have been killed and 100 injured by bombs dropped by a Zeppelin in the northeastern counties. It had evidently been planned for two Zeppelins to take part in the raid. Two machines were seen approaching the coast, but only one crossed the coast line, the other retreating over the sea.

The localities raided by the single Zeppelin which remained have not yet been announced by the war office, which says that the bombs caused a serious fire without mentioning the name of the town. Eight houses were demolished by bombs.

Further details of the raid of Friday night, in which at least five Zeppelins took part, were made public by the war office. The German official version of this raid was received here by wireless.

Say London Was Attacked.

The German statement announces that London was attacked in the raid, which had for its objectives London and the south coast.

A detailed list of the points attacked is given in the Berlin statement. According to the list, bombs were dropped on London between the Tower bridge and the London docks, on military camps in the northwestern part of the city, on factories at Enfield and munition works at Waltham Abbey. These two towns are just north of London.

A battery near Stowmarket, in Suffolk, fifty-five miles northeast of London, and the town of Lowestoft, on the Suffolk coast, 120 miles northeast of London, were attacked by another Zeppelin, the German statement says, adding that a battery was silenced near Cambridge, ammunition plants were attacked and bombs were dropped on fortifications on the Humber.

Regarding the results of the raid, the German statement says that the attacks were successful, that numerous fires and the collapse of buildings were observed from the Zeppelins.

It was officially stated in London that the German account of the raid is "absolutely false," except for the admission which it contains of the destruction of the Zeppelin L-15.

Regarding the Zeppelin, the German statement says that it was compelled to descend in the Thames. The British war office announced that this dirigible, hit by gun fire, had descended on the Kentish coast. Seventeen of her crew were taken off by a British trawler. The remaining twenty-three men are believed to have been drowned.

STRIKERS DYNAMITE TRACKS.

Wilkesbarre Railways Damaged—State Police at Work on Clews.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 3.—Dynamiting has taken the place of rioting in the Wyoming valley. Tracks on the Hudson division were blown up, and later a heavy dynamite charge was set off on the cut-off of the Harvey's Lake division. A car was wrecked, and the roadbed for a long distance was damaged.

Officials of the Wilkesbarre Railway company claim that seventy-five pounds of dynamite were used by strike sympathizers. Dynamite caps were placed on the South Main street line in this city and exploded, and much excitement followed. No arrests have been made, but state police are running down clews.

FOOD TEST ON 1,000 RATS.

Professor Seeking Perfect Nutriment For Human Beings.

Madison, Wis., April 3.—More than 1,000 rats are being used in the agricultural chemistry department of the University of Wisconsin in an effort on the part of Professor E. V. McCollum to discover the ideal food that will make people live the most efficient lives and grow at the best practical rate.

Although the experiments are being made upon rodents, the results are known to be the same as if they were made on human beings. Professor McCollum has been at work on the problem for seven years.

April 14 to Be Bird Day.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—The department of education in a proclamation has set April 14 to be observed in the schools as state Bird day. Dr. John M. Clarke, director of the State Museum, makes the proclamation on behalf of the university of the state in the fortnightly bulletin to the schools.

HE HANDLES BUSINESS END OF THE BIG BIEDERWOLF EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

James Heaton
General Manager of Biederwolf Party and Leader of National Male Quartet.

Probably no single person in Dr. Biederwolf's corps of workers is more necessary to the success of the evangelistic campaigns than is James Heaton.

Without his management in preparation for the campaigns the attendant success could not be possible.

From early boyhood his remarkable business ability and exceptional talent have been dedicated to the service of the Master.

He is also leader of the National Male Quartet, singing the second tenor in the quartet. As a soloist in gospel work he has few superiors.

As a personal worker, Mr. Heaton has been able while in Norristown to win many young men to Jesus Christ.

His talent as an organizer manifested itself in the planning for the special days of the campaign in Norristown. By his untiring efforts he was able to inspire his assistants of the local force so that their co-operation with him resulted in splendid services throughout the campaign.

The Mother's Day, County Day and every special day resulted in large audiences and wonderful meetings.

ONE DIME FROM A WESTERN CITY

Daphne Doane Sends Ten Cents From Montana to Marjorie's Fund.

BUTTONS ARE READY

Call at the Daily Press Office and Get Your Emblem of Patriotism—Press Fund Largest in New Jersey—Growing Every Day.

All those who have contributed to the Plainfield Daily Press fund for Marjorie Sterrett's Battleship "U. S. S. America" will be rewarded with battleship buttons upon application to this office, a supply of these emblems of patriotism having been secured for distribution here today. In the future a button will be the receipt for each dime contribution and those who have made donations are invited to wear them as an indication that they are Marjorie's Plainfield friends. Buttons similar to those secured by the Press are being worn all over the country by boys and girls and grown-ups who are interested in collecting a fund for Marjorie's battleship. It is hoped that every body and girl in Plainfield will be wearing one of these buttons before another week goes by.

Some idea of the number of friends little Marjorie has in Plainfield may be obtained from a glance at the week's resume in the New York Tribune yesterday. The Daily Press fund was the highest in New Jersey and compared favorably with those from all sections of the country.

The dollars of the grown-ups are needed just as much as the dimes of children to make this big undertaking a success, as a dime from every boy and girl in the United States would hardly be enough to build a big sea fighter for Uncle Sam.

Two dimes were received this morning from Alice and Howard Canoune, of 1275 Denmark road. One dime was received Saturday from Daffney Doane, who lives in Miles City, Mont. This is without a doubt the longest distance a ten cent piece for Marjorie's fund has travelled. Little Daffney is the three-year-old granddaughter of Fire Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street, and a niece of Thaddeus O. Doane, Jr. With the dime contribution she sends the following letter:

HAVE YOU A BUTTON?

"Enclosed you will find one dime for Marjorie's battleship fund. I am a thorough believer in preparedness and if we ever have war I want my grandmother and granddaddy protected as they live near the coast. I want to be one of the little girls who own a share in the battleship and I hope the fund will grow fast."

Mrs. C. H. Brady, of this city, has sent in twenty cents, a dime each for Mary E. and Anna C. Brady, with the following letter:

"Enclosed please find ten cents each from Mary E. Brady and Anna C. Brady for Marjorie Sterrett's battleship 'America.'"

RUSSIANS OFFER AMERICA $350,000,000 TRADE PRIZE

The capture of trade in Russia previously enjoyed by Germany and amounting to $350,000,000 a year is the object of American manufacturers who have been awakened to the opportunity in Russia by the delegation of which R. Martens, of the great shipping, exporting and engineering house of R. Martens & Company, of Petrograd, is the spokesman. Predictions of peace in Europe in a few months have corroboration in the nature of arrangements which are being made throughout the United States and Canada with exporters by the delegation of Russian financiers and commercial experts who are touring the continent.

In a message to American shippers Mr. Martens, who has opened New York headquarters and secured New York docks for shipping, said:

"It must be remembered that Russia for a considerable time now has been importing only those things necessary to meet her war requirements. Most of her factories in the district under occupation have been destroyed; of the remainder many have been devoted to the manufacture of war supplies, and the rest are wholly inadequate to meet the demands made upon them. As a result the great and varied needs of Russia have been greatly increased since the days prior to the war, when her imports were obtained mostly through Germany.

"This enormous business could be easily taken over by the United States, but American manufacturers must bear in mind that if it is to be taken over, it will be only as a result of prompt and intelligent action on their part now. The manufacturer must familiarize himself with the fundamental differences between the trade to which he has been accustomed and trade in Russia, due to the vast area of Russia and the customs and peculiar needs of her people.

"He must realize that Russia, being largely an agricultural nation, is of necessity one that buys on credit. In the past the American manufacture has objected to extending credit and as a result the exports from the United States to Russia have been relatively small. If he would only stop to analyze the exports from the United States to Germany and the exports of the latter country to Russia, however, he would realize that American goods have been used to meet the Russian demand, but American goods which bore German labels and which brought prices sufficiently high to more than meet, not only the cost of credit extended by Germany, but also the charges of German middlemen, German steamship companies, German docks, German forwarding agents, German insurance companies and German railroads."

Bulgaria Honors New York Surgeon.

Dr. Harry Plotz of Mount Sinai hospital, New York city, who is now with the Bulgarian sanitary corps, has received the highest award possible for an army surgeon of that nation. The decoration was bestowed for Dr. Plotz's service in stamping out typhus in Servia and Bulgaria.

WAITE'S WIFE ALSO MARKED AS VICTIM

Confessed Slayer Wanted Her Share of Fortune.

New York, April 3.—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite confessed that in addition to murdering his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, Mich., he had also intended to poison his wife.

The district attorney had evidence that Dr. Waite had induced his wife to make a will leaving practically all of her $500,000 fortune to him and that he had attempted to allay in advance any possible suspicion by spreading a rumor that Mrs. Waite was in poor health.

Walter R. Deuel, counsel for Dr. Waite, was asked the direct question, "Has Dr. Waite confessed that he planned to kill his wife?"

Mr. Deuel hesitated a moment and replied: "Although I should prefer not to discuss that question, I can't deny that such a confession has been made."

Mr. Deuel further admitted that Dr. Waite was guided and impelled in his murders and plans of murder by cupidity alone. He married Clara Waite without loving her. He had lived in Grand Rapids and knew that John E. Peck had about $1,000,000 and that all of it would go to his two children, Clara and Percy. He therefore set about deliberately, first to make Clara his wife, then to murder Mr. and Mrs. Peck and finally, after he had made sure that he would inherit his wife's fortune, to put her out of the way.

It is also believed that Waite planned the death of Miss Catherine E. Peck, his wife's aunt, who has a fortune. Dr. Waite, by ingratiating himself with Miss Peck, obtained from her about $100,000 and probably anticipated that he would be generously treated in her will.

URGE TEXTILE WAGE RAISE.

Mill Workers' Organization at Fall River Meeting Takes Action.

Fall River, Mass., April 3.—A recommendation that all textile unions in New England take immediate action toward seeking advances in wages was adopted at a meeting of the executive council of the National Amalgamation of Textile Operatives here. The organization is said to represent 25,000 operatives in various mill centers.

It was formed in Boston last January, many of the unions which joined it having seceded from the ranks of the United Textile Workers.

Delegates from this city, New Bedford, Lawrence and Biddeford, Me., attended the meeting. It was explained that the wage increase recommendation was intended to apply not only to unions affiliated with the organization, but to others also.

WOMEN KILLED IN RIOTS.

Demand Bread and Peace in Austria and Bohemia.

Rome, April 3. — Advices received here say that several women were killed in recent disorders in Vienna, Prague, Trieste and Agram.

Crowds of women attacked the government offices, demanding bread and the conclusion of peace. The troops were called out and fired upon the crowds, killing several women.

Hudson Open to Navigation.

Troy, N. Y., April 3.—Navigation in the Hudson river between this city and New York is now open. The river practically is clear of ice. Fears of a flood on account of the heavy snow and ice practically have disappeared, and although the water has been high during the last few days no damage has resulted.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, APRIL 3, 1916.

A reader of the Daily Press who is a member of the Religious Society of Friends, who are well known as peace advocates, takes us to task for conducting the campaign among the children to raise dimes for Marjorie's Battleship Fund, a great popular movement that is being advocated by the leading newspapers all over the country. She says that "while we yield to grown-ups the right to think and do what conscience requires of them regarding preparedness, it seems deplorable to urge and encourage little children to aid in the work." While we fully appreciate the attitude of this good Friend in the matter, we feel that the battleship fund is a great popular movement, and that the preparedness program has the endorsement of a large majority of the citizens of this country, although the minority are a class of people whose thoughts and wishes deserve the greatest respect. The Daily Press does not believe in preparedness for war. Two years ago we would have considered the expenditure of a great sum for a larger navy and army as ridiculous, but the terrible conditions abroad have changed all this. This country must be prepared to defend itself. We have learned a lesson from England, which will never be forgotten, and it teaches us that the only hope we have of preventing the shedding of good American blood is in having our citizens ready to defend themselves. The absolute lack of preparedness on the part of our small army, as proven by the Mexican campaign, brings the matter home, even stronger than the war abroad. Interesting the children is merely interesting the future citizens, who may be saved from the horrors of a terrible conflict because of the very fact that as youngsters they aided, in a small way, the cause of preparedness.

* * * * * *

Some of our ministerial friends object to the term "Glory Barn" in referring to the Biederwolf tabernacle. We fear that before the campaign is over in this city, there will be a lot of things in connection with it which at first seem out of place, and lacking in dignity. But it is by just such things that all evangelists get their hold on the people. It is because they do and say things which are different from the ordinary course of religious teachings that they reach the great mass who are not usually churchgoers. Every evangelist must appeal to his hearers in a way that the ordinary minister would not think of adopting. He must reach the mind of the average man in the street, and must think and talk in a way that appeals not to people who regularly go to church, but to those who are attracted to the meetings because they expect to hear something that appeals to the crowd—the same kind of tactics as it were that are adopted by the circus press agent. Billy Sunday's great strength comes from the fact that he is different, and does not care whom he shocks, so long as he accomplishes results. We suspect that Dr. Biederwolf will be the same way. The one advantage in having a stranger conduct these meetings is that he can tell the people truths which no minister or other person here all the time dares to tell them, for the very simple reason that if they did they would not be here long. If it is not to the "Glory Barn" it is safe to predict that before the campaign has run many days the big tabernacle will be christened something else by the mass of those who visit it, and perhaps it will not be so expressive a term as the one which the Daily Press has been using.

* * * * * *

Now that the streets are bare, the enormous amount of damage that has been done by the winter's storms become evident. Great bumps have risen up in the roads, and at spots have made them almost impassable for automobiles, unless they are kept at a speed no faster than a walk. The work which confronts Street Commissioner Gavett is so great that it will take weeks to begin to get the roads back into condition. But that he will do it with all despatch is assured, and in the meantime criticism of the roads should be withheld. Plainfield is no worse off that any other community, and it is due to no fault of the street department that things are so bad.

* * * * * *

Efforts to start a strike on the lines of the Public Service Railway in Newark last week, ended in dismal failure. The company has tried hard to keep its men contented; has voluntarily raised their pay in the past; aided their benefit association, and in other things tried to make the lot of the workers easier. As a result the imported agitators failed in their purpose, and the men, with a very few exceptions, kept on with their work.

The sure sign of spring! Circus posters went up last Saturday.

WHY GAS IS HIGH PRICED.

George L. Record, who is seeking the Republican nomination for Governor, says the people of North Jersey are paying $1,000,000 a year too much for their gas, and that while the Public Service Corporation invested but $3,200,000 in the Paterson-Passaic district gas plant, it issued securities aggregating $9,000,000.

Being compelled to pay interest on millions of dollars of watered stock and bonds is one of the causes of the high cost of living; but perhaps that could be endured if the overloaded corporations would not meddle so much with the Legislature, and interfere in matters with which they have no direct concern.

But inasmuch as they must have help when they need it to influence legislation, they are obliged to reciprocate and assist other interests when called on; and in order to maintain a large and high-priced lobby, the rates for gas, electric light and power, water, railroad and trolley transportation must be maintained.

The remedy is to elect a Governor and Legislature pledge to drive the monopolists out of power, in Mr. Record's opinion. It is not a new thought, but it is only by constant repetition that the voters can be convinced and public sentiment created. When they remember the final decision in the 90-cent gas rate case, they will understand how the Public Service and the other big corporations work.

That decision, says Mr. Record, who was counsel in the case for the city of Trenton and organized labor, was obtained "by the vote, probably the deciding vote, of a judge who was president of a company which had a large portion of its surplus invested in the securities of the Public Service Corporation, and this judge's brother was a director in the Public Service."

"Where the treasure is, there will the heart be also." So will the decisions.—Trenton Times.

PRESIDENT TO AIM AT HEAD PIN

Washington, D. C., April 3.—If President Wilson hits the head pin when he bowls the first ball at the Atlantic Coast bowling tournament tonight, he will have every bowler in the country shouting for him. When the president promised to hurl the first ball, he made it clear that he was not adept at knocking things down. But his eye will be on that head pin, whether the ball decides to roll true or seek the gutter.

TO ADDRESS PIONEERS.

Rev. Charles F. Raach, of the Biederwolf evangelistic party, will address the Pioneers of the Crescent Avenue church at their meeting Thursday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

PLEDGE TOTAL OF $18,482.

As the result of the every-member-canvass at the Crescent Avenue church, 441 pledges were received, the total amount pledged being $18,482.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Dad.

Dad is an old-fashioned sport;
Has no manners of the court;
Likes to eat in his shirt sleeves
Every meal, and he believes
He should say just what he thinks,
Spite of mother's nudge and winks.
He is not well versed in Greek;
Plain old Yankee does he speak;
And his rules of etiquette—
They have not been published yet.
You can always hear him chew;
Drinks out of his saucer, too,
And he doesn't mind a bit
When you call him down for it.
Takes old-fashioned remedy
For what ails him. Says that he Can't see much in this "new thought,"
Though, of course, he ought.
He's not very long on style.
And he wears no fine silk tile.
Interest in art to him
Is naught but a silly whim.
He's more taken up with cooks
Than with music or with books.
Polish is not in his line,
But, I'll tell you, friends of mine,
When I'm lookin' for a V,
Dad looks mighty good to me.

There is one good thing about being a Prohibitionist. A Prohibitionist is never disappointed in the outcome of the Presdential election.

The railroad that runs through Hickeyville buys a ham every year, and that is enough to supply the ham sandwiches along the line.

Health Hints.

(By Dr. Bohunkus Jones.)

Cold Feet—Cold feet are a menace always and you should avoid them when possible, either your own or your wife's. A man who has cold feet never gets ahead in a business or professional way. There is a cure for cold feet. Put them in a gas oven and if they don't warm up within an hour or two, there is no hope for you.

Eating—A person should be very careful in the matter of diet. Never eat anything before retiring unless it is something light, like a mess of corned beef and cabbage or two or three pieces of hot mince pie. Heavier food than those mentioned is apt to give a person the indyspepsia. Never eat more than a square yard of pickled trout at one time.

Chewing—Fletcherizing is a great habit. Always chew the soup thoroughly ninety times before swallowing. An ordinary breakfast which begins at 7 o'clock should be chewed until nearly 10 o'clock to get the best results. You may miss several important business engagements, but what are a few business engagements compared to perfect health?

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

In response to the demands of scores of his patrons, who did not see her when she scored her big hit here last Tuesday, Manager Shannon has secured Princess Jue Quoun Tai, "The Pearl of Pekin," for a return engagement, beginning this afternoon. She will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre for the first half of the week as the headline attraction of a splendid vaudeville bill. Princess Jue Quoun Tai is a clever little daughter of China, who sings and dances even better than many of her talented American cousins, and she has an attractive personality that endears her to everyone. She comes to Plainfield with the same special scenery and costumes and assisting company that was in evidence at her engagement in the Palace Theatre, New York, three weeks ago.

Beside the Princess, there will be other enjoyable features on the bill as the following will show: the musical comedy maids, Hazel and Florence Campbell, the classiest girl act in vaudeville; Stanley and Burns, "high steppers" in their own original dancing conception; Keith and Arthur, in a novelty skit, "A Little Different from the Rest"; Brown and Hopper, classy comedians, and the American Athlete, a "marble statue" in classic poses.

The most extraordinary attraction that Manager Shannon has ever booked will be at the Plainfield Theatre the last half of the week, when Sylvester Schaeffer comes here with his superior London company. Mr. Schaeffer only recently completed a long engagement at the Palace Theatre, New York, at a weekly salary of $5,000, and sails on April 10 for a two-year tour of Australia. His company includes Ota Gydi, court violinist to the King of Spain; Mlle. Maryon Vadie, America's wonderful dancer, and Jos. Hess and partner, famous ballroom dancers. Mr. Schaeffer is an inimitable artist himself, performing various acts, of which he is an absolute master. He is considered the most remarkable actor in the world, and his coming to Plainfield was arranged after weeks of negotiation.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The C. G. C. of St. Joseph's church elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Miss Helen Bryniarski; vice-president, Miss Anna Daly; secretary, Miss Mary McCullough; treasurer, Miss Elsie Moulton. Miss Anna McGinnis, the retiring president, presided during the meeting, during which reports were read by the secretary and the treasurer.

MONTHLY MEETING.

The Women's League of St. Joseph's church will hold its monthly meeting in the church hall tonight. All members are urgently requested to be present.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME...

JULIA GIFFORD IS MADE CORRESPONDENT

Former Wife of Bob Fitzsimmons Named in Divorce Bill.

Julia Gifford, a former resident of Dunellen, is named as co-respondent in a divorce suit filed in New York last week by Maud Rodiwell Brown, a burlesque actress, against her husband, Cris O. Brown, a vaudeville agent.

Mrs. Brown sued her husband for divorce before, but the action was discontinued because of the death of her attorney. James A. Timony, her new lawyer, served Brown with papers in the suit at the Friars' Monastery, Friday. Mrs. Brown is at present leading lady with Al Reeves' burlesque show, playing the Columbia Circuit. She says in her complaint that she was married to Brown at Crown Point, Ind., August 6, 1906. They lived happily together for a few years, but a rift in the domestic lute soon became apparent.

The wife charges that her husband has misconducted himself with a woman named Helen Page, at Hotel Maryland, in New York; at Beechurst, L. I., and at various other places. She also alleges that Brown was unfaithful to his marriage vows with Julia Gifford, late spouse of the lanky, bespeckled former champion of the prize ring, Bob Fitzsimmons. She is now appearing in vaudeville as Mrs. "Bob" Fitzsimmons. She is accused of having misconducted herself with the vaudeville agent at Philadelphia and at the Hotel Maryland, in New York. Brown has been married five times.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

Major Harold Corbusier, commanding the First Field Hospital at Elizabeth, has designed a new marching shoe. The shoe has been examined and approved by Major-General Wood. The shoe is built for comfort. It has no lining, its sole is flexible and there is a plate inside the heel to prevent nails from coming through. The tongue is improved and the shoe is designed to do away with blisters caused by lining. Major Corbusier was formerly an officer in the medical corps of the regular army.

Company F, Second Infantry, will probably elect a captain to succeed the late Captain Harry B. Kitchell at a meeting tomorrow night in the armory in Elizabeth. A second lieutenant to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lieutenant Ralph Shaw will also be elected. There are several candidates for the captaincy, among them being C. Clinton Gordon, of Roselle, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1910, and First Lieutenant Charles Bohm, of Company I, Second Infantry, for several years a member of the State rifle team. Lieutenant Paul Lambert, formerly of Company I, is also said to be a candidate. Among those seeking the second lieutenancy are Sergeant Wrightson Christopher and Sergeant Winfield Scott Emmons. First Lieutenant Harvey C. Robins, now in command of the company, will not seek promotion.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

MR. BUGBEE REBELS.

By declining to have his name bracketed with David Baird, Hamilton Kean and Ira A. Kip, Jr., the three other Republican candidates for delegates-at-large to the Republican National Convention, State Chairman Newton A. K. Bugbee serves notice that he is not going to the convention wearing a Murphy-Dalrymple-Baird tag. Wisely Mr. Bugbee deferred his declaration of independence until it was too late for the Guardians to file a petition for a fourth man more amenable to their wishes. At the same time it is rather a pity that there could not have been a showdown that would have demonstrated just to what extent the Republican voters of New Jersey have surrendered their independence.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Today is a gala one indeed for the patrons of Proctor's, for today marks the inauguration of the famous Paramount pictures at that theatre. With the completion of these arrangements to present Paramount photoplays, Proctor's becomes the home of all the world's best photoplay productions, for it now presents Triangle, Paramount, Fox and Metro features, beside the famous V. L. S. F. productions and the world-renowned Keystone comedies. Such a list of wonderful programs as the above staggers one at first, but it is true that the management of Proctor's, after considerable inconvenience and at enormous expense, have finally cornered all the greatest productions from the largest and most famous of producers, with the result that theatregoers of this vicinity will be able at all times to see by far the best and most refined photoplay entertainment in this vicinity, at the lowest price of admission. Ladies in the afternoon are admitted for five cents to any seat in the orchestra or balcony, a bargain price indeed, and one that cannot be equalled anywhere. A fitting Paramount feature is shown today, to introduce these famous pictures at Proctor's. It is a photoplay adaptation of the dramatic sensation of the century, "Zaza," with Pauline Frederick, one of the most popular and talented of screen and stage stars, in the leading role. Miss Frederick has a host of friends here who admire her as the screen's foremost emotional artiste. In addition to "Zaza," three splendid comedy creations are presented, one starring Sis Hopkins; the other, Ham and Bud, and the third, Frank Daniels—a quartette of funmakers who are in a class by themselves. Tomorrow a big double feature program is in store for the patrons, headed by Lillian Gish, the famous heroine of "The Birth of a Nation," who will be seen in "Daphne and the Pirate," one of D. W. Griffith's thrilling historical dramas, with a punch in every foot of film. The other dramatic feature is "Secret Love," a virile story of hardships and suffering, with Helen Ware in the leading role. In addition, Charles Murray appears in a slapstick Keystone comedy, entitled, "The Judge," and the fifth episode of Mary Page is also shown. A show that is really worth five times the admission charged. On Friday of this week, little Mary Pickford will be seen in one of her most appealing plays, "The Girl of Yesterday."

HOW THE BIBLE WAS RENTED OUT IN THE 15TH CENTURY

In the early part of the Fifteenth Century it was very difficult to get a copy of the Bible, except in manuscript, and this often cost as much as two hundred dollars. So the masses of the people were obliged to rent a manuscript and pay for it by the hour. It is on record that the price fixed for this rental was a load of hay for its use one hour a day. An eloquent testimonial as to the eagerness of the people to obtain the Scriptures and the sacrifice they willingly made so to do. Today the big print Red Letter Edition is being taken away by thousands. Only Saturday, for instance, there was an unprecedented demand, and crowds brought their coupons and obtained their copy. We only hope that the supply will be sufficient. Read the coupon in this paper, and you will understand why.—Adv.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue church will be held on Wednesday night, April 12, at 8 o'clock, to elect four elders in the place of John Leal, Andrew J. Gavett, E. E. Parvin and James E. Kimball, and two deacons in the place of H. O. Newman and John Doull Miller, all of whose terms of office expire. There also be reports for the past year. At the same time two trustees will be elected to succeed W. A. Garrigues and Townsend Rushmore, whose terms expire, and to hear the annual report of the treasurer.

"ADVERTISING AND SALESMANSHIP."

The Business Men's Association will meet this evening in Coward's Hall, 109 Park avenue, at which time William M. Fisher, of New York city, will speak on "Advertising and Salesmanship." A full attendance of members is desired.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Karen Danced With Her Red Shoes.

"You shall dance from door to door."

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"IT'S late. Let's start the bedtime story, daddy," said Jack.

"When a little girl who lived with an old lady got an invitation to go to a nice ball, where she could wear her new red shoes, she forgot all else," daddy told Jack and Evelyn. "She just ran to the ball and began to dance. But the red shoes would not let her do what she liked. When she wanted to go to the right the red shoes danced left. When she wanted to dance left the shoes went right and down the room when she wanted to go up the room. So she bumped into many people, and finally the shoes danced down the stairs, through the street and right out the town gate. Away the red shoes danced with the little girl in them, right away into a dark forest. Far away up above the trees shone something which she thought was the moon, for it was a face. But when she looked twice she saw it was an old soldier with a red beard, who nodded and said, 'See what pretty dancing shoes!'

"This frightened the little girl, whose name was Karen, and she wanted to throw her shoes away, but when she tried to pull them off they stuck fast to her feet. She tore off her stockings, but the shoes had grown to be a part of her. So off she had to dance over fields and meadows, in rain, in sunshine, by night and by day. But nights it was fearful."

"Did she ever meet any giants?" asked Evelyn.

"No. But she danced right through a graveyard into the open door of a church. Here stood an angel in long white robes and wings that reached from his shoulders to his feet. His face was very stern, and he said to Karen: 'You shall dance in your red shoes till you are pale and cold. You shall dance from door to door, and whenever you meet proud, vain children you must knock at their door so that they may see how vain you are.'

"'Mercy!' shrieked Karen, but she had no time to say more, for the red shoes bore her out of the gate, into the fields, over roadways and paths, on and on. One morning she danced past a door that she knew well. She heard the sound of a hymn and went inside the church to find the old lady she used to live with lying with flowers all about her. Then she knew that the old lady was dead and that she was alone in the world with her dancing red shoes. She wanted to stay a minute by her friend, but on and on the shoes carried her through the nights. Sometimes they took her over briars, so that she stumbled and her feet bled. But on she danced till she came to a lonely little house in a meadow," daddy ended.

So Jack and Evelyn understood and ran off to bed like good children.

Household Hints..

HAT PIN HOLDER.

Before discarding the empty talcum powder box with the perforated top see what a nice hatpin holder it will make The perforations in the top will accomodate five or six pins. Cover the box with a pretty striped or flowered ribbon.

HALL RUNNER.

A good way to utilize plain green filling and lining paper formerly used for outlining room size rugs is by making a hall runner.

Cut filling the desired length and fold lengthwise. Cut paper the length of filling when doubled and place between. Baste together firmly and stitch on sewing machine all the way around through both filling and paper about one-half inch from outer edge, using a long loose stitch. The result will be a serviceable and good looking hall runner which will not curl up and can be used on either side.

SANDWICHES

Cottage Cheese Fillings—First, take cottage cheese mixed with pepper, salt and cream; chop onions fine and mix with mayonnaise dressing. Makes a fine filling.

Another way to use cottage cheese: Use mixed chees with cream, salt, pepper, pimentos and chopped English walnuts. Mix with mayonnaise dressing, place on lettuce leaf. Use one slice of brown bread and one slice of white bread.

SALADS

Tomato With Onion—Take a tomato (not overripe), cut into thin slices as you would a cucumber. Cut a small onion as fine as you can and sprinkle all over tomato slices. Sprinkle over with salt and pepper, add vinegar and serve.

Water Cress Salad—Select fresh, crsip, well-cleaned cress; cut fine. Mix with the following: Mix very slowly one-half teaspoon each of salt and dry mustard, one teaspoon sugar with well beaten yolks of two eggs. Then gradually pour on this, beating constantly, four tablespoons melted butter. Then, as gradually, add six tablespoons vinegar. Stir smooth and cook in double boiler until thick. Then add whites of two eggs. When cold add one small cup whipped cream.

With this salad should be served cheese balls, for which this is the recipe: Grate one cup cheese and put into it the whipped white of one egg. Make into small balls and plunge into smoking fat.

THE TABLE

Suet Soup—Get one pound nice fresh suet, run it through meat chopper, put one cup of it in soup kettle with some water, let boil while preparing the vegetables. Add four small turnips, three onions, one-fourth head cabbage, four potatoes (all cut fine—slice the potatoes); grate one carrot fine on the grater (much depends on this, as the carrot gives to the soup a richness and flavor that cannot be obtained unless you grate it). When well done add about two tablespoons flour thickening, unless you prefer it without. Try this and you will want to try it again.

Pork Pudding—Take roast pork you have left over, cut into inch squares (about a cupful) and put into shallow buttered pudding dish. Then make a batter of one pint milk, two eggs, four heaping tablespoons flour, pinch of salt, small piece of butter; mix all together and beat well ten minutes. Then pour over pork and bake till a nice golden brown. This is also delicious using pork sausages instead of the pork, and is "something different."

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

When crepe de chine waists begin to turn yellow from repeated washing, they can be tinted a pretty shade of flesh color or pink by soaking the red mosquito bar from peach baskets in warm water, adding enough of this to the rinse water to make the desired tint. Wash waist, dry thoroughly, then dip into coloring. Do not wring, but press gently. Allow to dry before ironing. It is best to dry on a coathanger to avoid streaking.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Jacob Townsend Takes His First Ride in His Wife's Machine.

"Mrs. Morton," called Mrs. Tupper, leaning her plump arms on the fence. Nell was bending over a bed of cannas, pulling them up and trimming them ready for Dick to carry to the cellar. She dusted the dirt off her garden gloves as she walked to her side of the fence.

"Did you see Mr. Townsend start for the ride?" she asked as Nell came near.

"No," said Nell, gazing into the honest face aglow with cheerful enthusiasm. "I was working out here and cannot see the road. So he is able to go for a ride? How glad I am."

"Yes, Dudley and George carried him out and propped him up in the machine. The doctor said it would not hurt him if the ride was not too long and she drove slowly over smooth roads. I think the air will do him good. He has been shut up there in his room so long, and he was such an active man, busy every minute, and now——" The honest creature wiped her eyes.

"You see, I feel like one of the family; not a bit like a servant. For five years I managed everything, and mothered little Marian. She was only eleven years old when I came. Yes, five years is a long time," she mused.

"I am glad I stayed by them. I was tempted to leave several times after this marriage, but the thought that that man and those dear children might have to eat half-cooked food and perhaps get sick made me decide to stick it out. Yes, I am glad I stayed. I should have blamed myself if I had left and this had happened, this sickness, I mean. I should have thought perhaps he was run down with poor cooking, but now I know he has had the best to eat and lots of it, and everything has beendone for his comfort."

"It certainly would have been hard for them to have gotten along without you," said Nell. "Is Mr. Townsend really better this morning?"

Mrs. Tupper sorrowfully shook her head. "It is only a question of time, I guess. Nothing will ever make him well again. Isn't it strange that this should be the first ride he ever had in the machine?"

"Is that possible! They had it two or three months before he was taken sick. I never saw them go out together, but I supposed, of course, they had been." Nell was using what Dick called her gossip tones, low and eager.

"No, they never did. I guess it is no secret that things were none of the pleasantest between them. It is what killed him, seeing what a mess he had made of everything, and what trouble everyone was in. Oh, yes, I could see him age every day."

"Mrs. Townsend seems to be doing everything possible for him now." Nell plumed herself on being fair.

"Yes," said the woman grudgingly, "she certainly has a different attitude. It is too bad she came to her senses too late." Honest Tupper tossed her head in scorn. "I must go and get his room ready for him. I left it airing. The flowers you sent over are as fresh as ever they were. I put them out of doors nights. I like to make them last; he enjoys them so much."

"It certainly is a lovely day for him to be out," said Nell as she turned from the fence.

"Yes, if only they do not keep him out too long and tire him to much." Mrs. Tupper hurried away to be in readiness to assist the invalid to his bed when he returned.

FEAR RAIDS ON AMERICAN LINES

Extra Troops Sent From Columbus as Precaution.

CAVALRY STILL IN PURSUIT

No Confirmation of Rumor That Colonel Dodd's Men Have Captured Villa. No Further Contact With the Rebel Forces Has Been Reported — Little Information Filters Over Border.

Columbus, N. M., April 3.—Warning from confidential sources has reached army men here that supporters of Pancho Villa are gathering in the Chihuahua desert for the purpose of attempting to cut the line of comunication of the American punitive expedition in Mexico.

An extra heavy guard of infantrymen, with specific instructions in the event of an attack, was placed on a truck train, which left here for the front. Isolated camps of soldiers guarding the line were reached by the field telegraph and ordered to watch closely for signs of hostile forces. Lieutenant A. W. Gullion, Twentieth infantry, of Lexington, Ky., adjutant of the base, left on the train for Colonia Dublan, where he will attempt to co-ordinate more closely with the expeditionary force and that of the base camp.

North from the town of Guerrero and east of the line of the Mexico Northwestern railroad, through arroyos and over trails that lead through the buttes and canyons of the Sierra Tarahumare, American cavalrymen are riding night and day seeking Villa, according to latest reports received from field headquarters at Colonia Dublan.

Report Villa Taken.

Little information concerning the pursuit filtered over the border, and nothing definite was received from official sources. There were persistent reports, however, that the forces of Colonel George A. Dodd had captured the bandit leader, but because of the difficulty in communication had been unable to report. Late advices from the camp of General J. J. Pershing at the front stated that the track of a vehicle believed to be the carriage carrying Villa in his flight had been discovered.

Soldiers stationed here received approximately $30,000 at the regular monthly pay day. While the usual precautions were taken to prevent trouble among the men, the usual pay day excitement in a military camp was completely absent, the men apparently realizing the seriousness of the task before the troops.

Cavalry Still In Pursuit.

Columbus, N. M., April 3.—The reports received here at base headquarters from the front were to the effect that Colonel George A. Dodd and his men of the Seventh cavalry were still pursuing Villa in a northwesterly direction from the scene of last Wednesday's engagement.

There has been no further contact with the Villa forces since their defeat Wednesday as far as is known here. The army officers think the fact that Villa has been wounded will make it practically impossible for him to hide out, separated from his men, for any considerable length of time on account of need of medical attendance.

First Lieutenant Allen W. Gullion of the Twentieth infantry, the adjutant of the expeditionary base, left for the front to make a tour of the entire line of communication between the base and the most advanced forces. The commanders of the base have charge of the line of communication, and it is the adjutant's purpose to strengthen this line and facilitate the transmission of messages from the front.

Auto Ambulances Sent Out.

The fact that the four men injured in the fight with Villa's forces have not been brought back here yet is taken by headquarters to indicate that their injuries were very slight and that they are being treated in the field and soon will be able to return to duty. The first two automobile ambulances left for the front, however, and it is possible that these wounded men will be kept at the field hospitals until the ambulances have arrived.

Word has been received that the prisoners captured in Colonel Dodd's fight with Villistas are being sent here, and work will begin on a stockade in which to keep them. It is to be made of barbed wire and will be kept under a strong guard.

The army is making efforts to have a branch United States postoffice established at Casas Grandes, so that when the troops in the field receive their pay they will be able to send funds home by money order.

KING GEORGE GIVES $500,000

War Contribution to Be Used as Government Decides.

London, April 3.—The press bureau announced that the following letter has been sent to the prime minister:

Privy Purse Office, Buckingham Palace, March 31.—Sir: I have received the king's command to inform you that his majesty has given instructions for the sum of £100,000 ($500,000) to be placed at the disposal of the treasury.

It is the king's wish that the sum, which he gives in consequence of the war, be applied in whatever manner is deemed best in the opinion of the government.

F. E. G. PONSONBY,
Keeper of the Privy Purse.

TO GIVE A CANTATA.

Rehearsals for the cantata "Bethany," which is to be given in St. Joseph's church on Wednesday evening, April 12, are progressing under the direction of J. C. Bailey. Local talent has been selected for the principals in the cantata, while a large number of young people will make up the choruses. No admission will be charged for the cantata, but at the conclusion, a collection will be taken up.

Rodman Wanamaker has had constructed an aeroplane of 1,800 horsepower and capable of making 100 miles an hour. He is confident that with this machine he can cross the Atlantic ocean without the necessity of alighting for any purpose.

GERMANS STORM WOOD NEAR VAUX

Heavy Assaults Take French Position Near Verdun.

London, April 3.—German assaults in great force penetrated Caillette wood, southwest of Fort Douaumont, on the northwestern border of the Verdun intrenched camp.

Four attacks, preceded by a violent bombardment by big guns, were made simultaneously, but the assailants were unable, according to the Paris report, to hold more than the northern part of the wood against French counter attacks.

The French war office, however, admits that the whole of the village of Vaux, in the same neighborhood, is now in German hands. West of the Meuse Paris reports the repulse of several powerful attacks on the Avocourt wood, but makes no mention of Berlin's claim of the capture of a thousand yards of French trenches northeast of Haucourt, in the same region.

Many aeroplane engagements are reported, particularly in the territory about Verdun. French airmen bombarded towns in the rear of the German lines and brought down three enemy machines on the Verdun front. Two allied aeroplanes were shot down by German aviators.

GERMANS GO INTO POLITICS.

Jersey Alliance to Fight Candidates Opposed to Their "Interests."

Elizabeth, N. J., April 3.—Resolutions calling upon delegates to work against any presidential candidate "not in accord with our interests" were passed at the state convention of the German-American alliance; also it was decided that the executive committee should meet after the national convention to take action on the nominees.

The convention was held in Turn hall behind closed doors. Two sentries stood guard and admitted only those with credentials. Following the meeting Ernest German, newly elected recording secretary, made a brief statement of the proceedings. Asked if any names were mentioned bearing on the organization's attitude toward a presidential candidate, he replied, "I don't know."

GERARD WILL NOT RESIGN.

Ambassador Denies That He Will Be Candidate For Governor.

Berlin, April 3.—James W. Gerard, the American ambassador, has issued a statement through the Wolff bureau regarding the report telegraphed here from the United States that he intends to resign, return to America and become a candidate for governor of New York. The statement says:

"The ambassador regards it as his duty not to leave the important post at Berlin during the war, especially as any possible successor would not easily work into the difficult and often complicated matter of British interests intrusted to him, like those of civil and military prisoners. He hopes to stay in Berlin at least till the end of the great war."

Dr. Paul W. Harrison, missionary from Trinity Reformed church to Arabia, who is now in this country in the interest of his work, will speak at the following places during the next two weeks: Today, University of Wisconsin; tomorrow and Friday, Minneapolis and St. Paul; April 9-10, Carlton College and St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.; April 11-12, Omaha, Neb.; April 14-17, Lincoln, Neb.

VEGETABLE AND FLOWER GARDENS

Department of Agriculture Specialists Plan Two Model Specimens.

BOTH ARE PRACTICAL

Methods of Utilizing Small Spaces for Individual Plots is Growing Popular Among the School Children.

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Spealialists in the U. S. Department of Agriculture have planned two specimen individual gardens 5 by 16½ feet for use in schools. One of these is for vegetables alone, and the other for both vegetables and flowers. The average pupil, it has been found, shows a much keener interest in a garden of his own than in one owned in common by all the school. Individual gardens stimulate pride in ownership and the work of caring for them encourages system, skill and judgment. Participation in the care of a community garden does not develop the idea of individual responsibility and consequently interest and industry are usually lacking.

The limited area usually available for school garden work makes it imperative that tall-growing, broad-leaved and climbing plants much be excluded. Radishes, lettuce, beans, beets, tomatoes and other plants which grow in a compact bush form are recommended for school garden work.

In the first plan recommended by the Government specialists, the rows run the short way of the garden, and with the exception of tomatoes, are all a foot apart. Tomatoes are planted 18 to 20 inches apart, thus giving more room forthe plants to spread than would otherwise be secured.

The second garden is of the same area as the vegetable garden. The rows are one foot apart, with the exception of the radishes, which are 6 inches. The plants are grouped according to height of growth so as to place the tall-growing plants in the center o fthe garden, with low-growing plants at the ends. In this case it will be noted that tomatoes are used only as a succession or rotation crop following radishes and lettuce.

The children should be allowed to do all the work of preparing the land, as well as planting the seed and caring for the plants. This can be accompanied by instruction in soil physics, the teacher explaining the reason for each step.

Radishes—The seeds should be sown in drills, in rich, well-prepared soil, placed about half-an-inch apart and buried not deeper than one inch nor less than one-half inch. When the plants are showing the second set of true leaves they should be thinned to stand from one to two inches apart in the row.

Lettuce—The seeds should be sown in drills in the open or in boxes in the window. If in the open, the seeds should be scattered about one-half inch apart along the row, and covered not more than one-half inch with earth. Firm the earth well over the seeds, so as to bring the moist soil in contact with them. When the plants are well up, thin to six inches apart in the row. If the seeds were sown in a window box, hotbed, frame or greenhouse, transplant the young plants to stand two by two inches apart as soon as the seed leaves are well expanded, and when they begin to crowd, transfer them to their permanent places in the open, if the weather will permit. In the field, they should stand at least six inches apart each way.

Beans—It is best to wait and plant the seeds of this plant in the open where the plants are to grow, delaying the work until severe frosts are past. Plant in rows one foot apart, placing the seeds about two inches deep at intervals of six inches. Keep the soil loose and free from weeds.

Beets—Beets, while they are hardy and can be planted atthe same time as radishes and lettuce, are placed as indicated in the planting plan because they require a longer season for maturing than lettuce, radishes and beans. The seeds should be planted in rows one foot apart, placed an inch apart in the row and covered one inch deep. When the plants are well up (two inches high), thin to four inches apart in the row. Keep the sail well tilled at all times.

Tomatoes—The tomato is the most exacting of all the plants Keep the plants growing slowly until about May 20 to June 1, when it will be safe to place them in their permanent locations in the garden. Set the plants in rows 18 inches apart and place the plants about 20 inches apart in the rows. Each plant as it grows should have all side branches removed and the main stem tied to a stout stake, about five feet tall and at least an inch square, driven firmly in the ground.

Flowering plants which are especially recommended to amateur school gardeners, are the ageratum, nasturtium, petunia, the California poppy, and the zinnia. Cultural instructions for these plants may also be obtained from Farmers' Bulletin 218, which will be sent on request.

B. T. Barnes, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York City, spent Sunday in this city with relatives.

Mrs. J. M. Ramsey and daughter, Mrs. R. W. Tietjen, of 167 Crescent avenue, left today for a two-months' stay in Virginia.

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out the poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone prosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Adv.

IDEAL COURSE BOTH EASY AND DIFFICULT

So Writes Authority Tillinghast in Article About New Shackamaxon Links.

The ideal golf course is the one that tests the expert, but is not too exacting to others, says A. W. Tillinghast, the eminent golf writer and architect, and the man who laid out the Shackamaxon Country Club links in Fanwood township. An article by Mr. Tillinghast will appear in a prospectus of the new club which is now being prepared. The article, which has been sought by two or three magazines, and which may be published elsewhere later, includes a short description of the Shackamaxon links, and is, in part, as follows:

"The creation of a thoroughly modern course cannot be accomplished by the haphazard methods of the past. Each step must be considered carefully and scientifically, with a knowledge of the demands of the game. Many are reluctant to attempt the construction of a modern course because they labor under the impression that the requirements will render the game too exacting for players of moderate ability. Modern golf presents distances and hazards which say to every one 'You May,' but to the expert who is attempting par figures, their demand is 'You Must.' The ideal course of today presents pleasurable golf to every one, and it is exacting to the expert alone. That this combination is practical has been demonstrated beyond question.

"One vital feature was neglected by most of the old-time builders of American links. They persistently ignored Nature, and when introducing artificial creations, little effort was exerted towards making them appear natural. Such relics of antiquity are not pleasing to the golfers of the present; indeed, they are not tolerated, and for this reason it is folly to go to the expense of building along any but the most modern lines.

"The most recent course in the Metropolitan District is that of the Shackamaxon Country Club, near Westfield, New Jersey, and certainly this must be numbered among those of distinction when it is completed. There are good reasons for this prediction. The ground is ideal, not broken by hills which bring fatigue with every round, but beautifully rolling into profiles which delight the eye of the golf architect.

"Then, too, the builders of the course would accept nothing which savored of mediocrity or antiquity. The plans had to be prepared along the most modern lines, and the models of the putting greens proved tests of the designer's ingenuity and knowledge of golf.

"The extreme playing length of Shackamaxon is well over sixty-six hundred yards, but auxiliary teeing grounds on many of the holes will place the distance of daily play considerably under this yardage. An analysis shows that the individual distances are good, and before a round is completed the golfer will appreciate that a knowledge of every club in his bag has been tested. From the delicately-controlled wrist-shot to the closely-guarded green of the eleventh, every type of stroke finds a mission to perform, and probably no hole in America offers such a range to the mighty driver as the notably long tenth.

"Segregated and twisted fairways, and dog's-leg holes indicate the very modern ideas which have been introduced. In one section two of the fairways have been built through the very heart of a magnificent grove. These are the fourth and the fifth, but again near the finish, a secondary route for the conservative players has been cleared through the timber.

"A remarkably picturesque lake of noble proportions is a distinct feature of the course. Indeed, the water hazards, which always prove interesting, are particularly charming and undeniably effective. One of the greens—the ninth—is built upon an island, which is open to a mashie pitch only after a long and accurately place drive reaches beyond trees which screen from the left.

"Another unique but thoroughly satisfying hole is the very first. Here a comparatively small green may be found safely only if the drive be hit well.

"The outward and home journeys, while of about the same length, vary greatly in character. On the first nine holes Nature has been particularly lavish with her bounty, leaving the architect with but little to do. But after getting into the very open country where the others are placed, he had to resort to every trick of his trade in an imitation of Nature, without apparently doing so. Artificial, yet natural-looking mounds had to be modeled and constructed; yet, when the final plans were completed, they showed an infinite variety which is most satisfactory.

"When Shackamaxon is completed entirely, the course will present a very exacting test of the expert's game, yet on not a single hole will the player of ordinary ability be confronted by necessary shots which are beyond his powers. Always there is to be found a safe and not terrifying route to the green."

INSIDE STORY OF HOW THE SENATORS SECURED JOHNSON

The real story of how the Washington club obtained Walter Johnson, recognized as the greatest pitcher in the game today, has never really been told. There have been stories that "Cliff" Blankenship discovered him out at Weiser, Idaho, after watching him pitch. Another story was to the effect that "Joe" Cantillon had a friend who tipped him off, but "Ben" Minor has related the true facts of the coming of Walter Johnson to the Washington club in 1907.

Minor had a friend who was interested in mines in the West. He is a native Washingtonian, but was living in New York. His name is John McCoy. He made frequent trips to Idaho, where he had interests, and one day saw Walter Johnson pitching for that club. He was impressed with the youngster, and stopping off at Washington en route East, he dropped in to see Minor and told him of Johnson.

Men in baseball always get a lot of tips on "phenoms," and Minor, of the Washington club, did not give Walter Johnson serious thought at the time. In a month or so, McCoy again stopped off at Washington and brought clippings showing that Johnson had struck out twenty-two men at Weiser. This, of course, interested Minor, who took the clippings and handed them to "Joe" Cantillon, then manager of the team. "Joe" naturally was amused at the record, and he figured that some time he would take it up with some one and have the boy looked over.

There the matter stood for several weeks, when McCoy again dropped in on Minor and asked if anything had been done about getting Johnson. He was told that there had not, and then he said: "Look here, Ben, John I. Taylor, of the Boston club, is a pretty good friend of mine, and unless you get this 'kid' right away I will tell him to send out for him."

There and then Minor got into communication with Cantillon. Blankenship had injured his finger and could not play, so Minor insisted that he be sent to Weiser and bring Johnson here, where he could be looked over.

Within ten days Blankenship returned with Johnson. To show that Johnson was a wise business man even at that time, he insisted on being guaranteed transportation back to his home if he did not make good. He proved he had the makings of a great pitcher even then, and when the season was over he called attention to the agreement as to his transportation, making the point that if the club was willing to pay it in the event he had failed, it surely should be willing to do so seeing that it had decided to keep him, and he carried his point.

CARRIERS DELIVER 2,136 POUNDS OF MAIL

Every Piece of Mail Received at Postoffice This Morning Weighed and Counted.

All the letters and second-class mail of each letter-carrier at the local postoffice were actually counted and weighed for the first mail this morning, after which Postmaster A. E. Hoagland announced the result. The number of letters delivered totaled 22,222, weighing 415 pounds. The largest number delivered by one carrier, this in the business section, was 1,514, the next lowest counts being 1,399, 1,384, 1,383 and 1,470. The lowest number was 494.

The second class papers, etc., weighed 1,742 pounds. The actual weight of mail carried out of the postoffice by the various carriers on the first trip this morning was 128 pounds, 128, 116, 106, 196, 103, 99, 77, the lightest 46 of which 21 pounds were letters.

The total weight of mail taken out on the first trip this morning by 24 carriers was 2,136 jounds. Five hundred and thirteen letters were re-addressed and forwarded and over 500 pieces of parcel post were on hand to be delivered. The carriers usually leave the office before 8 o'clock in the morning, but owing to the heavy mail today it was about 9 o'clock when they started on their rounds.

FLOOD DANGER NEAR ALBANY IS LESSENED

Albany, April 3.—Flood danger is abating here and the river stands at 14.5 feet this morning. The water began falling shortly after midnight. Damage is reported along the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers above Albany. Schenectady suffered most. The threatened danger abated is due to the sudden cold weather which checked the melting snow and gave the rain a chance to run off without addition to the volume of water.

$100,000 FIRE AT HOBOKEN.

Hoboken, April 3.—A $100,000 fire here today totally destroyed the coal pockets of the William Horre Coal Co. and the store house of Schwartzchild Sulzberger.

Y. W. C. A. EXCELS IN LINELESS GAME

Linear Restrictions Handicap Team at Summit, but Girls Nose Out Victorious.

The local Y. W. C. A. basketball team brought home a victory from Summit Saturday night, 9 to 7. The game was fast and exciting from the start, and although the Summit girls led at the end of the first half, the Plainfielders held them so that they made no points in the second part of the game. The local girls did most of their scoring in the second half, which was played without lines. The score at the end of the game stood 9-7 in favor of the Plainfield aggregation. The first half, played with lines, ended 7 to 1 in Summit's favor.

CHANGES IN FISH AND GAME LAWS ARE FEW THIS YEAR

This is the first in twenty-two years that decided changes have not been made in the fish and game laws by the Legislature. In fact, the records show that less bills were introduced and fewer passed than ever in the history of fish and game legislation.

Of the twenty-nine bills introduced, five in the Senate and twenty-four in the House of Assembly, only seven have been made laws. In addition to the seven new laws a joint resolution was passed creating a committee to revise and codify the fish and game laws. Another resolution continuing the Schoen committee to investigate the fisheries was equally successful.

The object of the new laws will be found in the following synopsis:

Senate 112 changes the law relating to fishing with nets in Sandy Hook bay during the months of June, July, August and September. It adds to the present law the words "gill nets." The amendment to the law was introduced in behalf of the Monmouth county net fishermen.

Senate 237 was pased for the net fishermen of Sandy Hook and Raritan bays, who claimed that their nets were being robbed by non-resident fishermen. It makes it unlawful to take from any net, without authority, fish of any kind and includes a penalty for the multilation of nets. It is a duplicate of the law that was passed for the ocean net fishermen.

Assembly 142 makes it unlawful for any intoxicated person to enter the woods or fields with a gun of any description. Many complaints have been made of intoxicated hunters in the deer woods and several fatalities have been traced to men in such a condition.

Assembly 213 prohibits the shooting of any deer without horns showing above the hair. It was enacted into law to prevent the shooting of fawns, as the former law simply prohibited the shooting of does and evidences were found last fall showing that many does had been killed and their young suffered as a consequence.

Assembly 220 simply relates to the straightening out of the line heading to the game farm at Forked River by the purchase of additional property.

Assembly 255 is considered by sportsmen as one of the best pieces of fish and game legislation passed in many years. It prevents the use of any kind of net in the inland waters of Cape May, from June 1 to September 1. The bill was passed to protect the fish in the bays and rivers during the summer, as thousands of rod and line fishermen fish there.

Assembly 517 was enacted into a law because of the scarcity of bluefish in Sandy Hook and Raritan bays. The point has been raised that if the large menhaden steamers are longer permitted to set their nets in these waters there will be a greater shortage of bluefish, as the latter follow the menhaden into the bays, and if the nets of the large steamers are permitted to trap the menhaden first the bluefish will not come in. The new law prohibits netting from steamers larger than forty tons.

MATCH BOWLING.

Five-man bowling matches carded for tonight on Gates' alleys are as follows:

Tuesday night—Twelve Bells vs. Saurer.

Wednesday night—Pond's Machine Shop vs. Draughting Room.

15,000 SUBWAY WORKERS GO ON STRIKE IN NEW YORK

New York, April 3.—Workers in the new subways, estimated to number 15,000 men, struck this morning. Construction work on all the city's new underground routes is at a standstill. Only timber men on whose labor depends the safety of the shoring of the streets reported for work. The men demanded higher wages.

BLAME BIG NEW HAVEN WRECK ON ENGINEER

Washington, April 3.—Because Engineman Curtis, of train No. 5 of the New Haven Railroad, failed to observe and be governed by signal indication of automatic block signal the wreck at Milford, Conn., February 22, resulted. This is the conclusion of H. W. Belknap, chief of the division of safety of the I. C. C., made public today.

24,740 IMMIGRANTS ADMITTED IN FEBRUARY

Washington, April 3.—A bulletin issued today by the Bureau of Immigration shows that there were admitted in the United States in February, 24,740 immigrant aliens, vs. 17,293 in January.

BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING TONIGHT

Schedule Will Be Accepted—Dunellen to Apply for Admission.

City League baseball men will gather in the Daily Press building tonight for the most important meeting of the year. A least one outside team will apply for admission to the league, that club being Dunellen. The schedule committee, composed of Dan Randolph, Tom Apgar, and James Monahan, will present the schedule which it has been working on since the last meeting, and unless the league decides to take in one or more teams, the dates will be accepted tonight.

Warry McLaughlin will be on hand to ask that a franchise be given Dunellen. Lou Dixon is associated with the veteran twirler in the Dunellen deal.

Applications for jobs as umpires will be presented to the league tonight. About half a dozen have written for appointments. The arbiters get $2.50 a game.

Another matter that will come up will be from Manager Gifford Jones, who wants to change the name of his entry from "Plainfield A. A." to "North Plainfield A. A.," and to play on Hyde Field. Using a different name may not meet with any objection, but the league is known to favor the use of the three fields selected at the last meeting, and the Jonesmen's idea of playing on Hyde Field is likely to encounter some opposition.

REDS OUTRUN YANKEES.

Cincinnati, April 3.—Poor baserunning and a fielding error by the Yankees yesterday enabled the Cincinnati Reds to square accounts with the American leaguers. The Reds won by a score of 3 to 1. The opportunities for scoring were practically even, but the Reds were steadier in the field and ran bases better, though their exertions in the latter department had no bearing on the runs they made.

IMPS AT S. P. P. H.

The Imperials are scheduled to bowl on the Scotch Plains Parish House alleys tonight.

GOOD SCORES MADE AT CLIMAX TRAPS

Six 15-Bird Events and One at 25 Targets on the Weekly Program.

One 25-bird event and six 15-target shoots comprised the program at the Climax Gun Club traps Saturday. Richard Randolph won the quarter century with 23, Neaf Apgar, a professional, breaking 24. In the 15-bird events, A. L. Seidler, A. Rose and George Ord each returned a perfect score.

JOE HARTER PLAYS.

Three thousand Brooklyn fans saw a squad of Dodgers in action yesterday afternoon when Jack Coombs led a batch of Robins against the Bushwicks at Ridgewood field. For four innings Coombs worked all regulars. Then he sent in a squad of semi-pro ball tossers and, as a result, his team was defeated in a ten-inning game by a score of 4 to 3. Joe Harter played with the winners.

CLEVELAND BEATS CUBS AGAIN.

New Orleans, April 3.—The Cleveland Indians beat the Chicago Cubs again yesterday afternoon, 5 to 4. It was a case of excellent pitching that defeated the Cubs. Bill Mitchell and Guy Morton turned the trick, Mitchell yielding two hits and one run, in six innings, while Morton was touched for one hit in the seventh and two in the ninth.

FORTUNES FOUGHT FOR IN RING NOWADAYS MANY TIMES LARGER THAN PURSES IN FORMER YEARS

It is only within comparatively recent years that the boxing game and high finance have entered upon such intimate relations. The last bare knuckle championship battle in America, that between John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, at Richburg, Miss., in 1889, involved a financial consideration of only $20,000, although the sportsmen of two continents had been eagerly discussing such a match for years.

The South African miners were really responsible for initiating the era of big money fights. In 1889 they hung up a stake of $22,500 for a battle between two comparative unknowns, Jack Couper and Wolf Bendorf. This lavish stake was a seven days' wonder in the sporting world, and it started the boxers of America and England to thinking. If such a sum could be hung up for a fight pulled off in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, they figured that their fistic displays in the centers of civilization ought to be worth a lot more money than they had been getting.

New Orleans started the ball rolling with the big tournament pulled off there in September, 1892. Sullivan defended his title against Jim Corbett in a bout in which $45,000, in stake and purse, was involved. The lightweight title match between Jack McAuliffe and Billy Hyer was for a stake and purse of $20,000, and $17,500 was hung up for the George Dixon-Jack Skelly featherweight battle.

The next year New Orleans again got into the limelight by offering $40,000 for a middleweight title bout between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall. In 1894 Corbett fought Charlie Mitchell, the English boxer, for $30,000, at Jacksonville, Fla.

The West then got into the running. The Fitzsimmons-Sharkey bout in San Francisco in 1896 attracted a $21,000 house, the fighters getting $14,700. The next year Fitzsimmons fought Corbett for the heavyyeight title at Carson City, the gladiators getting $16,500 of the $22,000 gate.

Then came the turn of the effete East to horn into the big money game. In 1899 the New York fans paid $66,000 to see Jeffries defeat Sharkey, the fighters getting $36,465. The contest between Jim Corbett and Kid McCoy, staged in New York in 1900, attracted another big house, the fans paying $56,350 to see the bout between the two great exponents of cleverness, who divided $33,810.

That was the end of big money battles in the East for a time, but the Pacific Coast plungers continued to bull the pug market. In 1901 the San Francisco fans paid over $30,000 to see Jeffries and Ruhlin in action, the fighters getting about $20,000. The Jeffries-Fitzsimmons battle in San Francisco the following year attracted a slightly larger gate, and the coast fans paid $20,000 to see Young Corbett and Terry McGovern, a pair of little fellows, larrup each other. The Nelson-Britt lightweight contest at Colma in 1904 attracted $48,000, the men getting $31,000 of this sum. The Britt-Corbett contest the same year drew $32,000. The Britt-Gans affair drew $21,000, and the Nelson-Britt contest of 1905, $27,000.

The receipts at the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield in 1906 were only $33,300, slightly less than the amount paid the fighters. Milwaukee paid $21,224 to see the Ketchell-Papke contest in 1908. The fight fans of Australia paid $67,000 to see Tommy Burns whip Bill Squires in 1908, and a little later dug up $131,000 when Burns fought Jack Johnson.

The great culmination of the financial fever came in 1910, when $270,775 was paid by the fans at Reno for the Johnson-Jeffries battle, the warriors getting $121,000. When Willard took the title away from Johnson at Havana last year the gate receipts amounted to about $70,000, of which Johnson got $32,000, and big Jess practically nothing above expenses. But he has been getting it since!

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

Corporation Counsel Reed Reports on Recent Public Utility Decision.

CONTRACT IS LEGAL

Mayor Calkins Tells of Competition Among Architects to Build New City Hall — All Local Designers Are In.

More than $7,000 a year was saved the city of Plainfield by the recent decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals in which it was held that all public service corporations were bound to live up to their contracts to furnish service free to this municipality, according to Corporation Counsel Reed. Mr. Reed last night submitted a report to the Common Council, in which he told of the benefits to the city from this decision and enumerated the many valuable contracts which might have been declared invalid had a reverse decision been handed down. The report of Attorney Reed follows:

Gentlemen:

I beg to report that the Court of Errors and Appeals has declared valid and enforcible the contract whereby the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, and its successors, the Public Service Electric Company, become bound to light with electricity the Council chambers, police station, firehouses, city hall and other rooms and buildings occupied as city offices.

The Supreme Court declared this contract abrogated by Chapter 374, Laws of 1911. It also decided that the Board of Public Utility Commissioners had no jurisdiction over the subject in controversy between the city and the light company. This question of jurisdiction was of small moment to the city and was not argued on its behalf. We confined our contention to the vital issue, namely, the validity of our contract, which having been sustained by our highest court will probably be performed without further question by the Public Service.

It may not be amiss to call your attention at this time to the value to Plainfield of the decision in this case. The principle involved governs not only the lighting contract, but also the furnishing of telephone service to the city departments without charge; also the paving and care of certain proportions of the streets on which trolley tracks are located; also the use of subways and conduits of the telephone and light companies for police and fire alarm wires. Indeed, every concession secured and right reserved heretofore by the city in exchange for grant of any franchise to any public utility corporation would have gone by the board if the theory of the Supreme Court had been sustained by the Court of Appeals.

It is impossible to place exact fig-

URGENT APPEAL FOR THE STRICKEN PEOPLE OF SERBIA

The great European tragedy is composed of a series of tragedies, of which that of the small nation of Serbia is one of the most touching and deeply moving. Thousands and thousands of old men, women and children have had to flee from their homes without food or warm clothing to the snow-clad mountains and have perished from cold and hunger. Those remaining are in extreme suffering and need.

Under the auspices of the Mercy Committee of New Jersey, the Serbian Ambassador to the Court of St. James (His Excellency Cheddo Miytovich) and Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, of England, will speak in behalf of this suffering people on Saturday evening, April 8, at 8:30 o'clock at the Hartridge Auditorium.

The generous heart of the Plainfield people has nobly responded to every call of want and suffering of the nations at war. It is believed an interested audience and substantial response to the collection to be taken for the Serbians will result.

BOYS' AUXILIARY SALE.

The Boys' Auxiliary of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will conduct a sale of home-made cake and candy in the vacant store, 320 West Front street, next to J. W. Gavett's crockery store, on Saturday, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the guild. An automobile will start out at 7:30 o'clock that morning to collect supplies.

SENDS BOY TO ELIZABETH.

Joseph Moore, the young negro boy arrested on complaint of his mother, who charged that he stole from his grandmother, will be tried in the juvenile court in Elizabeth, as an incorrigible. The boy was before Judge De Meza this morning, but was ordered sent to Elizabeth, where he will probably be sentenced to a reformatory.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE.

William R. Rathvon, C. S. B., of Denver, Col., will give a lecture on Christian Science, at Proctor's Theatre, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the First church of Christ (Scientist), of Plainfield.

H. OTTO WITTPENN A BANQUET SPEAKER

Former Mayor of Jersey City Will Be Among Prominent Men at Elks' Gathering.

It was announced today by the committee in charge of the banquet to be given tomorrow night by Plainfield Lodge of Elks to Past Grand Exalted Ruler Edward Leach, of New York, that former Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, would be present and be numbered among the speakers. Mr. Wittpenn, who is now naval officer of the Port of New York and who will be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination at the coming primaries, signified his intention last week of attending the banquet but was unable to say definitely until yesterday. A telephone message was received from him last night, stating that he would positively be on hand but owing to earlier engagements would not reach Plainfield until 10 o'clock.

Plans for the banquet are progressing favorably and from the number of tickets sold already it is certain the diners will number between 125 and 150. There will be prominent Elks from New York, Jersey City, Newark and Elizabeth in addition to local members. Assemblyman William N. Runyon will be the toastmaster, while F. C. Langhorne, Frank H. Smith and Charles A. Reed will be among those giving addresses.

The banquet will be served on the main floor of the Watchung avenue clubhouse following the installation of the recently elected officers. Past Grand Exalted Ruler Leach will be the installing officer. Chauncey F. Stout, Lewis A. Bellis and John P. Wesner comprise the committee of arrangements.

BRIDE AND GROOM TO LIVE IN ALASKA

Henry DeWitt Smith, Mining Engineer, Weds Miss Ellen D. Burke.

Miss Ellen Dawson Burke, daughter of Charles C. Burke, of Nethwood, and Henry DeWitt Smith, of Hartford, Conn., were married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Stephen's Episcopal church. The Rev. Henry Mesier, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy L. Burke, and Horace N. Trumbull, of New York City, was the best man. Only a few relatives and friends were present at the wedding, which was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's father on Ravine road.

The bride is a graduate of the Hartridge School, and of Smith College, in the class of 1911. Mr. Smith was graduated from Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, Class of '08, where he later received the degree of mining engineer.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Kennecott, Alaska, where Mr. Smith is in the employ of the Kennecott Copper Corporation.

J. J. WILLIAMS' FUNERAL IS HELD IN NEWARK

The funeral of John J. Wiliams, a native of Plainfield, was held this afternoon at his late home, 83 Dukes street, Kearny, Rev. Joseph F. Folsom, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Presbyterian church, Newark, officiating. The interment was in Arlington cemetery, Newark.

Mr. Williams was captain of Central Hose Company, No. 1, of Kearny, and formerly commodore of the West Hudson Yacht Club and until recently inspector of rifle practice of the Seventh Regiment, of New York city. He died at his home Saturday following an illness of pneumonia contracted a week previous while visiting his daughter, Mrs. Robert Wilgus, of Kearny. Beside his wife, Mr. Williams is survived by two children.

PROFITS TOTALED $120.

At the monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital, held a few days ago, the treasurer reported that $120 had been received from Mrs. Thomas H. Leggett as the net results from the auction bridge party held at her residence last week. The proceeds will be used towards furnishing the new bedrooms in the Nurses' Home.

"THE VOTER OF TOMORROW."

"The Voter of Tomorrow" will be the subject of D. Fred Aungst's talk before the Borough Republican Club this evening. It will be 8:45 o'clock when Mr. Aungst arrives at the club because of a previous engagement.

CO. K ON THE ROAD.

Members of Co. K hiked to South Plainfield last night, the jaunt taking the place of the regular Monday night drill. A regimental board meeting for officers will be held in Trenton Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Sperry and daughter, of East Second street, have removed to Buffalo, N. Y.

STORE EMPLOYES TO HEAR LECTURE

Experiment of Business Men's Association May Result in Establishment of School.

HEAR NEW YORKER TALK

William H. Fisher, of Advertising Agency of Redfield & Fisher, Gives Some Suggestions to Merchants—Routine Matters Disposed of.

Initial steps toward what will probably result in a scientifically planned school of salesmanship for Plainfield store clerks were taken by the local Business Men's Association last night in arranging tentative details for a meeting of the store employes with the employers in the near future. Although no definite date has been agreed upon a speaker will be secured for the occasion who is an authority on selling behind store counters and many valuable pointers will be given out. Suggestion was made at last night's meeting that employers make it compulsory upon their clerks to attend the first gathering and it will be determined at that time whether or not there is sufficient interest in such a scheme to establish a regularly supervised course of training. The association is made up largely of store proprietors and the sentiment is unanimously in favor of inaugurating such a plan for the instruction of employes. A committee composed of Paul H. Bennett, Max Tepper and Henry Schuldenfrei was appointed to select a speaker and decide upon a date for the opening session. Although it was originally suggested that the clerks meet with the association at its May session other arrangements will probably be made inasmuch as it is not deemed advisable to devote a portion of the evening to the disposition of routine matters which would be necessary if this was done.

William H. Fisher, of the advertising agency of Redfield & Fisher, of New York, was the speaker of the evening. He took for his subject the "Buy In Plainfield" slogan and dealt with it in a general way. Among other things Mr. Fisher quoted statistics indicating that there are 250,000 business corporations in the United States and that 190,000 of this number earn less than $5,000 annually and that 100,000 earn nothing. The speaker stated that forty-five per cent. of the retail stores went out of business in the first five years and that only one store in two has a chance to live more than five years. Seventy-five per cent. of grocery store failures are due to bad debts and fifty per cent. of the failures in other retail lines may be attributed to the same cause. Mr. Fisher named three important rules for the business man seeking prosperity to follow: First, watch the credits; second, know your selling cost; and third, know your customers and sales folk. At the conclusion of his talk the New York man was extended a unanimous vote of thanks by the association.

A committee composed of Paul H. Bennett, Howard Marchant, Martin Stutsman, Henry Haurand and Isaac Schwed was named to take charge of certain details akin to the work of the Credit Association, an organization which recently consolidated with the business men. At the suggestion of John Johnston, of the firm of Shirley & Johnston, a motion was passed to demand of the street department better sprinkling service along West Front street. Mr. Johnston contended that considerable dust has accumulater along that thoroughfare and that the sprinkling already given the street has not been adequate to keep it down.

President Schwed named Morris C. Van Arsdale, A. E. Force and Leslie R. Fort as a committee on dues with power to interview those few who are in arrears. Milton Hinchcliffe was elected to membership. George Finger, chairman of the annual dinner committee, made his complete report last night and details calling for the attention of the association were passed upon.

CHAUFFEUR HAD MANIA FOR KISSING WOMEN

Because he stood on Park avenue for a few minutes yesterday afternoon and kissed, or attempted to kiss, every woman that came along Fred Kelson, a chauffeur, is being held at the police station until his sanity can be determined upon. Kelson succeeded in forcing his affections on at least two women, and others who witnessed his strange actions reported to police headquarters.

The man was locked up and this morning remanded by Judge DeMeza until he can be examined by physicians. Kelson was arrested yesterday morning in North Plainfield on a charge of fast and reckless driving of the automobile of his employer. Other acts of the past few days lead to the belief that he is mentally unbalanced. He is married and lives in North Plainfield.

CRAPSHOOTERS FINED.

Ernest Johnson; the last of the boys who were caught shooting craps near the Biederwolf Tabernacle last Saturday, was tried in police court this morning. He was given a fine of $2 by Judge DeMeza.

SERVICES TODAY FOR REV. MOTHER

Head of Sisters of Mercy Laid to Rest After Solemn High Mass in St. Joseph's.

DIGNITARIES PRESENT

Mourners From All Parts of the State Numbered Among the Gathering—Rev. Father P. J. Hart, Celebrant.

With many dignitaries of the church in attendance, the funeral of Rev. Mother M. Gabriel, head of the Sisters of Mercy of the diocese of Trenton, who died on Friday at Mt. St. Mary College, was conducted in St. Joseph's church, the borough, this morning. The edifice was filled to its capacity with friends of the beloved woman, and the sanctuary held forty priests from all parts of the State.

The solemn high mass of requiem offered for the repose of Mother Gabriel's soul was in charge of Rev. Father Peter J. Hart, rector of St. Joseph's, as celebrant, while Rev. Father Joseph J. Zimmer, of Raritan, acted as deacon, and Rev. Father John R. O'Connor, of Metuchen, was sub-deacon. Rev. Father John F. Baldwin, chaplain of Mt. St. Mary College, was master of ceremonies, and the eulogy was delivered by Rt. Rev. Mgr. B. J. Mulligan, of Camden. The absolution over the body was given by Vicar-General Fox, of Trenton. The musical numbers of the mass were sung by a full choir from Mt. St. Mary College in charge of the Sisters.

Masses of flowers were in evidence both at the college and at the church, the number being so large at the latter as to form a huge bank. They came from officials throughout New Jersey and New York, relatives and friends, and former pupils of the college, all giving silent evidences of the feeling held toward Mother Gabriel by those who knew her. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The honorary pall bearers selected were: John Scully, South Amboy; Dr. Thomas S. O'Brien, of New York; Uzal H. McCarter, of Newark; John T. Murray, of Jersey City; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, and David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield. The active bearers were: George F. Reynolds and Guy W. Weaver, of Perth Amboy; George J. Tobin, of Plainfield; John Smith, of New York City; William J. McCloud and Lawrence O'Donnell, of Elizabeth.

Among the prominent clergymen present at the service were Rt. Rev. Joseph Rice, D.D., Ll.D., Bishop of Burlington, Vt.; Monsignor Madden, of Worcester, Mass., and Rev. James Redican, of the Cathedral, Boston, Mass., who is a nephew of the deceased. High mass was celebrated in the college chapel yesterday for the repose of her soul by the chaplain, Rev. John F. Baldwin; also holy mass by Very Rev. P. McShane, O. S. A., of Atlantic City.

ARTIST RECITAL FOR BELGIAN RELIEF FUND

An artist recital for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Society will be given by Miss Cecile Ayres, pianist, at the Hartridge Auditorium, Friday evening, at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Ayres possesses unusual talent as a pianist and has had remarkable success. This will be her first appearance in Plainfield, and those in charge of the recital feel sure that she will be greeted by a capacity audience.

WENT TO POLICE STATION TO FLOAT SMALL LOAN

Garrett Berry, once a railroad detective, forgot he was not working last night, and ordered people around at the local depot. He first went to the police station and tried to borrow money off Sergeant O'Keefe, and his actions led to his arrest by the sergeant and Patrolman McGinley. It was found that Berry had formerly been employed as a railroad detective, and he was remanded by Judge DeMeza until his case can be investigated. The man is being held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

GAUB'S TEAM DEFEATED.

Gaub's barbershop team suffered its third successive check in the continuation of the borough pinochle tournament last evening losing two games out of three to the Domino club team. The Republican club won two games out of three from the Firemen and as a result is closely pressing the Gaub team for first place honors.

CLAIRE ALLEN CLARK.

Claire Allen Clark, the seventeen-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Clark, of West Eighth street, died last night. The funeral service will be held Thursday morning at the parents' home at 11 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will officiate. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

NO CHANGES IN PASTORATES HERE

Rev. Dr. Anderson, Rev. Dr. Randolph and Rev. C. S. Gillespie Are Returned.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS

59th Annual Session of Newark Conference Closed Today—List of Nearby Assignments — Request for Retention of Bishop Wilson.

Newark, April 4.—There will be no change in the pastorates of the Plainfield Methodist churches for the coming year. This became known today when the appointments were announced at the closing session of the Newark Conference. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson was returned to the First M. E church; Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph was returned to Monroe Avenue church, while Rev C. S. Gillespie was returned to Grace church, the borough. Rev. F. J. Hubach, of Plainfield, was reappointed district superintendent of the Elizabeth district.

Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey was returned to the Dunellen church, and Rev. R. E. Marshall will continue as pastor of the Scotch Plains church, that being a supply. Rev. S. J. Herben, formerly of the Orange church, was sent to Westfield, succeeding Rev. George S. Ream. Rev. Desmond Heyliger was sent to East Millstone, succeeding Rev. Jacob Boss, and Rev. A. F. Dezendorf goes to Kenilworth in place of Rev. Arthur Atkins. Rev. J. E. Washabaugh succeeds Rev. G. M. Compton at St. St. Paul's church, Cranford, while Rev. P C. Dennis remains at the First church, Cranford. Rev. D. C. Dorchester will continue as pastor of the Bound Brook church, and Rev. Chas. W. C. Noble succeeds Rev. J. A. Hills, at Mt. Horeb and Martinsville; Rev. L. B. McMickle succeeds Rev. S. E. Jones at the Fulton street church, Elizabeth. Rev M. D. Church will continue as pastor of the Somerville church

There was a great deal of expectancy preceding the reading of the appointments, for it was believed that there would be many changes. This was not the case, and it was the opinion that there were fewer changes than usual this year. The Plainfielders attending the conference all seemed pleased when it became known that there was to be no changes there.

Immediately following the reading of appointments all the delegates left for their various homes. Just before the conference closed a memorial was adopted requesting that Bishop Luther B. Wilson be retained as the presiding officer over the Newark Conference. This memorial will be sent to the quadrennial conference to be held at Saratoga in May.

BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION ORGANIZES

The Borough Board of Education organized as follows last evening: Dr. J. H. Cooley, president; F. O. Dunning, vice-president; Frank Rowley, clerk; F. O. Dunning, chairman building and grounds committee; Judd Stewart, chairman finance committee; R. C. Campbell, chairman books and supplies committee; M. E. McGrath, chairman visiting committee; Thomas E. Currin, Jr., chairman auditing committee; Charles M. Holstein, chairman truancy committee; Horace M. Fisher, chairman commencement committee; J. H. Cooley, chairman teachers and textbook committee.

The resignation of Miss Ethel Barnard, a teacher in the High School, was accepted to take effect the end of the present school term.

EXEMPT FIREMEN ELECT OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

The Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association held its annual meeting in Exempt Firemen's Hall, last night, and elected the following officers: President, Vincent W. Nash; vice-president, J. A. Moore; secretary, G. M. Hoagland; assistant secretary, Guillermo Thorn; treasurer, E. M. Laing; trustees, D. W. Littell, E. M. Laing, W. A. Woodruff, C. C. Graves and Frank Day; delegates to Exempt Association, George W. Clark, J. M. Albert, E. H. Bird, Charles Hand and J. F. Buckle; representatives to Relief Association, Guillermo Thorn, Vincent W. Nash; historian, J. A. Moore; delegate to State Firemen's Relief Association, Vincent W. Nash.

Reports for the past year were presented, showing that the association was in good financial standing and all of the yearly business was transacted. Members afterward enjoyed a smoker and a social discussion in a reminiscent vein.

WALTER TAVERNOR GETS A LIGHT FINE

Fanwood Recorder Finds Him Guilty of Violating Automobile Statute.

Charged with speeding away in his automobile after striking a wagon driven by Louis Sutterline, of Plainfield, on March 4, Walter H. Tavernor, of Westfield, was found guilty by Recorder Charles Sheelen, of Fanwood, last night, under the motor vehicles law, and sentenced to pay a fine of $10. Mr. Tavernor, through his attorney, Augustus Nash, of Westfield, appealed the case, and it will come before Judge Connolly at the May term of the Court of Common Pleas. A bond of $200 was required. A civil suit is now pending for $3,900.

The accident occurred on Martine avenue, Fanwood, shortly after dusk, as Sutterline was driving from the direction of Scotch Plains. Robert Newton Crane, of Plainfield, called two witnesses, aside from Mr. Sutterline, to prove that his client was in the center of the road with his wagon properly lighted at the time he was struck by the Westfield man from the rear. It was also charged that there were no lights on the auto and no warning was sounded. After hitting the wagon and demolishing it and throwing Suterline to the street, Tavernor, it was sworn, backed away from the wreckage and then shot ahead. Sutterline claimed that injuries have partially disabled him ever since.

Mr. Tavernor did not take the stand in his own defense.

SEND MORE TROOPS TO GEN. PERSHING

Reinforcements Rushed to Aid in Drive for Bandit Villa.

Washington, April 4.—Major General Scott, chief of staff of the army, announced that additional U. S. troops had been sent into Mexico to reinforce General Pershing's expedition in pursuit of Villa. He refused to make public any details of the additional troops being sent across the Rio Grande, even declining to say whether infantry or cavalry or both are being used.

Confer on Baker's Assistant.

Secretary of War Baker conferred with President Wilson for half an hour today over the appointment of an Assistant Secretary of War. After the conference it was announced that no selection had been made, and that no offer had gone forward to anyone.

SLUYTER HERE, IS READY FOR WORK

Popular Member of Biederwolf Party Pays a Visit to Plainfield.

Henry Sluyter, one of the most popular members of the Biederwolf evangelistic party, was in Plainfield for a few hours at noon today. Mr. Sluyter stopped here en route to Englewood, where he will spend the remainder of the week with his wife. All members of the Biederwolf party are resting this week preparatory to coming to Plainfield next Saturday for their five weeks' campaign which opens Sunday morning.

"The Norristown campaign closed with a bang," said Mr. Sluyter today. "It was a most successful and enthusiastic service throughout and the last week was the best of all despite several bad days. Dr. Biederwolf and everyone in the party is looking forward to a pleasant and busy time in Plainfield, and we are all ready for our work here."

In addition to singing baritone in the National Male Quartet, Mr. Sluyter has charge of the children's work in the Biederwolf campaigns. He traveled for several seasons with the Star Male Quartet and Chopin Concert Company in concert and chautauqua work and for a long time did Christian work in connection with "Mell" Trotter's rescue mission in Grand Rapids.

HEALTH BOARD MEETS.

The monthly meeting of the Borough Board of Health was held in the Council chamber last evening. The meeting was a short one. Cormick McDonough was elected a member of the auditing committee to take the place of James L. Love who was recently elected president to succeed J. V. E. Vanderhoef. There are three contagious cases in the borough, otherwise the general health of the municipality is good.

PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING.

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin-Stillman School will be held in the school auditorium at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon. Refreshments will be served.

EXPECT WAR TO LAST ONE YEAR

England Plans Expenses for Twelve More Months in Big Struggle.

FRENCH BEGIN OFFENSE

200 Killed in British Munition Plant Explosion — Cabinet Discusses Sinking of Sussex — Armored Trains Drive off Aeroplanes.

London, April 4.—That the British Government expects the war to last at least one year more was shown today when Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald McKenna introduced the budget. The budget provides for war expenses to carry on hostilities throughout the whole fiscal year. The actual expenditures are set forth in the budget at $7,795,000,000, which was $155,000,000 less than estimated by Mr. McKenna in his budget speech in the House of Commons last September. In September, the Chancellor had estimated the expenses at $7,950,000,000.

200 Die in Munition Fire.

London, April 4.—Fire that broke out late last night in one of the government powder factories in Kent, caused a number of explosions resulting in approximately 200 casualties, the Ministry of Munitions announced today.

Tank Steamer Damaged.

London, April 4.—The British tank steamer Narragansett, which sailed from New York on March 19 for London, was damaged in a collision off Goodwin lightship today. The Narragansett belonged to the Anglo-American Oil Company, and is of 9,196 tons displacement.

Holland Closes Frontier.

London, April 4.—Wireless reports from Zurich by way of Rome state that Holland has closed her German frontier and massed all her available forces there.

England Refuses U. S. Demand.

Washington, April 4.—Great Britain, in an official communication to Secretary Lansing, received today, refuses to release the thirty-eight Germans taken off the American steamship China of the China Mail Steamship Company by a British cruiser several weeks ago near Shanghai. This is the first time during the present war that such a request has not been granted by the Allied Powers.

Discuss German Situation.

Washington, April 4.—The submarine situation was the dominant topic of discussion at the cabinet meeting today. Secretary of State Lansing is still unable to report any definite conclusions with regard to the Sussex.

Trains Fight Off Aeroplanes.

Rome, April 4.—It was announced by the Italian War Office that armored trains recently put in service on the coast of the Adriatic to repel raids by aircraft had proven successful. Guns mounted on one of these trains yesterday shot down four aeroplanes out of seven, in which the Austrians bombarded Ancona, killing three persons. The gunners on the train, it was announced, also drove off the other three aeroplanes and two destroyers.

French Guns are Busy.

Paris, April 4.—In preparation for further counter-attacks on the northeast front of Verdun, French artillery literally drenched the region of Douaumont and Vaux with shells throughout the night, the official communique issued by the War Office today states that the German guns made only a feeble response to the terric fire. There was no infantry attack in this region. On the west bank of the Meuse both the French and Germans engaged in a stiff artillery duel.

German Seaplane Captured.

Paris, April 4.—A French destroyer has towed into Dunkirk a German seaplane with a broken wing and a crew of two airmen, found in the North Sea.

Danish Ship Wrecked.

Copenhagen, April 4.—A Danish ship, believed to be the Sleavig, has been wrecked off Cape Nazo, at the southern extremity of Norway. The Sleavig was a ship of 961 tons, hailing from this port.

GRAND JURY REUNION.

The second annual reunion dinner of the January, 1914, term will be held at the factory of the Wheatena Company, near Rahway, on Saturday evening, at 6:30 o'clock. Among the Plainfield members are B. J. Schreiner and A. D. Edgar.

ARMOR PLATE BILL HELD UP.

Washington, April 4.—The Houre Naval Committee today postponed until tomorrow a vote on the Tillman bill, establishing a government armor plate plant, on account of the inability of several members to be present today.

GRASS CATCHES FIRE.

Burning grass near the Central railroad and Grant avenue called out No. 3 Hose Company at 3:15 yesterday afternoon. Firemen beat out the blaze without using the apparatus.

MRS. RACHEL FULTON OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

Well Known Resident Guest of Honor at Family Reunion on Her Natal Day.

Mrs. Rachel E. Fulton, one of the three oldest residents of New Market, celebrated her 88th birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Peter Osborn, Sunday. The occasion was observed by a family reunion, at which the following were present: Mr. and Mrs. De Witt Fulton and son, Earl; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Osborn and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Osborn. During the afternoon neighbors dropped in to congratulate Mrs. Fulton, who is remarkably active for one of her years, and the time was passed with music and in a general social way.

Mrs. Fulton was born in Dutchess county, New York, in 1828. Her parents were Benjamin Clinton, a descendant of Governor De Witt Clinton, of New York State, and Mrs. (Mary Owens) Clinton.

About sixty years ago she married the late William A. Fulton, also a native of Dutchess county, who had left his father's farm at the age of twenty to go to Elizabeth to enter commercial life. And it was in Elizabeth while visiting relatives that Mrs. Fulton met her husband to be for the first time. The respective families of the couple had known of the existence of the other in Dutchess county but had never met.

During the residence of the couple in Elizabeth, Mr. Fulton was engaged in the business of manufacturing clothing and later he became the proprietor of a flourishing grocery located on Elizabeth avenue. In 1865 Mr. Fulton traded his grocery business for a farm near Millstone on the road between that place and Bound Brook.

In 1877 Mr. Fulton traded his farm near Milstone to George F. Giles, now of Dunellen, for Mr. Giles' ice establishment in New Market, and the house located at the foot of the hill below the present stand of Charles S. Day's general store. Mrs. Fulton despite her advanced years cannot break the ties which bind her to the old place and she still resides there along the most of the year.

Mr. Fulton engaged in the ice business for two or three years and then retired. He died in 1889, leaving besides his widow, a son and a daughter, De Witt Fulton and Mrs. Peter Osborn, both of whom are at present residing in New Market.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST IN ANNUAL SESSION

Officers Are Elected and Reports Are Presented for the Past Year.

At the annual meeting and election of the Seventh-day Baptist church, which convened at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Frank Burdick was elected trustee for a term of five years to succeed his father, A. H. Burdick, and Miss Ethel Rogers was elected chorister and organist, and William H. Ryno, janitor.

The reports of the various auxiliaries of the church, which were highly satisfactory documents, were read and filed. The election, the submitting of the reports and a vote to raise the pastor's salary a hundred dollars, constituted the business part of the program. This was concluded shortly after 6 o'clock, when a supper was served.

This supper was prepared and served by the men under the direction of a committee composed of Frank Burdick, Elston Randolph and Charles Witter. Sixty-seven persons were served. The menu included fried oysters, potato salad, peaches, cake and coffee.

Following the serving of the suppers, the men cleared the tables and washed the dishes, while the ladies looked on with keen enjoyment.

The remainder of the evening was then spent with music and in a general social way. The music included two selections by the church choir and a solo by Mrs. H. L. Polan.

Mrs. C. T. Voorhees is spending the week at the Felmley farm, Lebanon.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Hawkins have returned from a lengthy sojourn in Florida.

LEASES HER HOME.

The white stucco house of Mrs. Louise M. O'Brien on Fourth street has been rented through the agency of John Fedderman to Mr. Atkinson, of Orange, who will take possession on May 1.

BUNGALOW IS LEASED.

The artistic bungalow of Edward Maurer on Madison avenue, near Mountainview terrace, has been rented through the John Fedderman agency to Carl S. Schaab, of New York city.

Councilman Robert Craig has purchased an automobile.

PAST COUNCILORS' MEETING.

The Past Councilor Association of Somerset and Middlesex counties will meet in W. G. Holton Hall this evening.

The annual meeting of the Board of Education will be held in the Lincoln School this evening.

Twenty Smart Styles in Women's Spring Suits--a Notable Hahne Feature at $24.50

Suits that you would feel CERTAIN were much more, were you to see them minus their surprisingly low price tag.

They are suits that have been duplicated or adapted from much higher priced models.

In their STYLE, in their MATERIALS, in their MAKING, it is evident to everyone that these are suits far superior to what is usual at this moderate pricing.

There are twenty models in the group—splendidly tailored, some beautifully embroidered, others trimmed with taffeta. The half and full belted styles are in evidence, the new collars and cuffs are used, and all are lined throughout with peau de cygne or fancy linings. Skirts are full flare—some have the new yoke effect, others have plaits at the side. Materials are gabardine, men's wear serge, wool poplin and checks. Colors are Copenhagen Blue, Reseda, Green, Tan, Navy Blue, Black. Sizes 34 to 46.

NOTE—We also show four different models in large sizes up to 54 bust, all at Hahne's, at $24.50.

TO STOP PRE-SEASON GAMES

The seven straight defeats which the Philadelphia Nationals administered to the Cubs in Florida this year have influenced President Charles H. Weeghman, of the Chicago Club, to decide that the Cubs will hereafter play no pre-season games with teams of the National League. President Weeghman contends that the teams have everything to lose and nothing to gain in the early games, and that defeats tend to weaken the losing club at home. President Weeghman's statement followed the announcement that President B. B. Johnson, of the American League, would advocate a ban on such games between major league teams of the same league.

YALE LOSES GUARD.

Walter L. McGrath, who was counted upon as a surety for guard position on the Yale football team next fall, was dropped from the Sheffield Scientific School yesterday on account of deficiency in studies. McGrath played two years at Exeter, where he made a great record. This is the first blow that "Tad" Jones' embryo football team has received at the hands of the faculty.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin School will hold a meeting in the school auditorium tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A number of the children of the school will render several vocal selections, and Miss Noel Bullock, the school principal, will address the gathering with a story of the Southern trip, from which she recently returned. Refreshments will be served.

EACH GIVEN A FINE.

Charles Cassett, the negro who tried to annul Plainfield's "blacklist," and John O'Malley, the man who put him out of a saloon, were arraigned in police court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct. Casset was fined $20 or 40 days, and O'Malley $10 or 20 days. O'Malley paid his fine.

OFFICIAL BOARD MEETING.

A meeting of the official boards of all of the co-operating churches will be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow evening, following the union prayer meeting. It is expected that the members of the different boards will attend this prayer service.

LAFAYETTE LOSES OPENER.

MORTALITY REPORT GIVEN FOR FEBRUARY

There Were 3,838 Deatns Recorded in the State During the Month.

Trenton, April 4.—According to figures given out at the office of the State Department of Health there were 3,838 deaths tabulated as occurring in New Jersey during February, 1916, 3,793 being of residents and 45 of non-residents, which gives a resident death rate of 15.60 for the month. By age periods there were 622 deaths among children under one year, 258 deaths of children over one year and under five years, and 1,376 deaths of persons aged sixty years and over.

A decided decrease is shown in the total number of deaths, and also in deaths for each of the selected age periods. The death rate for the month also shows a decided decrease.

Particular attention is called to the deaths from typhoid fever, only three having taken place in the State, and this is probably the lowest number of deaths from this disease that has ever occurred in a single month in the history of New Jersey vital statistics.

Deaths from pneumonia, tuberculosis and diseases of the respirtatory system continue about normal for this period of the year.

The non-residents who died in the State for the month were from the following places: New York city, 12; New York State, 10; Philadelphia, 8; Pennsylvania, 7; Maryland, 2; Connecticut, 3; Wisconsin, 1; two foreigners on steamers.

The following table gives the number of deaths from certain selected causes for February, 1916, together with the average number for the previous twelve months:

	Feb., 1916.	Ave. for prev. 12 mos.
Typhoid fever	3	16
Measles	59	70
Scarlet fever	3	8
Whooping cough	29	24
Diphtheria	31	41

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

SAVED THE CITY $7,000

ures in dollars and cents upon the value of these concessions to the city, but it can be estimated approximately as follows:

Light furnished to city offices, etc., without charge, 1915	$2,070.00
Telephone service furnished without charge, 1915	1,098.00
Amount paid by street railway company for its share of pavement and street maintenance 1904-1915 inclusive, 12 years, aggregate $38,924.09—yearly average	3,242.00
Use of subways and other concessions, value estimated annually	589.00
Total annual value	$7,000.00

Seven thousand dollars per year is the interest at five per cent. on $140,000. Regarded from that point of view these "free service" contracts are worth today that sum to the city. As time goes on the lighting contract at least will increase in value because more light will be required as the number of city offices increases. Regarded from another point of view, namely, that as the tax rate for city purposes (eliminating county, State school, etc.), is less than ten dollars on the one thousand dollars of assessed valuation, it appears that it would absorb the entire city tax on $700,000 worth of property to raise the money which we now receive without charge.

Very respectfully,
CHARLES A. REED,
Corporation Counsel.

Councilman Hylan reported back the bids of C. M. Meeker and J. F. Burke for the repair and resurfacing of public streets. That of the J. F. Burke Company was the lowest.

A petition from the Netherwood Resident's Association calling attention to the absence of sidewalks in that section and asking that all streets be repaired was received and referred to the committee on streets.

Andy Putila, a resident of Netherwood, also sent in a petition for the improvement of sidewalks, which went to the same committee.

The report of Building Inspector Doane, which showed that 37 permits had been issued during the month of March was received and filed.

Upon resolution introduced by the finance committee $5,000 was transferred from the fire to the general fund.

A resolution permitting the New Jersey Sewerage Works Association, of which Chemist John Downs, of Plainfield, is president, to use the Council chamber April 18, was passed.

An ordinance based on the request of Frank P. Stone that the city accept and improve Stelle avenue from Grant to Hobart avenues was passed on its first and second readings, and a resolution setting May 1 as the date for a public hearing on this subject was passed. An ordinance to establish grades on Sumner avenue, Stelle avenue, Clinton avenue and Hobart avenue and fixing May 1 as the date for a public hearing was also passed on the first and second readings.

Bids for crosswalks and culvert material for the year were received and referred to the streets committee.

Upon motion of Chairman Hylan, of the street committee, an ordinance was passed on two readings naming A. H. Atterbury, A. E. Smith and J. F. MacDonald as commissioners to assess the benefits and damages of the widening of Central avenue. April 21 was fixed as the date for the first public hearing on this improvement.

An ordinance calling for further additions to the sewer system was passed on its third reading.

The application of George Yorke for a license as auctioneer was granted. Upon motion of Councilman Graves applications of the following people to do a junk business was granted: M. Michaelson, John Areno, John S. Haskard, auto and horse and wagon, Frank W. Finn, Samuel Robinowitz and S. Kline.

Mayor Calkins, as chairman of the City Hall building committee, submitted the following report which was received and filed:

Plainfield, April 3, 1916.

To the Honorable Common Council:

Pursuant to action taken at your last meeting, the City Hall building committee reports that the program for a competition for the selection of an architect, as approved by your honorable body at its last meeting, with a few minor changes as to details, has been issued and that the competition is now in progress. All local architects who had stated a desire to compete have been invited to do so, and have accepted. In addition eight New York firms have accepted invitation to take part in the competition. The responsibility for their selection has been placed with our architectural adviser, C. Aubrey Jackson, as well as the terms upon which they have been invited. The competition will be closed on April 20. The jury of award will consist of Mayor Calkins, Councilman Thomas F. Hylan and three non-competing architects to be selected by the adviser. The selection of the architect will not commit the city to the adoption of his winning design to the exclusion of such modification as the building committee may require. The city will also have the right to make use of such features of the second and third best designs as may seem of merit. The competition is based on an estimated total cost of $80,000 for the building; but this estimate (which has been fixed solely for the purpose of the competition, after consultation with all city departments as to their requirements, with reasonable allowance for growth, and on a fire-proof basis) is also subject to a final determination by the Common Council as to the amount to be expended for the project.

Further reports will be made to your honorable body from time to time.

City Hall Building Committee,
LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor and Chairman of Committee.

MERCHANTS WANT PERMANENT ROOM

Rest Depot for Shoppers Urged at Business Men's Ass'n Meeting Last Night.

As the result of an experiment attempted by the Plainfield Business Men's Association Prosperity Dollar Day committee on February 29 last, an agitation has sprung up among local merchants for the establishment of a permanent rest room in the central portion of the city, and this subject was discussed at length during the session of the association last night. John J. Varley, chairman of the committee which was responsible for opening a rest room on Dollar Day, is one of the most enthusiastic advocates of a permanent resting station, and he is backed up by the entire membership of the association. The maintenance of the room, it is claimed, would cost little if every merchant did his share and the benefits derived therefrom would be great.

It is a well-known fact that many out-of-town shoppers were attracted to Plainfield on Dollar Day primarily because they were provided with this accommodation, many of them welcoming the opportunity to leave their children at the rest room with the matron in charge until they had completed their shopping tour. Numerous shoppers called the attention of the storekeepers to the fact that they had not been able to take advantage of many previous sales simply because it was practically impossible to solve the child question. The average shopper does not want an infant tagging at her heels and does not care to carry a child in her arms while buying in stores.

Although no definite action was taken in the matter of establishing a permanent rest room, the association has the subject under advisement, and it is likely that something will be done along this line in the near future.

INSPECT GEORGIA'S RAILROAD.

Atlanta, Ga., April 4.—The members of the Western and Atlantic Railroad Lease Commission will meet here today. This commission was appointed to make some disposition of the railroad property, which is now owned by the state, by the expiration of the present lease to the Louisville and Nashville. Experts have been making a survey and appraisal of the railroad, and the commissioners will probably make a tour over the railroad this week to ascertain its exact condition.

JERSEY MURDER CASE.

Freehold, N. J., April 4.—The trial of Joseph Romano, charged with the murder of Pasquale Granato near Keyport, will begin today before Judge Ralitsch. The accused man was a flagman employed on a railroad crossing near Granato's farm. As Granato left his farm on the evening of June 24 last, Romano intercepted him and, without having had previous trouble, so far as is known, shot him.

EXHIBIT AT TENNESSEE.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 4.—The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce has sent an extensive exhibit to the exposition of the merchants and manufacturers of Tennessee, which opened here today. The exhibit includes charts, trade statistics and a vast number of samples of goods required in foreign markets.

CONGRESS OF MOTHERS OPENS.

Nashville, Tenn., April 4.—The National Congress of Mothers and the Parent-Teacher Association opened a big convention here today, with women delegates present from all sections of the country. It is the twentieth annual convention, and the attendance is unusually large. Mrs. Frederick Schoff, of Philadelphia, the national president, is presiding.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Pierson, of 1283 East Second street, on Sunday entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Kretzel and daughter, of Dunellen; Mrs. Oscar Pierson and daughter, Helen, of North Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nickerson and son, of this city.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS
Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink

RESUME OF LOCAL RECREATION ACTIVITIES

Sixth Annual Report of Board of Commissioners Show Much Accomplished.

The sixth annual report of the Board of Recreation Commissioners submitted to the Mayor and Common Council of the city, show the disbursements for the year ending December 31, 1915, to be $2,327.65, with a balance on hand of $70.79. The four school playgrounds were opened on July 5 and closed on August 27. During this period the total attendance at the grounds numbered 35,755 children. Exhibitions were held on the individual playgrounds during September, at which time the children participated in folk dancing, various playground games, and exhibited work accomplished during the season, such as basket work, molding in clay, and handiwork of various sorts. These exhibitions on the individual grounds were attended by a large number of citizens residing in the neighborhood of the school grounds, and many of the parents of the little children found pleasure in attending, who heretofore could not attend the combined exhibition such as was held in previous years at Parker Field.

The weather during the season was very rainy and lessened somewhat the attendance compared with year before. However, the efforts of the different supervisors were such as to give great satisfaction, and there is no doubt but that much important and gratifying work was accomplished in providing healthful exercise and play to the children during the summer months, centering their play attention to these organized supervised playgrounds, other than seeking their recreation in the streets.

There were no professional games at the field last year. Those participating in field sports numbered 4,151; those exercising on the playground apparatus numbered 2,702; those using the tennis courts, 1,913. For eight weeks before the regular season opened there was an average of thirty people playing tennis at the field each day. The High School basketball team used the field for practice and the regular games of the schedule. On the opening of the school fall term the High School football team used the field daily. There have been ninety baseball games at Parker Field this year. Track meetings and field games proved especially popular, a large number of boys and men gladly participating. The commissioners are very anxious that the work of the commission shall grow in value to the community.

LEADING GOLF PROS ON WAY HOME FROM SOUTH

As far as the golf professionals are concerned the Southern season is over, and most of the well-known players have returned to their Northern stamping grounds or are on their way there. Alec Smith, former national open champion, who has been in charge of the Belleair course in Florida for the winter, arrived in New York yesterday and continued his journey to Wykagyl. The three short holes on the Wykagyl course, the fifth, sixth and seventh, that impeded contestants on crowded days last season, are being reconstructed so that a long hole will alternate with a short one, and the former champion's expert advice will be sought in the new arrangement. MacDonald Smith, who recently won the West Coast open championship at Belleair, has also returned, and he will probably remain with Alec at Wykagyl this summer. Others who have returned or are now on their way north are Jack Hobens, of Englewood; George Low, of Baltusrol; Gil Nicholls, of Great Neck; Tommie Kerrigan, of Siwanoy; Walter Hagen, of Rochester, and Tom McNamara, Western open champion. MacNamara has had one of the poorest Southern trips of his career. The Western open champion usually makes a great showing on the Southern courses, but so far this season he seems to be off form.

DR. CHARLES A. RAACH.

Dr. Raach has been in Plainfield for more than a week making preparations for the big Biederwolf evangelistic campaign that starts next Sunday. To day he is visiting local shops with members of the Plainfield committee aranging for shop meetings during the campaign. Dr. Raach has charge of all shop work with the Biederwolf party.

James Hosking returned yesterday to his home at Newark, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pfeiffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. Wiley entertained over the week-end their youngest daughter, Miss Ruth Wiley, of Rockaway Valley.

Miss Iva Nunn is kept to her home with tonsilitis.

William Kless spent the week-end at Irvington with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kless, Sr.

Archibald P. Down moved Saturday to the tin and plumbing store of Mrs. Louise Stephens.

Hilman Ader, of Blairstown, is spending several days with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Ader.

Mrs. E. Christie Welsh has been ill with grip for a week.

Following a visit at the home of her sister, Miss Iva Nunn, Mrs. Edward Garrabrant has returned to her home at Mendham.

Mrs. F. C. Harder, of 832 Madison avenue, has returned from a week's stay at Frankford, Philadelphia.

INHERENT RIGHTS BASED ON SCRIPTURE

Dr. Henry T. Fowler Gives Instructive Talk on "Old Testament."

"Old Testament Religion and American Ideals" was the subject of the first of two lectures given at Grace Episcopal church last night by Dr. Henry Thatcher Fowler, professor of Bible literature of Brown University under the auspices, of the Bible Readers' League of the church. Dr. Fowler will give his second lecture this evening, completing the course arranged for the Lenten season.

Dr. Fowler in his talk last night emphasized the importance of the inherent rights of the people, declaring that they were founded on Old Testament Scripture from which our system of government was obtained. He referred to the Pilgrims which came to this country on the Mayflower, some of whom thought that being far from their home they would be under no law or order.

This thought was quickly dispelled, however, for a majority decided that there should be law and order and what is known as the famous compact was signed in 1620 and as a result an unorganized body of adventurers became a body politic and Plymouth Colony was established.

Dr. Fowler ably discussed the tendency to voluntary federation and the right of the majority to govern. He said that the inherent right doctrine was conceived long before Rosseau and Locke and subsequent development shows that the early settlers came out of an atmosphere of love of liberty. The speaker said that Cromwell had preached government by and for the people which eventually resulted in breaking down monarchial power for the first time in comparative modern days. The fact was that the first literature of the people was the Bible and the Old Testament, particularly the Pentateuch, which was read by the thinking people who soon afterward began to form the centre of influence in England.

Dr. Fowler in his lecture tonight will continue an exposition of his subject of last night.

SCHWAB READY TO AID GOVERNMENT

Tells Bethlehem Directors Federal Armor Plant Bill Would Mean Loss.

Newark, April 4.—At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation this afternoon, Charles M. Schwab said:

"It is my duty to call the attention of the shareholders of this company to the fact that the Senate has passed a bill appropriating $11,000,000 to construct a government armor plant with a capacity of 20,000 tons a year, which capacity is far in excess of the average annual requirements of the United States Government for many years. That bill is now pending before the House of representatives. Your company has invested some $7,000,000 in an armor plant. Should a government plant be built that investment will be rendered practically valueless. Of course this investment is only about five per cent. of the total investment in your various properties and the total armor business is less than three per cent. of your gross annual turnover. We are prepared to manufacture armor for an indefinite period at any price which the Federal Trade Commission shall after an examination of all the facts decide to be fair and reasonable. I desire to say in the most equivocal terms that no representative of the Bethlehem Steel Co. is seeking or has sought to influence legislation as to the size of naval or military expenditures. That is not our business. Our business is to serve the United States Government just in so far as the Government may elect to avail itself of our services."

W. M. Barnum, Pliny Fisk, E. G. Grace and H. S. Snyder, whose terms as directors expired, were re-elected for three years.

Westfield.

Atlas Lodge, F. and A. M., held a past master's night last night at Masonic Hall. Guests from all parts of the county are expected.

E. S. F. Randolph expects to start two new houses this week in the Terrace Park section. The prospects are that building will be very active here this spring.

Work will be commenced this week to complete the Shackamaxon golf links, to get them ready for play July 1. The club house is being remodeled and will be completed in about a month.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Corsa, who are numbered among Plainfield's well known residents, will observe the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on Putnam avenue tonight. A large number of invitations have been issued, and it is probable that one hundred relatives and friends will be in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Corsa were married at West Farms, New York, on April 4, 1866, and of the bridal party only one of the bridesmaids, Mrs. Andrew Coles, of Williamsbridge, is a survivor. She is expected to be among those present tonight.

DEMANDS FACTS ON SEWER WORK

Michael Gallagher Asks Questions of Dunellen Common Council.

CROWD AT MEETING

Objects to Contract Being Continued by Corbin Company, But All His Criticisms Are Met and He Leaves Satisfied.

Michael R. Gallagher was present at last evening's session of the Dunellen Common Council to make protests and ascertain certain facts about the sewer work. He said he was anxious to know many thing because of the fact that $45,000 additional is needed to complete the system. It was generally known about town that Mr. Gallagher was going to be present and seats in the Council chamber were at a premium after the meeting was called to order.

Mr. Gallagher did not have to ask for the floor. He was introduced by Mayor E. B. Lathom. His Honor incidentally congratulated Mr. Gallagher upon his large following and expressed the hope that he would come out to all the meetings and bring his friends with him so that he and they would be able to keep in close touch with what the Council is doing.

Mr. Gallagher started off by saying that he as a citizen and a taxpayer wished to enter a protest against the H. K. Corbin Company being allowed to do any more of the sewer work where a unit price was not given. He said that he didn't think the Council had the right to let them do such work in the first place as he said that if his recollection served him right there was an ordinance which restricted the municipal body from doing so without advertising for bids. He spoke of the cost of $5,500 accruing to the borough for placing 150 feet of sewer pipes under the Grove street railroad crossing and termed this pure robbery and nothing else upon the part of the Corbin firm. In this connection he said that certain of the men engaged in the task of laying the pipes under the crossing for the Corbin firm had stated in Taylor's hotel at different times while there for refreshment that they had been told to take their time in doing the work by their employers who said they were being well paid for it. H. K. Corbin, who was present, jumped to his feet and took strenuous exception to this statement. He said that the work was half completed before it was known that it was going to be paid for as an extra by the borough. He asked the Mayor if this was not so and His Honor nodded his head in assent. In explaining the slow progress made with the work, Mr. Corbin said that the task was a most difficult one.

In continuing his attack against the Corbin firm, Mr. Gallagher said that it had come to the borough poorly equipped to do the work. In this connection he mentioned the pumps which were unable to keep the water out of the trenches and had resulted in laborers idly standing around. This he said had resulted in additional expense to the borough.

Mr. Gallagher said that he saw by the sewer report that the town was paying the Corbin firm $35 a thousand feet for lumber for sheathing purposes which the firm was having delivered here at a cost to them of $26 per thousand feet. He said that he had been told that H. S. Garretson, of the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company, had offered the Council to furnish this lumber at a cost of $30, and that it had not been accepted. The Mayor said he had no recollection of any such offer being made. Mr. Gallagher said that Henry S. Garretson had told him himself that he had made such an offer. Mr. Gallagher here turned around and asked if Mr. Garretson was in the room. There was no response.

At this point it was explained to Mr. Gallagher that the Corbin firm was furnishing the lumber because it had submitted the unit figure of $35 per thousand feet in its bid for constructing the entire system which had been accepted. This unit price it was explained furthermore was as low a figure as had been submitted by any of the numerous bidders, some of whom had set this figure as high as $40.

Mr. Gallagher wanted to know how much it was costing the borough for placing the sheathing in the trench and leaving it there, which is extra work. He was told that it was being done at cost plus 15 per cent., which is amounting to about $5 per running foot. Mr. Gallagher said that this extra work business was all wrong. He said that if he gave a man a contract to erect a house at a certain figure that he would fix it so the contractor couldn't come to him and ask for more money if he found he was being stuck for not allowing for certain contingencies.

He wanted to know why the approximate amount of sheathing required to be left in the ground couldn't have been estimated by the engineers and placed in the contract. Mayor Latham said that that was impossible. Mr. Gallagher wanted to know why the engineers couldn't have taken bearings the same as the contractors did who submitted bids for the work. He said that the engineers were getting 6½ per cent. of the total cost of the work and that they had given poor service.

In the sewer report published in the Weekly Call there was a certain sum marked "for unobtainable right of way." This so termed unobtainable right of way was through Mr. Gallagher's property and Mr. Gallagher took strenuous exception to this statement saying that this right of way could have been obtained. He was told that he had asked too much money for it and that when offered a smaller sum that he had told Counsilman Ryan that condemnation proceedings would have to be resorted to before he would grant the desired right of way.

At this juncture Mr. Gallagher commenced asking questions. He wanted to know if it were not true that a stretch of pipe on Grove street had not been torn up and relaid. He was answered in the affirmative. When asked who was going to pay for this work, the Mayor stated that it hadn't been decided upon as yet.

When asked why certain stretches of pipe on Orange street and Washington avenue had been relaid, the Mayor asked Borough Engineer Churchill to explain to Mr. Gallagher. Mr. Churchill stated that this had been done through the necessity of changing the grade in this vicinity so as to take care of the new Columbia park development.

The Mayor, after Mr. Gallagher had taken his heat, asked Engineer McClintock to explain the heavy cost of extending the sewerage system under the Grove street crossing. He was able to explain this to the satisfaction of all. He told of the miry condition of the soil and mentioned that it had been necessary to build two large manholes and to lay ten inch cast iron pipe.

J. Alfred Wilson was the only other citizen to take the floor. He asked whether the borough had any guarantee that the sewers would work when completed. He was told that 15 per cent. of the cost of the work was being retained and that this 15 per cent. would be retained for a period of one year after the completion of the system.

The entire discussion ended very amiably. Mr. Gallagher, who had been met at every turn said, "Well, gentlemen, if you don't ask questions you don't find out what you want to know." Postmaster Willard Apgar here said, "There is one thing I like about Gallagher, and that is that like Woodrow Wilson he is not ashamed to admit his being wrong."

Other business transacted was as follows:

A petition received from Herbert E. Nelson to erect a garage back of the hardware store of Smalley Brothers was referred to the fire and water committee.

Isaac V. Smalley resigned as street commissioner and Paul Reusch was appointed in his place.

The Mayor appointed Isaac V. Smalley as special day marshal and this appointment was unanimously confirmed.

A petition was received signed by the National Land and Building Company and others praying that sidewalks and crosswalks be laid on the easterly side of Sandford avenue, between Dunellen avenue and Second street. This petition was referred to the sidewalk committee.

An application for the position of sewer inspector was received from Arthur S. Gaston. This was accepted and placed on file.

A letter was received from the National Land and Building Company asking that Sandford avenue, which is the main entrance to their tract, be put in such shape that traffic can move through there. The company stated that if this was not done a suit would be instituted against the borough for damages resulting from their not being able to sell their property. Mayor Latham assured Mr. Schwartz, the president of the company, who was present, that the matter would be attended to at the earliest possible date. He stated, however, that this couldn't be until the sewer work, which has been halted temporarily on Sandford avenue, has been completed.

CHURCH HOLDS ITS ANNUAL GATHERING

The Baptist Congregation of Scotch Plains Conducts 169th Yearly Session.

The congregation of the Scotch Plains Baptist church held the 169th annual parish meeting in the Parish House last night. A large attendance was present and to many it seemed like harking back to the early part of the eighteenth century, as the proceedings were gone over as they have been since the church was started. In the early part of the evening, beginning at 6:30, the Ladies' Circle served an appetizing oyster supper. It was enjoyed by such a large number of diners that Dr. F. W. Westcott and Edward Hand were kept constantly busy opening fifteen hundred delicious Morris River bivalves. The tables were made very attractive with clusters of pussy willows, carnations and sweet peas.

Operating as the parish does under an old special charter, the procedure is very simple. A. D. Beeken, chairman, and W. I. Ward, secretary of the last annual meeting, were re-elected unanimously. The terms of Thomas Norton, W. I. Ward and Willard Marston as trustees having expired, they were unanimously re-elected to succeed themselves. John Z. Hatfield, the treasurer, presented in printed form a most encouraging report—in fact, one of the best in the history of the church, showing receipts for the year of $3,168.00, and disbursements of $3,133.71.

The cemetery committee, through its chairman, A. D. Beeken, presented a resolution legalizing the permanent cemetery fund.

Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the church, presided during the church meeting which followed, the clerk, W. D. Johnston, keeping the records. Reports were submitted from the various officers and societies, each treasurer showing a comfortable balance. It was brought out that every department was doing its best work in the church's history. It was also announced that all missionary apportionments have been met and fifteen per cent. added to the foreign missionary budget. Over $3,500 was raised by all departments and new lines of endeavor projected. Mr. Hare, in his report, set forth a high aim and the church heartily endorsed it by voting unanimously to adopt the five-year program of the Northern Baptist convention as their goal. The church will conduct an "every member" campaign on Lord's Day afternoon, April 30, from 2 to 4 o'clock, the purpose being to endeavor and secure every member a regular contributor to both current and benevolent funds and an increase from those now contributing. Many indicated their willingness to do this. It is confidently expected that sufficient revenue will be secured so that the income from invested funds may be used to make necessary repairs to and decoration of the church building. About $2,000 will be needed for this work.

The spiritual work of the church was set on a high plane and prospects for a year or more of united work, encouraging prospects and happiness concluded the meeting.

COMMUNITY CENTER REPORTS PROGRESS

All Departments of West End Organization in Flourishing Condition.

Reports submitted at the meeting of the West End Community last night were indicative of the progress made by the organization in the short time it has been organized, records showing that the treasury was in a flourishing condition and all of the activities have large and enthusiastic followings. The attendances at the various classes has been unusually encouraging, and many novel innovations have been tentatively decided upon for future entertainment.

Last night's meeting was the monthly session and many interested workers were present. The routine consisted of the presentation of a monthly resume and the announcement that the roller skating class would be conducted in the future on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, instead of on Thursday night alone. Six new pairs of roller skates have been purchased, and these are being rented out to members of the class.

Miss Snyder's dancing class will be continued on Monday nights; Miss Ryno's class on Thursday nights; the Dunbar Club, Friday nights, and the municipal center, Saturday nights.

DEPARTMENT CALLED TO EXTINGUISH CELLAR BLAZE

An alarm sent in from Box 56 at 4:03 o'clock this morning called the fire department to the home of Joseph DeMaico, 335 Watson avenue, where a blaze was found in the cellar. A hole in the chimney had been stuffed with rags and had caught fire. The blaze spread to the first floor, being discovered by Mrs. DeMaico, who at the time was caring for a sick child. The fire was quickly extinguished and the damage to the house will be between $50 and $100.

JOHN WALKER DIES AFTER A YEAR'S ILLNESS

Following an illness of a year's duration, John Walker, a resident of this city since 1900, died last night at his home, 701 West Front street. He was seventy-nine years old and came here from Montreal, Canada. He was connected with the Indemnity Bond Company, of New York, for a long time, but was compelled to retire about four years ago because of failing health. Beside his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Miss Margaret Walker, of this city, and two sons, Fred and Herbert Walker, of Canada.

The funeral will be private and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, where Mr. Walker attended service. Burial will be in Montreal Thursday.

Ship Money.

Charles I. was badly in need of money, and his attorney general in the course of his antiquarian researches discovered that in the dim ages of the past the crown had issued writs to the cities and towns on the coast requiring them to provide vessels for the royal needs, and he suggested that this ancient right might be brought into use again. Instead of the actual vessels a money contribution might be exacted instead. Thus the king would be able to tax a larger part of the realm while theoretically observing the laws. Writs for ship money were accordingly issued, but the patriot John Hampden declared that they were illegal and raised such a protest against them that they were practically nullified.

How Plants Remain Upright.

If a flowerpot is laid on its side the stalk of the plant growing in it gradually curves upward until it resumes the vertical position. This is called geotropic curvature, and the question is by what means the plant is stimulated to change its direction of growth. One theory avers that movable starch grains in the plant cells fall to the lower side as the position is changed and by their pressure influence the mechanism of growth.

DUTCH LOOK FOR BIG ALLIED DRIVE

Mass Troops on Frontier to Guard Neutrality.

London, April 4.—Many conflicting reports have been received here regarding the uneasiness which undoubtedly exists in Holland. One cause, according to a dispatch from The Hague, is the rumor that the "great offensive planned by the allies at the Paris conference" will involve the neutrality of Holland.

It is officially stated here that nothing has been done by the allies which is responsible for the disturbed conditions in Holland. There is not the slightest intention on the part of the allies of landing in Holland, nor was Holland discussed at the Paris conference, except perhaps in regard to the blockade.

It is considered that Germany is circulating reports in Holland for the purpose of making mischief for the allies.

The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent states that the reason for Dutch military and naval activity is the fact that the Germans have concentrated large masses of troops east of the southern Dutch frontiers.

Within the last fortnight all available German troops in Belgium have been dispatched to the fighting line, but in the last few days a new levy, chiefly of young men, has arrived in Belgium. Many new troops have arrived at Ghent, and several regiments have been sent to Bruges, Oudenards and the coast area. Gun ammunition has also been dispatched toward the sea.

Holland's precautionary measures include a considerable extension of the defenses on the Scheldt, and although the greatest perplexity exists as to the reason, it is thought that the allies' offensive will result in a great many Germans entering Holland, necessitating a strong Dutch frontier army.

SHAKE-UP IN AIR CORPS.

Secretary Baker Names Expert Board to Reorganize Service.

Washington, April 4.—A general shake-up is about to take place in the army aviation service. Lieutenant Colonel George O. Squier, military attache in London, has been summoned to the United States, and it is understood that he will be placed in charge of the aviation corps, succeeding Colonel Samuel W. Reber. Colonel Reber's name figured prominently in correspondence brought out in connection with the courtmartial at the San Diego army aviation school of Lieutenant Colonel Leeds E. Goodier.

This correspondence, which disclosed evidences of inefficiency, has brought the entire corps under investigation.

It developed that Secretary of War Baker had appointed a special board of army experts to reorganize completely the service and devise plans for upbuilding the corps on the basis of what has been learned regarding the effectiveness of aeroplanes in Europe.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS RIOT.

Fifty Arrested After Seven Hour Fight With Winnipeg Police.

Winnipeg, Man., April 4.—Four soldiers and one civilian are in a serious condition and a number of persons are nursing bruises as a result of clashes between soldiers and city police, resulting from the arrest of a soldier.

News of the riot, which continued for nearly seven hours, was suppressed by the military authorities. More than fifty soldiers were arrested.

Yacht Encircles the Globe.

Lyttleton, N. Z., April 4.—The American scientific yacht Carnegie arrived here after circumnavigating the globe in a southern latitude. It covered 17,000 miles in 120 days, completing its voyage in one season and thus establishing a record.

SAVING OLD PAPER AND RAGS.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield was quoted in an interview yesterday as being much pleased with the co-operation which the people of the country have given to his suggestion that everyone save rags and scrap paper, to offset the threatened shortage in raw materials for the manufacture of paper. The general public cannot realize the conditions in the paper trade today, or they would be more zealous than ever to save each scrap. News print, which which been selling at from $2.10 to $2.20 a hundred pounds, at which figures most publishers outside of the big cities have made contracts for this year, is now bringing as high as $3.50 in the open market, thus greatly increasing the cost of newspaper production.

Save your papers! At the end of a week or a month drop the Salvation Army a postal or 'phone to them, and they will call for the bundle. After the paper has been baled, along with that gathered from scores of other Plainfield homes, it will be sold to a papermaker, and remade into clean sheets, not white, but the dirty color now used for newspapers. The bleach which whitened the paper came from Germany, and cannot be found in this country.

This country needs raw materials for the manufacture of 15,000 tons of news print paper every day. Your bundle may not amount to much at the end of a month, but all those on the block will take a team to haul away.

Try saving the paper and rags. Give the job to a youngster if you have not the time to bother with it yourself. Tell him or her to save all the newspapers, wrapping paper or any other kind of paper that comes into the house, and if they can sell them to a junk man, instead of giving them to the Salvation Army, let them have the money to put in a savings bank. That will not only teach them to help the economic demands of the country, but it will teach them to save money. At the end of a year the country will be better off, the paper manufacturing industry will be better off, the children will be better off. It will teach them conservation, it will teach them to save; it will show them how money can be massed, in a year, from almost nothing.

The Press saves all the old newspapers that come to the office, because there are so many of them; when they are put in bales and sold, they bring in a very tidy sum.

Why cannot the same thing be done on a smaller scale in every home in Union county? If would mean tons upon tons of valuable raw material for the country, and thousands of dollars of money for the thousands of economic workers who helped to gather the tons.

INVESTIGATING THE 'PHONE CO.

There is to be an investigation of the telephone company. It has been a long while coming, but the Public Utility Commissioners have announced that they will look into the operation of the company in all sections of the State, and this was the excuse given by the House of Assembly Judiciary Committee for killing a resolution calling for an investigation by that body. In order to properly do the work, the Utility Commission has been given an extra $10,000 this year, which should result in a thorough, scientific probe.

The telephone interests are said to be prepared for the inquiry. According to the Camden Post-Telegram, they have had their experts at work for some time marshalling facts and figures that they hope and expect will not only show justification for present rates in this State, but will convince the Public Utility Commission that increases in some branches of the service are warranted. If such should be the result of the inquiry, the public will be disappointed.

The telephone interests seem willing to rest their case with the Commission rather than with the Legislature. Of course there was no need of a dual investigation. But if the Public Utility Commission's inquiry should prove unsatisfactory to the people, they may call on their representatives in the Legislature next year to take a hand in the game.

"You may rightly trust the reputation of our city to the present executive," said Father Bogan, in a sermon at St. Mary's church on Sunday, when commending the city's executive for stopping a moving picture which was advertised to be exhibited in this city one day last week. Father Bogan's opinion of Mayor Calkins is shared by most of the residents of the city. The Mayor was right in having the picture in question stopped, but it seems to us that in justice to the management of the theatre the matter should be a little more carefully handled than has been the case with three pictures, the presentation of which the authorities in this city stopped after they were widely advertised. Without meaning to defend the pictures in question, it must be said that they were all passed by the National Board of Censors, a volunteer organization of well known men in New York city. But it was not fair to the theatre owners to wait until the last minute to stop the exhibitions. Certainly if there was objection to them the authorities had plenty of opportunity, had they watched the advance notices, to make it possible for the theatre management to give ample notice to their patrons, so that people would not be attracted to the house by wrong advertisements which were printed in good faith. Had the pictures been stopped at other places, or had they brought forth criticism when first shown in New York, it would have been easy to notify the theatre owners as soon as the films were first advertised. The theatre people are fully justified in assuming that pictures could be exhibited here that have been shown in other cities, and they should be given ample notice by the authorities when objection is to be made to any of them.

The big barn-like structure which will attract thousands of people every day beginning next Sunday is rapidly nearing completion, and will be all ready for dedication to the uses of the Beiderwolf evangelistic party on Friday night. Hundreds of Plainfielders went to the lot at Giraud avenue and Front street on Sunday to look the tabernacle over, and were disappointed because it was not open. Their curiosity, over a week in advance of the services, demonstrates the great interest which is being taken in the meetings. Nothing can now intervene to interfere with a most successful and helpful religions awakening in this city.

"By the way, who was the Senator from Essex at the last session of the Legislature?" asks the Newark Sunday Call, taking a sarcastic fling at Austen Colgate. The question with much propriety might well be asked from most of the other counties of the State. No one needs to ask who were the Assemblymen from Essex. Everybody knows that "Dalrymple," the boss, would be the answer.

The Home Girl

The golden age for women, they inform us, is at hand,
Though just exactly what it is, is hard to understand.
We're given ample warning that the time is coming when They're going to dominate the fields now occupied by men.
They're getting into politics, and glory in the strife.
They're cutting quite a figure in the realms of business life.
Now this may be the stylish thing, but it must be confessed
That after all is said and done we like the home girl best.

Her biscuits may not not be the best e'er made right on the start;
Her pie crusts may together stick and may refuse to part;
Her corned beef hash may taste just like a fluff rug in distress;
Her soup may be enough to make a criminal confess;
But still it makes a feller glad wherever he may roam,
To think that this old-fashioned girl waits his arrival home.
Of course, you know, there's not a doubt that we like all the rest,
But, getting squarely down to facts, we like the home girl best.

The Hickeyville Clarion

Am Hilliker says if there is anything on earth he would rather do than something else, it is to pose for a dentist for a set of teeth or a few lead fillings. He got into Doc Binks' chair havin' clean plum forgot about that balky hoss he let Doc have on trade four year ago, and what Doc did to him was aplenty. He sent out and got a set of burglar tools to yank Am's teeth with and said he was sorry but he was all out'n chloroform and ether and laffin' gas. Every time he thought of the balky horse he hit Am an extra clip or so with the maul. Then he let Am go without any teeth at all for about six weeks and Am had to live on soup and mush'n milk until he got so weak he couldn't crawl up Doc's stairs any more to ask for the teeth. Finally Doc got a set from a mail order house and they didn't fit Am's face, but Am is wearin' 'em, although his mouth is around under his left ear and he can't shut it no how. His wife makes him put 'em in the chiney closet with the rest of the chiney every night.

How to Build a Bungalow.

There is probably nobody in this world who hasn't at some period in his career desired to own a bungalow. A bungalow is a long, low, raking looking house with a porch in front and an ash can behind. You get into it by going on your hands and knees and you crawl out backward, for there generally isn't room inside to turn around without upsetting two or three dollars' worth of furniture. The roof is so close to the floor that when you get into a bungalow you feel like a porcine portion of a ham sandwich.

One way to build a bungalow is to follow the advice of the magazines. According to them you can build a bungalow for any price from $4.50 up to $3,000,000 and you can go a little higher than the last-named figure if you want to have plumbing in it.

The magazine recipe for a $4.50 bungalow is about as follows:

Lumber	$1.01
Brick	.39
Paint	.10
Carpenter work	.71
Plastering	.96
Tin work	.65
Heating	.39
Extras	.29
Total	$4.50

Of course, it can be done a little cheaper by leaving out the roof and the sidewalls, but it seems as though anybody ought to be able to afford a bungalow at the figure named. We have a friend who is building one of the $4.50 variety after a magazine recipe. Up to date it has cost him only $8,796.53 and it is nearly half done.

A failure is usually a man who insists on regarding life as one long Saturday afternoon.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The management of Proctor's Theatre provides a big double program of unparalleled photoplays today consisting of Lillian Gish, famous as the dainty heroine of "The Birth of a Nation," and a score of other successes, who appears in a D. W. Griffith historical drama entitled "Daphne and the Pirate." This feature is based on historical fact, and deals with the adventures of the early settlers of what is now Louisiana; their thrilling combats with pirates upon the high seas and their ceaseless toil in trying to combat nature's obstructions. A more appealing and intensifying story of adventure has never before been told upon the screen, and with so able an actress in the leading role, a surprise indeed is in store for the patrons of Proctor's today. Not content with such a wonderful feature the management has also booked Helen Ware, one of the most distinguished and versatile of stage and screen stars, in a spectacular production adapted from Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, "That Lass O' Lowrie's" and called "Secret Love." This is an artistic production in every sense of the word and the director has used rare judgment in the selection of locations and in the finer bits of tinting and shading employed. "Secret Love" will captivate every patron and will not be forgotten for a long while. In addition today Charles Murray appears in a laugh-provoking Keystone, "The Judge," and the fifth episode of "Mary Page" is also on the program. Tomorrow a William Fox production is the main attraction entitled, "The Marble Heart" and featuring Violet Horner, a new Fox star, but an emotional actress of established reputation. "The Marble Heart" is a photoplay of love and intrigue with a powerful moral and was staged under the direction of no other than Herbert Brenon, the distinguished producer of "Neptune's Daughter." The sixth episode of "The Iron Claw" will also appear tomorrow. Thursday will see William S. Hart, the Triangle character delineator of powerful western roles, in his greatest picture, "Hell's Hinges," a story that will grip one from the beginning to the end. On Friday Mary Pickford will be seen in "The Girl of Yesterday," while Saturday Olga Petrova will star in "What Will People Say."

POLITICAL NOTES.

The appointment of Tom Taggart to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Shively, of Indiana, comes on the thirtieth anniversary of Taggart's entry into politics.

The preferential primary is having a lot of hard luck. And not the least of its troubles as the butt of the political jokers is the desertion of the Colonel, who hailed it only a few years ago as the cure-all for political despotism.

Judge George Gray, the veteran Delaware jurist, now in his seventy-sixth year, is asked to run again for his old seat in the Senate, as successor of Sen. Henry A. Du Pont, whose term expires a year hence.

The Progressive Party leaders are making preparations for the national convention which will be held simultaneously with the Republican Convention in Chicago on June 7.

Addison G. Proctor, of St. Joseph, Mo., is a candidate for delegate to the Chicago Convention. He is the only surviving delegate to the convention that nominated Abraham Lincoln.

Hobson is again in the ring in Alabama, in a fight to come back to Congress. His opponent is a son of Senator John H. Bankhead.

PRICES OF THE BIBLE IN OLDEN TIMES WAS PROHIBITIVE

In 1539 the Bible was printed by two printers, Grafton and Whitchurch, and they fixed a price of twelve shillings for bound copies and ten shillings for unbound. In the Twentieth Century this would be equivalent to forty-five and thirty-seven dollars, respectively. But in 1541 the price had fallen to twenty-three dollars, according to an old record. The ancient manuscripts are now worth more than their weight in gold. One recently announced in a book seller's catalogue was priced at $5,000. There are not over 150 of them in existence, and they rank among the most precious of literary treasures. Likewise the copies of the earliest printed editions are extremely rare and valuable. Intrinsically, the big print Red Letter Edition now offered by the Daily Press to its readers for $1.23 is worth more than them all. We advise you to look for the coupon elsewhere in today's issue, and read its terms.—Adv.

NEW BRUNSWICK FACTORIES GREATLY INCREASE OUTPUT

New Brunswick, April 4.—Products of the manufactories of this city increased forty-eight and one-tenth per cent. from 1909 to 1914, according to a compilation just issued by the bureau of census of the Federal Department of Commerce. The investment represented by the city's factories advanced forty-five and two-tenths per cent. in the same period.

The products of this city were valued at $14,814,000 in 1914. The capital invested was then $16,251,000. Expenditures for materials for fabricating advanced from $4,549,000 in 1909 to $6,567,000 in 1914. Salaries and wages totaled $4,084,000 in 1914, as compared to $2,800,000 in 1909.

The number of establishments increased from 93 to 113 in the period reviewed, while the number of persons engaged in manufactures advanced from 5,948 to 7,285.

REFORMED CHURCH MOVES TO ESTABLISH COLLEGE IN IOWA

A movement has been launched by the Reformed church in America to establish a college at Pella, Ia. Leaders in the enterprise say their church needs such an institution located west of the Mississippi. This has long been preached, but the project has just come to a head through the offer of the Baptists of a small college situated in the Iowa community. An endowment of $200,000 is to be raised to support the project.

Rutgers College, at New Brunswick, the seat of learning of the Reformed church in the East, announces the celebration of the 150th anniversary of its founding. This celebration is to take place in October, and the entire Dutch church is to have part in it. The college was established by charter issued by King George III. in 1766, and it remained Queen's College, its original name, until 1825.

The Middle West college of the Reformed church is Hope College at Holland, Mich., in the midst of the extensive Dutch settlement there. The claim is now made by the Reformed church, which is pushing the Iowa project, that Hope College contributed enormously to the strength of the church west of the Allegheny Mountains, and that similar results will follow the founding of another college west of the Mississippi. Property to the value of about $100,000 is involved by the transfer from Baptists to the Reformed church.

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

Princess Jue Quoun Tai, "The Pearl of Pekin," made another emphatic hit at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night, and the dainty little daughter of the Chinese Empire is now recorded as one of the most talented artists ever appearing at the local playhouse. With new songs and dances other than those when she was seen here for one day last week, special scenery and costumes, and her own supporting company, she gives an act exactly as it was shown at the Palace Theatre, New York, several weeks ago. From indications she will be the big factor in drawing capacity houses, during the remainder of her stay, which concludes tomorrow night.

The well-balanced bill, which is given in conjunction with the offering of Princess Jue Quoun Tai, contains five other delectable numbers, all of which received "big hands" yesterday. They comprise Hazel Crosby and Florence Campbell, who present a charming "sister" act with beautiful costumes; Stanley and Burns, "high-stepping" dancers in new and novel movements; Keith and Arthur, presenting their own conception, "A Little Different from the Rest"; Brown and Hopper, classy comedians, and The American Athlete, in a series of artistic poses as a marble statue. The photoplay portion of the program today includes the Pathe semi-weekly, while tomorrow, the seventh episode of "The Strange Case of Mary Page" will be offered instead of on Friday.

Thursday of this week will mark the coming of Sylvester Schaeffer, the greatest and most unique performer in vaudeville. He will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre with his own company in exactly the same act for which he received $5,000 a week at the Palace Theatre, New York, a few months ago. Mr. Schaeffer presents his own talents as a singer, dancer and musician, and is supported by Ota Gydl, court violinist to the King of Spain; Mlle. Maryon Vadie, America's wonderful dancer, and Joseph Hess and partner, famous ballroom dancers.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Tinder Box Made Money For a Soldier.

Told the King and Queen of Her Dream.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"WHEN a soldier had spent all the money an old witch gave him for finding her lost tinder box," daddy told the bedtime story, "and when he kept her box till he had spent the money and needed more he struck fire, and in popped a dog with eyes as big as saucers. 'Get me some money!' the soldier shouted to the dog. 'Really, this is a nice tinder box if I can get what I want so easily! Get me some money!' And off the dog trotted. In the twinkling of an eye he was back with a big bag full of pennies in his mouth.

"The soldier knew, now, that the tinder box was a treasure. If he struck fire once a dog which sat on a box of copper came. If he struck twice a dog came from a silver box, and, if he struck three times, from a box of gold.

"So he was no longer afraid of being poor. He moved back into the grandest rooms in the hotel, got out his fine clothes and found all his friends who had liked him so much when he was rich. But he still remembered about the king's daughter, who lived in a great copper castle. 'It's strange no man can get a glimpse of her,' thought the soldier. 'Everybody says she's so beautiful. But what good does beauty do her, shut up in a great copper tower?'

"Then he struck fire, and whisk! came the dog with eyes as big as saucers. 'I am sorry it is the middle of night,' the soldier told the dog. 'But I am very eager to see the princess, if only for a second.'

"The dog trotted out of the door, and in an instant, before the soldier even had time to think about it, he was back again with the princess. There she was, fast asleep on the dog's back, so lovely that any one could see that she was a real princess. The soldier could not help it—he kissed her, for he was a real soldier. Then the dog ran back to the castle with the princess, and the next morning, when she was having breakfast with the king and the queen, she said that she had had such a wonderful dream about a big dog and a soldier. She said she had ridden on the dog's back and the soldier had kissed her.

"This made the king very cross, and the next night a lady in waiting had to sit by the princess' bedside all night to see if it was really a dream. That night the soldier wanted to see the princess so much that the dog went to fetch her. He took her on his back and ran off as fast as he could, but the old lady in waiting put on her rubbers and ran after them. When she saw them disappear in a large house she made a chalk mark on the gate. Then she went back to the castle, and soon the dog came in with the princess on his back," daddy ended the story.

Household Hints

THE TABLE

Oysters in Baking Dish—Beat in egg with two tablespoons cold water, roll oysters in this and then in crumbs and place close together in baking dish. Season with salt and pepper, dot with butter and cut over all a few nice white leaves of celery tops. Put in oven until brown. Do not put lid on baking dish.

Porcupine Apples—Cook six apples in a syrup until tender, but not broken. Place on a dish and to one cup of syrup add one tablespoon of granulated gelatine. Pour over apples and when ready to serve and jelly is set decorate with whipped cream and bits of red jelly—use this as a sweet entree.

Sausage Crullers—Use your own favorite cruller recipe and make a little softer than usual. Turn dough out on to a floured board into a roll, cut off finger lengths and drop into hot fat. They come out looking like sausages.

Belmont Salad—In a bed of lettuce arrange sections of canned pear. Between two sections put chopped beet; in center of pear put cooked bits of celery that have been marinated in boiled cream salad dressing. Use a sprinkling of nuts. Mayonnaise dressing may be used in addition to the marinated.

California Salad—One-third cup of sliced ripe olives, one-third cup broken English walnuts, two chopped hard cooked eggs, one pimento, boiled dressing and lettuce; mix olives, nuts, eggs and pimento just before serving; then mix with enough salad dressing to moisten and place on lettuce leaves.

Muffins—Two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, four teaspoons of baking powder, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup of milk, one egg; sift together the dry ingredients; beat the egg, add the milk and melted butter; mix into the dry ingredients; fill well buttered muffin tins half full and bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Rice With Pimentos—Two and a half cups of cold boiled rice, one can of tomatoes, one small can pimentos, one teaspoon of sugar, one minced onion, two teaspoons of salt, pepper, two tablespoons butter, one-half cup dry bread crumbs; add salt, pepper, sugar and onion to the tomatoes; spread a layer of tomatoes in a buttered baking dish, then a layer of rice and sprinkle some of the pimentoes, chopped; dot with a little butter; repeat until the dish is filled; sprinkle the top with bread crumbs mixed with a tablespoon of the butter. Bake about forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

An Economy Stunt—Use the tomato bisque left from luncheon to prepare a delicious baked macaroni for dinner. Use the tops and coarser parts of the celery served at dinner to flavor a bisque for luncheon. (For a greater variety save the bisque till next day.)

Tomato Bisque—Boil together fifteen minutes one can of tomatoes, a small sliced onion, the tops and waste parts of a stalk of celery and one clove. Press through a sieve when well cooked. In a sauce pan melt a tablespoon of butter and stir in one tablespoon of cornstarch. When smooth add a pint of rich milk or cream. Season with salt and cayenne. Just before ready to serve add the hot strained tomato and stir until evenly mixed. Serve with salted wafers.

Baked Macaroni—Boil one-half pound cut macaroni for twenty minutes in salted water; then pour into a colander and let cold water run through it; butter a baking dish and put a layer of the macaroni on the bottom, then a layer of thinly sliced cheese, then more macaroni, etc., until the dish is nearly filled; on top put a layer of cracker crumbs and then pour over one and a half cups of the tomato bisque saved from luncheon; place thin slices of cheese on top and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes; the top should be a delicious brown.

Apple Sauce—Cook tart apples without too much water; then press through a sieve, sweeten to taste and add a few drops of lemon extract. Sprinkle the top lightly with ground cinnamon.

Lady Fingers—Six eggs, 1¼ cups powdered sugar, one cup sifted flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspon vanilla. Beat yolk and sugar to light cream, stir in flour, fold in beaten whites (do not stir after adding whites). Bake in quick oven.

Angel Pudding—One cup granulated sugar, two eggs beaten light, four tablespoons flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one cup chopped dates, one cup English walnut meats (chopped), one teaspoon vanilla. Bake in moderate oven thirty minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Marrying for Money

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Jacob Townsend Pays the Supreme Penalty for His Terrible Mistake.

The funeral service at the Townsend residence was over and the people filed out and stood silently on either side of the walk as the pallbearers carried the casket to the hearse. Then followed Dudley, with Marian on one arm and Ortrude on the other. Nell glanced in surprise at Olive, who stood near her. Olive motioned with a quiver of the eyebrows for her to look. Dudley handed Ortrude into the first carriage, closed the door and motioned for the driver to drive on. Into the next carriage George and his wife and Marian and Dudley seated themselves and drove on behind the first vehicle with its solitary occupant. Nell and Dick, Olive and the doctor rode together, and as they slowly journeyed to the cemetery the tragic ending of the unhappy marriage was discussed.

"I wonder what that lonely woman riding in solitary state to the grave of a husband she never loved is thinking about," said Olive solemnly.

"I know one thing; I would rather have the thoughts of anyone else in this whole procession than hers." Dr. Ellson spoke as if he had had a sample of her thoughts and did not like them.

"I should have thought she would have arranged to have Mrs. Tupper ride with her, rather than be all alone," observed Dick.

"Perhaps Mrs. Tupper had views of her own on the subject." All glanced toward Nell. "'I happen to know that Mrs. Tupper was none to fond of her."

"The marriage was a tragedy; the end would have to be tragic whatever it was." The doctor gazed off over the dreary wind-swept landscape. "I am not sure but all will be happier this way than any other under the circumstances."

"Why, Gaylord!" exclaimed Olive in surprise.

"Everybody is accustomed to think that death is the worst thing that can come. We never stop to think how much harder to bear several other things are." All seemed to be thinking of what he had said, for no one spoke.

"Death is so much more kind than shame and disgrace that we would all gladly choose it for ourselves or our dear ones," he continued. "Then there is the helpless invalid. Who of us would not choose death in preference to a long period of helplessness? Worse than this is insanity. And I believe many people would agree with me when I say that death is far preferable to living in a home full of discord and heartburnings."

"Of course it would be better for her, but he had his children to live for," objected Olive.

"Mrs. Townsend acted like poison on Marian and her father saw it. The girl's disposition was being ruined. Now she will be removed from that influence, and the softening influence of her grief will take the poison out of her nature before her character is of her nature before her character is ruined by it. I doubt if the children will suffer more than they did in seeing how miserable the father was. Death is the only solution of such a problem; only death is not always so prompt to relieve."

"I cannot think of anything more awful than to be tied to a person and waiting for death to set you free." Nell slipped her hand in Dick's as she spoke.

"I believe death parts some people forever, if they want to be parted. I hope it does."

"Why wouldn't it? Souls surely have the same privilege as bodies, that of choosing their company," said the doctor as they turned into the cemetery gate.

THE W. C. T. U.

The prohibition law of Georgia forbids physicians to prescribe any alcoholic beverage as medicine; absolute alcohol, diluted with water only, is permitted. This provision of the law was framed by a medical member of the legislature.

Kansas law permits a physician to prescribe alcohol, but forbids his making any charge for it. This provision was incorporated into the law by physicians who were members of the Legislature. They said the medical profession did not want to be responsible for violations of the law through whiskey prescriptions by conscienceless doctors. Whiskey drug-stores no longer exist in Kansas.

It is now possible to walk on "dry" land from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The chain of prohibition states extends from Georgia in the southeast to the State of Washington in the northwest. Indeed, one might start from Florida, which is getting dryer every day. Wyoming has so much dry territory that the corner of that State between Colorado and Idaho interferes not at all with the saloonless journey.—Colorado State paper.

Education cost the present Yale academic senior class of 325 men, $1,087,364, averaging per man for the course $4,073, according to figures made public there. The highest for any man is $15,000, while the lowest is $800. Of these, 120 have earned part of their way, or $306,979. Tobacco is used by 235, of whom 106 have taken it up since coming here; of the 140 who drink, 54 took their first tipple at Yale.

In the section where Mr. Johnson, representative of the Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co., of Rockford, Ill., has been the people are uneasy and unsettled and are expecting a revolution to break out at any time. They consider Huerta was a much stronger man than is Carranza. A very interesting condition was reported from the State of Sonora in which they have the strictest prohibition. The military governor of the State issues the mandate against the use or sale of liquor and if a man is discovered either buying, selling or using intoxicants he is immediately taken out and shot. The result is that there is absolutely no liquor in Sonora. Other adjoining States, realizing the benefits from this prohibition in Sonora, are about to follow suit, and the result should be highly beneficial.

"I am a citizen of Denver, of Colorado and of the United States. It is my right and my duty to make an honest living and to be comfortable and happy.

"It is my privilege and my duty to help others to secure these benefits. I will work hard and play fair.

"I will be kind to all, especially to little children, to old people, to the unfortunate and to animals.

"I will help to make Denver a clean, beautiful and law-abiding city.

"Pirate" Now Thought Insane.

New York, April 4.—"Pirate" Clarence Reginald Hodson, alias Ernest Schiller, who seized the British freighter Matoppo at sea with all the dash of an old time buccaneer, was sent to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue hospital. He will be under observation for ten days, because the authorities are almost convinced his "German plots" are mere vaporings.

FRENCH RECAPTURE POSITIONS AT VAUX

German Troops, Outwitted, Rush Into Trap.

Paris, April 4.—The battle for the village of Vaux, a formidable obstacle in the crown prince's drive against Verdun east of the Meuse, is still raging furiously. The French were successful in a violent counter attack, the first one on a large scale thus far attempted.

In fighting of the most savage character the counter attack gained steadily until the French had recaptured the western part of the village and besides thrown the Germans back to the northern edge of the Caillette wood and to the pond north of Vaux. All of these positions had been hurriedly fortified by the Germans since their capture.

Thus a vital part of the two mile gain made by the Germans was wrested from them by the French in the counter attack.

It develops from the French statement that the French had secretly evacuated the positions which formed the German objective, and when the Teuton troops dashed forward they were met by a hail of fire from the southern bank of the riverlet to which the French had withdrawn two nights before. French flanking fire from Bethincourt also met the attackers, who found no infantry to attack.

DEFEND MAIL SEIZURES.

Allies' Reply Upholds Right to Control of Letters.

Washington, April 4.—The entente allies' reply to the American protests against mail seizures was presented to the state department by the British ambassador. It upholds the allies' legal right to exercise control over mail on board ship, the same as mercandise, and justifies seizures on the ground that Germany has been using the mails to transmit all kinds of merchandise, including war contraband.

Specific instances are given with appended proof where Germany sought to use the parcels post systems of neutral countries in efforts to replenish supplies badly needed for the prosecution of the war.

KAISER PICKS POLISH KING.

Said to Have Selected Duke Luitpold of Bavaria.

Rome, April 4.—It is reported here that the kaiser has destined Duke Luitpold of Bavaria as the future king of Poland. It is said that the consent of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary has practically been secured by the young duke, who went to Vienna for that purpose.

Duke Luitpold is the third son of the late Duke Maximilien-Emmanuel. He was born in the chateau of Biederstein, near Munich, on June 30, 1890. He is a lieutenant of the First regiment of Bavarian uhlans and is a chevalier of the Order of St. Hubert.

VILLA ELUDES HIS PURSUERS

Funston Fears Bandit Has Escaped From Net.

INFANTRY ARE NOW NEEDED

Difficult Country Impedes Efficient Work by Cavalry—One Force of Villistas is Reported as Still Near Guerrero—Americans Are Misled by Natives Friendly to Outlaws.

San Antonio, Tex., April 4.—Officers at army headquarters have now become convinced that Francisco Villa has escaped from the region in which General Pershing's cavalry are operating.

General Pershing's latest report contained the news that at least a part of the dispersed Villa force that was driven from Guerrero March 29 still was moving in the district northeast of that place, but no mention of Villa's whereabouts was made.

Six columns of cavalry were yet riding the hills and plains in that section, while scouts were endeavoring to pick up the trail of the scattered bands as well as that of their fugitive chief.

One force of Villa's men, estimated at a hundred, commanded by Colonel Beltran, was located near Bachineva, about twenty-five miles northeast of Guerrero, and information was gathered that indicated that the remainder of the 400 or 500 still were in that region. No reference was made in that report of an encounter that was mentioned in press dispatches from the front.

Pershing Lacks Guides.

Information gathered from various sources and confirmed by General Pershing indicated that the intelligence officers of the punitive forces were having to contend with difficulties created by the receipt of misinformation liberally supplied in districts through which Villa or his followers had passed. General Pershing also reported that he had difficulty in securing reliable guides.

Which way Villa has gone is now largely a question for General Pershing's scouts to answer. It was pointed out at General Funston's headquarters that once the trail was picked out the troops would resume the chase further into the interior, although it was realized that this second phase of the punitive expedition's work would be far more difficult than was the first. It is not improbable, it was said, that more troops than those already in Mexico will be required.

Must Use Infantry.

The topography of the country south of Guerrero is such that successful pursuit can be conducted only by a wide deploying of forces and the utilization of a large part of the infantry. It was pointed out that the further the troops penetrate into Mexico the greater will be the necessity for strengthening the lines of communication.

From the border to the extreme southern positions the advanced posts already have traveled 300 miles when there is taken into account the twistings of the trails they have gone over.

The Mexico Northwestern railroad is not yet being used, partly, it was reported here, due to a failure of General Gavira and General Bell to reach an agreement. The timely placing in service of more motor trucks alleviated temporarily the supply situation, however, and General Pershing reported that motor trucks are now delivering supplies to a point south of Namiquipa, almost 200 miles from the border.

AFTER MEXICO NEWS FAKERS

Federal Inquiry Into Activities of Certain Correspondents.

San Antonio, Tex., April 4.—Federal officers here have started an investigation into the activities of newspaper correspondents who have been sending out misleading information from the border.

Numerous stories that have embarrassed the administration in dealing with the Carranza government have been circulated from the various Texas and New Mexico news centers. A warning has been issued, and if it is not heeded arrests are likely.

PLANNED TO INVADE CANADA

Von der Goltz Letters Said to Show Movement From United States.

Washington, April 4.—The department of justice announced that Scotland Yard detectives had seized correspondence to Horst von der Goltz, the alleged German spy who has said he was directing head of the plan to blow up the Welland canal. Besides outlining how this work was to be done, the correspondence shows plans for the invasion of Canada from the United States.

It is said the letter now in the hands of British authorities contains names of persons in this country hitherto unmentioned. The correspondence will be made public later.

Pellagra Killed 8,000.

Washington, April 4.—Pellagra caused 8,000 deaths in the United States in 1915, public health service reports show. Its development can be effectually prevented by a cheap and simple diet the health service experts recommend.

EVERY HOLE AT PARK GOLF CLUB LINKS TO BE CHANGED THIS YEAR

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS TO COURSE AND CLUBHOUSE WILL BE MADE—ONE HOLE WILL BE PLAYED OVER HUDSON POND.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES WILL MEET THIS WEEK

President Whitehead Appoints Committees, A. A. Cannon Being Chairman of Golf—First Green Will Be 200 Yards Nearer Somerset Street—Present Seventh and Eighth Eliminated—Addition to Be Built to Clubhouse.

Extensive changes to be made this season in the Park Golf Club links will make the borough course almost 3,000 yards long. Every hole will be changed, and by extending the links west along Hudson avenue will take in Hudson pond, and give the club its first water hole. Other important changes will be the doing away with the present seventh and eighth holes. Many traps will be added.

The clubhouse will also undergo alterations. The ladies' locker room will be added to the men's rooms, and the kitchen and adjoining room will be the new quarters for the women players. An addition to be built on the rear will be for the kitchen. New plumbing and other improvements will be made.

President Walter Whitehead has appointed the following committee chairmen: Finance, J. Alec Wilson; greens, Ray M. Smith; house, R. V. Carpenter; golf, Arthur A. Cannon; membership, John A. Steiner. The new board of trustees, composed of Ralph G. Morse, Frank W. Thompson, R. V. Carpenter, William P. Taylor, Ray M. Smith and John A. Steiner, will meet this week.

The first hole will be made an elbow. The tee will remain where it is, but the line of play, after extending down the hill as it does at present, will turn at right angles towards Somerset street, and run between Hudson avenue and the pond for a distance of more than two hundred yards, making the hole 370 yards long.

The second tee will be just west of the western end of the pond, and the green will be the present first. This will require a carry of 150 yards to clear the water. The green will be guarded on the north side to prevent drives from the first tee interfering with putters.

The present second hole will be the new third. A new trap will be placed in front of the ring, which now encircles the green.

The long third will be the new fourth, but traps will be laid out to separate the fairway from the ninth. The new fifth will be the old fourth, but the tee will be set back 50 yards. Next year the green will also be moved, increasing the length about 125 yards.

Mounds and other hazards will be put on the present fifth hole, which will be the new sixth. The new seventh will be the present sixth, but the green will be placed across the chasm which at present is between the sixth green and the seventh tee. The green will be guarded by other traps.

The trip up and down the hill for the seventh and eighth holes will be no more. The new eighth tee will be placed north of the present seventh, and the line of play will be directly west to the present eighth green.

The ninth tee will be moved forward about twenty yards, in front of the two trees. The change will give a long driver a chance to carry both ditches, and get on the home green in two shots, a feat never possible before.

These are the first radical changes made in many years, and will be sure to meet with the approval of the members. Lengthening the first hole will relieve the congestion there on crowded days. The course, which has been criticized for its lack of traps, will be much stiffer when all the hazards are in place.

The tennis courts will also be given more attention. Interest in the court game fell off at the club last year, and for the first time there was no competitive play. A schedule of events will be arranged, and it is likely that a spring and fall tournament will be held, the two winners to play for the club championship, the procedure now followed to decide the golf title of the club.

Work has already begun on the first hole. All the changes, with the exception of moving the present fourth green farther southwest, will be made this year.

The club's membership, which increased so rapidly last year, has been growing this winter, and many new members will join the club when the season opens.

PLAINFIELD'S NEW GOLF CLUB.

If Plainfield needed anything more to make it a golf center second to no city of its size in the country, the coming of the Shackamaxon Country Club gives this city the necessary additional prestige. When the new course in Fanwood is completed, there will be four growing clubs within a few minutes of the business part of town—the Plainfield Country Club just over the city line on the south side; the Park Golf Club in the borough, and the Westfield Golf Club two miles from the city line on the east side, and the Shackamaxon links in Fanwood.

The newest club gives every indication that it will be one of the most important in the State. Its great length will make it notable. Other features such as are found at no other golf club in this vicinity will give Shackamaxon deserved distinction. It will be more than a golf playgrounds. Its lake alone will provide all kinds of water sports, besides making an excellent golf hazard. Indoor and outdoor games planned for the cold months will make it a winter country club like those found only at the winter resorts. It will be a Palm Beach in the summer and a Saratoga in the winter. Shackamaxon as it will be when it is completed holds much in store for sport lovers of this section.

And why not? From the record of the present administration, breaks are more numerous in the Department of State than they are on the alleys.

While the plan of extending the city interscholastic baseball championship series to five games might be of financial benefit to the two schools, interest in the games would undoubtedly fall off if the series were strung out more than it is at present—and P. H. S. and N. P. H. S. invariably have to go the limit in their titular meetings. To play five games would mean that a quarter of each nine's schedule would be taken up with city title contests. Three games will do as much as five towards deciding which has the better team.

BASEBALL STAR NOT WANTED BY ANY CLUB

Case of Hal Chase, Fastest of All First Basemen, a Strange One.

The history of baseball records no case stranger than that of Hal Chase. Still in the prime of his career, still the most brilliant fielding first baseman the game has ever known, he finds himself an "undesirable," finds that no major league club wants him at any price.

Hal Chase today is paying—and dearly, too—for the folly of other years, for the follies that he committed while still an American Leaguer. That he is not wanted by any big league magnate is not due to the fact that he jumped to the Federal League. Other players did just like Hal did and have been welcomed back. But Hal's offenses, in the eyes of the baseball powers, have been many.

The praise showered upon him turned the head of Hal Chase. From a modest, retiring youth he blossomed into one who became arrogant. He grew to be as temperamental as a prima donna and his clashes with his teammates became frequent. But Chase, because he was a star—and a real one—was coddled and petted by his owners.

Chase reached the crest when he was made manager of the Yankees. And that honor made Hal Chase "unbearable," in the opinion of his teammates. He ran his team as he saw fit, and soon there were charges of dissensions in the Yankee camp.

"Chase is a trouble maker," was flashed around the circuit, and throughout New York. Stories began to appear which bitterly criticised Chase, stories that "panned" him for his conduct.

Back in 1910 or 1911, Chase would have brought around $25,000 on the auction block, but none of the clubs seemed overly anxious to get him. When the White Sox offered Rollie Zeider, the bunionless infielder, and "Babe" Borton, the Yankee owners eagerly seized the opportunity—and Chase went to the White Sox.

For a while Chase showed flashes of his old-time skill, but the lacing that New York had given him rankled; the thought that he—Hal Chase "the Peerless"—had been traded for two mediocre players walloped his pride more than anything else ever had. And with such feelings pulsing through his brain his mind was not on his work and so he played only a fair sort of game for the Sox.

Just at the time when the Chicagoans were beginning to make unkind remarks about him and intimate that he was a "has been," Chase got an offer from the Feds and jumped. The real reason was that Hal Chase looked upon the Federal circuit as a haven of refuge from those in the American League who knocked him.

The American League battled in court to prevent Chase from playing in the Federal League. The Americans fought for him in court, not so much to prevent the Feds from getting him, but, it is said, with the hope that he would be ruled the property of the Americans, so that the Americans could ride him out of the big leagues.

Hal Chase today, in the opinion of many baseball experts, is a more wonderful first baseman than the bulk of the regulars in both big leagues. Hal Chase is hitting again the way that made him one of the most feared batsmen in baseball a few years ago. Hal Chase's mechanical power is unimpaired, his brain is as nimble as ever.

But Hal Chase is an "undesirable," he offended the baseball powers and despite the fact that in his attitude today he is a changed man those powers haven't forgotten.

CARLSTROM JOINS BISONS.

Albin Carlstrom, the former local player, who is scheduled for his second season with the champion Buffalo club, of the International League, left yesterday for Harrisburg, Pa., where his club will begin spring training tomorrow. Carlstrom, one of those athletes that pick up very little excess weight during the off season, is already in fair shape, and he will probably swing along in championship stride within a fortnight.

PHILADELPHIA TENNIS LEAGUE.

Tennis is booming in the Philadelphia section. An inter-club tennis league, comprising six clubs, has recently been organized, and an extensive program of competition is being planned for the coming season. The clubs in the league are the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia Cricket Club, Germantown Cricket Club, Cynwyd Club, Belfield Country Club and Huntington Valley Club.

OFFER FULTON $24,000.

The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday revealed the fact that Fred Fulton, the giant woodsman from Minnesota, has been offered $24,000 for three bouts in New York during the spring and summer months, and if the giant heavyweight is successful in the bouts against Al Reich, Jim Coffey and Frank Moran, he may be in a position to make $50,000.

NEWARK BOY WINS.

Patsy Cline had a shade the better of Johnnie Drummie in a ten-round bout in New York last night. He outpointed his opponent in the early rounds, and though Drummie made a whirlwind finish in the last three rounds, it was not quite enough to off-set the lead which Cline had gained.

MORAN SPEEDS; FINED $25.

Frank Moran met defeat outside of the heavyweight ring yesterday in a legal bout with Magistrate Conway, of Long Island City, who fined him $25 for exceeding the speed limit in his automobile. He was arrested in Jackson avenue, Sunday night. Moran smilingly paid his fine from a large roll of bills.

TROOP 14 WINNER OF INDOOR SCOUT GAMES

More Than Fifty See First Baptist Boys Defeat Troop 14.

Troop 9, B. S. A., of the First Methodist church (Frederick A. Martin, scoutmaster), recently accepted the challenge of Troop 14 of the First Baptist church (Ernest K. Poullson, scoutmaster), to an indoor scout contest. The events were run off at headquarters of Troop 14 last night, that troop winning, 6 points to 3.

Troop 9 started the ball rolling by winning the first two events, and things looked bad for the "14" boys; but they rallied in the third inning and won a point. After scoring again in the fifth event, the Troop 9 boys did not get a look-in, and the final score stood: Troop 14, 6 points; Troop 9, 3 points.

The events and winners were:

Patrol flag relay, Troop 9; coat-stretcher race, Troop 9; tilting contest, Troop 14; Paul Revere relay race, Troop 14; knot tying, Troop 9; pyramid, Troop 14; bandaging, Troop 14; scout race, Troop 14; tug-of-war, Troop 14.

Troop 9 was handicapped by the fact that only eight of their scouts could be present, but they did some very good work, especially in the knot-tying contest and in the signal pyramid.

The judges were Scout Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., First Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, Second Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach, Scoutmaster Douglas Davis, of Troop 8, and Fred K. Armstrong, of the troop committee of the First Baptist church.

There were fifty scouts present, in addition to the officers, among whom were Scoutmasters W. F. Richards, of Troop 12, and B. M. Harris, unassigned. Troop 11 of Grace Episcopal church attended in a body, with First Deputy Commissioner Sprowl.

Troop 14 is prepared to meet all comers in a similar contest, and some lively times are anticipated in scout circles during the next few months.

Clifton Wiggins, Caryl Dunavan, Ellsworth Runyon, Howard Hall, Wilbur Bolen, Ellis Wadley, David Chrietiensen, and Leonard Dennick were members of the Troop 9 team, while James Hodgskins, Walter Sutphen, Donald Warren and Paul Peck upheld Troop 14.

NO NEW TEAMS IN CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE; SEASON OPENS APRIL 20

DUNELLEN CLUB DOESN'T APPLY FOR ADMISSION, BUT FARMERS' A. C. DOES—JONES' TEAM TO PLAY ON NETHERWOOD'S FIELD.

EACH CLUB TO PLAY TWICE ON HOLIDAYS

Twenty-Game Schedule Billed to End in August—Tabs Start Against Baptists, Clintons Against Hopes and Plainfields Against Netherwoods—Champions' Catcher, Moran, With Firsts—Umpires Appointed.

Plans for the 1916 season of Plainfield's City Baseball League were completed at a meeting of the league held last night in the Daily Press. The schedule was adopted, umpires appointed, and the final adjustment made of what teams are to be in the league and where they are to play. The season will open April 29.

Jimmy Montross, Frank Malanga and Henny Hansen were chosen first string umpires. There were about a dozen applicants. Ira Vail, Ray Kline and George Patterson will be reserve arbiters. Messrs. Warrick, Simmons and Loehsen were the other applicants. Louis Coriell, who had previously been appointed, sent in his resignation.

One club that was expected to apply for admission to the league did not ask for a franchise, but another team that wasn't expected had a delegate present. Dunellen did not ask to join the league, although Louis Dixon, of that club, was present. Amos B. Stites, of the Farmers' A. A., wanted to enter his team in the race, but the league stood by its previous decision not to increase the number of teams. The Farmers will play a practice game with the First Baptists on the Firsts' field, April 22. The Baptists expect to have Earl Moran, the Netherwood catcher, behind the bat for them.

No change in the decision to use only three fields for league games was made. Gifford Jones' team will, therefore, play on Netherwood's diamond, and will not change its name from "Plainfield A. A." to "North Plainfield A. A."

The opening day games will be between the Tabs and Baptists, Clinton Avenues and Hopes, and Plainfield A. A. and Netherwoods. Each team will play twenty games. The last date on the schedule is August 12; after that, postponed games will be decided. All six teams will play both mornings and afternoons on the two holidays—Memorial Day and Independence Day.

The Montross who will umpire is "Smiling Jimmy," former local favorite and New York State League pitcher. Malanga and Hansen have both worked in games here before.

It was announced last night that Nat Bernstein has offered a silver loving cup for the player having the highest batting average at the end of the season. Harry Dreier will again put up the pennant, and Leo Slonim the cup for the championship team.

The teams will again split the gate receipts on holidays. For all other games the home team will take all the receipts. The visiting team will furnish the tickets on holidays.

The names of players and official scorers will be presented at the next meeting to be held April 24.

DUPONT, A NEW PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

Enter a new candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in the person of Thomas Coleman DuPont, of Delaware.

With the Republican national convention barely two months in the future the G. O. P. seems utterly at a loss as to what man to name for President. There are a dozen hats in the ring, but none that carries the plume of a winner like the white plume of Henry of Navarre. Hence a new contender for presidential honors becomes an object of immediate and widespread interest.

General DuPont, accordingly, has the spotlight. He is hailed as a candidate upon whom the business men of the country—big business men and small, laboring men and farmers, who, after all, are the most important business men in the country—can unite.

DuPont himself has been a success in many lines of endeavor. As a miner and a member of the miners' union—he spent two years with a pick and shovel at the job of digging coal—mining engineer and mine operator, builder of steam and electric railroads, director of great industrial corporations and the genius who gave New York one of its greatest hotels and its greatest office building, his career has been one of construction. He is essentially a creator and a builder, and never a speculator.

Fought for Clean Politics.

In politics his labors have been equally constructive. He has always stood and fought for clean politics and for progress along real progressive lines. When J. Edward Addicks, familiarly known as "Gas" Addicks, undertook to tuck the state of Delaware in his vest pocket and make himself United States Senator, it took Thomas Coleman DuPont, first as a member and then as chairman of the Republican State Committee, to purge the state of Addicksism and effect the political regeneration of Delaware. Later, as a member of the Republican National Committee, General DuPont stood with the Roosevelt forces in the memorable fight of 1912 at Chicago. He was one of the fifteen members of the Committee who voted for the seating of Roosevelt delegates. He did not follow Colonel Roosevelt into the Progressive party—his loyalty to and faith in the Republican party was too strong for that.

Personally, General DuPont is six feet three in height and weighs above the two hundred mark. He is what the late Alfred Henry Lewis would have called "a great big, two-fisted, he-man." Blue-eyed and square-jawed, he is a born fighter. By antecedents he is an aristocrat, as was Thomas Jefferson, yet he is one of the most democratic of men—a democrat with a small "d," but at the same time a Republican with a big "R."

One of his greatest interests is road building. He has proposed to give the people of Delaware a boulevard, 200 feet wide and 100 miles long, running from one end of the state to the other, and in the work on this road he has lived with the builders and run a road roller with his own hands.

General DuPont was formerly at the head of the great powder making concern that bears the family name, but he severed his connection with it at the outbreak of the European war. He said he did not want to be identified with the manufacture of powder for use in foreign wars. Sentiment, however, has led him to make a summer home of the old stone mill on the Brandywine where his forefathers ground the powder that was sent out through the wilderness of the Middle West a century ago to enable Commodore Perry to win the battle of Lake Erie.

General DuPont is in his prime—fifty-three years of age—and fit for a great political fight. He himself has not yet said that he is a candidate for President, but if he enters the lists it is a foregone conclusion that he will be a big factor in what happens at Chicago next June.

ASTONISHING EXPORT RECORD PAST MONTH

Total for February Reached $409,836,525 According to Government Statistics.

American exports for February reached a total of $409,836,525, according to an announcement made today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce. This is the highest point ever reached by the export trade in this country, and exceeds the high mark for December, 1915, by $50,000,000. It exceeds the total for January by $83,000,000. The decline in January had been taken in some quarters to mean that the record figure for December had marked the high tide in the flow of American exports. The total exports for the first eight months of the fiscal year, 1916, $2,586,301,570, and it now seems probable that the exports for the whole fiscal year will reach $4,000,000,000.

February imports also set a new high record, being valued at $193,935,117, which is about $10,000,000 more than in January, and much above the total for any earlier February. Over two-thirds of the month's imports entered free of duty.

The excess of exports over imports amounted to $215,901,408 in February and to $1,295,217,462 during the eight months ending with February. Last year February showed an excess of $174,682,478, and eight months' period an excess of $578,834,390, or less than one-half that of the current period.

The international gold movements for February included imports valued at $6,016,006, against $12,726,492 for February, 1915; and for the eight months, $328,054,392 in 1916, against $46,267,209 in 1915. Gold exports in February totaled $13,684,667, against $1,053,879 in February, 1915; and in the eight months, $47,741,575, compared with $140,387,009 in a like period of 1915. The current fiscal year to the end of February showed a net inward gold movement of $280,213,817, while a corresponding period last year showed a net outward gold movement of $94,119,800.

COTTON MEN MEET.

Atlanta, Ga., April 4.—The American Cotton Manufacturers' Association opened its annual convention here today, and will be in session today and tomorrow. The cotton mill men are here from many sections of the South and North. A barbecue will be given at the Druid Hills Golf Club in their honor.

GERMAN ANSWER IS TO BE HASTENED

Berlin to Make Early Reply on U-Boat Cases.

Washington, April 4.—The state department has received information that a member of the crew or a passenger on the British steamer Manchester Engineer, which recently was sunk in the English channel, saw the periscope of a submarine about the time of the supposed attack.

In reply to questions Secretary Lansing admitted information of this character had been received. He could not say whether it came from an American, but assumed it had not, and declined to discuss the matter further.

He said the pending submarine cases will not be disposed of in connection with the torpedoing of the Lusitania, but separately. This refuted a report that the administration has drawn up an "indictment" of German sea methods and is about to launch it at Berlin, bunching the entire series in a single case.

No affirmative action will be taken on the attack on the Sussex in the English channel until after the receipt of affidavits forwarded by Ambassador Page on the steamship St. Paul.

The only additional information received from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin was that he expects to receive the reply of the foreign office with regard to the Sussex, Manchester Engineer and Eagle Point cases within a few days.

MOB LYNCHES NEGRO.

Alleged Assailant of Girl Dragged From Courtroom.

Idabel, Okla., April 4.—Oscar Martin, a negro, arrested at Bismarck charged with attacking a thirteen-year-old white girl, was dragged out of the courtroom here and lynched.

Martin had been taken to court for a preliminary hearing. Following his positive identification by the victim, a number of men in the room quietly arose, disarmed the officers, placed a rope about the negro's neck and pushed him from a back platform of the courtroom. After firing two shots into the negro's body the mob dispersed. There have been no arrests.

HIGH SCHOOL LECTURE.

Principal Lindsey Best, of the Plainfield High School, has announced that Professor Morris, a member of the Faculty of Rutgers College, will give an illustrated lecture on "Reclaiming the Arid Lands of the West," in the High School Auditorium tomorrow.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO HONOR SHAKESPEARE

Nearly 2,000 Schools Have Arranged Performances in Commemoration.

Nearly 2,000 schools, representing half as many separate communities, have already arranged for a pageant or dramatic performance in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of Shakespeare's death, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior. Although the actual anniversary occurs in April, 1916, celebrations are to be held throughout the year. Many elementary and secondary schools will, this year, devote their entire commencement program to a Shakespeare pageant or play; and a number of the summer schools will take advantage of the opportunity to give outdoor performances of plays by Shakespeare or about him.

In order to assist schools and colleges in planning celebrations, the Bureau of Education, in co-operation with the Drama League of America, has issued a bulletin giving practical suggestions as to kinds of celebrations, type performances, lists of dances, and designs for simple costuming for Shakespearian plays. The Bureau has distributed copies of this bulletin to all city school superintendents, to principals of public and private secondary schools, presidents of colleges, normal schools and other institutions; and arrangements have been made to furnish copies at a nominal cost to school teachers and pupils.

The bulletin emphasizes the special opportunity afforded by the Shakespeare Tercentenary to co-ordinate the school work in literature, music and art with such practical subjects as shopwork and physical education. "Merely as a matter of educational policy," declares the bulletin, "there is urgent need for the influence which the Shakespearian festivals will exert in the schools. These festivals are needed to give new tone and quality to the literary, musical, dramatic and recreational interests of young people—and, indeed, of the public generally."

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The women of the Park Avenue Baptist church invite all women of Baptist churches of the city to meet with them at their missionary meeting to be held in the Sunday-school rooms Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At that time Mrs. W. H. Farmer, of Montclair, will address the meeting.

WITTPENN RAPS LEGISLATURE

Reckless, Partisan and Improvident, He Says.

RAW BOSSISM CHARGED.

Candidate For Democratic Nomination For Governor Says Republicans Added Over $1,000,000 to Appropriations. Attacked Geran Reform and "Seven Sisters" Laws, He Claims.

Jersey City, April 4.—Naval Officer H. Otto Wittpenn, candidate for Democratic nomination for governor, issued a statement in which he assails the Republican legislature of New Jersey as "the most reckless, partisan and improvident lawmaking body that has sat at Trenton in years."

The most damaging of its acts, he declared, was its partially successful attempt to nullify the Geran election reform law of 1911.

Another count against the last legislature, says Mr. Wittpenn, is the provision in the supplemental appropriation bill of "something over $1,100,000 in excess of the appropriation bills of 1915."

"Bossism of the worst kind was flaunted in the faces of the people of the state," adds Mr. Wittpenn, and cite an "attack upon the seven sisters laws" as one of the offenses coming under this category.

The Newark "ripper bills" are mentioned in the statement as "an attempt by the board of guardians to seize by force of law that part of the city government of Newark which had not been given them by the people."

TRIES SUICIDE IN COURT.

Woman Charged With Embezzlement Takes Three Poison Tablets.

Morristown, April 4.—Mrs. Margaret Keeler Buck while waiting in an anteroom at the courthouse for the arrival of Judge Joshua R. Salmon, who was to sentence her for embezzling funds of the Common Sense Suspender company, took three poison tablets. She is in Memorial hospital. The doctors say she may die.

Mrs. Buck, who pleaded guilty a month ago, had been out on bail. This morning her case came up for sentence. She, her mother and her husband sat in an anteroom off the courtroom. Mrs. Buck left her mother and went into the women's retiring room.

When she returned a few seconds later Mrs. Buck's face was so pale that her mother asked her what the matter was. She replied that she had taken poison. Then she became ill.

Court attendants hurried about and brought water and emetics. She struggled against all attempts to help her, declaring that she wanted to die. At length Dr. Francis H. Glazebrook arrived. Mrs. Buck, still struggling against those who would aid her, was led downstairs to an automobile and taken to the hospital.

SEEK MISSING GIRL.

Police of New York and New Jersey Hunt For East Orange Woman.

East Orange, April 4.—The police of New York and New Jersey are leading in the search for Alma Fuller Myers, twenty years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Myers, 86 Eglington street, this city, who was last seen at the Simpson street subway station in the Bronx, New York city, Saturday afternoon. She was leaving her friend, Mrs. Arnold Nittel of 1130 Bryant avenue, and apparently took a train for downtown.

The girl is described as five feet four inches in height and weighing 117 pounds. She has curly brown hair and gray eyes. She wore a dark blue sailor suit, trimmed with red, white and blue braid, and a blue serge coat. Her hat was of dark blue straw, trimmed with red velvet. She wore a green underskirt and tan shoes and stockings.

On her right hand she wore a signet ring bearing her initials, "A. F. M.," and a black stone ring. On her left she wore a ring set with three rubies. She carried a blue silk umbrella.

The hospitals have been searched for the girl.

Uncle Sam's "Awkward Squad" (New Recruits) Develop a Punch

Typical U.S. Naval Recruits, or Apprentice Seamen

Giving Newly Recruited Soldiers a Taste of Real Campaigning

The First Step In Practical Preparedness Becomes a Jump -- Uncle Sam Hustles for Defenders of the Flag -- The Fighting Apprentice and His Work.

BY WALDON FAWCETT.

"Be a jiner"—this is Uncle Sam's advice, accompanied by his most seductive smile, to the youth of the land. The United States has thrown open the gates to its Army and Navy and is inviting, even urging young men to enlist. Not that it takes much urging though. A good many husky lads seem to be falling over one another in the scramble to get into one arm of the service or the other. A prospect of war always has that effect and the first real flare-up in Mexico sufficed.

That Uncle Sam hit upon the psychological moment for sounding his present clarion call for recruits there can be no doubt, but it is not by chance that Uncle Sam has suddenly appeared in a Billy Sunday role with a country-wide plea to young men to "hit the trail." The recent action by Congress is what brought it about. With the Mexican trouble putting the spurs to preparedness Congress, as our readers know, suddenly got busy and authorized an increase of 20,000 men in the standing army while the Navy will doubtless be voted, ere this reaches our readers, an increase of 10,000 men in the enlisted personnel.

About one hundred and seventy new recruiting stations opened tells the story of what the Army has done, whereas the Navy has again set in motion all its admirable machinery for attracting recruits—machinery that embraces everything from personal solicitation to moving picture shows that illustrate the joys and sorrows of a bluejacket's life.

Enlisted men help get recruits.

"Two hundred additional enlisted men have been assigned to the work of gathering recruits." There is a decidedly interesting story behind that bare announcement which came from the War Department recently. To tell it will reveal to how large an extent Uncle Sam is dependent for embryo soldiers and sailors upon the men who are already serving in that capacity. Indeed it is the testimonials of the veterans in the service given man to man to the lads who are meditating enlistment that are responsible in greater measure than the persuasions of the recruiting officers for drawing men into the "awkward squads" at our forts and naval training stations.

No Sergeant O'Leary has Uncle Sam to go up and down the country-side as the famous Irish winner of the Victoria Cross has been doing in the United Kingdom exhorting his fellows to join the colors, but the American enlisted men detailed for recruiting duty have, in their quiet way, been doing excellent work in getting the right sort of material into the Yankee fighting forces. In this country it is not the custom of an enlisted man on recruiting bent to publicly address street gatherings as is the practice abroad. Instead it is the usual American stunt for the enlisted man in uniform to stand at the entrance to the recruiting station ready to answer the questions of passerby. In his scouting capacity such an enlisted man can not only save much valuable time for the recruiting officer inside by turning away obviously ineligible candidates but, better yet, he can by his heart-to-heart talks gather in many an interested lad who has been a bit diffident about venturing into the office.

In addition groups of the enlisted men will go on tour, visiting, in succession the towns and villages within a considerable radius of each recruiting station and arousing interest among the youth of the land. The idea of this latter missionary work is not so much that the touring parties can immediately enroll country boys and village lads for the service as that seed will be sown by the distribution of literature that will acquaint the curious with what the American Army and Navy has to offer in the way of careers for ambitious young men.

No lowering of recruiting standards.

The best evidence that they are pushing and shoving to get into the Yankee military and naval service these days is found in the circumstance that the officials at Washington declare that there is nothing in the heavy demands for enlistment suddenly imposed upon them to warrant a lowering of the standards governing enlistment. There has been a deal of talk about this, since preparedness has been in the air, and many people have been wondering whether it is not possible that Uncle Sam is just a wee bit too exacting as to the qualifications that a man must have to don his unform.

Out of the 168,000 men that last year applied for enlistment in the U. S. Army 123,000 were rejected, leaving only 45,000 acceptances. On the face of things the requirements do not seem to be so very severe, namely that a man shall be between 18 and 35 years of age, be at least 5 feet 4 inches in height and weigh not less than 120 pounds, and yet last year's record shows what a startling proportion fail to pass the examinations for physical, mental and moral fitness.

The military and naval people say that there are explanations of the rejections that do not appear on the surface. For example, of the army candidates last year fully 19,000 were "turned down" because they were too young. At any rate the officers oppose letting down the bars because, as Gen. McCain argues, if it is made possible for weaklings to get in, valuable time and labor would be wasted in training men and then Uncle Sam would have on his hands great numbers of men who would have to soon be discharged for disability and be given a place on the pension roles.

Uncle Sam will not enroll as a defender of the Stars and Stripes any man who has any criminal record or who is a drunkard. Each candidate must have at least two men who will vouch for his clean record and clean character, and if a boy is under 21 he must have something to show that he is going into the service with the full consent of his parents or guardian.

What happens to the recruit.

And now let us see what happens to the every-day recruit from the time he ceases to be a "man in the street" until he is safely snoozing in infantry barracks or battleship hammock. First of all, disabuse your mind of the idea that Jack's future is assured as soon as he has put his name to an application blank in the recruiting office. There's many a slip between cup and lip and the adage holds good in getting a start in a military or naval sense. Why, last year, of the men accepted by officers at recruiting stations full 13 per cent. had to be rejected and discharged at the depots, mostly on account of physical defects or diseases that sooner or later would detract from his usefulness as a soldier or sailor.

When a greenhorn enters the Army he is sent from the recruiting station to the recruiting depot, the latter a sort of clearing house where a large number of recruits are assembled from various parts of the country in order that they may have a primary course of instructions ere they are sent to the regiments in the field. At the depot the recruit receives his first uniform and equipment and an outfit that includes a razor, soap, shoe polish, towels, etc., and here he spends forty-five days learning not only the rudiments of a military career, but such homely details as how to care for his clothing and fold and pile his bedding. During the period of probation the recruit gets his fill of drills and lectures on the various phases of soldiering, but the result is that when he is sent to the regiment that is to be his permanent home he is able to take his place in his company and perform all the duties that are expected of him.

Making a man-o-war's-man out of a landlubber is a somewhat slower process than transforming an army recruit for, don't you see, the naval tar must learn pretty much everything that has been taught to the newly enrolled soldier and on top of that must tackle seamanship, navigation and the like. In other words, because it is deemed possible that these days navy men will do as much fighting ashore as they do on shipboard—and recent happenings in Mexico and Haiti prove it—it is accounted necessary that the apprentice seaman be given a diverse education during the six months he spends at a naval training station or on board a naval training ship. In that crowded interval he must learn something of the knack of the old-time sailor before the mast and at the same time must familiarize himself with the handling of modern rapid-firers and machine guns so that if it falls to his lot to be sent ashore as a member of a landing party from a cruising warship he can play the role of an infantryman or light artilleryman.

Treating recruits with consideration.

Raw, a recruit may be, according to the proverbial phrase, but Uncle Sam never allows it to be rubbed in. On the contrary every effort is made to treat recruits with consideration and to spare their feelings if they are a bit sensitive. To that end no enlisted men other than those new to the service are to be found at the recruiting depots and training stations. Everybody is in the same boat so that there is not much chance for embarrassment and all members of the martial community get an even start not only as to military or naval accomplishments, but likewise as to the athletic training that is sandwiched in with the drills in order to keep the men contented.

Some more or less unusual stunts are included in the program which each recruit must go through with ere he "belongs." There is, of course, nothing very thrilling about being vaccinated, but to the average lad who has just taken a three year or a seven year job it is a new experience to have made the finger print that serves as Uncle Sam's favorite medium of identification. An important responsibility that must be met by each new recruit is the selection of the arm of the service he will elect to join. He may have figured it all out in advance that he will join the cavalry or seek service on a torpedo boat, but if he hasn't he must think rapidly once the recruiting officials say "Which?" Finally it may be noted that Uncle Sam is even making effort to extend the spirit of content and satisfaction to the parents of recruits. One expedient to this end that has been tried with success is the sending to each recruit's home of "before and after" photographs—the one a likeness of the young man as he appeared the day he enlisted and the other a prepossessing portrait showing the well set up soldier or sailor in full dress uniform.

The Story of How Baltimore, With Its 600,000 Inhabitants, Furnishes Them With 75,000,000 Gallons of Pure Water Daily - A Task for Giants

BY STUART STEVENS SCOTT.

Water! The great necessity and yet one of the greatest of menaces to life. Modern conditions demand that water taken from rivers must be purified before it may be used for household purposes.

When man was primitive the chances were that all sources of water supply were good. Now one must consider well because, under the analysis of the chemist many a stream that sparkles in the sunlight and has every appearance of being pure may be laden with the germs of deadly poison.

Supplying water to communities has always been a great task. From the days of the Romans, who excelled in their time in the type of aqueducts and baths, to the present time, the development of the water supply has been a matter of tremendous concern for those burdened with the responsibility yet so little has been told of how this has been accomplished that few know of the means employed.

The development of the water supply for populated centers in this country makes a most interesting story because the United States leads the world in this as it does in many other things that makes mankind more comfortable.

The Baltimore plant.

How the City of Baltimore has evolved from the original system of wells dug here and there to one of the largest and finest filtration plants in the world is a splendid example of American planning and execution. A visit to the filtration plant is well worth while. It is both entertaining and instructive.

Let us take a guide and go through the plant.

"The filtration system used in Baltimore is known as the 'mechanical' to distinguish it from others, such as the slow sand and other washing types," explains the guide.

"With the slow sand type the output is from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 gallons of water a day to the acre of filter. With a tremendous acreage it would be possible to give any needed supply, but a large area would be needed because to clean such a filter it is necessary to close a section while the sand was being scraped off and washed in a special washing machine."

"How often does a filter have to be washed?" you ask, wondering why, with such a quantity of water passing through it, it should need laundering.

"At least once a month," is the reply, "and you would be astonished to see the enormous amount of dirt that is taken from the water.

"Now with the mechanical filter—and this is how it gets its name—the filtering and the washing is done almost automatically, or at least mechanically. The water passes through the filter at the rate of 125,000,000 gallons to the acre each day; at least that is the capacity.

"When once the sand is placed in this filter it doesn't have to be touched again. When it gets dirty we wash it where it is. This will be explained in detail when we come to it."

The pumps.

Having thus implanted in your mind the difference between the filtration systems you are anxious to see the plant in operation and you accompany the guide to the pump house, which is the beginning of things. Here you gaze into the pump pit and see, arranged around the bottom of it a number of pumps, each with its own electric motor.

"Here is where the water comes into the filtration plant," explains the guide. "From the reservoir in the hills the water comes through a 12-foot tunnel into a 16-foot shaft that drops 70 feet below the surface of the ground. This shaft acts as a suction chamber for the pumps which you see are arranged around it on radial lines.

"Each pump is independent of the others, as you will notice, and they are installed that way to not only give absolute control, but should one or more be disabled the others cannot be affected. These pumps drive the water into an 8-foot conduit in which is located the meter which has the odd-sounding name of Venturi, after its inventor, and leads to the Head House."

Having given this information, the guide conducts you to the Head House, and you see the registering apparatus. "This meter performs two distinct duties. One is to accurately measure every gallon of water as it passes through the filtration plant, the other is to control the exact quantity of chemicals that are needed to purify the water."

Chemicals used.

"Chemicals play an important part in the purification of water," says the guide. "These are very ordinary chemicals to be sure, nothing but common lime, hypochlorite of lime and sulphate of iron. We buy them by the ton."

"But how can you tell how much to use?" you ask.

"We find that part of the work a little more difficult than the remainder for that is one of the things that is not done mechanically. The chemists who are continually taking samples of the raw water make their analysis from time to time and they know just what percentage of each of the chemicals to add to each million gallons of water. Then they set the controlling apparatus on the meter which causes the mechanical mixers to add the chemicals in proper proportion.

"Come, we will look at the mixers," adds the guide, and you follow him until you stop in front of two huge revolving drums.

"Before the water reaches to where these machines add the chemicals," explains the guide, "it passes through a stilling chamber where it has the opportunity to be quiet for a while. Passing through this chamber and having the chemicals added, it passes to the mixing basins where it is very much agitated and the chemicals are thoroughly dissolved."

Coagulating basins

"From the mixing chamber the water passes into the coagulating basins. By this time the chemicals have formed what are called floc, which very much resemble the small particles formed by sour cream when placed in coffee, and having a consistency very much like the white of an egg. These floc being sticky, they attract the bacteria and other suspended matter in the water, and by the time it has passed through the coagulating stage settles to the bottom.

"By this time the original number of bacteria, something like 10,000 to the cubic centimetre, has been reduced to 50 to the cubic centimetre so that the death rate to these germs has been rather heavy. Water that contains any less than 100 is generally regarded as fit for drinking..

"Bacteria, incidentally does not always mean just what people think it does. The word has become so associated with disease and filth that most persons do not understand that by far the greater number are friendly or harmless to the human system. Without the usual variety, fermentation could not take place and food could not be digested or assimilated. However, the idea of chemically purifying water is to quickly get rid of the harmful bacteria.

"It is seen, that in the coagulating basins, nearly all the suspended matter is eliminated and it is this suspended matter which is largely earth, that discolors the water. This discoloration of the water is called by the water works people, turbidity and there are times directly after rains, when the turbidity will amount to 500 parts per million, or in plain English, 4,165 pounds to the million gallons.

"These coagulating basins are nothing more than huge tanks built of reinforced concrete, through which it takes a given particle of water about three hours to pass, after which it passes to the filter tanks. There are 32 of these and each has a capacity of 4,000,000 gallons per day. Each tank is 55 1-2 feet long, 32 feet wide and 9 feet deep. They are supported on groined arches and the space between and under the arches form a portion of the reservoir for the filtered water."

The filter beds.

"Next the water goes to the filter beds. These beds look something like the coagulating basins," says the guide, "but they are different. They are divided into two compartments by concrete walls spaced 30 inches apart. On the floor of each compartment are a series of concrete ridge blocks 5 inches high and spaced three inches apart, each space being covered with semi-elliptical bronze strainer plates, the holes in the latter being 3-32 inches in diameter.

"Over these plates is 14 inches of well graded gravel and over the gravel is 24 inches of sand. Thus it is a sand and gravel filter and the water, by reason of its own weight, percolates through the sand and gravel into the conduits below and through pipes to the filtered water reservoir.

"The filtered water reservoir is an underground structure of reinforced concrete divided into two parts, each containing 7,500,000 gallons. The illustration shows the construction and appearance of the filtered water reservoir when empty.

"Now of course we cannot see the sand to know when it is getting dirty, but as it gradually accumulates the sediment the flow becomes lessened and this is duly registered by the loss of head gages.

Washing the filters.

"There are 3-12 in. centrifugal pumps to supply wash water for cleaning the filters and this water is forced into elevated tanks from which it flows by gravity back to the filter tanks entering at the bottom, thus driving to the top of the sand, all the dirt that has been gathered and running the dirty water off through suitable troughs to a basin located near the plant. Here it is allowed to settle and the settled water overflows a dam into a neighboring stream.

"It is very simple in operation. It only requires 100,000 gallons of water for each washing of a filter. For this washing, filtered water is used so as to keep the gravel and sand as clean as possible."

Automatic control is one of the features of the Baltimore filtration plant, so that it is really a mechanical plant.

"But why is the filtered water kept under ground?" you ask, having in mind that sunlight and air is so generally recommended as good for so many things.

"That is to prevent the generation of algae," says the guide, and while you are wondering who or what algae is you are informed that it is an organism that has the peculiarity of thriving in pure water and in the sunlight but which has the faculty for giving the water a rather unpleasant odor and taste.

Demand varies.

"In a large city the demands for water vary considerably at different times of the day and on different days of the year. For instance in the middle of the night the demand for water is less. In the middle of the day, when factories are running and when hundreds of thousands of families are cooking the demand is probably at the highest. It is noticeable that the demand is heavy on Mondays (wash day) in Baltimore. Whenever there is a big fire there is an appreciable increase in the demand for water.

"Here is where the filter controllers come in. The filtered water is not supplied to the city direct but, as mentioned, goes to reservoirs. It is the object to keep the water in these reservoirs at a steady level. If the water goes higher than the pre-determined mark then the controllers close down the supply. Should the reservoir water drop then the controllers permit a larger amount of water to pass through.

"Should it become necessary for the city to suddenly receive a supply of water in excess of the capacity of the filters—in an emergency such as a great conflagration—on almost a moment's notice it would be possible to entirely eliminate the filtration plant by the mere closing of one valve and the opening of another and the contents of the 12-foot tunnel could be run direct to the reservoir, thence into the street mains.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

NEED A MODERN AERIAL TRUCK

Experts Expected to Recommend That Old Hook and Ladder Be Disposed of.

MAY SAVE MANY LIVES

Plan to Put Tractor on Old Apparatus Not Believed Possible—Firemen Need Machine That Can Be Handled with Speed.

One of the improvements in the fire and police departments of the city of Plainfield that the experts of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research are expected to recommend when they submit reports on which they are now working is the immediate installation of a modern automobile hook and ladder truck. While no advance information can be secured on the report of these experts it is said that Mr. Driscoll, the fire and police expert, has repeatedly expressed himself as of the opinion that the city needs an aerial truck more than it needs any other improvement of any kind in either department.

The hook and ladder now in use has been in active service in Plainfield for twenty years. It has given good returns for the money invested and is still the only piece of apparatus that can be depended upon to remove people from high buildings. It has been suggested that an automobile tractor be put on the old truck, but experts are of the opinion that this would not be feasable. As one expressed it, "If you ever put a tractor on that old truck, you would have to hire a wagon to follow it around and pick up the pieces." Mr. Driscoll is expected to oppose this plan in his official report. The old truck could be disposed of for a good sum.

The principal argument for a modern new truck is that it answers calls in all parts of the city. Speed, therefore is necessary. Firemen want ladders that can be raised in a few seconds and can be moved without valuable loss of time. If a large number of people should be caught on a third or fourth story of a downtown building now they would be in danger, according to one student of fire fighting methods, and he means no reflection on the ability or courage of local firemen. In fact he called attention to the number of times they are called upon to display a heroism that would not be necessary if they were given adequate apparatus.

With the new combination engine soon to be ordered for the Netherwood station and the aerial truck that experts are expected to recommend the Plainfield fire department will be practically motorized, and one of the things for which Chief Doane has been fighting for years will be brought about. Chairman Cose, of the fire committee, has also been in favor of motorizing the department as fast as city finances would allow.

SUFFERS PARALYTIC STROKE.

While entertaining company at her home at 10 o'clock last night, Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, was suddenly striken with a severe paralytic stroke which affected her entire left side. She was immediately placed in bed and Doctors G. W. Endicott and D. C. Adams responded to hurry calls. Mrs. Warnock is able to converse today but otherwise her condition remains about the same as when she was first stricken. Mr. Warnock was not home at the time, being manager of a bakery at Orange, but was summoned here by telephone.

WORK ON POSTOFFICE NOT A REGULAR JOB

Italian up for Failure to Provide Fails to Establish Alibi.

That a man must have a more steady job than working on the new postoffice if he wants to prove he is regularly employed was shown in police court this morning when Judge De Meza refused to accept the alibi of Antonio Miganicone. Antonio was charged with failing to provide for his wife and three children. She said he would not work.

He insisted that he had a regular job, and when asked who with, said he was employed by the contractor building the new postoffice. "Go get yourself a job where you work regular," Judge De Meza told him. "And if you are ever in this court again for failing to take care of your wife and children I will send you to Elizabeth for a long, long time."

MIDDLESEX COURT BEGINS APRIL TERM

Grand Jury to Go After Violators of Whiskey Laws in County.

New Brunswick, April 5.—Sidney Riddlestorffer, until recently cashier of the Perth Amboy Trust Company, was named foreman of the grand jury yesterday by Justice James J. Bergen on the opening of the April term. Justice Bergen called the jury's attention to the alleged violations of the excise laws in Middlesex county as reported to the court by Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricked.

The December term grand jury completed its work by handing in four indictments and a presentment. The latter called attention to the large number of cases due to people carrying concealed weapons, and recommended that the municipal authorities pass ordinances forbidding the display of firearms in showcases or show windows. It was also recommended that the advertising of firearms be forbidden.

Judge Peter F. Daly told the jurors their course met with the hearty approval of the court, and the matter will be brought to the attention of the municipalities of the county. At a banquet held by the jurors, a gold watch was presented to the foreman, Henry G. Parker.

JOSEPH C. SMITH DIES IN SIXTY-NINTH YEAR

Joseph C. Smith, a former well-known resident of Somerville, who has been residing on Rock avenue, this city for a numger of years, died yesterday after a long illness. He was sixty-nine years old and a machinist by trade. Beside his widow, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. L. Mason, of East Orange, and one son, Leon L. Smith, of Rock avenue, who has been in the passenger service of the New Jersey Central for the past fifteen years. Funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the Mortuary chapel of J. J. & C. A. Higgins, on West Fourth street, and will be conducted by Rev. W. N. Bailey, assistant rector of Grace Episcopal church. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

NO MONEY FROM THE RAILROAD

New Jersey Central Will Not Help Local Men Advertise Plainfield.

OFFER IS WITHDRAWN

Board of Trade Not Discouraged, However, and May Ask for $15,000 Under Provisions of Kate's Law.

The proposition of the Central Railroad of New Jersey that it spend one dollar iin advertising Plainfield for every one appropriated by the commercial organizations of this city for that purpose has been withdrawn, according to an announcement made at last night's meeting of the Board of Trade. John J. Carroll said that the company was not in a positioin to make this offer because, if it spent money advertising Plainfield, every other city on the road would have a right to demand an appropriation.

Members of the Board of Trade have not given up their plan to advertise this city, however. Last night they discussed the Kates' law, which gives to municipalities in the State of New Jersey the right to use one-twentieth of one per cent. of its assessed valuation for advertising purposes. If this law should be taken advantage of here a fund of $15,000 a year would be available for publicity.

The Board voted to give $50 toward the entertainment of the New Jersey Letter Carriers' convention, which meets in this city, May 30. It was also decided that more active support should be given local letter carriers in their efforts to raise an amount sufficient for the care of visitors here at the convention, and a committee consisting of T. O. Doane, Jr., J. J. Carroll, E. M. Laing and Jacob Sacher was named to meet with the Citizens' Committee Friday evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Hall, when a new campaign for finances will be launched

The proposed consolidation of all commercial organizations in the city was discussed, but a committee named to treat with the Chamber of Commerce on this subject was unable to report.

"MYSTIC ROSE" REHEARSALS BEGIN TOMORROW NIGHT

The first rehearsal for the big comic opera, "The Mystic Rose," which will be given in the Plainfield Theatre on the evenings of May 2 and 3, under the auspices of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, will take place at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the lodge room of the Elks' Club house on Watchung avenue.

The committee in charge of the affair has been very busy during the past two weeks making preliminary arrangements and securing talent. The composer and producer, Robert P. Skilling, took up his residence in Plainfield today, and the reports he received from the committee have been most encouraging. It is believed that the Elks will have no trouble at all in securing local men and women to participate, not only in the chorus, but also for the leading parts. While Mr. Skilling stated that he could produce a very creditable performance with a chorus of one hundred, composed of sixty ladies and forty gentlemen, twice this number can be used to advantage.

The committee wishes that everyone who can sing will attend the first rehearsal and not take it for granted that no more talent is needed, because of the fact that such a large number have signified their intention to take part. All those who wish to take part are requested to be at the Elks' home tomorrow evening promptly at 8 o'clock, when Mr. Skilling will outline the work of the opera and give all other desired information.

HORSE KILLED WHEN RUNAWAY HITS HIM

A horse attached to the wagon of Charles Arnold, ran away on West Second street shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. At the intersection of Park avenue the horse ran into a wagon belonging to F. E. Van Nest, and the Van Nest horse was knocked down. His leg was broken and Patrolman Bebout, who was called to the scene of the accident, found it necessary to shoot the animal.

SUPT. AUNGST ON VOTER OF TOMORROW

How Civilization Should Teach Its Children Duties of Citizenship.

D. Fred Aungst, supervising principal of the borough schools, delivered an address on "The Voter of Tomorrow," before the members of the North Plainfield Republican Club at their meeting last evening. An additional feature was the presentation of a musical program under the direction of Howard Woolston. Among those who took part were Lemuel Woolston, Jr., Howard Allegar, Warren Vroom, and John Cooper and Sy Morgan, both of Warrenville. Messrs. Cooper and Morgan sang the latest ragtime songs and endeavored to do a little of the Vernon Castle stuff. They were vigorously encored.

The subject upon which Mr. Aungst spoke should be of interest to every citizen, representing as it does a question which this country should ever consider. Mr. Aungst's speech was prepared with evident thought and care and delivered with great effect. It was, in part, as follows:

"Fifty years ago most people believed that readin', 'ritin', 'rithmetic and spellin' were the only things that could and should be taught in the public schools. Such a thing as training for citizenship was practically unheard of and unspoken of. A few leaders dreamed of it, but their voices were heard about as loudly as the still small voice of conscience is heard in the breast of the sinner. Democracy in America and Europe, however, has made large strides during this half century. Its faults and evils have received close study. Men have traveled back over the road from effects to causes, and have discovered that the foundations of good citizenship must be laid when the future citizen is in the making. Plainly, then, the golden time is in youth, when impressions are formed. Three institutions of human society must do this work. They are the home, the school, and the church. A portion of the homes in human society do their duty in this matter, some schools do a little also, and the church contributes its portion to those it reaches.

"The three combined, however, have failed miserably; they have fizzled their job scandalously, if one judges by the election scandals of Philadelphia, the righteousness of Tammany and the notorious subway deal of New York City, the Schmitz gang of San Francisco, etc., etc. For we must bear in mind the voters are to blame for such conditions. They allow them. They even vote for them. Many of these same voters are parents—heads of households. How can such fathers 'put across' to their sons the principles of clean, honest and sound government, if they themselves do not think clearly and vote wisely? It is the muddy thinking of the thick-witted average voter who is responsible for the low plane of democracy as we know it. Some would say it is 'mobocracy,' wherein the blind are driven by the one-eyed.

"And how shall our ideals be attained? You say that much time is given to the subject of civil government in our public school curriculum. That should suffice. Little that is valuable in attaining these ideals is taught. The skeleton of constitutional law is given. Pupils learn the names of offices and the salaries attached to the officers occupying them, but seldom do they hear a hint at morality and honesty of the office incumbent. It belongs to the teacher to fix such ideals and the instruction must not be formal. He who is not a living personification of refinement, of beauty, sincerity, truth, righteousness, cannot kindle in the hearts of his pupils these higher ideals. Formal instruction of ethical principles has little value when coming from the lips of a hypocrite. What pupils will respect a teacher cheering for 'Old Glory' when he holds his position by political favoritism, or by actual purchase! What an inspiration such a teacher is to civic righteousness!

"When the children have spent their time for 200 days in the year in clean and beautiful school buildings surrounded by the elevating influence of intelligent teachers, when they are taught that there is something better than gaining a few cents or a few dollars to spend for sensuous gratification of a more sensuous appetite; when they have been trained in this way for twelve school years, they will not readily forget these lessons after they shall have entered the ranks of the wage earner. They will feel that wags must not go for the gratification of the appetite, but for the elevation of the standard of life and thus fulfill Emerson's saying: 'The true test of civilization is the kind of man the country turns out.'"

HOCKING DISTRICT METS.

Logan, O., April 5.—The annual convention of the mine-workers of the Hocking coal district, always known as the basing district of the State in the coal industry, opened here today. The delegates expect to complete their work by Saturday, and to join with the committee of operators in a session next week, at which the future basis of wages and employment conditions will be discussed.

OBSERVED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Corsa Entertained in Honor of Fiftieth Anniversary.

MANY GUESTS PRESENT

Couple Were Married at West Farms, New York, on April 4, 1866—Residents of Plainfield for Twenty-six Years.

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Corsa, of 1340 Putnam avenue, entertained about 125 friends at their home last night. Beside those from this city, the guests came from New York, Long Island, Westfield, New Brunswick, Woodbridge, Westwood and other places. Both celebrants were showered with congratulations and received numerous reminders of the occasion in the form of many beautiful presents appropriate to a golden nuptial event.

The parlor and dining room of the home were attractively decorated in a combination of yellow and white, the yellow being symbolical of the golden date and the white, formed mostly of artificial cherry blossoms, to recall the fact that the cherry trees were in full bloom the day Mr. and Mrs. Corsa were married. Both told the guests about it last night and contrasted the beautiful spring weather that prevailed in 1866 as against the backward season that has been experienced this year. Refreshments were served during the hours from 4 until midnight, as most of the time was devoted to receiving and enjoying a program of music and dancing. Paroubek's full orchestra provided the accompaniments and also rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march at opportune occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Corsa were assisted in receiving by their daughter, Mrs. Lillian C. Kelly, and their granddaughter, Mrs. L. R. Stewart. The ladies who assisted in serving were Mrs. G. W. Frutchey and Mrs. Ernest Wilcox, of Westfield, and Mrs. James Christopher, of New York. The festivities terminated in the early hours of this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Corsa were married at the Dutch Reformed church, in West Farms, New York, on April 4, 1866. Mrs. Corsa's maiden name was Miss Louisa Traub, her parents being residents of West Farms. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Van Wyck, and of the briday party, only one of the bridesmaids is living. This is Mrs. Andrew Coles, of Williamsbridge, who had arranged to be at the celebration last night, but who was prevented at the last moment because of illness. A telegram was received from her during the evening, telling the cause of her absence and wishing congratulations to the happy couple.

For a number of years after their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Corsa resided in various parts of New York and Brooklyn, but in 1872, removed to Milford, Delaware, where they made their home for eighteen years. They came to Plainfield from the latter city, residing here since 1890. The couple have but one daughter, Mrs. Kelley; one granddaughter, Mrs. Stewart, and one great granddaughter, Mildred C. Stewart. The last-named was among those at the golden anniversary, and the four generations presented a most charming picture. Both Mr. and Mrs. Corsa are in the possession of good health, and the good wishes from friends last night that they live to see many more anniversaries will undoubtedly be fulfilled. Mr. Corsa had a long period of service as an employe in the New York Customs House, and later held an official position in the New York street cleaning department during the regime of Colonel George S. Waring. He has been in retirement from active work for the past four years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Corsa have a host of friends and acquaintances throughout Plainfield and vicinity, although neither have taken active part in organized affairs. Mr. Corsa has never sought public office locally, but keeps in close touch with municipal doings both here and in New York, and it is a distinct pleasure to converse with him on these matters.

J. J. CARROLL MAY GET CLERKSHIP, IS REPORT

John J. Carroll, chairman of the City Republic Committee, who is prominently mentioned as a successor to former City Clerk James T. MacMurray, it is rumored, has nine of the eleven councilmen pledged for the appointment and his friends feel confident that he will be elected clerk when the Council fills the vacancy. Mr. Carroll was a candidate for the office some time ago, when the Council and Mr. MacMurray had some differences over the latter's re-appointment.

It is the opinion of many who are in touch with the situation that a city clerk will not be named until after the city survey report is presented and accepted by the Council. Mayor Calkins and members of the Council are known to be in favor of the plan of having the next clerk devote all of his time to the office and it is understood that Mr. Carroll has agreed to this if he gets the position.

BABIES BURNED AS THEY CARRY FIRE

Isaac Goldford and Sarah Walkiss Start Barn Burning on Sixth Street.

Isaac Goldford and Sarah Walkiss, both under four years of age, were badly burned shortly before noon today while playing with fire in the rear of the Goldford home, at 422 East Sixth street. The children were at play in the back yard. They found some grass afire and attempted to carry it into the barn. The building was soon ablaze and it was necessary to call out firemen from headquarters to prevent the flames from spreading. Both children were scorched about the face and arms. Dr. Currie attended them and they were not sent to the hospital. The barn was the only building touched by the fire.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST TRIM OVER-HANGING HEDGES

Acting upon the request of the councilmanic street committee, the police are now busily engaged in notifying property-owners that where they have hedges and shrubbery overhanging the sidewalk or any part of a public thoroughfare, they must trim the same. The street committee has received many complaints about overhanging hedges and has decided to make a general "clean-up" throughout the city.

BORO POLICE TO HELP HANDLE TABERNACLE CROWDS

Mayor W. L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, has announced that policemen there will be ready to cooperate with the men of Police Chief Kiely in any manner possible during the Biederwolf evangelistic campaign. Only a few policemen will be needed for this work. Chief Kiely will have charge of the men detailed to handle the Tabernacle crowds and he has been assured that he can call on borough police whenever they are needed.

HOWARD CARTER DIRECTOR OF $25,000 CORPORATION

Howard Carter, of this city, is one of the directors of the United Motor Fuel Corporation of Manhattan, just organized, it being the first step toward the formation by automobile men of a company for the manufacture of gasoline on a large scale and at prices lower than those now prevailing. The company was incorporated at Albany, N. Y., yesterday, chartered with an initial capital of $25,000. The corporation is to begin business with $5,000.

PLAINFIELD AERIE, F. O. E., HOLDS CLASS INITIATION

Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, Fraternal Order of Eagles, initiated thirty candidates at its meeting last night, the work being done by the initiatory team of the local aerie. There were present delegations from Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Somerville and Rahway Aeries.

Following the initiation there was an informal musical program, a "spread" and other features much enjoyed by the Eagles. Plainfield Aerie has been making excellent progress during the past few months, the increase in membership being notable.

LARGE GATHERING AT JOHN DEADY'S FUNERAL

The funeral of John Deady, who died at his home on Liberty street, Sunday morning after a long illness, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. A high mass of requiem was said by Rev. Father McDonald in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The latter included a number of Public Service Railway officials from the central division and employes from the local lines. The flowers were very numerous and beautiful, among them being large set pieces from the Public Service Railway Employes' Beneficial Association, St. Mary's Social Club, and the employes of Schiller Brothers, where members of Mr. Deady's family are employed.

Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being three representatives of the local trolley system, with which Mr. Deady was connected for twenty years, these being Patrick Maguire, Charles Delahunt and Michael Nevins, also three friends, Joseph Minor, Joseph Deady and John Sheehan.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Former Councilman and Mrs. William L. Gloak, of West Second street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Isabelle Victoria Gloak, to George R. Lyman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Lyman, of the borough. The wedding will take place this spring.

GERMANS LOSE GROUND

French Drive Them Back North of Callette Woods—Kaiser's Fleet Seen Off Coast of Norway—Two Austrian Seaplanes Lost.

The Hague, April 5.—It is officially announced by the government of Holland that the withdrawal of the furlough from all in the military service is a precautionary measure in connection with the maintenance of neutrality, and that this step is based on certain indications foreshadowing an increase of Holland's dangers, the nature of which it is not to the interest of the country to reveal.

WILL PROTEST TO LANSING.

The British Government has ordered an official investigation of the torpedoing of the schooner Elsina Halera, in the North Sea. As soon as soon as evidence has been secured from the crew a protest will be sent to Germany.

FRENCH MAKE ADVANCES.

Paris, April 5.—The French advance on the Verdun front east of the Meuse has driven the Germans out of their positions in the Callette Wood. The War Office, in its official statement, today, announced that the French have advanced to the German communication trenches, north of Callette Wood. There has been a terrific bombardment of the German positions in the Woevre district, west of the Meuse river, on the front northwest of Verdun. The night was comparatively quiet. The Germans delivered infantry attacks against the French position in Lorraine during the night, but all were repulsed, the War Office states.

More Neutral Ships Sunk.

London, April .—Three more unarmed neutral merchant ships have been sunk by German submarines, besides a British merchantman. The British ship Bender was torpedoed and one member of the crew lost. The neutral ships sunk were the Spanish steamship Vigo, the Norwegian schooner Bell and the Dutch schooner Elzina Halers.

Germans Sank the Sussex.

W. H. Page, American Ambassador to England, announced today that an analysis of the fragments of torpedo found on the Channel liner Sussex had proved conclusively that they were German. The fragments

U. S. TROOPS KILL MORE MEXICANS

No Americans Hurt in Latest Battle With Bandits of Villa.

Columbus, New Mexico, April 5.—More than thirty of a band of Villa bandits were killed and many more wounded in a running fight with about 200 of the Tenth United States Cavalry, colored, in the latest clash between Americans and Mexicans, according to reports received here last night. Villa was not with his men. They were led by Manuel Lopez, who led the raid on Columbus. Not a single American soldier was wounded. Troops are still following the bandits over mountain passes, but they separated as soon as the shooting began and, so far, no prisoners are reported taken.

Villa Not Wounded.

El Paso, Texas, April 5.—There was no truth in the report that Villa has been wounded, according to authentic information received here. Carranza troops have issued statements to the effect that the bandit leader was shot in the leg in a recent battle and that the limb was amputated. Several who have seen the outlaw since then say he is apparently in the best of health, although worried by the fierce flight from American troops.

SESAME CLUB.

The Sesame Club will meet at 10:30 tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. O. S. Rogers, 645 West Seventh street.

GEORGE WASHINGTON RANDOLPH DIES; VICTIM OF A BROKEN HEART

George Washington Randolph, colored by birth, but the possessor of noble instincts and ambitions akin to those generally found in his more favored white brethren, died at 11 o'clock this morning at his home on West Fourth street, ostensibly of the infirmities of age but in reality of a broken heart. Unable to withstand the severance of the ties of years by the destruction of the Vanderbeek building, where he acted as janitor for a long time and where he had the warm fellowship of everyone of its many inmates, he withdrew to his humble abiding place and gradually pined away. From the very day that he was told his old quarters were to be razed to make way for a more modern structure he ceased to smile and those who have known him as a jovial old colored man with a disposition that was sunshine itself realized that he and the structure would pass into memory together. Their forebodings were corroborated today when the simple message came from the undertaker's office that George Randolph had met his death. "Old age and complications" was the stereotype diagnosis for the demise, but in the Daily Press plant and others who had been intimate with him for more than a decade this explanation only produced a grim smile.

Practically all of the other residents of Plainfield knew George Randolph and George knew them. He was born here in 1838, when the color line was not drawn as it is sometimes nowadays and he grew up with the boys of the town. To some in after life he was always known as "Uncle George" and to others as "Colonel," the title conferred upon him as a mark of respect for his honorable record as a marine in the Civil War. They all liked him because he was likeable and having gone to the same swimming hole with him and in the brief time that he was allowed in school studied lessons with him, they considered him one of the old crowd. As a young man he was employed by the Leonard family, one of Plainfield's oldest; the Pyatt family at Samptown, where he learned milling, and with the French family, of which the late Phineas M. French was his especial guardian, when the latter had his mill on Somerset street. He was also employed for a time by the Lambert family at "Dog Corners," when the oldest members operated one of the largest and best known distilleries in New Jersey.

At the outbreak of the Civil War George Randolph expressed a desire to go, but his employers prevailed upon him to wait. His patriotic instinct chafed under the restraint, and finally on May 31, 1864, he threw aside all objections and enlisted in the United States navy at the Brooklyn Navy Yard as a "landsman." A month later he was in active service in Southern waters, having been assigned to the U. S. S. Ohio. He was later transferred, and in August, 1864, when Admiral Farragut fought his memorable battle with the forts

THRILLING RESCUES IN DUNELLEN FIRE

Mrs. Belle Schneiper and Mrs. W. G. Huenke Both Severely Burned in Blaze.

The fire department was called out last evening by a fire in William G. Huenke's home, No. 430 Dunellen avenue. Although the firemen responded quickly, the blaze was out by the time they arrived at the home. It had been extinguished by Mrs. Huenke, Mrs. Letitia Clawson, a neighbor, and by two unknown young men who happened to be passing the home at the time.

The fire was in the front bedroom, which is occupied by Mrs. Huenke's aged mother, Mrs. Belle Schneiper, who retired about 8:15. Her room is lighted by gas, and instead of waiting until she was near the gas jet before striking a match, she struck one in the hall outside of the room, with the result that by the time she succeeded in lighting the gas it had burned so close to her fingers that she was obliged to drop it. It landed on the bed, setting the counterpane on fire. Mrs. Schneiper endeavored to beat the fire out with her bare hands, but was unable to do so.

Mrs. Huenke was fortunately upstairs in the next room with her two children. She smelled smoke and then heard the crackling of flames. She ran into her mother's room and found her on her knees alongside the bed beating the blazing covers with her hands. The flames were shooting up all around the aged woman, and it is considered a miracle that her clothing was not set on fire.

Mrs. Huenke drew her mother away from the bed and out of the room. Then she ran into the adjoining room and got her two children and hurried downstairs. Mrs. Clawson and her brother, John Campbell, responded to a call for help. The latter summoned the fire department.

In the meantime, Mrs. Huenke, with the assistance of Mrs. Clawson and others, were strenuously fighting the flames which had spread to other parts of the room. The fire was put out just as the firemen arrived.

The damage done by the fire is estimated at $50. The bed clothes were burned to a crisp and the wall paper, some wearing apparel, the curtains in the room and a number of rugs were ruined.

Mrs. Schneiper's hands were both badly burned, and she is suffering greatly from shock, and Mrs. Clawson had three of her fingers quite badly burned.

BOARD MUST CARE FOR BLIND BOY

State Authorities Inform Local Body it is a Case for Charity Organization.

Principally routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education held last evening at the Lincoln School. A communication was received from the State department relative to the case of the blind boy which was considered several months ago by the Board. It stated that the State would be unable to do anything for the lad as it is entirely a matter for the local charity organization. The Board will endeavor to find some means of caring for the boy. It was voted to close the schools for the spring vacation from Friday, April 14, to Monday, April 24.

The superintendent's report showed an enrollment of 253 boys and 232 girls during the month with a percentage of attendance of 88. A total of 1,274 days were lost during the month as follows:

Sickness, 823½; quarantine, 57; bad health, 102½; at work, 167½; unfit clothing, 19½; pleasure, 33; other reasons, 71.

The superintendent reported that W. C. O'Neil attended the meeting of the supervising principals of the county at New Brunswick last Saturday in his place as he had been unable to attend.

He also reported that the State efficiency tests will commence on May 31 and continue to June 2; that fire drills held in the schools during the month had demonstrated that either building could be emptied in a minute, and that copies of the pamphlet report prepared by the Board had been distributed about town by W. C. O'Neil. Superintendent Rentschler told the Board that their action in having this done had elicited favorable comment from the citizens.

PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL ELECTS OFFICERS

The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Sunday-school yesterday: George Cameron, superintendent; W. B. Salmon, assistant superintendent; J. T. Sutphen, secretary; Albert Ritterbusch, assistant secretary; A. F. Todd, treasurer; Mrs. George Caskey, superintendent intermediate department; Miss Beatrice Cameron, assistant superintendent intermediate department; Mrs. C. B. Mattis, superintendent primary department; Mrs. George Craig, assistant superintendent primary department, and Mrs. C. D. Gooch, superintendent home department. The reports of the year showed a very flourishing condition. The average attendance was 146.

GERALD SOUKUP WEDS MISS MARY WISNEWSKI

Miss Mary Sofia Wisniewski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wisniewski, of 957 West Third street, Plainfield, and Gerald A. Soukop, son of Mrs. Antonie Soukup, of 753 Bou Brook road, of this place, were quietly married on Saturday afternoon by the Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The ceremony was performed at the church manse. The couple was attended by Miss Milena Soukup, a sister of the groom, and Elmer Van Derveer Conover, of Plainfield. As the members of the bridal party were leaving the manse they were greeted by a large crowd of young boys, who somehow or other had gotten wind of the affair. The lads were well supplied with rice, which they used generously. The party hurried into an automobile and were conveyed to the groom's home, where a large gathering of relatives were waiting to tender their congratulations to the bride and groom.

A wedding supper was served at 7 o'clock and the evening was pleasantly spent, the feature of the program being music and dancing. The music was furnished by Miss Milena Soukup.

The couple are making their home permanently with the groom's mother. Both are well known here and in Plainfield. The groom is employed at the South Plainfield plant of the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Company. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, Freedom Castle, No. 42, and a member of the local Presbyterian church.

LECTURE ON IRRIGATION.

The pupils of the Plainfield High School listened to a very interesting lecture this morning on "Recovering the Arid Lands of the West," delivered by Prof. Morris, of Rutgers College. He showed many stereopticon views of the twenty-seven projects the government is working on in the western States and explained each one. Starting from the very beginning of the irrigation movement, Prof. Morris related some of the dangers encountered by government workers in building dams, digging canals and constructing tunnels in order to make millions of acres of land useful. The students were greatly interested and gave him a big ovation at the end of his lecture.

SIMPLE FUNERAL HERE FOR CAPTAIN W. D. PARLIN

A simple funeral service was held at "Sunbright," the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Eaton, at Watchung, this afternoon, over the body of Captain William D. Parlin, father of Mrs. Eaton, who died suddenly during Sunday night. Only the members of the family and a few intimate friends were in attendance. Rev. Dr. R. F. Y. Pierce, of this city, was the officiating clergyman, assisted by Rev. Dr. Eaton. The casket was devoid of flowers, and as a mark of appreciation for his services in the Civil War, the captain's cap and sword were placed beside the body.

At Natick, Mass., the birthplace of Captain Parlin, a funeral with full military honors will be accorded tomorrow, the body being sent here late this afternoon. The surviving members of the captain's company will be in charge, and the hundreds of friends in Natick will attend the service in the First Baptist church, where he was organist and choirmaster for forty years. Burial will be in the family plot at Natick.

RED LETTER BIBLE OFFERED TO PRESS READERS AT COST

Nowhere in all the centuries of recorded speech will you ever find so brief and comprehensive a summary of the moral obligations due from one man to another as in the Ten Commandments. They form the basis of all the law, written and unwritten, that has ruled and guided mankind from the time of Hummurabai until the present. But they are only one of the inspired features that make the Bible the Book of Books, whose teachings have guided mankind for centuries. The big print Red Letter Edition, offered by the Daily Press to its readers is the most comfortable and convenient form in which the Bible is printed. Suppose you read the coupon offer in today's paper, elsewhere. You ought to have a copy for your family and yourself.—Adv.

UNION PRAYER SERVICES ANNOUNCED FOR TONIGHT

There will be three union prayer meetings in the city this evening. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, will lead group number one in the First M. E. church, where the First Presbyterian, First Baptist, First M. E., Trinity Reformed, Temple Baptist and Netherwood churches will unite. The meeting of the second group comprising the Park Avenue Baptist, Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Congregational and Seventh-Day Baptist churches will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. It will be an open meeting and Rev. Dr. Zelie will preside. At the third group meeting in the Grace M. E. church, where the congregations of the Warren chapel and the Wilson Memorial chapel will unite with the Grace M. E. church. Rev. Dr. C. S. Gillespie will be the leader. Rev. Charles F. Raach, a member of the Biederwolf party, will speak at First M. E. church at 8:15, at the Grace M. E. church at 8:30 and at the Crescent Avenue church at 8:45 o'clock.

ANNIVERSARY SALE.

Beginning tomorrow and lasting for the ten days following, Rosenbaum's Bazaar, on West Front street, will conduct an elaborate anniversary sale in honor of its fourth year of dealing with Plainfield patrons. During the four years this store has catered to local trade, it has established a policy for itself that spells dependability and fair dealing, and its many friends will be given an opportunity to reciprocate by visiting the store during the anniversary sale.

CAVALRY KILL 30 OF VILLA'S MEN

U. S. Troops Engage Bandits at Aguascalientes.

NO AMERICANS ARE LOST

Villistas Are Surprised While at Their Siesta — Many of Their Horses Are Taken — More Soldiers Needed and Use of Railways Becomes Imperative.

San Antonio, Tex., April 5.—One of the groups of Villa's force was defeated Saturday by a squadron of the Tenth cavalry, under Colonel W. C. Brown, was the information received by General Pershing and forwarded to General Funston. It is said that the band was surprised when at their siesta.

In this engagement, the second the American troops have had with Villa's men, the bandits' loss was estimated at from thirty to forty killed. No mention of American loss was made.

Colonel Brown's encounter with the Mexicans had not been reported to General Pershing when he made his report to General Funston, whose information was gained from friendly Mexicans who had arrived at a point near Rubio, where Major Evans of the Tenth cavalry halted.

Major Evans reported that on Saturday Colonel Brown encountered a band of Villa's men and was pursuing them through San Antonio, Chihuahua. Soon afterward Mexicans who arrived from that district declared that they had overtaken the wandering bandits at the village of Aguascalientes, twenty miles southeast of Bachiniva.

Villa's men, according to the Mexicans' version of the encounter, appeared wholly unsuspecting of the presence of an enemy a minute before they were attacked.

Captured Many Horses.

It was about noon when Colonel Brown got his cavalry within easy range. The Mexicans were lying about the place, many of them asleep, and all their horses were grazing, in many cases some distance from the men. Details of the action were not told, but the Mexicans said that besides those killed the Americans captured about forty horses.

General Pershing added that his reports of the engagement lacked confirmation, but his credence of the news was indicated by the fact that he transmitted it to General Funston.

The encounter aroused deep interest at General Funston's headquarters, where additional details were awaited eagerly, but it was realized by officers that the effect of Colonel Brown's fight and of other minor engagements that may occur was only indirect so far as the greater problem of catching Villa is concerned. It was said that engagements of that character might be expected now from time to time, and the running down of the marauding bands was essential to the safety of the American column, but that the only effects so far as Villa was concerned would be to destroy the morale of his supporting force.

More Troops Needed.

The engagement at Aguascalientes only served to strengthen the opinion of officers on General Funston's staff here that if the punitive expedition is to complete its work many more troops must be sent into the country over the Mexican Central railroad from Juarez to Chihuahua and even through Chihuahua to points farther south.

There are known to be other bands operating in the Guerrero district, and a part of the American forces must remain to deal with them while the other part pushes on in pursuit of the fugitive Villa.

The official admission at General Funston's headquarters that the success of the expedition now depends largely on the freer use of the railroads or the material strengthening of the long roundabout line of communication and its branches revealed a situation that, it was believed, might alter the entire plan of pursuit.

Stories of Villa's latest southward shift were credited in official circles, for they came from consular reports in which the outlaw was put well beyond Chihuahua City and evidently trying to reach Parral, or perhaps even Torreon or Durango City. In the vicinity of all those cities there are known to be operating organized forces of Villa's men aggregating some thousands. According to all late reports, Villa appears to be traveling fast.

Must Travel More Quickly.

To meet the new situation, staff officers assert, a quicker means of sending forward troops and supplies should be made, and it was pointed out that the direct Juarez-Chihuahua railroad offered that means, or a large number of troops must be sent to Columbus immediately for campaigning in Mexico.

To re-enforce the line of communication now maintained would require the calling of the few regiments left in the United States other than those engaged in border patrol duty or stationed in the southern department. None of the troops stationed along the border should be used, in the opinion of army officers here, unless they are replaced by other military units. The only remaining regiments that might be called are the Second cavalry and the Third and Thirteenth infantry.

METHODIST WOMEN ENJOY A LUNCHEON

Ladies' Aid Society of First Church Give Annual Birthday Affair.

The birthday luncheon served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, last night, was a distinct success, much praise being allotted the women who had the affair in charge. During the evening, one hundred and twenty-three persons were served. The tables representing the twelve months were attractively decorated with flowers, flags and favors. The June bride was being married at the June table beneath a bower of palms and pink roses; Uncle Sam looked "prepared" behind cannon and giant crackers at the July table; a family party of dolls enjoyed a Thanksgiving feast at the table for November, and Father Time, Santa Claus and many other celebrities, not forgetting St. Patrick and September Morn, for February and September.

Much credit was given Mrs. Matthew Ewart, who composed the clever lines set to oldtime tunes, which were sung in turn by members of the various tables. Probably the best of these were the lines for December, set to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne":

"Our month is last but not the least of all months of the year;
We claim December stands the first for love and peace and cheer.
For love and for cheer, my dear, for love and for cheer;
We'll take a cup o' kindness now for love and for cheer.

Oh, peace on earth, good will to men,
shall be our birthday song;
We sure should start each year with it and sing it all year long
To peace and good will, my dear, to peace and good will;
We'll take a cup o' kindness now to peace and good will."

A feature of the luncheon was a large birthday cake, set with twenty-five yellow candles, flowers and ferns, which received the "twenty-five year" birthday offering between its lighted tapers. A horoscope cast for each month was a source of much pleasure to the large attendance.

Mrs. Arthur Crone, president of the society, and her assistants, were congratulated for the excellent manner in which the entire program was carried out, and the splendid menu offered. The latter consisted of cream of pea soup; meat loaf, creamed potatoes, roll jelly wafers, tomato and orange salad, macedome of fruit, cakes and coffee.

The committee in charge of the tickets and arrangements consisted of the Mesdames Arthur Crone, H. Gee, D. Dunavan, J. Stewart, L. D. Albin and N. Hull. The woman attendants at the various tables were the Mesdames Guy Bender, John Lewis, E. K. Winter, L. D. Albin, G. Whitney, Charles Anderson, D. R. Sherwood, A. Goodenough, A. Osmun, Nelson Miller, S. Tugwell, F. McDonald, M. Ewart, William Burnett, H. W. Henderson, J. Runyon, J. Howell, A. Wadley and Miss Bertha Whitney.

WAR NEWS

have been forwarded to Washington, he also stated.

Germany to Fight On.

Berlin, April 5 (by wireless via Sayville).—German-American relations, the aims of the Germans in the war and the political and military situation in Europe was discussed today by Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, in the most comprehensive speech delivered in the Reichstag since the war began. The Chancellor insisted that the conflict must be fought out to a finish, and that guarantee of peace in Europe must be forthcoming after the conflict is over.

Washington, April 5.—Representative Alexander, of Missouri, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, has appointed a sub-committee to whip into final shape the Administration Shipping Bill, which is one of the important features of the legislative program recommended by President Wilson.

Russian Buyer is Here.

New York, April 5.—The steamer Espagne, of the French Line, arrived here this morning from Bordeaux with 92 passengers and mail. Among the passengers was Prince Andre Poniatowski, who will represent the Russian Government here for the purchase of war supplies.

British Charge Not Proven.

Washington, April 5.—The Department of Justice's investigation of allegations that the North German Lloyd Line's vessels have been used to coal German warships at sea, in violation of the neutrality laws of the United States, has failed to find evidence sufficient to warrant any action against the company, it was said today.

More Fighting in Greece.

Saloniki, April 5.—Great artillery activity has commenced again between the Franco-British forces and the Germans and Bulgarians on the northern border of Greece.

Austrians Lost Seaplanes.

Vienna, April 5.—Loss of two Austrian seaplanes during the attack on the Italian coast on Monday was admitted by the War Office today.

Saw German Squadron.

Copenhagen, April 5.—The Politiken states that a German squadron has been seen off the west coast of Norway.

Smyrna is Bombarded.

Athens, April 5.—Smyrna, on the coast of Asia Minor, has again been bombarded by Allied warships. Forts Santzaki and St. Georg were destroyed, according to information received here today.

Italian War Minister nits.

Rome, April 5.—General Zupelli, Minister of War in the Salandra Cabinet, has resigned, it was announced today. General Morrone will take the port folio.

$250,000 GUGGENHEIM RESIDENCE IS DESTROYED

Long Branch, N. J., April 5.—Fire early today destroyed the magnificent summer residence of Daniel Guggenheim, in Ocean avenue, Elberon, one of the show places of the coast. The house was valued at $250,000. The blaze spread so rapidly that only a small part of the costly furnishings could be saved, although all of the fire apparatus along the coast was called. The cause of the fire is not known.

SCOTT ELECTED DIRECTOR.

Louisville, April 5.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Pacific Company, at Anchorage today, W. B. Scott was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of General Thomas H. Hubbard.

HOUSE BODY APPROVES ARMOR PLATE FACTORY

Washington, April 5.—The House Naval Committee today, by a vote of 15 ayes to 6 noes, ordered a favorable report on the Tillman Armor Plate Bill. The bill was approved without amendment.

COTTAGE MEETINGS CLOSE.

The close of the cottage prayer meetings took place last night. From now on the morning prayer meetings will be held at 9:30 Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, beginning April 11 It was announced this morning that seventy meeting were held last night, and in one district there were as many as fifty-seven present. The total number present in all the districts was 749. The attendance has increased each evening and the interest is pronounced.

OFFICIAL BOARD'S MEETING.

A meeting of the official boards of all the co-operating churches will be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church this evening, immediately following the union prayer service. It is expected that the members of the different boards will attend this prayer service.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Adv.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Edward F. Stoeckle:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a certain cause herein, Minnie B. Stoeckle is petitioner, and you are defendant, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the petitioner's petition on or before the fifth day of May next, or in default thereof such decree will be taken against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just.

The object of said suit is to obtain a decree of divorce dissolving the marriage between you and the said petitioner.

We Can't Please Everybody

Gladstone once said: "Were I to listen to the counsels of everyone, I would have none of my own."

Which goes to show that you cannot please everybody. Human nature precludes that.

The Rothberg Store is dedicated to the public. The sole aim of this store is to please its customers, to give them the greatest possible values in "Things Men Wear," plus courteous treatment, plus conscientious service.

Yet there are some people we haven't been able to please. Still we are at it every day, making friends as the days go by.

Let us try YOU.

Corporation Notice.

ALTERING AND WIDENING OF CENTRAL AVENUE.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the twenty-first day of April, A. D., 1916, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Albert H. Atterbury, J. Fred MacDonald and Arthur E. Smith, the commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to alter and widen Central avenue from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey," approved December 6, 1915, and the resolution of the Common Council in the premises, adopted April 3, 1916, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises, and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinance and said resolution and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be altered and widened to extend from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, the center and side lines of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map therein referred to, and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Map showing proposed altering and widening of Central avenue, from West Front street to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1915."

The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the northeasterly side thereof from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, includes a strip four and three hundred seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by Charles B. Lufburrow, Elia B. Benson, Charles P. Sebring, Estate of Juliet Runyon, Mary Augusta Runyon, Calvary Baptist church, Plainfield Reform Club, and Wadley & Goodenough.

The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the southwesterly side thereof, from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly side line of West Second street, includes a strip six and three hundred and seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by Walter F. Manning, Estate of Lebbeus L. Manning (Elizabeth Manning, Walter F. Manning, Carrie E. MacIntyre), Mary McNamara and Abrams & Kunzman. The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the southwesterly side thereof, from the southeasterly side line of West Second street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, includes a strip three and nine hundred and seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by P. Ballantine & Son (a corporation), as shown on said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for a more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

S. P. C. A. MEN BLAME COURTS

Claim Revenue Shortage Due to New Methods.

FIRST DEFICIT IN HISTORY

Treasurer's Report Shows Falling Off In Year's Receipts—Taking of Jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace Is Scored—Less Cases Heard and Fewer Prosecutions.

Newark, April 5.—Police court methods were criticised by officers of the New Jersey Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in explaining at the annual meeting of that body a decrease in arrests and in receipts. It was shown that the society ended its year with a deficit of $2,179.89, this being the first deficit in its history.

The law passed last year by the legislature which took cruelty to animal cases from the jurisdiction of justices of the peace was scored. Officers were re-elected and reports read from the executive committee, president, superintendent and treasurer. Nothing was mentioned about the proposed farm for worn out and sick horses and the vetrinary ambulance that was under discussion last year.

The treasurer's report showed that there had been a considerable falling off in the year's business as compared with that of 1914-15, when justices of the peace heard cases and the agents received half of the fees imposed. Last year a total of 1,811 cases were investigated against 1,792 this year. There were 849 prosecutions last year against 304 this year; also the report recorded 1,100 persons warned, an item that was not included in the former reports.

Under the system whereby the society received but half the amount of fines this source of revenue last year brought in $7,432.42, whereas this year, with the society receiving all of the fines, but $2,530.63 was collected. The dues of the society also showed a falling off of $31, dropping from $177 to $146. The total receipts last year were $11,444.80 and disbursements $6,369.67 as against $7,659.47 received this year and $9,839.36 disbursed.

The largest single added cost to the working of the society this year was that for salaries, $7,064 being expended for this, whereas $3,550 sufficed last year. Another increased item was that for counsel fees, $102 being spent the previous year for the 849 cases prosecuted as against $230.50 paid out this year for the 304 cases.

CURFEW WHISTLE TO BLOW.

Hackettstown to Resume Warning For Children to Go Home.

Hackettstown, April 5.—A petition was presented to the common council at its meeting by the Woman's Christian Temperance union asking that the curfew whistle again be blown at 8:45 in the evening.

The petition stated that since the whistle blowing was stopped a short time ago by Mayor Cook children have been loitering about the streets long after the hour. Councilman Miller moved that the whistle be blown again each evening at 8:45. Mayor Cook opposed the scheme, saying the noise was a nuisance. A new whistle of softer tone probably will be installed to conciliate the mayor.

NURSES OF STATE MEET.

Association Begins Its Fourteenth Annual Conference at Passaic.

Passaic, April 5.—The fourteenth annual convention of the New Jersey State Nurses' association began at the Passaic club. The Alumni association of the two local hospitals are acting as hostess. Miss Arabella R. Creech of Elizabeth, the president of the association, presided, and after the invocation by Rev. Dr. James Dallas Steele, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Mayor George N. Seger delivered the address of welcome.

Mrs. D'Arcy Stephen of Elizabeth responded to the mayor. After the routine business Dr. Edward J. Ill of Newark delivered an address on "The Control of Cancer."

SEIZE MUCH LIQUOR IN RAID.

Revenue Officers Find Fifty Barrels in Garfield "Speakeasy."

Garfield, April 5.—As the result of complaints that a speakeasy was being conducted here, Revenue Officers McGinnis and Byrnes, with the local police, raided the house of Pasquale Lombardo, at 18 Lincoln place, and confiscated thirty-two barrels of liquor.

A complete distilling plant, it is alleged, was discovered in the cellar of the building, and this, with a quantity of liquor in the course of making, was destroyed.

To Roll That Peanut Saturday.

Paterson, April 5.—The police ban has been raised, and Larry O'Brien, who lost a bet on the Willard-Moran fight, will be permitted to roll a peanut along Market street for a mile Saturday afternoon. O'Brien, who is an orderly in the General hospital, was to have performed the stunt last Sunday afternoon, but Chief of Police Bimson objected.

WM. J. BICKETT APPOINTED.

William J. Bickett, who is completing his tenth term as supervising principal of the Rahway public schools, has been appointed to a similar position at Bernardsville and he has accepted. He will succeed Lester Meseroll, formerly the head of the Dunellenn public schools. Mr. Bickett will receive a salary of $2,800, which is $800 more than the present incumbent. He will take charge at the end of the school year.

The story depicted concerns the daughter of a Mandarin who eloped with her father's secretary. The father pursued them, and would have killed them had not the gods changed the two into a pair of turtle doves. At the time of the elopement the willow was shedding its leaves, hence the name of the design.

RESUME OF NEW LAWS IN JERSEY

Many Acts Are Placed on State Statute Books.

VETO RECORD BY FIELDER.

Empowering Murder Trial Juries to Direct Life Imprisonment, Allowing Boxing Bouts, Regulating Jitney Operations and Changing of Presidential Primaries' Date Among New Laws.

TRENTON, April 5. — Governor Fielder yesterday disposed of the remainder of the bills that had been left for his signature on the adjournment of the legislature.

Different views are held by the Republican majority and the Democratic minority on the value of the new legislation that has been placed on the statute books. The Republicans boast of their accomplishments, and Governor Fielder joins with the Democrats in charging that politics was a dominant factor in the session.

The executive established a record for the number of his vetoes, and the legislature did the same by using a majority vote and overriding his objections. The governor disapproved of forty-three bills and one joint resolution, and of these nineteen bills and one joint resolution were placed on the statute books by the second ballot of the legislators. The number sent to the State library, which is equivalent to a veto, was ten bills and one joint resolution.

The length of the legislative session just closed was twelve weeks, and during it 878 bills and 15 joint resolutions were introduced. Of this number 289 bills and 9 joint resolutions became laws.

Bills That Passed.

Chief among the new laws are the following:

Empowering murder trial juries to direct life imprisonment in place of electrocution of convicts.

Making mandatory reading of Old Testament in the public schools.

Permitting of referendum on $7,000,000 bond issue for state highway system.

Eliminating necessity of giving age under Geran election act.

Allowing four round boxing exhibitions.

Establishing new state department of agriculture.

Creating state budget system.

Making office of state purchasing agent.

Changing date of presidential primaries from May 23 to April 25.

Regulating operation of jitneys to require bonding of owners and percentage of receipts for municipalities.

Extending term of General Lewis T. Bryant, state commissioner of labor.

Naming of commission to suggest further changes in Geran election law.

Limiting terms of municipal bonds to life improvement; providing for serial bonds.

Some Defeated Bills.

Some of the leading proposed statutes that were voted down were:

Permitting local option on liquor traffic.

Allowing women to vote for presidential and vice presidential electors next fall.

Providing for military training in high schools.

Increasing workmen's compensation.

Consolidating state motor vehicle department with state road department.

Abolishing compulsory vaccination.

Reforming method of controlling and recording municipal finances.

Changing system of taxation; permitting Torrens system of land regulation.

Allowing Morris plan banking system.

Creating state board of osteopathic examiners.

Allowing state board of examiners of chiropractors.

Requiring naming of "public defender" for impecunious prisoners.

Necessitating elimination of grade crossing yearly on percentage of length of railroad.

Senate Bills Laws.

Included in the leading bills presented in the senate that received approval and have been placed on the statute books are:

Joint Resolution No. 3, by Mr. Sheppard.—Provides for appointment of commission to revise and codify fish and game laws.

Joint Resolution No. 5, by Mr. Schoen.—Calls for commission of five to investigate the problem of conserving the fish supply of the state. The board will take up especially the operation of pound nets.

Joint Resolution No. 9, by Mr. Pierson.—Provides for continuation of the commission for the survey of municipal finances. Investigation will be made of school district and county finance methods.

Road Bond Issue.

Before the Egan road bill, providing for an issue of $7,000,000 in bonds for a state highway system, becomes effective it will be necessary for the voters to approve of the plan at the general election Nov. 7. It is proposed to lay out thirteen routes. The measure provides for a highway commission to consist of the governor, president of the senate, speaker of the house, state road commissioner and the chairmen of the senate and house highway committees of the last legislature. This commission will carry out the provisions of the laws if the people approve of the scheme. The act provides that the "state highway bonds" are to be signed in the name of the state by the governor, and "they shall be either registered or coupon bonds and shall bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent a year, payable semiannually, and shall be issued in denominations of not more than $1,000 nor less than $100."

Under the plan that has been devised it is the intention to take $720,000 from the registration fees paid each year into the department of motor vehicles to cover all expenditures for interest, etc. No direct tax is to be placed on the people at large.

About 350 miles of roads are to be covered with hard paving material, stone, brick and others being among those specified as acceptable. The cost is to be about $2,000 per mile. Hudson and Cape May counties are the only ones not to benefit by the law.

The proposed routes named in the bill are:

Route No. 1.—From Elizabeth to Trenton, by way of Rahway, Metuchen, New Brunswick and Hightstown.

Route No. 2.—From Trenton to Camden, by way of Bordentown, Fieldsboro, Roebling and Burlington.

Route No. 3.—From Camden to Absecon, by way of Berlin and Hammonton.

Route No. 4.—From a point on route No. 1 in or near Rahway to Absecon, by way of Perth Amboy, Keyport, Middletown, Red Bank, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Point Pleasant, Lakewood, Toms River, Tuckerton and New Gretna.

Route No. 5.—From Newark to the bridge crossing the Delaware river, about two miles above Delaware, by way of Morristown, Dover, Netcong, Budd's Lake, Hackettstown, Buttsville and Delaware.

Route No. 6.—From Camden to Bridgeton by way of Woodbury and Mullica Hill.

Route No. 7.—From Hightstown to Asbury Park by way of Freehold, Jerseyville and Hamilton.

Route No. 8.—From Montclair to state line at Unionville by way of Singac, Wayne, Pompton Plains, Butler, New Foundland, Stockholm, Franklin Furnace and Sussex.

Route No. 9.—From Elizabeth to Phillipsburg by way of Westfield, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, White House, Clinton, West Portal and Bloomsbury.

Route No. 10.—From Paterson to Fort Lee by way of Dundee Lake to Hackensack.

Route No. 11.—From Newark to Paterson by way of Belleville, Bloomfield, Nutley and Passaic.

Route No. 12.—From Paterson to Phillipsburg by way of Little Falls, Pine Brook, Parsippany, Denville, thence over Route No. 5 to Budd Lake, thence to Washington and Broadway.

Route No. 13.—From New Brunswick to Trenton by way of Kingston, Princeton and Lawrenceville.

Efforts to amend the bill when it was on third reading in the senate were voted down after Senator Egan opposed any changes.

One of the bills which was wanted by the farmers, however, met with the veto of the governor, and as the legislature was not in session within the constitutional limit of time it could not be passed again. It provided for the exemption of farm labor and domestic servants from the provisions of the employers' liability act.

Assemblyman Wolverton's bill permitting juries to direct a sentence of life imprisonment upon murderers was vetoed by the governor, but again passed in the legislature despite his disapproval.

In spite of the opposition of the governor, Senator Stevens got favorable action by the legislature on the bill limiting the compensation of the attorney general when engaged in legal practice for counties. The aim of this measure was to prevent the attorney general's department from asking extra compensation from Cape May.

Although several sections of the state were clamoring to have the proposed new normal school erected in their district, Assemblyman Morgan of Union won the recommendation for Elizabeth.

GEORGE RANDOLPH DIES

of Mobile Bay, the Plainfield colored boy was on board one of the audacious ships. In the midst of the terrific bombardment Randolph's vessel had a gaping hole torn in its side, and fearing that she would sink, her commander gave orders to the crew to jump overboard. The Plainfielder was one who responded, but while swimming to shore came in contact with an officer in a drowning condition, and despite the great odds, got him safely to shore. For this Randolph was awarded a medal, and to his dying day it was one of the most prized relics he brought home from the historic conflict. George served at different times on the U. S. S. Transport Bermuda, the Richmond, the Taconic, the North Carolina, the Potomac and discharged as a gunner from the U. S. S. Vermont on March 5, 1867.

After returning to Plainfield, George resumed his work as a miller, but also held other positions, his services being sought after because of the absolute faith that could be put in him. It was about 1900 that he was made janitor of the Vanderbeek building, and a short period after that date marks the time when he made himself the self-appointed guardian of all of the tenants of the now demolished structure. His especial charges were Vincent W. Nash, Jr., the late Nelson Runyon, Assemblyman William N. Runyon and the the entire staff of the Daily Press, all of whom had offices in the building. He was faithful to a fault, always responding to the slightest command and performing it to the best of his ability, although at times he suffered keenly from "rheumatiz," bequeathed him by miserable weather in Civil War days. The tenants looked upon George as an institution, a part of the place as it were, and he in turn considered the personalities of each a part of his own daily knowledge. To the Daily Press men he was constantly a source of information on Biblical subjects, as he once studied for the ministry and knew the Holy Book as few do.

Those of us who knew him best hated to break the news to him when it was announced that the Vanderbeek building was to be obliterated and that his position would go with it, as well as the associations he had enjoyed for so long a time. Finally it had to be done, and from that day it was a different George Washington Randolph. The Daily Press offered him a berth at its new home, as did also Assemblyman Runyon and V. W. Nash, Jr., in their new offices, but he sadly shook his head in the negative. He came down town once after the wreckers started to tear down his old haunt, and, with an audible sigh, went back to West Fourth street to meet his end. His death was absolutely the death of a broken heart.

Mr. Randolph was the father of many children, only one of whom is now living. This is Mrs. Addie Richardson, of West Fourth street, with whom he resided. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. Full military honors will be accorded him.

12 MORE MONTHS OF WAR, SAYS M'KENNA

Britain Is Now Spending $25,000,000 Every Day.

London, April 5.—New taxes which will yield revenue amounting to nearly £65,000,000 were proposed in the house of commons by Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, to assist in the payment of the cost of the war, now estimated to be about £5,000,000 a day.

The national debt of Great Britain at the end of the fiscal year March 31, 1916, was £2,140,000,000, Mr. McKenna said in his address on the budget for the coming year. The chancellor said that he assumed that the war would last at least another year. At the rate of £5,000,000 a day the cost of the war for the coming year will be £1,825,000,000.

The reception of the budget by the house was generally favorable, although the amount of the new taxation was a surprise to the members. The Irish Nationalists opposed the budget, and the Ulster men supported the chancellor's proposals. There was some criticism of the proposed taxes on matches and railroad tickets, as taxes on the latter would be a burden on the poorer classes and would intensify the housing problem. The proposal for taxes on amusements was favorably received. The budget will probably pass substantially unchanged.

PRO-BRANDEIS REPORT FILED

Charges Against Nominee Dismissed as Being Without Merit.

Washington, April 5.—Senator Chilton's report in support of the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to be an associate justice of the supreme court was filed with the senate. The senator, who presided over the hearings, dismissed all of the charges brought against Mr. Brandeis as being without merit and asked for his confirmation. The report sets forth many testimonials in Mr. Brandeis' favor, among them one by ex-Governor Walsh of Massachusetts.

Several additional protests from members of the bar of Boston against the confirmation of Mr. Brandeis were filed with the committee.

AMBASSADOR LEAVES ROME.

Mr. Page Accompanies Mrs. Page to London and May Come Home.

Rome, April 5.—Ambassador and Mrs. Page have left Rome for London. Many of their friends in the diplomatic corps and prominent Italians assembled at the station to see them off and presented flowers to Mrs. Page.

The ambassador does not yet know whether he will accompany his wife across the ocean. When he arrives in London, if he finds his presence is required in Rome he will return to his post, otherwise he will go on to America by the first boat available, probably the Baltic or the St. Louis.

Mothers and Teachers Meet.

Nashville, Tenn., April 5.—The twentieth annual meeting of the National Congress of Mothers' and Parent Teachers' associations convened here for a six day session. Prominent women from all sections of the country are among the delegates.

TO ATTEND FLOWER SHOW.

New York, April 5.—The Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, with his lovely daughter, Princess Patricia, and possibly accompanied by the Duchess, are expected in New York today to act as patrons of the Red Cross tea garden at the International Flower Show, which opened today. The Canadian Red Cross will take a prominent part in the flower show, together with the American Red Cross and a dozen relief organizations that are doing war relief work. Miss Margaret Cameron, who is a sister of Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, of this city, is the official Canadian representative, and a delegation has arrived to assist her. The international aspect of the affair is increased by the attendance of a half hundred nurses who were graduated from Canadian hospitals.

WAITE'S WIFE SUES; NAMES MRS. HORTON

Seeks Divorce From Confessed Slayer of Parents.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 5.—Mrs. Clara Louise Peck Waite has filed suit for divorce from Dr. Arthur Warren Waite in the superior court here. Her bill of complaint charges that her husband, now under indictment in New York for the murder of her father, John E. Peck, gained her consent to marriage by fraud; that he treated her with extreme cruelty, plotted to murder her father and mother and did accomplish that crime, and intended to kill her and other members of her family. It is also charged that Dr. Waite had improper relations with a Mrs. Margaret Horton and other "persons unknown to the plaintiff."

Mrs. Waite charges that her husband began to treat her cruelly immediately after their marriage on Sept. 9, 1915, and conducted himself toward her in an "unkind, cruel, harsh, brutal and inhuman" manner and that this continued until she was forced to leave him. Mrs. Waite avers that she left the Pantlind hotel in this city, where she was staying with her husband, about March 17 because she feared for her life.

The complaint makes direct charges that the defendant administered poisons which caused the death of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peck.

The complaint quotes fully the signed confession which Dr. Waite issued in New York several days ago.

ASKED TO LEAVE SALONIKI.

Allies Requested by Greece to Evacuate Town Limits.

Berlin, April 5.—The Greek government has requested the allies to withdraw all military establishments from the town of Saloniki, according to Athens dispatches.

The government insisted that the allies will be held responsible in the future for all bombardments by German airships in case the Greek request is not fulfilled and that the continued refusal of the allies would be considered an unfriendly act toward Greece.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN RAID.

War Office Denies German Claims of Damage Inflicted.

London, April 5.—A single Zeppelin raided the east coast, the war office announced. Several explosions were heard, but no damage was done and there were no casualties.

The war office also denied that Edinburgh, Leith, Newcastle and factories on the River Tyne were damaged in Sunday night's Zeppelin raid. This claim was made in an official statement issued by the German admiralty.

HOLLAND FEARS FOR NEUTRALITY

Thinks Germany or Allies May Force Hostilities.

EX-MINISTER FOR ACTION

Suspicion Is Widespread That Serious Events Are Portending—Teutons Must Be Convinced of Dutch Power to Deal With Menace, Says Colyn.

The Hague, April 5.—Not since the outbreak of the European war has Holland experienced a war scare such as is now shaking the little kingdom to its depths.

Though the excitement caused by the Dutch government's suddenly announced decision to recall furloughed troops to the colors has somewhat calmed down, there is still a distinct feeling of nervousness throughout the nation, due to the fact that the public is unable to make more than a guess at the reasons for the orders. Outside of an extremely limited official circle no one pretends to know whether the new military measure portends a serious crisis, and, if it does, whether it is directed against England or Germany.

All attention is concentrated on the meeting of the general committee of the second chamber, which will meet to discuss the question. At that time it is expected the public will get some clew as to the reason for the action that has been taken.

Suspicion Is Widespread.

The widespread suspicion that serious events are impending and that the canceling of the soldiers' leave is not merely a general precautionary measure has not been allayed by a statement appearing in the Amsterdam Telegraaf, which says that the cause of the order is to be found in extensive movements and concentration of German troops on the Dutch eastern and southern frontiers. The press criticises the government severely for failing to take it more fully into its confidence.

When the order was first promulgated the public generally jumped to the conclusion that it was occasioned either by recent submarine attacks on Dutch ships or by the decisions reached at the Paris conference of the allies. This view gives weight to the belief widely entertained here in well informed quarters that the real danger which the government is confronting is the possibility that one or other of the leading belligerents may seek to force a way into Dutch territory. This fear is reflected in a striking article published by a former minister of war, Jonkheer Colyn, who says:

"Leaving out of account the first three months of the war, the danger for us has rather increased than decreased. I don't imagine for a moment that Great Britain intends to land its new armies on the Dutch coast, but the question is, What is thought about this in Germany? If our eastern neighbors are getting seriously afraid of such a contingency how will that influence Germany's attitude toward us? We must presume that Germany is completely posted as to our means of defense.

German Attack Feared.

"If she judges that our capacity is inadequate and considers that a British irruption into Germany through Holland is to be feared would it then be strange if we were approached from the German side with proposals to which we cannot submit because they would mean the abandonment of our neutrality toward the allies?

"I know that against this it may be said that the British will not make a landing in Holland and that if they tried we are quite capable of stopping a British march eastward or southeastward. But that is not relevant. The question is not what we think, but what the Germans think. There is therefore an increasing chance for a conflict on either side."

Jonkheer Colyn concludes that Holland therefore must "take a stand toward the west," convincing Germany of both her desire and power to "deal with any menace to Germany's uncovered flank." At the same time, he says, her neutrality will require her to adopt similar measures toward the east and south.

The Colyn article, which has been widely reprinted throughout Holland, has tended to strengthen the belief that the real purpose of the new order is to provide against territorial aggressions and that this question is bound to become increasingly serious with the approach of spring.

FINDS TYPHUS SERUM.

French Scientist Discovers Specific For Eruptive Malady.

Paris, April 5.—Dr. Pierre Roux, director of the Pasteur institute, announced to the Academy of Sciences the discovery of a serum for the treatment and prevention of eruptive typhus, for which no specific has existed.

The discovery is a result of the researches of Dr. Nicole, director of the Tunis branch of the Pasteur institute. Nineteen cases treated with the serum have shown marked improvement.

Queen of Spain Ill.

London, April 5.—A belated dispatch from Madrid dated March 30 says Queen Victoria is ill. King Alfonso has temporarily stopped his daily audiences.

If there is any truth in charges that American soldiers 70 miles from the Mexican border could tell a day in advance many of the details of the Villa raid on Columbus as that raid was carried out the next night, it may corroborate President Wilson's hint about the activities of sinister influences. If that story is true the country ought to know it. If it is not true the country ought to know it. If it is true it might explain why an army officed in responsible position at that point committed suicide. It might also explain why the machine guns of the American army didn't work. If that story carries truth in it, it explains the miserable efforts of worse than merely sinister influences to push us into war in Mexico with the object of ultimately seizing the country and its vast wealth.

If there is only some truth in the charge that soldiers 70 miles from Columbus could tell before the murders that Villa had raided Columbus and relate how the marauders worked, substantially as they actually did work that night, there is a wealth of material for an investigation, the end of which the country will be glad to get as soon as possible.

There may be only coincidence in the suicide of the army officer who was on guard at Columbus, but the country ought to know. If there were nothing more than rumors of Villa's coming raid the American soldiers should not have been caught off their guard. The charge should be proven or killed by an inquiry that will allow the facts to be brought out.

Comment has been made in these columns about the unnecessary racket that the fire apparatus makes during the night both going to and returning from fires. Residents of the East End of the city are complaining about the continuous blowing of the siren whistles, while returning from a fire in that section early yesterday morning, stating that the entire section of the city was roused out of bed when there was no plausible excuse for the noise. Chief Doane maintains that the apparatus should make its presence just as much known coming home as going to a fire, but we fail to see his argument. Conceding, however, that in order to run at top speed while going out, the noise is necessary, residents can stand being awakened once. But after they have turned over, and started off on their dreams again, they object to be awakened a second time by a demonstration of how efficient the department can be at making a racket. Perhaps in the day time, when returning from an alarm, with a lot of people on the streets, it is excusable to turn bedlam loose, for the people do not mind noises so much then, but to blow the horns and ring the bell at night loud and long enough to awaken people in the grave yards is inexcusable.

Residents of North Plainfield, and of other municipalities under 10,000 inhabitants will not have to personally register to vote at the election next November. The Legislature has passed an act providing for the old method of registration, which was by the election board visiting each house and putting down the names of the inhabitants. When the Geran election law was passed in 1911 it provided for personal registration in every municipality over 5,000 population, and this year's Legislature has raised it to double those figures. Governor Fielder vetoed the bill, but the legislators were so anxious to serve the bosses that they passed the act over the veto. While it saves the inhabitants of the smaller places a lot of trouble, it makes fraud much easier than has been the case since 1911.

The Business Men's Association at its meeting on Monday night heard the report of the committee which conducted the last Dollar Day. One of the things which the committee found to be a most popular feature of the day, aside from the bargains, was the establishment of a rest room in a vacant store at Front street and Madison avenue. So many expressions of appreciation came from women shoppers that the merchants have decided to see if some way cannot be devised to furnish a public comfort station at some central point in the city. Plainfield is woefully lacking on this score, and there is no improvement more needed for the greatest good of the most people. The cost to secure a site and erect a satisfactory building would be comparatively small.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, in a communication to the city fathers at the meeting this week, clearly demonstrated that the recent decision in favor of the city on the free lighting matter means a saving of $7,000 to the taxpayers. Mr. Reed is to be congratulated upon the splendid way in which he handled the case from the time that the Public Service first notified the city that they would no longer continue the free service. It pays to have the best lawyer available as city attorney.

The police department is to have two automobiles, to take the place of the one rather decrepit patrol, which might well be sold to a circus for a clown number. The city fathers were a long while in reaching their decision about the purchase of the motor vehicles, but now that a decision has been reached it is hoped that the machines will soon be put into use.

At a meeting of the German-American Alliance held at Elizabeth a few days ago it was decided that the organization would go into politics. They are opposed to President Wilson from the start, and if Teddy become the Republican candidate, about the only way that they can vent their spite in the Presidential campaign will be to stay home and not vote at all.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Concerning the Garden.

The best I ever got from garden seeds
Has been a growth of swear words and of weeds.
Each spring I've gone down to the hardware store
And blown for tools two months' stipend or more.

I haven't got much faith in nature now,
But what I have I'm going to keep, I vow.
She'll not hand me the buncombe as of yore,
I'll buy my green goods at the corner store.

A New Recipe.

Frederick Palmer gives the recipe of shells to English girl ammunition maker:

"You take a tablespoon of nitroglycerine, two cupfuls of guncotton, half a cup of trinitrotoluol and three cups of lyddite."

Should be continued: Beat the nitro-glycerine to a stiff froth, stir in guncotton, trinit—and so forth, unlid the lyddite, season to taste with cayenne and brimstone, and label, "Made in America."

The Hickeyville Clarion

Miss Euphemia Mudge, our poetess of passion, has won four packages of tobacker for sending in the best poem about Pride of the Gravel Train smoking', which will be used for advertising purposes. Colonel Mudge says there ain't nohin' like having a talented daughter in the family, as he probably won't have to hit the box of free smokin' tobacker down to Hilliker's store for two or three weeks.

Miss Mudge's prize winning poem was as follows, to wit:

Come all ye smokers, far and near;
Oh, come and see what you kin hear;
When other smokin' gives you pain,
Just try "'Pride of the Gravel Train."

Old Andy Butts is dead, you know;
He smoked it ninety years or so;
He's smokin' yet, with might and main,
But not "Pride of the Gravel Train."

Just save your coupons. They're the stuff,
And then, if you live long enough,
You'll get a ten-cent walking cane.
So smoke "Pride of the Gravel Train."

How to Save Money.

When you wife asks you for ten cents, make such a fuss about it that she will think you are the injured party and will beg your forgiveness with tears in her eyes. Then put on your hat and go down town and buy yourself four or five 10-cent drinks, asking the bartender to have one with you every time, and smoke several expensive cigars.

When you buy an automobile get a $7 one and then spend $97 a week on it for repairs at the garage.

Always buy 37-cent shirts, two or three of them every week, wear them once and throw them away.

Rent a house on the outskirts of the city because it is cheap, and then spend the difference and some more in car fare for yourself and family. Go without overshoes and save $1 and then have pneumonia and spend $198 in doctors' bills.

Buy your goods of a mail order house and then buy them over again at home.

Hire a $7 man to fill a $70 job and then spend your time correcting the mistakes.

That red blooded yearning.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The patrons of Proctor's today will witness one of the greatest photoplay entertainments offered in this city, both as to length and quality. William Fox presents Violet Horner, a new Fox recruit, but an emotional star with a famous reputation for her dramatic talents, in "The Marble Heart," an intense dramatic story that fairly bubbles over with powerful situations and a picture that is bound to meet with the utmost admiration from film fans of this vicinity. In addition, Florence Reed, another well-known emotional actress, who gained hundreds of friends here by her portrayal of difficult roles in "At Bay" and "New York," will appear in Pathe's latest dramatic production entitled "The Woman's Law." Today, also, Pearl White will be featured in the sixth episode of "The Iron Claw," which carries this enthralling serial along with thrills and adventures galore. Tomorrow, William S. Hart, the famous Triangle star and one of the greatest delineators of powerful Western roles, will be seen in his most triumphant production, "Hell's Hinges." If you want to see real force, individuality, personality, strength of character—vividly depicted on the screen, you should not miss "Hell's Hinges"—a gripping story based on life in a Western "bad" town. There's fighting and struggling, with just the right amount of pathos to make it a record-breaking play. To add variety, tomorrow, William Collier will star in a side-splitting Keystone comedy, called "Wife and Auto Trouble." Friday will be Paramount day, and Mary Pickford, idolized by millions, will be featured in one of her most popular vehicles, "The Girl of Yesterday," a story that brings to the fore all the subtle charm and delightful personality of this favorite film star. The first edition of "The Social Pirates" will also be shown on Friday ,and a more fascinating series has never been released. It abounds in originality and novelty of theme and treatment, and is bound to make a hit here, as it has done wherever shown. An episode will be shown each week on Fridays. In addition, Friday, the fourteenth episode of the "Red Circle" will be shown.

A report comes up from South Jersey to the effect that the United States senatorial campaign of Mr. Murphy is to be helped along in that section by a liberal expenditure of money. It was hoped that the day was passed when money was a potent factor in politics, but it appears, if reports are true, that with the return of the "Old Guard" to the saddle, the coin of the realm is to once more play a part in the political game. Under the present laws, however, it will not be possible for the players of the game, to make money count as effectively as it counted years ago before the people revolted against capitalized bossism and sent the "Old Guard" to the tall timber. If there is a scheme on to buy the nomination of Mr. Murphy, the people will quickly find it out and dispose of it as summarily as they disposed of the bosses a few years ago. It has been understood that the direct primary law gives the poor man the same chance to win political honor that the rich man has, and any attempt to crush the idea with the weight of gold must fail.—Trenton State Gazette.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

U. S. COAST SURVEY OBSERVES CENTENNIAL

Oldest Scientific Bureau of the Government Celebrates 100th Anniversary.

Washington, April 5.—The oldest scientific bureau of the United States Government, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, is celebrating today and tomorrow the one hundredth anniversary of the beginning of its field work. President Wilson, members of his cabinet, scientists and others will make addresses, and a big exhibition of the survey's work will be a leading feature.

The survey was established by Thomas Jefferson in 1811, and a noted Swiss scientist, Prof. Ferdinand H. Hassler, was its first superintendent. The first work of the bureau was done in New York Bay, in 1816, just a century ago. Dr. E. Lester Jones is the present head of the survey, having succeeded one year ago Otto H. Tittmann, who was forty-eight years in the service.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey is charged with the survey of the coasts of the United States and the publication of charts covering the base measure, triangulation, topography and hydrography of the coasts. It also surveys the rivers to the head of tidewater or ship navigation, makes deep-sea soundings, and observes temperatures and currents along the coasts. It has completed a big network of primary triangulation, which is the foundation for satisfactory political boundaries and the prepartion of accurate Nation, State and county maps. The survey issues the current information necessary to safe navigation, for it drags the seas for rocks and wrecks and warns the mariners of hidden dangers.

The celebration opens this afternoon in the New National Museum. The speakers will be Dr. Hugh M. Smith, U. S. Commissioner of Fisheries; Dr. Louis A. Bauer, director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism, Carnegie Institution; Dr. S. W. Stratton, director of the Bureau of Standards; Rear-Admiral J. E. Pillsbury, U. S. N. (retired), and Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the geological survey.

There will be another session this evening, at which the speakers will include Rep. J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania; Brig.-Gen. W. M. Black, chief of the corps of engineers of the army; George R. Putnam, commissioner of lighthouses; George W. Littlehales, of the Navy hydrographic office.

Tomorrow afternoon, Prof. William H. Burger, professor of civil engineering at Northwestern University, will speak, as also will Rear-Admiral Richard Wainwright, U. S. N. (retired); Dr. Otto H. Tittmann, president of the National Geographical Society; Dr. Charles Lane Poor, professor of celestial mechanics at Columbia, and Dr. Douglas W. Johnson, of Columbia.

The centennial celebration will close tomorrow evening with a banquet, at which the speakers will be President Wilson, Dr. Paul Ritter, Minister from Switzerland; Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Dr. Thomas C. Mendenhall, the oldest living ex-superintendent of the Survey.

The service of the Coast and Geodetic Survey is the greatest service of its kind in the world. It covers over 100,000 miles of coast line. The charting of Alaska alone is a greater problem than European nations have ever tackled along this line. Five vessels and numerous lives have already been sacrificed to these treacherous rocks of the sea.

The general plan of the survey was supplied by Prof. Ferdinand H. Hassler, an eminent Swiss scientist, who had left his country on account of the revolutionary conditions of the time. Hassler reached America in 1805 at the head of a colony of 120 persons organized by himself and three friends, for settlement in North Carolina. Failure to receive any return from funds advanced for transportation and purchase of lands put him in financial straits, and the scientist was reduced to great hardships. Two years later he accepted a position as instructor at West Point. Jefferson chose Hassler to proceed to London for the purchase of instruments for the new survey. The War of 1812 caught him in England, and he was forced to remain there until the end of the war. Early in 1816, he reached America with the instruments and in April began the practical work of the new department. A few years later the work was interrupted by an economy movement, but it was resumed in 1832, with Dr. Hassler again at its head. Besides directing the coast survey, Hassler was in charge of the newly-created office of weights and measures. He held the office for many years, devoting untiring energy to the conduct of the work. He died in harness in 1843.

NORMA BELL
WITH "MIDNIGHT MAIDENS" at P.

Plainfield Theatre, Monday (Matinee and Night).

Sylvester Schaeffer, "the most versatile man in vaudeville," opens a three-day engagement at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow, one matinee and one evening performance will be given each day. He brings with him the delicate grace and artistry of the European capitals, where he has been a permanent drawing card for the last decade. His greatest vogue was in Vienna and Paris, the centres where all good things are recognized. The variety of Schaeffer's offering is sufficient to fill the bill if Manager Shannon had not prepared a surrounding bill of more than ordinary cleverness and charm. Among the artists who will appear with Schaeffer are Ota Gydi, who is the court violinist to the King of Spain; Mlle. Maryon Vadie, who is famous as one of America's greatest dancers, and Joseph Hess and partner, well-known dancers, who come to this city direct from a successful engagement at Rector's. Mr. Schaeffer appears as an artist, drawing sketches of surprising merit; as a Japanese juggler, showing some of the more delicate and difficult feats done by the little people; as a sharpshooter, showing infallible skill at hitting his mark, whatever it happens to be; as a magician and sleight-of-hand performer, doing things which astound his audience; as an animal trainer, with three beautiful horses and four fox-terriers. Schaeffer plays the violin with more than ordinary skill and shifts from this delicate achievement at the end of his act by giving an exhibition of strength and heavy juggling which makes one wonder why his slender body is not completely wrenched and crushed. In addition to this, the greatest and most expensive vaudeville bill ever presented in Plainfield, there will be shown the usual feature photoplays, "The Iron Claw" being the special feature on Thursday.

Norma Bell, the prima donna with the "Midnight Maidens" Company, which appears at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday afternoon and night, April 10, received her first start in the profession while singing at a church concert in one of the large cities of the East. At that time she was in her teens and was a member of the church choir, but had never sang a solo until the night of the concert. One of the singers who had been expected to take part was taken suddenly ill, and the little girl offered to sing a solo. In order to round out the programme, this was accepted, and on that night the audience was astounded when they saw a mite of a girl appear on a platform, attired in a simple little white dress. Every one in the audience knew "little Norma," as she had been affectionately called, and they all laughed at her nerve in attempting a solo before such a large crowd. When she started singing the laughter turned to applause, for she astounded every one with her volume and clearness of voice. The advance agent of a theatrical company happened to be in the audience that night, and he wanted to know "who was the kid with the big voice." After the concert was over he met her parents and told them what a marvelous voice their daughter possessed, and stated that if they would place her in the care of competent tutors that she would soon be capable of earning a splendid salary. Norma was delighted with the proposition and during the next year she studied music every day. The following season she was given a small part with an opera company. And her rise from that time has been rapid. She still spends many hours every day in practicing music, and the title bestowed upon her on the night of the concert has only been changed to "the little woman with the big voice."

RECREATION NOTES

The Washington School will be open tomorrow night when the following activities will take place: The new social club will meet in the auditorium; Miss Snyder's dancing class will meet; the needlework class under the direction of Miss Scarborough will meet; roller skating will be held in the basement and the game room will be open for pool, checkers, etc.

He Filled His Pockets With Gold.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How Three Dogs Sat on Some Boxes.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Anderson.]

"OH, daddy, tell us a witch story, please?" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"When a soldier slid down the hollow trunk of a tree, just as an old witch warned him, he found himself in a wide passage with bright lights blazing all around. He opened the first door he saw, and, sure enough, there on a box sat a dog with eyes as big as saucers staring at him. But he was not afraid, for the old witch had given him her apron to put the dog on. 'You're a nice fellow,' said the soldier, and he lifted the dog right onto the apron and helped himself to as many pennies as he could cram in his pockets. Then he shut the box, put the dog back on top of it and went into the next room. There on a box sat a dog with eyes big as millstones.

"'Don't stare at me so hard. You might get a pain in your eyes,' said the soldier. So he put the dog on the witch's apron, and when he saw that the box was filled with silver he threw away all the coppers he had stuffed his pockets with and filled his pockets, his knapsack and his cap with silver. Then he went into the third room. How terrible! The dog there really had eyes as big as the round tower, and they rolled around and around like wheels.

"'Good evening,' said the soldier politely, saluting him. He had never seen such a dog before. But he lifted him carefully and sat him down on the witch's apron. Then he opened the box. What a lot of gold! He could buy out the whole city with it, all the sugar pigs from the cake women and all the tin soldiers, whips and rocking horses in the world. So the soldier threw away all the silver he had and filled his pockets, his cap and his knapsack with gold. He even filled his boots with it, so that it hurt him when he walked.

"So he put the dog back on the chest, shut the door and shouted up the hollow tree, 'Pull me up, old witch!'

"'Have you got my grandmother's tinder box?' she shouted back.

"The tinder box was quite what the old witch had sent the soldier for, you see, and he had forgotten it. So he went back to get it, and the old witch pulled him up. There he was standing in the road with his pockets, knapsack, cap and boots full of bright, yellow gold!

"'What do you want the tinder box for?' he asked the old witch, handing it to her.

"'That's not your business. You've got the gold; give me the box!'

"'Rubbish! Tell me or I will cut off your head with my sword!' he told her.

"'I won't!' she cried. Then the soldier cut off her head, tied all his money up in her apron, put the tinder box in his pocket and marched off to town."

Household Hints

RICE DISHES

Rice Soup—Heat two tablespoons butter in sauce pan, add one cup rice, stir until a golden brown. Now add two pints water or stock, two small onions cut in small pieces, one cup canned tomatoes; season with salt and pepper to taste. Cook slowly one hour.

Rice Souffle—Grind four tablespoons rice and stir to smooth paste with one tablespoon butter and six tablespoons milk. Add remainder of a pint of milk, put all into sauce pan and stir until it thickens. Add beaten yolks of three eggs and three tablespoons sugar; stir well, also add well-beaten whites of three eggs. Mix thoroughly, place in buttered souffle dish. Bake half hour.

Rice Cream—This makes an excellent dessert and is a good way to use up cold cooked rice. Place in upper part of double boiler one pint milk and pinch of salt; bring to boiling point, add 1½ teacups cooked rice, boil about five minutes, then stir in two egg yolks that have been beaten to a cream with half cup of granulated sugar. Cook until well thickened, fold in stiffly whipped egg whites with a little vanilla. Cool and serve with plain or whipped cream.

Rice Pudding—Cook one cup rice in four cups milk until thick, then cool. Cream half cup butter and one cup sugar, add three well-beaten eggs, half cup seeded raisins, a little salt, the rice, and cinnamon to taste. Bake one hour.

Custard Rice Pudding—Two cups cooked rice, one cup sugar, yolks three eggs, rind one orange and one lemon, juice of the lemon, one cup milk. Bake half hour. Beat whites of three eggs with a little sugar, then place in oven to brown. Add bits of jell on top when taken from oven.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To take shine off serge skirt, sponge with hot vinegar and rub until the shine disappears.

To keep macaroni from sticking to baking dish, grease dish, then flour it, like you do for a cake.

To Wash Silk Poplin—Make suds of a good white soap. Be sure soap is all melted. Immerse article in suds, but do not rub. Rinse in lukewarm water in which a little gum arabic is added. Rinse twice, then hang in shady place to dry.

THE TABLE

Cream Puffs—One cup flour, three-fourths cup water, pinch of salt, one-fourth pound butter, five eggs, filling. Heat water, add butter and salt; when this mixture boils stir in the flour (take care to have no lumps). Cook until mixture leaves the sides of the sauce pan. Pour out into another pan and allow to cool. When nearly cold add the unbeaten eggs, one at a time. Mix in each one thoroughly before adding the next. When all the eggs have been added, cover mixture and let stand one hour. When ready to bake, drop by the spoonful on buttered tins, leaving space for them to rise. When baked, cut across with sharp knife and put in any filling desired.

Orange Marmalade—Two sweet oranges, one-half cup water, one cup sugar, one-half lemon, one cup English walnuts. Grate oranges and squeeze out juice, add sugar and water. Slice lemon very thin and cut slices in halves. Shell walnuts and break in medium pieces. Cook oranges, sugar and water and lemon one-half hour. Remove from fire, add walnuts. This makes a very good marmalade and will keep any length of time by placing in glasses and tying paper over tops.

Blanketed Sausage—Make a baking powder dough of flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, water enough to make it of right consistency. Roll this into a thin sheet; cut into square pieces and wrap each piece around a roll of sausage meat. Bake and serve very hot.

Delicious Baked Potatoes—Take nice large potatoes; wash them, put in oven and bake. When done cut in halves, take out potato, mash and add a little butter and warm milk, pepper and salt to suit taste. Beat until light or same as mashed potatoes. Have some eggs boiled hard. Cut up whites in small pieces and add to potatoes. Now fill potato shells with the mixture and set in oven or warming closet to keep hot. Just before serving mash yolks of eggs, add a little salt and pepper and sprinkle on top of potatoes. Serve on lettuce leaf. If eggs are high you can omit them and put a little butter on top of each potato, put in roaster and brown a little on top just before serving.

Hickorynut Cake—Two cups of granulated sugar, three-fourths cup butter, three whole eggs, one cup sweet milk, three teaspoons baking powder sifted with three cups flour; one cup hickorynut kernels.

Sugar Toast—Cut as many pieces as required, sprinkle thickly with sugar and put in broiler until sugar is melted.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Townsend Children Expect to Find Happiness in the Old Home.

"Oh, Dudley, his hand was on my head while he was dying. He had no voice to deliver any last messages, only one hand, and that was laid on my head so tenderly. I feel that I had more than my share. I shall never forget the feeling of that hand." Marian and Dudley were sitting in front of the fire in the living room the evening after the funeral.

"Daddy had but one little girl. Of course he would want to lay his hand on her head." Dudley drew his sister's head to his shoulder. "I saw the look of unutterable love in his eyes. That will be my memory. Of course we cling to last looks and last touches, but all his life has been one long expression of love for us."

"Mrs. Ellson said such a lovely thing. She said we were rich in memories that nothing could rob us of." Marian's voice was low and soft.

"That was fine, and surely few children have as rich a heritage of love as we," said Dudley after a pause.

"I do not believe he even thought of Ortrude," continued Marian. "She stood alone at the foot of the bed. I think she realized how little she belonged to the family. I never even thought of her until it was all over and I saw her standing alone. She looked pale and miserable."

"Why shouldn't she?" asked Dudley in surprise.

"Oh, I mean—— We were heartbroken because we loved him so. She was miserable because she had not loved him or meant anything to him. It was so much worse to be there as she was. Even Tupper felt that she belonged. We all had a community of sorrow except her. She was an outsider." Marian slipped her hand into Dudley's big one and it was clapsed close.

"It has been hard for her, I know. I wonder what she'll do?"

"I do not know, but I know what I want to do." Marian raised her head and looked into Dudley's face. "I want to move back to the house that was a happy home for us all the years we can remember. This is her house and it savors of her. It is full of memories that are painful. I want to forget them as soon as possible."

"I have been thinking of that myself. I am glad all the furniture is safe, and it will soon look as it did in the old happy days. I'll speak to the tenants tomorrow, so they can get another place by the end of the month if they are willing to give up the lease, and I think they will be. They are a decent sort," replied Dudley.

"Tupper can do the work of three so easily that I shall not be needed, and as soon as I graduate from High School I am going to save you the expense of a clerk. Perhaps I can learn to keep the books. By working hard we can build up the business and pay off the debts." Marian's tone was hopeful.

"Dear little helper! It is like you to think of it. If crops amount to anything this next year we ought to be pretty well out of the woods by next fall. We must all pull together."

"Ah! that is what Daddy used to say. Oh, how can we ever get along without him?" Varian's voice broke suddenly and she covered her face with her hands.

"There, none of that," said Dudley kindly. "If he knows, it would please him better to see you brave."

"If he knows, if he knows," moaned Marian, "and we must live without knowing. Oh, the difference to us."

SEEK TO IMPOUND VALUABLE SECURITIES

Miss Edith Smalley's Action Against Step-father Followed by Counter Suit.

William Palmer Smith, of Belvidere avenue, whose recent marriage to Miss Mary Jane Ingham, of South Norwalk, Conn., was announced, is now the plaintiff and defendant in legal actions involving the ownership of $90,000 worth of securities. Miss Edith Smalley, his step-daughter, is the other party to the suits. Former Judge Alfred F. Skinner, of Newark, is Mr. Smith's counsel, while former State Senator Everett Colby represents Miss Smalley.

Mr. Smith's action was before Vice Chancellor Howell at Newark yesterday in which he sought to have the New York action of Miss Smalley restrained pending determination of a proceeding brought in this State involving the same issues. Mr. Colby suggested the impounding of the securities on the ground that the conditions arising from the European war might put them in jeopardy. Mr. Skinner pooh-poohed this idea saying that it was based on the remote possibility that the war might cease.

Miss Smalley's action is for an accounting. She claims that she inherited the securities from her father, William H. Smalley, who died in 1880. Upon the death of her mother in 1908, Mr. Smith was made administrator of the estate, which included the securities.

The vice chancellor decided to continue yesterday's application for one week without impounding the securities, but said that in the event of a further postponement he would consider Mr. Colby's suggestion.

DR. LEVIN, PROMINENT ZIONIST, TO SPEAK

Local Zionist Camp to Arrange for Public Meeting Sunday Afternoon in This City.

The local Zionist Camp has completed plans for the meeting which will be held under its auspices in Temple Sholem, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Among the prominent speakers for the occasion will be Dr. Schmarya Levin, one of the most brilliant Jewish leaders of international fame, and Rabbi Joseph Cohen, who will speak in English. Judge William Newcorn will preside during the meeting. The meeting is held pursuant to the request of Hon. L. D. Brandies, Dr. Stephen S. Weise and Hon. John Mach, executive committee of the provisional committee of Zionist affairs.

Dr. Levin was a member of the first Russian duma, and when that legislative assembly was closed by the Czar, he, with many of his colleagues, went to Vibrog and signed the now famous Viborg petition which resulted in the arrest and exile of all the daring and patriotic men who thus attempted to check the Czar's absolutism. Dr. Levin went into exile, leaving his position as government Rabbi at Wilna, and separating himself from his family and all his connections there. Dr. Levin was one of the first modern day Zionists, and, by his remarkable oratorical power, coupled with his brilliancy of thought, he succeeded in making himself an international reputation.

THE SONG OF SONGS

Search the pages of lyric literature from Pindar and Sappho to Swinburne and Shelley. Hasten fleet-foot through the centuries from the building of the Pyramids down to this two thousandth Anno Domini—and where will you find another love-song like unto Solomon's? 'Tis a suite of seven lyric idyls, sung by the beautiful Shulamite maiden and her royal lover, with a haunting chorus by the shadowy Daughters of Jerusalem in the background. 'Tis the rapture of human passion glorified and transfigured in the radiance of celestial love.

Its verses are the very soul of music. They sigh like the woods-wind in the silences of the night. They throb with the rhythm of immemorial seas upon the shores of Time. They sparkle like the gems of far-famed Golconda. They are redolent of Sabean odors from the spicy gardens of Araby the Blest. Our pulses thrill to their compelling cadences. We renew our own youth, with its springtime of love, in their lyric ecstasy, and dwell again in those Elysian fields where music, and moonlight, and feeling are one.

Amidst the jungle of modern verse-making, with its monotonous jingle—how refreshing to turn to the Song of Songs, with its lilting measures, its felicitous frankness of expression, its marvelous imagery. The very breath of the vernal year blows through it with bird-song and ripple of waters; with waving field and verdant vineyard; with fronded woodland and flowery mead.

The Wedding Day; the Bride's Memories; the Day of Betrothal; the King's Meditations; the Bride's longing for her old Home in Lebanon; the Renewal of the Vows in the Vineyard—these make the seven lyrics that contain poetry enough to furnish forth seven times seven volumes of modern verse. Small wonder that the Ages call it the "Song of Songs"!

Serving Its Twenty-ninth Year. PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1916. Sports Dept. Tel. 3000—Extension 3.

HUGH JENNINGS, JUST PASSED FORTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY, BEGINNING TENTH YEAR AS MANAGER OF THE DETROITS

Hugh Ambrose Jennings, general manager of the well-known Detroit firm of Ty Cobb & Company is just beginning his forty-seventh year. The coming season will be his tenth as pilot of the Tigers, and only twice in all that period has his club finished in the second division. In spite of the fact that several other American League clubs look a lot stronger on paper this year than they did in 1915, Hughey isn't visibly worried. He declares that the Tigers will, barring accidents, be in the race with both feet. Last year the Detroit team led the Johnson circuit in batting, and in the biff department the champion Red Sox had to take their dust. Jennings has a solid foundation for his confidence, for any club that includes Ty Cobb has to be reckoned with. It is true that the Georgia Peach has to have some assistance, but the reports from Waxahachie indicate that Jennings is going to have a good, well-grounded team.

Jennings has earned his living in professional baseball for a quarter of a century—and a very comfortable living it has been. He has added to his income by practicing law in the winter months, and he is said to be as classy a legal luminary as he is a baseball pilot. Jennings is probably one of the wealthiest men in the pastime, for while not a tightwad, he has never been reckless in financial matters.

Jennings started his baseball career in the mining district of Pennsylvania. He was born April 2, 1870, in Pittston. As a youngster he played ball in Mauch Chunk, Lehighton and other towns in the coal region. In 1891 he was catching for a semi-professional club in Lehighton. One June day in that year, young Jennings got a letter from Jack Chapman, manager of the Louisville club in the old American Association, which was a major league. Chapman inclosed $100 in his epistle, and ordered Hughey to climb aboard the Colonel's band wagon. Chapman had been tipped off by a friend who had great confidence in the future of the red-haired Irishman, and he acted on the advice without losing any time.

To jump from a semi-pro. outfit to a major league club seemed appalling to Hugh, and he was filled with misgivings as to the result; but he had the 100 bones and he figured that at worst he would have a free trip to and from Kentucky, and a little experience. Chapman didn't need a backstop. He acted on the spur of the moment in buying his mail-order recruit, and when he got him he scarcely knew what to do with him. Soon after Hugh's arrival, Taylor, the first baseman of the Colonels, was put out of the game, and Jennings was perched on that sack.

Hugh gave a very fair imitation of a first baseman, but was soon switched to shortstop. It was as a swatter, however, that he made his big reputation. In his second game he got three safe hits out of four times up, and he finished his first season with a batting average of .286. In 1892, Louisville was admitted to the National League. Hugh continued to play shortstop and batted .232. The following year he temporarily lost his batting eye, and was traded to Baltimore. He batted .332 for the Orioles in 1894, .386 in 1895, and .392 in 1896. In 1899 he went to Brooklyn, where he batted .300. In 1901 he went to the Phillies and remained there two seasons, when he landed in Baltimore. He played shortstop and second base for the Eastern League club until 1907, when he was drafted by Detroit, and became the bench manager of the Tigers.

JOE KELLY THINKS YANKS HAVE IDEAL BATTING ORDER

According to Joe Kelley, coach of the Yanks and Bill Donovan's first lieutenant, the Yanks have what might be called the most ideal batting order in the major leagues. Kelley reasons along these lines:

"Take the first three batsmen to face a pitcher. All are small men and, consequently are hard to pitch to. They make the pitcher's work more difficult as all are good waiters. Once on the bases they combine more speed than any other club in baseball can show.

"Then along come the cleanup boys, and I will be greatly mistaken if they do not drive in a flock of runs. At chasing the boys home, Baker has ranked at the top for several years and he had to compete with some of the best batsmen in the game. Gedeon is another hitter who shines in long slams to the fence, and Pipp, when he is hitting, collects as many drives for extra bases as any of them. The lower end of the batting order is weak, but this is true of all ball clubs. I have seen and worked out any number of batting orders, but I never saw a better one than the Yanks will show this year."

PRIZE SHOOT AT METUCHEN GUN CLUB TRAPS SATURDAY

Metuchen, April 5.—The Metuchen Rod and Gun Club will hold the second of its series of semi-monthly shoots Saturday. The program consists of two ten- and two fifteen-bird events, with prizes as follows:

Two sole-leather, tin-lined shell cases, one one-quart Thermos bottle, one live goose, two dressed chickens, 100 Murad cigarettes, and two prizes of 100 shells each. Prizes will be awarded on the "high gun" system.

The Cramer-Moss handicap tie will also be shot off, and altogether an interesting afternoon's sport is looked for. All trapshooters are invited to attend.

WEINERT WHIPS FLYNN.

Charley Weinert had an easy time defeating Dan "Porky" Flynn at the Broadway Sporting Club, of Brooklyn, last night. Weinert used a left jab to the face at will, and kept Flynn absolutely bewildered.

HOPE GIRLS TO PLAY PEGS SECONDS AT P. H. S. TONIGHT

The P. E. G. S. second team will play its return game with the Hope Chapel representatives on the Plainfield High School court tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The P. E. G. S. will present the following line-up: forwards, Misses Christine Vestergard and Helen Ball; center, Miss Mildred McAuliffe; guards, Misses Lucy Johnson and Ida Brooks. The Hope girls will have their strongest line-up on hand, and expect to redeem themselves tonight. Immediately preceding the basketball game, the P. E. G. Society will hold an important meeting, which all members are urgently requested to attend.

BASKETBALL OVER, P. H. S. GIRLS PLAN OTHER SPORTS

At a meeting of the Plainfield High School Girls' Atheltic Association, held yesterday afternoon, it was decided to have the picture of this year's basketball squad taken tomorrow afternoon. At the same time, an election will be held for captain and manager for next season.

Discussion was raised at the meeting concerning the forming of a field hockey team, something that the girls have not played for three or four years. Miss Ruth Wean, girls' athletic director, is in favor of the sport, and it is expected that a call for candidates will be sounded in a short time. Some of the girls are in favor of trying their hand at track athletics, and something along those lines may be done this spring.

FINALS OF AMATEUR BOXING ARE SPEEDY

BOSTON, April 5.—Fast fighting and several knockouts made the finals and semi-finals in the national amateur boxing tournament at Mechanics' Hall last night a decidedly interesting pugilistic entertainment. George Etcell, of New York, put up a good fight with Tom Darcy, the New England 108-pound champion, but he was not clever enough to win. Darcy won the final bout in his class from Isador Wiesel, of Providence, and remains the champion. Ben Volger, of New York, won the final and the title in the 115-pound class by defeating Tony Vatian, of Boston. Dave Brown, of Toronto, met William Morris, of New York, in the 125-pound final, and Morris took the title.

DILLON POSTS OPEN DEFI.

Jack Dillon has possessed himself of a typist, or press agent, and begun an active campaign for a chance to fight what he styles "the quartet of luminaries," and who are known as Jess Willard, Frank Moran, Fred Fulton and Jim Coffey. Dillon pleads for an opportunity to meet any one of the four, anywhere, at any time, for a percentage of the gate receipts. He also confidently expresses his ability to knock out any heavyweight put in front of him.

EUCHRE PLAY.

The second sitting in the euchre play between teams representing St. Mary's, St. Joseph's and St. John's churches, will be held in St. Mary's Social Hall tomorrow evening.

DODGERS WORK IN ARMORY.

New York, April 5.—While Ebbett's field is being put in good condition for the game with the Yanks this afternoon, Manager Robertson will have his players work out this morning in the armory of Troop C, on Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. This courtesy was extended by Col. Chas. De Bevoise, of the National Guarw.

GERMANS FAIL IN ATTACK AT VERDUN

Paris Says Enemy's Masses Fled In Disorder.

London, April 5.—The French line north of Verdun blocked a new and lavishly planned attempt of the Germans to break through in the Douaumont sector. The assault, made on the first line French trenches 300 meters south of Douaumont village, was completely repulsed and the Germans were thrown back with heavy losses.

Large forces were used in the attack, which was made in the wave formation used so persistently by the Germans in these rushes. Early in the day the German heavy guns, which had decreased their fire, took up the bombardment again with great violence preparatory to the advance of the infantry.

As the Germans climbed out of their trenches for the assault the French fire curtain was lowered, and the German lines pressing forward toward the trenches were cut down one after another until the remnants of the organizations on the field fell back in disorder to the Bois Chaufour.

The attacking forces were pursued by the French artillery fire as they fell back and suffered considerable losses.

A German attack was also made against the village of Haucourt, just south of Malancourt. This attack also, the French war office says, was completely repulsed.

While the two German attacks, one on each side of the river, were being repulsed, the French announce that their own counter attacks in the Bois Caillette region continued to make progress. These counter attacks, which had cleared the Bois Caillette, gained by the Germans on Saturday night, were pushing the advantage north of this wood, which lies directly to the south of Fort Douaumont.

KANSAS CITY ELECTION HOT.

Police Chief and Commissioner, With 300 Citizens, Are Arrested.

Kansas City, Mo., April 5.—George H. Edwards, Republican, was elected mayor of Kansas City over Henry L. Jost, the Democratic incumbent.

The election, during which Acting Chief of Police Thomas J. Flahive and James S. Lapsey and Fred A. Lamb, police commissioners, were sent to jail on charges of contempt of court, was the most turbulent Kansas City has seen in years. Early in the day 300 men had been arrested about the polls on various charges.

The commissioners and the acting chief were remanded to jail by Judge Burney because they had ignored writs of habeas corpus that would have freed the arrested men. Later the three were released on bail.

SOCIALISTS WIN MILWAUKEE.

D. A. Hoan Running Ahead of Nonpartisan Candidate For Mayor.

Milwaukee, April 5.—Returns from the Milwaukee city election show Daniel A. Hoan, Social Democrat candidate for mayor, to be running ahead of Mayor G. A. Bading, nonpartisan.

Experts, from early returns, figured that Hoan has been elected.

DELIVERS HERD OF TWENTY-SEVEN ELK

Lehigh Valley Railroad Transports Live Stock From West to Pennsylvania.

It isn't often that a railroad gets an order to deliver a shipment of live stock to a certain point and then release the live stock. But that is just the kind of an order recently received by the crew of a Lehigh Valley train. The shipper and the consignee was the Board of Game Commissioners of Pennsylvania, and the live stock was a herd of twenty-seven elk. The Game Commission brought the elk from the Black Hills region of Montana to a point near Hickory Run, just a few miles from White Haven, Pa., and there, in a wild mountain region not unlike their native habitat, they were restored to the freedom interrupted by the railroad journey.

The experiment will be watched with much interested by zoologists. Under the Pennsylvania law the elk are protected from molestation by hunters for five years, and it is believed they will flourish even better than in Montana. The Commission also is importing deer into the region, and they are being released as were the elk. Recently a carload of twenty-five bucks and does, all under two years of age, shipped from Newport, N. H., were released near Hickory Run. While the law prohibits the hunting of elk and deer with guns, it does not prohibit hunting them with cameras, and White Haven amateur photographers are planning many interesting pictures of the animals in their wild state.

HOPE CHAPEL MANAGER HAS PRACTICE GAMES SCHEDULED

Three Saturdays of practice before the City League season opens is the program laid out for the Hope chapel baseball players by Manager Britt Martin. The squad will have its initial workout Saturday afternoon on the soccer field. The following week a game will be played with the Farmers' A. C., and on April 22 the Hopes will take on the Y. M. A. nine, of the South Bound Brook Reformed church. The Chapelites expect to secure the services of Chet Harriman, the former Saurer third baseman.

RAIN CHANGES PLANS FOR GOLF TOURNAMENT

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5.—The qualifying round of the sixteenth annual North and South amateur golf championship was changed from thirty-six to eighteen holes on account of the rain Monday. Charles Skehens, Wood's Hole, led the field by a margin of four strokes, with a card of 73. He missed opportunities to cut five or six strokes off this by bad tee shots on the second and sixteenth holes and three putts from the edge of the fifteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth greens and also by rimming the cup and stopping on the edge of the eighth and tenth holes.

C. J. Bellamy, of Springfield, and Jesse P. Guilford, the long driver from Manchester, N. H., each had 77.

P. V. G. Carter, Nassau, the junior metropolitan champion, had a bad day. Several of his shots were just a little off and cost a stroke or more in every case. He took seven on each of the second and seventh holes and a five on the short eighth, making the turn with a 41. Carter had eight holes in par coming in, but, taking two more than par on the short fifteenth, he came in in 37, for a total of 78.

Charles A. McCormick, of New Brunswick, went around in 90, the figure on which the second and third divisions split. He landed at the top of the third sixteen.

WINS CUE TITLE.

Samuel Spicer, of New York, won the national championship at English billiards by defeating the titleholder, John O'Neil, last night in the second and final block of their 500-point match in New York. The score was 250 to 144, and the total score for the match was 500 to 308. In the pocket billiard handicap tournament, in progress at Doyle's, J. Howard Shoemaker, the national champion, defeated William Wainwright, who received a handicap of 60 points, by a net score of 100 to 88.

WANT WILLARD-WILLS MATCH.

Chicago, April 5.—The offer of a Boston syndicate, amounting to $60,000, for Williard to box Harry Wills, of New Orleans, reached here yesterday. Tom Jones could not be located for a statement, but friends of Willard said, while the offer was an enticing one, they felt sure that Willard would not accept. It was in this city that he would not lift the ban on colored boxers.

STROUD PICHES WELL.

Birmingham, Ala., April 5.—The Giants Colts won a one-sided game from the local club by a score of 6 to 5 yesterday. Stroud, who did the hurling for McGraw's youngsters, allowed only six hits and kept them well scattered. The fielding and batting of the colts were very good, each man getting one or more hits, Jacobsen heading the list with three singles.

SPORT NOTES

With Tris Speaker again safe in the fold, the Red Sox are banking on the American League flag. Without Speaker, the champions seemed weak and mournful.

The Western Intercollegiate gymnastic, wrestling and fencing meet will be held Friday and Saturday at the University of Minnesota.

Charley White and Matt Wells will battle for fifteen rounds tomorrow night at Kansas City. Ed Smith, of Chicago, will referee.

The Eastern League, renovated and enlarged, will adopt its playing schedule at the meeting today at Worcester. The league established an innovation by offering a prize for the best schedule submitted.

Two pacers, famous along the Pacific Coast, will meet in a $5,000 match race this summer. They are Hal Boy, a gelding, and White Sox, a famous mare. The pair have met twice before, and honors are even.

Johnny Maloney, the Philadelphia amateur boxer, who has cleaned up all the 125-pound amateurs in Denmark and Scandinavia, and holds the American honors at his weight, will be given a public reception on his return to sleeptown.

Over 1,300 horses are already named for the twenty stakes which will be run during the Saratoga meeting this year. This beats last year's entry by nearly 300 horses.

The new plan of the U. S. Golf Association to limit the list of entries for the amateur championship next September to 400 has been announced.

A series of spring hunt club races will begin on Saturday on the estate of W. Frazier Harrison, at Oreland, Pa. The series is a work-out for the Maryland Hunt, which is set for April 29.

Freddie Welsh will battle with Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee champion, on Friday night at Milwaukee. Mitchell has sought the match for three months, and the Milwaukee fans are predicting he will down the champion.

Fifteen events are on the card for the senior indoor track and field championships of the Central A. A. U., which will be run off on Saturday at Evanston.

The Pacific Coast League opened its season yesterday, and the fans of the coast are well satisfied with the new additions in talent. Frank Chance is on the job, and is the idol of the Coast bugs.

The Boston Marathon, to be run two weeks from today, will see an unusual collection of distance men lined up at Ashland. The Canadian contingent, usually large and formidable, will be small this year, but other sections not before represented are sending some fleet boys.

CHAMPIONS IN LEAD.

New York, April 5.—Les Canadians, of Montreal, professional hockey champions of the world, have a margin of three goals over the Rosebuds of Portland, Ore., after the first night's play at St. Nicholas rink. The score last night was 6 to 3. The teams meet again tonight. The aggregate score of the two games will determine the winner.

CHANGES AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Not in years has any local golf news caused as much surprise and interest as was excited by yesterday's announcement about the changes at the Park Golf Club links. Altering one hole has always interested all the golfers who play the hole, and the wholesale changes to be made at the borough links will almost improve the old course beyond recognition.

The results are certain to be gratifying. The older members will welcome the change, for the old course has remained the same for many yars. Practically all the faults of the old round will be corrected, and the many good points of the links will appear to better advantage.

The seventh green, the hardest on the course, will be eliminated. This up-hill journey was always a mean one, and the approach shot was the hardest because of the road which crosses just short of the green. The bare tee was the worst of the nine.

Extending the first hole towards Somerset street will help get the field started on days when there is a jam around the first tee. The pond hole will be a big attraction—to golfers as well as to the balls. A body of water adds to any golf links. Changing the ninth tee is an excellent idea. Less than two weeks ago a prominent professional who was taken up to see the borough course said of this hole: "They should take away some of those trees so a man could play his second straight for the pin." By bringing the tee out, the club officials have accomplished the same result—that of permitting the player to "get on" in two. The addition of traps and extra length to the other holes will make them harder tests for perfect golf. A nine-hole course with championship qualities is what the borough links will be when all the changes are made.

When it is considered how successfully the City Baseball League weathered its stormy first year, there doesn't seem to be a doubt that this year, begun under such pacific conditions, can help but be a record breaker. The difference in the atmosphere which envelops the league now from what it was a year ago is marvelous. At the start the spirit of strife, off the field as well as on, ruled, but before the summer was over this was changed to co-operation and better understanding. And the clubs are beginning their second second where they left off the first—with the fixed purpose of having some good fun, keen competition, and a business-like league without any internal dissension. And unless all signs fail, they will succeed.

U. S. REVOLVER MEET.

The annual indoor championships of the United States Revolver Association will be held in the rifle range of the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, in New York, on the evening of April 13, 14, 15 and 16, at 8 o'clock. There will be matches for the revolver championship, pistol championship, pocket revolver championship, revolver handicap, pistol handicap and a novice match. These matches are open to everyone and are being contested all over the country during the week, April 8 to 16., the targets being forwarded to headquarters and there scored. The New York police won third place in the match last year, and have been practising diligently with the expectation of landing first honors.

ROUSCH SURE OF JOB.

New Orleans, La., April 45.—Edward Rousch, of the New York Giants, firmly established himself yesterday as a fixture on the regular team. It was his sterling defensive work in right field that held the local club down in their scoring, and it was his timely single in the ninth inning that sent home Benny Kauff with the run that won the game. The score was a tie at four runs at the time, the final result being New York, 5; New Orleans, 4.

HELPING TO WIN CHINA FOR CHRIST

Miss Jennie Hughes, Missionary, Tells of the Great Progress of Mission Work.

RE EXPERIENCE

Interesting Speaker is Heard by Large Congregation in the Methodist Church, of Westfield—Appeals for Aid.

Miss Jennie Hughes, who has been a missionary in China under the direction of the Methodist church, and who is now home on a furlough, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church, Westfield, on Sunday, when many Plainfielders, who know of her great work, were attracted to hear her. In her address she brought the latest information from China regarding the mission work. She said:

"It was not until I became a foreign missionary that I learned to interpret more clearly many of the scenes in the life of our Christ. Jesus, you know, was born in the Orient and lived in the Orient. I will bring you a little glimpse of the life of Jesus.

"Jesus had been preaching and ministering to the people all day long and at evening time, feeling weary, went to the home of Peter and Andrew, where he found a woman needing His help. It was a woman suffering with a fever. He stretched forth His hand and healed her, and she arose and ministered to them. News of this miracle spread all over. There was a tremendous stir in that town that night. The people gathered in crowds from all parts of the town at Peter's door that they might see Jesus, but there was no room in that little home. The inside room wouldn't hold the crowd. Jesus must have stood in the doorway.

"That is China today. China, which in the past has had its doors closed. There isn't a man or woman here who doesn't know the cause of the anti-foreign feeling in China. Nations have come in to steal territory, and England has forced opium upon her. The missionaries have had to pay for what the people who weren't missionaries have done. You hear today of the mass movements in India. You haven't heard of anything of that kind in China. But, oh, I come to you today to bring to you the message that there isn't a part of that wonderful land, from the conservative to the lowly, that is not wide awake.

"Wherever Jesus Christ today is held before the people we find not a handful in the church, we find literally the whole city gathered at the door. I can prove it to you this morning. I can tell you what I have witnessed the past few years. There isn't a church in China that isn't crowded to overflowing with heart-hungry, soul-starved men and women that they may listen to the gospel of love.

"For the past three years we haven't asked for a dollar for the church in Kiukiang. We have seen every Thursday night 800 people attending the week-day prayer meeting service, and Sunday mornings during the past two years I have had to do the hardest thing, and that is to stand at the church door, at the request of the pastor, to keep out the crowds and to take the key from my pocket and lock the door because we no longer could accommodate the throngs. They have caught the great vision of what the gospel can give them. No church is large enough to accommodate them.

"I am going to churches Sunday after Sunday with the empty seats. They are asking to come to our Christ over in China, and we are not taking care of them. We have waited so long for this day to come. You have waited and you have prayed for it when you pray 'Thy Kingdom come.' To win China for Jesus Christ is to take one-quarter of the world's population and mold it for Jesus Christ. I could take up the whole time to tell you what the church is doing in China.

"One afternoon I stood under the great historic camphor tree. Some of you have been interested and read the story of the Boxer uprising in 1900. It was the men and the women, the boys and the girls who laid down their lives. It was under that camphor tree where they lined up the Christians. There under that camphor tree they tested these Christians, the Boxers standing with their daggers upraised. All they asked was that the Christians put their foot on the cross and their lives would be safe. The mutilated bodies told the tale. The story tells us of 42,000 Christians in North China who gave their lives for Christ.

"Oh, say, Christian man and woman, would you have stood the test for Christ? Yet there are men and women in our churches in these days who say they don't believe in foreign missions and why we should send missionaries when there is so much work here to be done.

"The following day, after I stood under that tree and read the tablet erected there, which says 'Lest We Forget,' in memory of those martyrs, I went around to the Methodist church. It was the day of prayer set aside for the Chinese Christians—1,800 Christians on their knees from 9:00 until 4:00 praying that the Prince of Peace would come to poor, war-stricken Europe. They had gathered at the door in adoration of Him.

"Dr. Mary Stone is China's greatest woman. She is in a province with 9,000,000 people. If you could live in China, if you understood the conditions in that land where there are no hospitals or clinics, and where there is no principal of serving others. Where did it come from? Did it not come from the Man of Galilee, leaving us an example that we should thus serve one another.

"There are no doctors where Jesus Christ isn't known. Today, because Jesus Christ stands at the door of the hospitals, men and women have relief for their sufferings—not alone ministering to their sufferings, but there they catch a glimpse of the Christ. Any morning you will see 200 or 300 people waiting to come into the hospital. You can't comprehend it, but Dr. Mary Stone, the one doctor, is able, with her own department, to attend to each one of the 200 or 300 people, for divine health and strength is given her.

"Just outside of that hospital, do you know, I have seen a Chinese woman, with her tender, sensitive nature, covered with dust, with hands torn and bleeding. She had dragged herself a three or five days' journey to get to the only hospital, the only doctor, nobody to pay the way. There she is, and if you could see the consecrated nurses of Dr. Stone. Here a bath is given her and a good bed; then she looks around her amazed, and drawing timidly the hand of the doctor, she looks up into her face and sayss 'Oh, tell me, why do you do this? What do you do it for? You are beter to me than my own,' and she says, 'we do it for Jesus' sake.' When the Gospel is given her, her heart opens to receive it. Can't you understand the story? That woman afterwards goes back to tell the story, and that isn't the end of it—it is only the beginning. There are places where schools have been opened through just one woman like this. I just talk here but preach over on the other side, for they say that all preach over there.

"I was asked to preach in the Confucian Temple, for it holds so many more people. I stood on a bamboo chair, and throngs of people—2,000 or 3,000—were there to listen to the story.

"In one of the most western cities on the Yangtze River there was a woman who had been converted and wanted to show publicly she had taken Jesus as her Saviour, so asked me to come and witness the burning of her idols. We stood together, her hand in mine as they went up in smoke, and sang, 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow.'

"Last year alone Dr. Stone treated 24,000 people in that one hospital. It meant 24,000 to go back to the interior, where we haven't yet gone, to witness for Christ.

"I want to tell you some of the ways the call is coming from the interior districts, and unless the church does bigger things, I tell you it is going to be a long, long time before the interior sections have their call answered.

"My friends send me clippings about the war, trouble in Mexico, etc., and I have to smile, for I hear about all these things just as soon as they do over here, for we have the associated news of the whole world over there. The newspaper has gone everywhere. The railway is being extended, the telegraph has come into these interior districts. They come faster than the church of Jesus Christ. China is going faster than the fastest, enthusiastic missionaries today.

"They are having uprisings in the interior. They say, if you will only send us a Christian pastor, give us a Christian school, it will do what it has done in the districts where the Christian school has been established.

"Christian man and woman, you men of the business world, I wish I could change laces with you—let you be in mine of the Christian training school for 24 hours and meet there face to face the tremendous appeals. I wish you could go along that new railway that I did once. We first went on wheelbarrows into the interior. For nine or ten years I have been the evangelist for 5,000,000 people over on the other side. I went out on that district with several young women into Confucianist and Buddhist temples, telling the story of love.

"Young women ready to testify, 'Once I was blind, but now I can see,' and the crowds would look on their faces and say they wanted Christ then in their lives. We went from one city to another. The next day we decided to spend in this way. As we came back we opened the car windows while we waited at the stations, and while the people poured into the station we talked to them, so we had quite an audience outside of our windows, and I remember, after finishing talking to the groups of people, to listen to what Dr. Stone was saying: 'Now, you won't forget there is a Heavenly Father who loves you. Remember that He is everywhere.' There was an old man, a farmer, standing there, with blue cotton clothes, carrying a heavy load of rice. Dr. Stone's words reached that man's ears, and he said, 'say, say, can't you tell me where I can find someone who will tell me more about this Christ?' I told him that they would send someone some day. He called back, 'When?'

"Christians, it is for you to answer that question. It is the cry of the official body. There are plenty of men and women today eager to come to school as preachers, nurses and Bible women. It is the call of the church of Christ to send lives into China for the training of the Christians there.

"My time is up now, but I want to appeal to you first of all for lives. Christians of this church, I wonder if there is a young woman who is staying at home and having a good time while they are waiting out yonder for the gospel of love. I appeal for lives. I appeal to you of this church. Won't you stand back of us? How few churches that I go into where they pray for the missionaries. Won't you pray for us? Will you this morning give as God has given to you? Will you realize as you do give that you are giving not to a human agency, but to support the work of Jesus Christ?"

WIRE YOUR HOUSE

A home that is without electrical service is without many of the modern household conveniences.

So many things about the house can be done better with the help of electricity that the lack of it is a positive disadvantage.

The truth of this statement is demonstrated by the fact that no dwellings of any pretension are erected nowadays without being wired for electricity.

So that it is only the older houses that are without electrical service—those houses which were constructed before the use of electricity became so general.

And yet even these older homes, comfortable as they are in other respects, need not be without the advantages that electricity affords, but to make these advantages available the houses must, first of all, be wired.

It is not difficult to wire an old house. Nor is the job expensive.

Experienced mechanics can install a wiring system without marring the walls or floors and without seriously interfering with the household routine.

Such work is being done every week-day to the complete satisfaction of the house owners and every house so improved is increased in value far beyond the cost of the work. As a home it affords more comforts and conveniences, and as a renting proposition it offers an added attraction to prospective tenants and commands a higher rental.

This is "Wire-Your-House-Month," and a number of responsible electrical contractors have agreed to make special low rates for the wiring of houses during the month.

The opportunity afforded owners to have their houses modernized is an excellent one and many are taking advantage of it, realizing that electrical service in the home has come to be regarded as a necessity.

With electric current the house work can be made much easier, as electricity can be utilized for washing, ironing, sweeping, cooking and a dozen other things besides lighting. It practically acts as a servant that is always ready for work and never takes a day off.

It is convenient. It is not expensive. It should be in every home. Is your house wired?

PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS.

THE PRESS' SPECIAL OFFER TO PLAINFIELD

THIS is one of our big achievements, of which we are justly proud. Every reader of this paper—yes, every family in the city and in its environments—can this year enjoy either of these two nationally famous magazines, or both of them, with this paper, for but little more than the price of the paper alone. These two great magazines with approximately 1,500,000 subscribers, are known and loved the whole country over. At 15 cents a copy, $1.80 a year—$3.60 for the two, purchased by the month—they are unquestioned leaders in their respective fields.

How We Did It

We went to the publishers of these magazines and told them about this city. How its population has increased! How its wealth has increased! How its trade has increased! How its bank clearings have increased! We showed them how desirable it was for them, and for their advertisers, that they should have a large circulation here! Then we showed them how this paper was the one paper in this city to make this offer, and how we knew that the citizens of this city would welcome this opportunity enthusiastically.

Woman's Home Companion

Splendid Serial Novels Woman's Home Companion is famous for the excellence of its fiction, particularly its full-length serial novels. There will be at least four novels this year, by Margaret Deland, Fannie Heaslip Lea, and others of equal power. Hundreds of thousands will later pay $1.50 each for them, when they are published in book form, but readers of Woman's Home Companion will have had them first.

Fifty Splendid Short Stories By distinguished authors whose work you are always eager to read, will fill the pages of the Companion. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, William J. Burns (the great detective), Zona Gale, Mary Heaton Vorse, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, Grace S. Richmond—these are only a few of the popular favorites whose stories will appear during the year.

The Finer Things of Life Inspiration, ideals, culture, the things that lift us above the commonplace and the monotony of living—these have an important place in the program for 1916. The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson has prepared a series of intimate sermons for the Companion family on the duties and privileges of family life and the real meaning of family ties.

Laura Spencer Porter will help those who love pictures and want to know the best. Anne Bryan McCall, in The Tower Room, will continue her popular department for girls.

The New Fashions The new ideas, the chic touches that distinguish the smartly dressed woman of Fifth Avenue will always be found first in the Companion. Grace Margaret Gould, the Companion Fashion Editor, keeps her readers in constant touch with the great creators of fashion in Paris and New York.

For the Little People The Cherubs are coming! The cunningest, funniest little people you ever saw—drawn and versified by Olive Rush. Also stories, puzzles and prizes, plays for school and nursery, plans for kites, aeroplanes and boats, doll dressmaking lessons—all kinds of things to interest and amuse the little Companion readers.

Helpful, Home Departments The Companion is famous for its practical departments. Every month it offers new ideas for cooking, for serving, for entertaining, for fancy work. Hundreds of ideas every month! Practical, really helpful ideas. Companion readers find these departments most valuable.

The American Magazine

aims to be, and is, a magazine for the whole family to share, each with the other—full of the new things, the interesting things, this month, next month, every month!

George Ade
William Allen White
Ellis Parker Butler
David Grayson
Ida Tarbell
John Sharp Williams
Ray Stannard Baker
Hough Fullerton
Stephen Leacock
John Taintor Foote
Walter Pritchard Eaton
James Montgomery Flagg

These, and scores of other favorites, will contribute the timely and interesting articles, the stories, the striking illustrations, the departments. You will find The American Magazine always full of the things you are interested in; the things you want to read about.

The Effect of the War on America New industries have been created; old industries have been given new life; new cities have sprung up full sized in a month; men have become millionaires over night—these are some of the effects of the war on America. These articles tell a wonderful story of problems met, difficulties overcome, and successful achievement. They give a splendid, true picture of the war industries, the war fortunes, and the men that made them.

Being Better Business Men An intensely interesting series of practical, fact-bottom articles about the Retail Business, Real Estate, Advertising, Selling, and other important lines of business. Other articles for young men will take up the problems of young men—going into business in his own town; going into business with his father; going to the large city. It will be a very interesting and really valuable series.

Stories—Short and Long There is always a generous measure of stories in The American Magazine. Stories of city life; of country life; home stories; dog stories; love stories and adventure stories—a real feast of fiction. Important, too, no suggestive or unclean story has ever found its way into The American Magazine. Its stories are wholesome and cleverly told, that the whole family can, and does, enjoy.

The Big Saving

If you bought either of these magazines by the month you would pay fifteen cents for it. If you bought both of them you would pay thirty cents. One magazine purchased this way for the year would cost you $1.80. Both magazines $3.60. Our plan will give you the magazines each month by mail at your home, promptly on publication date for but a few cents more than this paper alone would cost. It is a big, big saving in convenience and in money.

CULVER M'WILLIAAM WEDS MISS ELEANOR A. NASH

Rye, N. Y., April 5.—At Ramaqua, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund S. Nash, on the Post road, yesterday afternoon, their daughter, Miss Eleanor Arnett Nash, was married to Culver McWilliam, formerly of Somerville, but now of New York. The Rev. Richard Townsend Henshaw, rector of Christ church, Rye, and the Rev. Francis A. Brown, of Savannah, Ga., officiated.

The ceremony was performed at the rear of the entrance hall to the house of Mr. and Mrs. Nash amid palms and lilies. The bride's attendant was her sister, Mrs. Douglas Gorman, of Baltimore, Md. The best man was Edward Witherall Nash, brother of the bride.

The bride wore white tulle, trimmed with old Brussels lace. She carried white hyacinths. Her attendant wore white tulle with white Leghorn hat to match and had a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses and forget-me-nots.

After a trip which will take Mr. and Mrs. McWilliam about half way around the world they will return to Rye to live. Mr. McWilliam is well known in this vicinity, being a member of an old Somerset county family.

WHIST PARTY A SUCCESS.

The whist party given by the Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Society in the Y. M. H. A. rooms last night, was a success from a social and financial standpoint. The proceeds of the affair will aggregate a substantial sum for the Hebrew school fund. Handsome and useful gifts were awarded the winners of the playing last night. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

PLAINFIELD ELKS WELCOME LEACH

Past Grand Exalted Ruler Tendered Testimonial Banquet at Annual Session.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Assemblyman William N. Runyon Presides as Toastmaster—Introduces Well Known Speakers—175 Diners Enjoy Excellent Dinner.

Combining its annual meeting and installation of officers with a testimonial banquet to Past Grand Exalted Ruler Edward Leach, of New York, Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., enjoyed one of the most auspicious occasions of its career last night. The handsome clubhouse on Watchung avenue held more than two hundred members of the order during the business session and of this number one hundred and seventy-five were seated at the tables when the excellent course dinner was served later. Visiting delegations were present from New York, Newark, Elizabeth and other places, each coterie declaring afterwards that the whole affair would linger in their memories as a standard for Elk hospitality. It was expected that former Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, would be included among the speakers but at the last moment a telegram was received from him stating that it would be impossible to reach Plainfield in time. There were numerous other excellent speakers, however, and under the able leadership of Assemblyman William N. Runyon as toastmaster the addresses were one of the big features of the gathering.

Past Grand Exalted Ruler Reach occupied the exalted ruler station during the installation ceremonies and for his assistants he had the following: Esteemed Leading Knight John H. Cose, of Plainfield Lodge; Esteemed Loyal Knight Charles Kronimus, of Elizabeth; Esteemed Lecturing Knight Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield Lodge; secretary, C. F. Stout, of Plainfield Lodge; esquire, Past Exalted Ruler William T. Phillips, of New York Lodge, No. 1; chaplain, Frank McInerney; treasurer, S. P. T. Wilbur; inner guard, Mefford Giles, and tyler, S. R. Tavernor, all of Plainfield Lodge. Brother Leach proved an able executive and conferred the obligations upon the respective officers in a manner that elicited warm commendation. Those installed were the following: Exalted ruler, Walter S. Marder; esteemed leading knight, Francis J. Blatz; esteemed loyal knight, Chalmers L. Crist; esteemed lecturing knight, Edward J. Harding, Jr.; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, F. R. Haynes; trustee, William R. Causbrook; tyler, Edward C. Searing; representative to Grand Lodge, A. A. Prudhon.

After accepting the gavel as the symbol of office Exalter Ruler Marder made a brief address in which he announced his policies and then named the following appointive officers: Esquire, William C. Mulvey; chaplain, Robert Gow; inner guard, M. R. Giles, and organist, William H. Pope. The new officers took their various stations and received words of praise from Past Grand Exalted Ruler Leach after which a short program of music was enjoyed. The Elks' quartet gave several selections and a whirlwind of applause followed the rendition of "A Perfect Day" by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who sang it in his own inimitable manner.

Adjournment to the banquet hall on the main floor was taken at 10:30, at which time a corps of waiters began serving the dinner under the personal supervision of Erwin Y. Neighbor. After the first desires of the eager diners were cared for, Toastmaster Runyon called for attention and in one of his characteristic introductions presented Past Grand Exalted Ruler Leach. The latter spoke briefly but to the point, taking occasion to congratulate Plainfield Lodge on its possession of as fine a body of members as he had seen at the three hundred or more installations he had conducted in the past four years. He urged the support of every individual to the new executives and predicted great things for the future of 885. Before concluding Brother Leach paid a warm and sincere tribute to Toastmaster Runyon, asserting that to come before Plainfield Lodge and pose as an orator was like "carrying coals to Newcastle." He added that there are very few lodges in the country where the name of "Judge Runyon" is not heard and much of it is due to the masterly address which he delivered at Atlantic City a few years ago in presenting the late Arthur Morelandt's name as a candidate at the annual [illegible] for the position of grand [illegible]ler. The remarks of Brother Leach struck a responsive chord in the breasts of all present and tumultuous applause rang out as he took his seat.

Other addresses were given by Past Exalted Ruler Phillips, of New York; District Deputy John H. Cose, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, County Register Frank H. Smith and former Judge William A. Coddington. George Warren Scott presided at the piano and beside selections from the Elks' quartet, composed of Edward J. Harding, Jr., Joseph C. Martin, William G. Smith and Elmer D. Cutting, solos were given by George Luhr and S. R. Tavernor. A noteworthy feature of the gathering not on the program was the presentation by Secretary William R. Townsend of

WATER CO. SUES TO COLLECT OLD BILL

Max Fern, of Elizabeth, Defendant in Case in District Court.

The suit of the Plainfield Union Water Company against Max Fern is on trial in District Court here today, although there is little possibility of its being brought to a close before evening. Fern, who lives at 10 First street, Elizabeth, is being sued for a water bill on two houses in the Aldine section of Roselle Park, which amounts to almost $200. It is charged by the water company attorneys that he transferred the application for service to Judge Gilhooley, of Elizabeth, when the bill had run so long the company threatened to cut off the water. Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., is appearing for the water company, and Attorney John P. Owens is representing Fern. The defendant contends that the bill is excessive, that the meter was "fast" and that he reported this several times, but it was not repaired. Manager Smith, of the Westfield branch of the company, and Manager Myers, of the Scotch Plains office, were on the witness stand this morning to testify to the service given Fern and the number of bills sent him. Judge Hetfield is hearing the case, which is being tried by jury.

WILL PROVIDE REST ROOM FOR TEACHERS

Financial Co-operation for Its Establishment at Stillman School Assured.

Interesting incidents connected with her recent trip through Florida were related by Miss Noel Bullick to the members of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin School, at its meeting held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the latter building. A large portion of her time, which was spent in recuperation, was in the city of St. Petersburg, which is commonly called the "sunshine town," because of the fact that in five years but thirty-six days have been without sunshine. It is an ideal location for persons seeking rest and health, she said.

During the meeting the children of the fifth grade of the school gave a demonstration of their class work and sang several vocal selections. Mrs. S. Frederick Smith, the president of the association, presided during the meeting and named the following nominating committee to submit a list of officers for the annual election which will take place Thursday, May 25, in the Franklin School auditorium: Mrs. L. M. Booth, Miss Frances Kinne and Miss F. L. Beckwith. Reports of the various committees were submitted during the meeting and of these probably the most interesting was the report of the school luncheon committee. Beginning January 10, of this year, the luncheon feature was introduced in the Stillman building. The work has grown by leaps and bounds until now the women in charge serve between 130 and 190 lunches a day to the children. This work will probably continue until the second week of May.

The matter of a teachers' rest room was brought up by the president, Mrs. Smith, who was assured the financial co-operation of every member of the association to the extent of twenty-five cents each, to furnish the room in the Stillman building. This sum can be forwarded to any teacher in either the Franklin or Stillman buildings and will reach the proper channel. The association hopes to have the room finished the latter part of May.

CHOICE PROGRAM FOR MISS AYRES' RECITAL

The following program for Cecile Ayres' recital for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund at the Hartridge Auditorium tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock, is in itself an attractive one. Lend to such a program the genius, technical mastery and rare poetic art of Miss Ayres, the result will be an evening to be long remembered by those so fortunate as to hear her. A few tickets may still be had at Miller's drug store or by telephoning 1010, and will be on sale at the door. The program:

"Variations on a Norwegian Theme," Grieg; "Papillons," Schumann; "Hark! Hark! the Lark," Schubert-Liszt; "Reflections in the Water," Debussy; "In Autumn," Moszwokswi; "Minuet," Rameau-Godowsky; "Toccata," Leschetizky; "Sonata in G Minor," Schumann; "Polonaise in F sharp Minor," two "Preludes," "Waltz in A flat Major," Chopin; "Gavotte," de Horvath; "Toccata," Saint-Saens; "Belgian National Hymn."

PARENT TEACHERS ANNUAL MEETING

Bryant-Lincoln Ass'n Receives Encouraging Reports of Past Year's Work.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mrs. William M. Sandford Makes Interesting Address to Mothers and Children Give An Informal Program Followed by Social.

The election of officers, presentation of interesting reports, together with a short talk by Mrs. William M. Sandford and an informal program of music and recitations, comprised the features of the annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Lincoln-Bryant Schools, held at the Bryant School yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Frederick Palmer, the retiring president, presided.

During the forepart of the session, children of the second and third grades sang; Gladys Wahlig gave a piano selection and Quentin Ferguson gave a pleasing recitation. During the business session the reports were read. Special emphasis was laid on the school luncheon work, the success of which was largely due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. William E. Dunn. The association felt as though the past year had been a successful one and planned to do even better next year.

These officers were then elected for the year: President, Mrs. James P. Goodwin; vice-president, Mrs. William A. Lippincott; secretary, Mrs. Evarts C. Conover; treasurer, Mrs. Nevin Mackay; heads of committees: Membership, Mrs. Frank McDonald; program, Mrs. Guy Bender; sanitation, Mrs. R. L. Meermans; outlook, Mrs. Barrett; reception, Bryant School, Miss Cooper; Lincoln School, Miss Lee; refreshment, Bryant School, Mrs. Andrew C. Krog; Lincoln School, Mrs. E. D. Pangborn; publicity, Mrs. Clarence E. Vail

After the election, Mrs. Sandford addressed the meeting, stating that the aim of the association is to bring all of the members on an equal basis for advancing the interests of the work. She urged co-operation on the part of all the women and took occasion to praise the association for its fine work; adding that the Bryant school was the first to make a success of school luncheons. She also urged the members to attend the association meetings and to get other women to join. The meeting was concluded with a social hour, during which refreshments were served.

ARRESTED FOR USING HORSE WITHOUT PERMISSION

Bert Moore, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct for having taken the horse of I. L. McVoy for a short ride without the permission of Mr. McVoy, was not tried in police court this morning. Judge DeMeza passed the case until tomorrow. Mr. McVoy was doing some work on Emerson avenue Tuesday and left his horse tied to a post. When he came out it had disappeared.

The animal had been in his possession thirty-seven years and he was greatly worried until it was located. He learned that Moore had driven the animal off and made a complaint against him.

PAST COUNCILORS' MEETING.

The Past Councilors' Associations of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of Somerset and Middlesex counties held a meeting in W. G. Holton Hall, Dunellen, Tuesday evening. The meeting was well attended, fully 100 being present. The presiding officer was Albert Lea, of Woodbridge. The principal speaker of the evening was Senator James H. Van Cleef, of New Brunswick. He delivered a patriotic address, which dealt with the uplifting of the ideals of the country. W. B. LaRue, the State treasurer, also spoke. The attendance banner went to Eagle Council, No. 98, of Spotswood. Refreshments were served during the course of the evening.

HE BLEW OUT GAS--BODY IS AT MORGUE

Steve Posnik Was Shown How to Turn Cock Only Last Night.

Steve Posnik, a boarder at the home of Rutherford Love, of 1359 West Front street, was found dead in bed this morning. He blew out the gas.

Last night about 8:30 Mr. Love had occasion to go to the room of the boarder to fix a lock and he smelled gas in the hall. He found the Polack asleep and the room filled with fumes from the gas jet. Upon awakening Posnik, Mr. Love found that instead of turning off the jet he had blown out the flame. He showed Posnik how to turn the cock when he was through with the light. This morning Mr. Love went to call Posnik in time for him to go to his job at the plant of the International Motor Company and found him dead in bed. He had been aspyhxiated and the gas cock was again wide open.

Posnik was about forty years of age. So far as is known he had no relatives here. The body has been removed to the undertaking parlors of J. J. & C. A. Higgins on West Fourth street.

FIRE IN BARN IS QUICKLY PUT OUT

Three Horses Saved From Stable of Queen City Market.

A blaze that threatened to destroy the row of frame buildings in the rear of the West Front street business block just west of Park avenue started in the barn of the Queen City Market last night. It was extinguished by firemen before any other buildings had caught, but only after a fierce fight. The cause of the fire is unknown.

An alarm was turned in about 7:30 and the apparatus from headquarters and from the West End answered. There were three horses in the barn but all were brought to safety through the work of John Wirth, Sr., Morris Bender and Jacob Moledesky. Bender was slightly injured by being kicked by one of the animals while bringing it to safety. When the firemen arrived the barn was burning fiercely. Chief Doane put four streams of water on it at once and managed to save adjoining buildings.

FATHER BUTSCHER AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Preaches at Lenten Service--Father J. A. Burke Named as Assistant Priest.

Father John Butscher, a native Plainfielder, who is now assistant rector at the Church of the Holy Innocence, in Newark, occupied the pulpit at the midweek Lenten services in St. Mary's church last night, preaching on "The Judgment."

Father John A. Burke, of New York, has been sent as an auxiliary priest to St. Mary's to assist Father B. M. Bogan and Father John McDonald until the definite appointment by the bishop of a successor to Father Vincent Sciolla, who recently took a charge in Elizabethtown, Kentucky. Word of his safe arrival in Elizabethtown has been received from Father Sciolla.

MRS. DANIEL C. COLE DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Jane Ann Cole, wife of Daniel S. Cole, of Netherwood avenue, died last night after a long illness. She was a native of New York, but had resided in this city for many years. Beside her husband, she leaves thre sisters, Misses Frances and Rebecca Dobson and Mrs. Margaret Thompson, of New York, and three brothers, Francis, William and Captain John J. Dobson, of Paris.

The funeral will be held at the residence of Mrs. Cole's brother-in-law, George W. Cole, of 1211 East Front street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, and will be in charge of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace Episcopal church, and Rev. Henry Mesier, rector of St. Stephen's, the deceased having been a member of the latter. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

CARRIERS' COMMITTEE MEETING

The members of the Letter Carriers' Convention committee will hold a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce office, in the Babcock building, tomorrow night at 8:15.

CHAMBER MEETS TONIGHT.

The Chamber of Commerce will meet tonight at 8:15 in the headquarters in the Babcock building. The attendance of every member is especially requested.

CLEAN UP ORDER GOES TO POLICE

Plainfield Will Be Put Into Presentable Condition for Spring.

LAWS ARE IGNORED

Mayor Calkins Suggests That Citizens Be Politely Informed of Their Duties in Keeping all Premises Clean.

Plainfield is going to clean up for Easter, whether it wants to or not. Mayor Calkins has sent a letter to Chief Kiely in which he called attention to the disregard of laws prohibiting the throwing of paper and rubbish upon the street, and asked that policemen be instructed to enforce these laws. Mayor Calkins suggested that the policemen make investigations of premises and order a general cleaning up. Chief Kiely has already instructed his men, and it is believed that the city will show the effects within a few days. In the letter the Mayor says, in part:

"We are approaching a time of year when things ought to look their best. Everybody is engaged, or ought to be, in spring "cleaning" work. I think that the street department should have the active co-operation of the police in reminding citizensof the ordinance. The uncitizens of the ordinance. The untimes, particularly in the downtown section, where they are most used, and where rubbish naturally accumulates on account of business activity, is no doubt the result of carelessness rather than of intentional disregard of the public comfort and health. Accordingly, I suggest that in your instructions you make it clear to your men that what is required of them, in the first instance, is to inform the public on the law, and without unnecessary officiousness. It will be time enough to take other action when requests for compliance with the city regulations have been disregarded. Official severity is misplaced where general disregard of a rule is due, as it usually is, to prior official leniency. Your men should make a thorough survey or inspection of their beats, courteously call the law to the attention of property owners, and of persons on the streets who disregard it, and thus assist in an effective campaign in the interest of health and cleanliness."

HOPE CHAPEL'S ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Elected and Reports Presented at the Yearly Gathering Last Night.

Reports that showed the closing of a successful year were read at the annual church meeting of the congregation of Hope chapel last night. The attendance was large, with G. Herbert Condict acting as moderator and Frank Rimmer, clerk. The membership roll at the close of the church year in 1915 showed a total of 358, and since then thirty-six have been added, although two were lost by death and six by letter, leaving a net gain of twenty-eight. The membership is now 386. Of the number added twenty came from the Sunday-school making a total of 104 Sunday-school members who are now affiliated with the church. Contributions toward the church expenses for the year were $1,600, of which $345 was contributed by the Ladies' Aid Society. The Sunday-school raised $511 during the year.

In the election of officers, George T. Leighs and John Slorah were made members of the ways and means committee; Mrs. George Leighs, Mrs. James Heron, Mrs. Thomas Hendry and Walter Firstbrook were re-elected as a relief committee, and George Leighs, Thomas Hendry and Frank Rimmer were named as a committee to act in conjunction with the session of the Crescent Avenue church in selecting a new pastor for Hope chapel to succeed Rev. F. L. Greene.

MISS SUSAN A. ARROWSMITH.

Miss Susan A. Arrowsmith, aged seventy-seven years, died this morning at the résidence of Mrs. P. C. Voorhees, of Greenbrook road and Rock avenue, with whom she lived. She had ben ailing a long time from heart trouble and complications, but through it all had been a patient sufferer. Miss Arrowsmith had been a resident of this city for forty years, living most of the time on Elm place. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and active in all its departments. Her only sister, Miss Elizabeth Arrowsmith, died two years ago. The funeral will be held at the undertaking parlors of George W. Cole & Son, 200 West Second street, tomorrow afternoon, and burial will be in the family plot at Lawrenceville, Saturday noon.

Niels Nielson, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Trenton, was the guest on Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Roser, of North Plainfield.

WOMEN'S CLUBS TO MEET HERE APRIL 12

Miniature Federation to Be Held in Parish House of the Congregational Club.

A miniature federation meeting of the Women's Clubs of the Fifth District will be held in the Parish House of the Congregational church, Wednesday, April 12. The visiting delegations will be entertained in this city by the united effort of the Monday Afternoon club, the Rasores and the College Club. At noon a luncheon will be served to club members and the visiting delegates and the afternoon session will commence at two o'clock.

Mrs. Charles MacQuoid, of Roselle, the fifth district vice-president, will preside during the session. An address will be given by Mrs. Charles Stockton, of Montclair, the president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs; who will come to this city with several state officers. The afternoon meeting will be devoted primarily to a program of interest to the women of Plainfield and discussions.

The fifth district is composed of thirty-three women's clubs, and of this number the three mentioned are members of the Federation. It is the first time in the history of the Federation that a meeting will be held in Plainfield.

JAMES C. POPE'S WILL IS PROBATED

Elizabeth, April 6.—The will of James C. Pope, who died at his home in Plainfield on March 25, was offered for probate in the surrogate's court here today. Howard A. Pope, a brother, is named as the executor in the will.

The bequests include the following: James L. Pope, nephew, a diamond stud; George Pope, nephew, equity of $1,000 in the residential property at 407 New street, Plainfield; Mrs. Hattie B. Huff, housekeeper, $1,000; Mrs. Charles Davis, niece, $1,500. The balance of the estate which includes three houses at 115 West Fourth street, 925 Watchung avenue and 814 Richmond street, Plainfield, together with personal property, is left to the testator's son, William H. Pope, of Plainfield. The total value of the estate is not given.

FRANK VAN NUIS DIES IN 60TH YEAR

Former New Market Resident Passes Away at Daytona, Florida.

Frank Van Nuis, aged 60, practically a lifelong resident of Piscataway Township, died in Daytona, Fla., where he went before Christmas with his wife, at 11:30 yesterday morning, after an illness of two weeks with an acute attack of stomach trouble. At the time Mr. Van Nuis was taken ill he and his wife were planning to return to New Market. The body will be brought to New Market tomorrow and the funeral will be held at the late home, "Valnere Cottage," on the New Market road at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Burial will be at Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

Mr. Van Nuis was born in New Brunswick on August 8, 1855. He early engaged in farming, which he pursued up to six years ago, when he sold his 130-acre farm on the Stelton road to Edward Lauterbach. He was married twice, his second wife being Miss Elizabeth Day, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Day, of New Market. By his first wife he had two sons, William F. and Alfred. Others who survive are three sisters: Mrs. Chrissie Evans, Mrs. George Harris and Miss Laura Van Nuis, all of Clinton avenue, this city, and one brother, Charles Van Nuis, of Piscataway Township. He was a member of the Stelton Baptist church and was affiliated with Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Lakeside Council, D. of L., both of New Market.

GRAND CHIEF TO ATTEND.

Craigielea Lodge, No. 43, Daughters of Scotia, will hold its monthly meeting on Monday evening, April 10, in Coward Hall. Grand Chief Daughter, Mrs. Mary Wallace, of New York, will be present during the initiating ceremonies. All members are urged to be present.

MEN'S ASSN. TO MEET.

The Men's Association of Warren chapel will meet tonight at 8:15. During the Biederwolf campaign, the Sunday-school will meet Sunday mornings at 9:15, instead of 9:45, as heretofore. The annual meeting of the chapel will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock. The choir will practice Monday night at 9 o'clock.

ENGLAND MUST HAVE MORE MEN

Cabinet Discusses Possibility of Conscripting Even From Ireland.

GERMANS IN HAUCOURT

Gain Territory Near Verdun in Charges Accompanied by Bloody Loses—Holland Makes Demand on Britain.

London, April 6.—The vital question of extending conscription to married men throughout the British Isles—including Ireland—was under discussion today by the Cabinet. According to the Times, the Cabinet is taking into serious consideration, after long delays, the acute question of the supply of men for the army.

"There is great anxiety among the ministers whether to favor an extension of the Compulsory Service Act or not," says the Times. "If the parliamentary situation is difficult, the demands of the War Office are inexorable. The fact is that the army needs more men than can be supplied by the Military Service Act and the Derby Recruiting Scheme, and it is impossible to believe that its appeals will not be answered in full by the Cabinet."

Zeppelin Struck by Shell.

London, April 6.—The Zeppelin that attempted to raid the northeast coast of England last evening is reported to have been struck and seriously damaged by a shell fired by one of the anti-aircraft guns mounted for defense. The Zeppelin disappeared, but appeared to be in difficulty. Crowds cheered in the streets of the town over which the aircraft was sighted as the shell appeared to strike it amidships.

Germans Lost 42 Aeroes.

London, April 6.—Examination of the official War Office reports show that the Germans lost 42 aeroplanes during the month of March, instead of 14, as they announced in their official report yesterday.

British Steamer Sunk.

London, April 6.—The British steamer Zempt, 3,890 tons, en route from South American ports to England, has been sunk by a submarine, it was announced today.

Haucourt is Taken.

Paris, April 6.—French war statement:

"Strong German attacks were launched both northwest and northeast of Verdun last night, the French War Office stated today. After repeated checks, in which they suffered enormous losses, the Teutons finally succeeded in entering Haucourt. Violent counter-attacks were made by the French to the west of the Meuse, which gave them possession of Bois Carre. A terrific bombardment by the Germans on the Avocourt-Bethincourt front preceded the attack against the salient which the French hold in that district. This was followed by attempts to capture Bethincourt, but the Germans were driven back with bloody losses. These attacks were followed by still others farther to the south, and there the Germans had better success, taking Haucourt. East of the Meuse the Germans delivered two attacks north of Cailette wood, but were repulsed, the War Office announced.

Squadron Sinks U-Boat.

Paris, April 6.—An Anglo-French squadron has sunk an enemy submarine and captured the crew.

Norwegian Ship Sunk.

Havre, April 6.—An unnamed Norwegian steamer has been sunk in the Channel, with the loss of four lives. Fourteen of the crew were saved.

German Aeroplanes Routed.

Rome, April 6.—Much German artillery is arriving at Veles in Southern Servia. Ten German aeroplanes that had evidently set out to bombard Saloniki were attacked by fourteen Allied machines and put to flight.

Holland Demand on England.

The Hague, April 6.—Holland has demanded from England the return of valuable securities and documents seized in the mails taken from Dutch ships by vessels of the British Navy. Official announcement to this effect was made today.

Bombard Turkish Camps.

Athens, April 6.—Turkish encampments near Smyrna and Fort Kastlaki, guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna, were bombarded by a squadron of Allied aeroplanes yesterday and badly damaged. The cantonments were at Vourla and in the outskirts of Smyrna. Many Turks were killed. All the machines returned safely.

FUNERAL OF ANITA CLARK.

The funeral of Anita Clark, the seventen-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Minott Clark, was held at the Clark home on West Eighth street this morning, being conducted by Rev. Charles Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

TOWN TOPICS

Residents and business men in Scotch Plains and Fanwood are keenly desirous of tempting the governing bodies of the respective municipalities to force property owners to lay sidewalks. The need for this improvement has made itself particularly obvious during the spring thaws, and in order to avoid a recurrence of the bad walking conditions the merchants, especiall, are seriously considering the advisability of presenting a petition to the "suburban fathers." One Scotch Plains business man told a Daily Press reporter yesterday that he could get at least a dozen signers for such a petition in five minutes, and he added that each signer would be willing to start the ball rolling by laying sidewalks in front of his own property. No one can deny that there is a need for sidewalks, especially in the business section of Scotch Plains, and it is reasonable to expect that a majority of the property owners would fall in line if such a movement was undertaken.

In another column of this issue a letter from John Z. Hatfield will be found. Probably no other individual living either in Scotch Plains or Fanwood is better qualified to dwell on the merits of these two suburbs, and his communication is filled with interesting and instructive data. Such letters are welcomed by the Press and its readers, and this paper will be glad to give prominence to any similar articles. Mr. Hatfield's letter is worthy of notice by every resident, and every resident should avail himself of the opportunity to become acquainted with some real facts.

One of the greatest undertakings ever attempted in this part of the country will be tried within the township during the coming summer and fall, and local residents are looking forward to seeing the Shackamaxson Country Club enterprise developed into a population boster for nearby suburbs. It goes without saying that this club will be a drawing card, and that some of the finest people in the United States will come to the township to try out American's longest golf course. Already the attention of the public has been directed to the enterprise, and applications for membership are coming in every day.

Recorder Sheelen's suggestion that the police department be provided with summons blanks and warrants is the first step toward the accomplishment of a long felt need. To facilitate its work any police department has to be worked on a modern plan, and to continue to employ the antiquated methods of compelling individuals to appear in court would mean an impediment in the progress toward the greatest possible degree of efficiency.

Those interested in the welfare of the Baptist church have entered into a novel scheme through which it is hoped to raise a fund sufficient to defray the expenses of making some necessary repairs. An every-member canvass will be conducted on April 30, and much interest centers around the result.

MR. WILSON EXPLAINS WHY PRESENT PHONE BOOK LISTING IS THE BEST

In response to an invitation issued to him by the Men's Forum, of Scotch Plains, to be present at the final meeting held last Sunday in order that he might explain the possibility of Scotch Plains securing a separate listing in the telephone directory, A. B. Wilson, of Plainfield, the local commercial manager of the company, has forwarded the following letter of explanation to the Rev. J. Madison Hare:

"I am writing you to cutline the consideration which led to the grouping of listings of Scotch Plains telephone subscribers under the caption 'Fanwood' in the New Jersey Division telephone directory, and our reasons for believing that this grouping arrangement best serves the telephone interests of our subscribers in Scotch Plains.

"In the New Jersey Division there are 513 communities bearing names different from the town name corresponding to the central office by which they are served. Previous to the February, 1915, issue of the directory, the listings of 370 of these communities were grouped not under the community name, but under the name of the town corresponding to the central office by which the community was served. The listings in the remaining 143 communities were grouped under the community name.

"On account of the difference in method, a study was undertaken to determine the methods of grouping directory listings which would best suit the requirements of directory users' convenience rather than the individual subscriber's notion as to the manner in which his listings should be treated. To this end, the various methods in effect in our territory, as well as the practice of other large telephone companies in this respect, were reviewed, and it was concluded that the majority of telephone directory users are better served if the directory listings are grouped under the heading of the town name corresponding to the central office designation. In this arrangement, the following classes of patrons are cared for:

"1. The patron who might be informed of the central office designation of the telephone number to which he wishes to refer. There are, no doubt, patrons desiring to reach a Scotch Plains subscriber who remember through being called before or through having been told that the telephone number bears the designation 'Fanwood.' If such a patron did not find the listing under 'Fanwood,' the call would not be made unless the patron was persistent and appealed to the information operator.

"2. The patron who might be informed that the station desired is located near the town corresponding to the central office designation. It is important to care for this class of patrons in the case of small localities such as Scotch Plains, which is located near Fanwood, the boundaries between which are not known to the telephone public. Accordingly, a patron knowing only the general location of the desired party as being in the neighborhood of Fanwood, would refer to the caption 'Fanwood.'

"3. The patron who might be informed that the business activities of the desired party extended to the community corresponding to the central office designation, thus identifying the desired party in the patron's mind with that community. There are tradesmen and others residing in Scotch Plains whose business interests are located in Fanwood and so are identified in the minds of certain patrons with Fanwood. Such a patron would refer to the caption 'Fanwood' to obtain a residence listing of one of these subscribers.

"4. The patron in the community, since it gives him a more complete list of the numbers in his local service area within which intercommunication is frequent.

"5. The patron who might be informed of the locality in which the station desired is situated, where the locality name does not correspond with the central office designation. Such a patron would refer to the caption 'Scotch Plains' and, finding a reference note to Fanwood, be only momentarily delayed by the necessity of referring to the Fanwood group of listings. It is likely, moreover, that on subsequent calls such a patron's first reference would be to the caption 'Fanwood.'

"It will be seen from the above discussion that the grouping method finally settled upon as standard for our entire territory cares for all five classes of patrons, whereas to group the listings of subscribers in Scotch Plains under that caption would care only for the last class of patrons.

"Bearing in mind that the sole consideration in grouping directory listings is to render the listings available to all classes of patrons rather than to give prominence to the name of a particular community, I am sure that you will see that the telephone interests of Scotch Plains subscribers are best served by grouping their listings under Fanwood rather than under Scotch Plains."

Scotch Plains, the Ideal Suburb For the Peace Loving Resident

Mr. Hatfield Gives An Interst ing Account of Municipality's Advantages—Predicts That It Will Continue to Advance Until Plainfield Will Be Forced to Recognize It—Quotes Some Figures Indicative of Progressive Spirit.

An item which appeared on this page last week has prompted John Z. Hatfield, of Scotch Plains, to write the appended letter to the Daily Press. In it he pays a glowing tribute to a thriving community and presents statistics of an unusually interesting and instructive nature. The letter is as follows:

"In your issue of March 30, under Scotch Plains and Fanwood town topics, your article, 'Should All Be Boosters?' this heading would sound better, 'All Should Be Boosters.' In this article you state 'Few will deny that Scotch Plains has been slipping into the background of late years.' The writer is willing to be one who is ready to deny this statement, and will set forth the following to contradict the 'slipping into the background' statement.

"Ten years ago our assessed valuation was $742,035; now it is $1,700,000—a gain of nearly one million dollars. We can also register a gain of 2,270 in population between 1910 and 1915. Does this indicate a slipping into the background?

"It would be a long story to go into the details of betterments. Scotch Plains is provided with all the up-to-date conveniences—good water supply, electric light, gas, telephone, up-to-date trolley service—and although one mile from the railroad station, we are provided with an excellent taxi service.

"Scotch Plains is an ideal residential town. Our people retire to a peaceful and refreshing sleep, not disturbed by the screech of the steam car whistle nor the rumble and rattle of its engines and trains; but awake in the morning to hear the sweet music of the birds and inhale the clear, invigorating air not impregnated with the disagreeable fumes from the factory chimneys.

"Our sewage is not filling the street gutters, neither have we any stagnant mosquito-breeding pond holes. We are well equipped as to public schools, fire department, very excellent public library, churches and parish house of which even Plainfield would feel proud.

"You also mention 'narrow-minded people in Scotch Plains.' We believe our proportion in this respect is not greater than in other places. Our principal and hardest knocks have come from our neighbors, who seem to take great pleasure in knocking our town. We read it in the papers; see it in the play houses, and hear it in speeches; and one is often led to wonder why. But we of Scotch Plains must rest contented with the thought that it is the good who suffer from unjust criticism; it is the sweet apple tree in the orchard which receives the clubbing, bruising and knocking.

"Scotch Plains has many natural advantages, and our forefathers selected well when they chose it as a dwelling place, beautifully located, carefully sheltered, and it has been preserved for the past two hundred and thirty years as a peaceful, healthy, quiet habitation.

"Your great, glorious and noble city of Plainfield, of which you may justly feel proud, is but a child of Scotch Plains; but this child has become prosperous, as it were, through the efforts and sacrifices of the parent. It was Scotch Plains who, more than one hundred years ago, offered to the people of Plainfield the use of their library, thus helping to educate their child. Many other accommodations and kindnesses were rendered the young Plainfield by the parent Scotch Plains.

"Sometimes it would seem that the growing and prosperous Plainfield must extend its arm of care and protection over its parent Scotch Plains. There is nothing sweeter to the parent than the sympathy, the kind word and careful attentions of the child. By this we don't mean that Scotch Plains, because of its age, is becoming weak and feeble, but that it will continue in its own strength until the great city of Plainfield invites it to become a part of, and share the benefits, comforts and privileges of a Greater Plainfield."

TOWNSHIP GOSSIP

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church is being held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Loncore.

E. L. Wicket has returned to his home on North avenue after spending the winter in Plainfield.

George Johnston, the local township assessor and journal clerk of the Assembly, is slightly better. Mr. Johnston has been seriously ill at his home on Westfield avenue for the past month.

The weekly Lenten service will be conducted in the Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Oscar S. Michael.

The weekly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis Garda, of North avenue.

Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street, aged 83, who is one of the best-known residents of Scotch Plains, is remaining about the same, according to reports coming from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she was removed Saturday.

Abram Wade, of Stansberry avenue, is slowly recovering after a several weeks' illness.

Mrs. Arthur Palmer and daughter, Marion, of Bartle avenue, have returned from visiting in Brooklyn.

RETAIN OFFICERS AFTER WRANGLE

Borough Council Indulges in Heated Debate Relative to Re-electing Incumbents.

MOSQUITO WORK HERE

Dr. Westcott Outlines Plan of Extermination Campaign to Be Followed by Commission—New Features to Facilitate Police Work.

After the first split that has occurred in the Borough Council in years, and one that made it necessary for the mayor to cast the deciding vote, the three members of the Board of Health, whose terms expired last month, were re-appointed. Owing to the lack of activity the appointments were laid over for a month and it was only after considerable wrangling that the three members—Charles Fernald, Dr. F. W. Wescott and Dr. Ray Munger—were returned to their places. The extensive practice of the two latter made it impossible for them to attend meetings, it was thought, and for that reason many times there were not enough present to form a quorum.

A hint as to the work that is to be undertaken in the borough by the Mosquito Commission this summer was given by Dr. Wescott, when he explained to the Council the effort that the commission is making to cooperate with the Board of Health. The commission complains, it seems, that on many occasions the inspector in the course of his work is treated lightly by people. To, in a measure, do away with this, the commission wishes to have the inspector made an inspector of the Board of Health also, so that he may compel residents to do certain things by means of the help of the Board of Health. No definite action was taken on the matter, but it is likely that the Council will agree to the proposition.

A communication was received from Recorder Sheelen, asking that the police be supplied with summons and warrant blanks, along with the other necessary documents so that an officer may compel a person to appear in court at a certain time without arresting him on the spot. The matter was referred to the clerk with instructions to get what was needed. The clerk was authorized to get license tags for the dogs, as the present licenses expire in a few weeks. In reporting on work done during the past months, the chairman of the street committee said that the spring weather had put the roads in the worst shape they had been in in years. It will be another month before they are put entirely in condition. As an additional item to the repairs that are now being made on the borough hall, the police committee was authorized to make a few necessary changes in the entrance vestibule.

Cash on hand of $3,478.97 was reported, and bills amounting to $516.28 were audited.

INTEREST ATTACHED TO NATIONAL PLAN

Miss Hoar's Appointment to Girls' National Guard Council Creates Local Touch.

Although the organization of a Girls' National Guard has become of more or less country-wide interest, local people are especially interested because the success of the movement in this State, especially, depends upon a local young woman. In making her selections for representatives in the various States of the Union, Miss Thedora Booth, daughter of the president of the Volunteers of America, appointed Miss Dorothy Hoar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hoar, of Martine avenue, as New Jersey representative.

Miss Hoar attended an organization meeting in New York last Monday, when preliminary steps were taken to start the movement that will, it is hoped, greatly benefit the country in case of war. Each member throughout the country will prepare herself to be able to do some one thing, some to drive autos, some to be nurses, and other to do anything that will be helpful.

Miss Booth is a frequent visitor at the home of Miss Hoar and is especially anxious that local young women enroll. Miss Hoar is receiving the names of those wishing to join, and already the New Jersey list is growing rapidly.

MAY IMPROVE STREETS.

By the end of another year, another local street may be put under county supervision if the authorities of both the township and borough succeed in convincing the Board of Freeholders that Martine avenue is of sufficient importance. The street is partly in Scotch Plains and partly in Fanwood, and the street committees of both places have acknowledged that they are unable to keep it in the shape it should be in. Besides forming the connecting link between the two towns, it is in a direct line between South avenue and Mountain avenue, two county roads, and so gets all of the heavy traffic going between the two thoroughfares. The ordinary macadam that the local officials can afford is worn away each year and means a great expense in repair. During the present spring, practically the entire road, about two miles in length, has gone to pieces, and is being repaired at great cost. The county officials have been approached by the local street departments and have replied that the present number of county roads needing repair, along with other expenses, will prevent the taking over of any new thoroughfares this year, but when the time comes, the local highway will be given first consideration.

ABOUT TO START WORK ON NEW OIL STATION

With the coming of warmer weather, work on the erection of the large supply station for the Pure Oil Company, of Newark, on South avenue, is being pushed rapidly forward and in a week or so the construction of the one large tank will be started.

One of the railroad sidings from the C. R. R. of N. J. has already been constructed and the toolhouse is completed. The ground has all been cleared and the foundations for the tanks, which will be of steel, will be started as soon as possible. The work on the buildings to house the motor trucks and horses and wagons will be started in a few days also, and the whole plant will be ready by the latter part of July.

Two smaller tanks have just arrived on flat cars via the C. R. R. of N. J., and will be sunk in the ground as soon as possible.

WANT CEMENT WALKS.

After several years of quiet, local residents, especially of the borough, are again agitating the laying of concrete sidewalks. A majority of the citizens seem to be in favor of such a move, and all new homes being built are being surrounded with cement walks. As it is now the local governing bodies have no jurisdiction over individual property-owners, with the result that the largest part of the gravel walks are in wretched shape, especially at this season. The Borough Council is in favor of them.

WORKING ON NEW COURSE.

Work has now fairly started on the finishing of the Shackamaxson golf course on the old Lambert estate, and by the Fourth of July it is expected that the first nine holes will be ready for play. Work was started Monday on the clubhouse, and the deepening and walling up of "Lambert's pond" will be started shortly. An extra force of men went on the job this week, and an average of ten teams are engaged in putting the course in shape.

BORO ORDINANCES.

The printing and stationery committee of the Borough Council has had 150 pamphlets printed for distribution among Fanwood residents to embody all of the borough ordinances. Each citizen is supposed to have a copy and familiarize himself with the ordinances, both old and new.

WELCOME STRANGERS.

The new arrivals of the past week to the borough and township include C. A. Smith and family, from New York, to the Woodbridge house on Paterson road, and Walter May, from Bayonne to the Fanwood Lumber & Supply Company house on Martine avenue.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Urner entertained twenty-five of their friends at their home on Tilliston road last night. A very pleasant evening, with cards, dancing and music was spent, and later a collation was served.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

A regular meeting of the Fanwood Township Committee is scheduled to be held in Excelsior Hall tomorrow night.

ENTERTAINED CLUB.

Mrs. Robert Thrane, of Paterson road, entertained the members of the Wednesday "500" Club at her home yesterday afternoon. Ten ladies enjoyed the play; after which tea was served.

HENRY BAERMAN IMPROVED.

Henry Baerman, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Baerman, has recovered from a critical illness. He had measles and took cold, and his condition for a time was such that his recovery was doubtful.

D. T. Heaume has been confined to his home in Plainfield by rheumatism for the past few days.

Mrs. Charles Smith, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Trewin, was out for the first yesterday after an illness of a week.

Mrs. Henry Schaffer, of Somerville, is visiting Mrs. Robert Trewin.

TAKES NEW POSITION.

E. N. Bowen, of New Market road, has accepted a position as mechanical draughtsman with the Babcock-Wilcox Company at Bayonne.

PURCHASES ECKERT HOUSE.

Carl Marx, at present residing in the Lienau house, No. 247 Dunellen avenue, has purchased the Eckert house on Third street, tenanted by W. J. Smith. Mr. Marx will take possession on June 1.

LADIES' AID ELECTS.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held yesterday afternoon in the Baraca room, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Edward Pennock, president; Mrs. R. F. Bogardus, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Starker, second vice-president; Mrs. Robert Wright, secretary; Mrs. W. S. Frederick, treasurer.

IT'S A GIRL.

A daughter was born on Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Terry, who have been stopping with the latter's mother, Mrs. Mary Wilson, of Madison avenue.

CHARLES WILLIAMS ILL.

Charles Williams, the day gateman at the Grove street railroad crossing for the past thirty years, has been confined by illness to the home of Thomas Reynolds, where he boards, for the past two weeks. One on his feet has been causing him considerable trouble, and gangrene has been feared.

AWARDED A CONTRACT.

Contractor C. Lester Rule has been awarded a contract of erecting a garage for Herbert E. Nelson, the local taxi man. The building, which will be of concrete, will be located in the rear of the hardware store of Smalley Brothers.

MEETING AND SOCIAL.

The monthly meeting of the Epworth League was held at the home of G. Sumner Smith on Grove street, Tuesday evening. Following the transaction of business a social time was enjoyed by those who were present.

JUNIOR DEPT. ENTERTAINS.

A program, consisting of music, speaking and flower and flag drills will be given by the young members of the Junior department of the Presbyterian Sunday-school in the Presbyterian chapel at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening under the direction of Miss Irene Day. Admission will be free, but a silver offering will be taken for the Junior fund.

John Huenke, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Huenke, has the measles.

COTTAGE MEETINGS.

Cottage prayer meetings will be held at the homes of the following this evening: Samuel Titus, H. S. Townley, David Torrey, James Manning, E. B. Leland, A. J. Hamley and Joseph G. Walton.

Mrs. Daniel Moody has been quite ill with the grip since Saturday.

MISS EBEL'S CONDITION.

Miss Anna Ebel, of First street, who burned her hands quite badly at the home of Mrs. M. E. Harris about a month ago as the result of a can of bronzing liquid exploding, is still unable to do any work. Miss Ebel was bronzing a hot water boiler for Mrs. Harris at the time. Without thinking what she was doing, she set the can on the stove near the boiler and the explosion resulted.

MASTERS HIS WHEEL.

Garfield Hunt, foreman for George F. Giles, the plumber, has mastered the art of bicycle riding after endeavoring to knock over several trees and telegraph poles in the vicinity of his home.

HOME-MADE SALE.

The home-made bakery sale will be held in the C. T. Voorhees' market, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association. The sale will start at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Theodore W. Day is chairman of the committee in charge.

South Plainfield.

A carload of cotton which was badly damaged somewhere along the Lehigh Valley Railroad was taken off the car near the freight house yesterday. The car is damaged to a large extent, and it is now in the local ward undergoing repairs.

Miss Elizabeth Shrope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Shrope, is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alexander, who recently moved from this place to Jersey City.

Charles Nuis, of Brooklyn, who has been spending the last few days with his mother, Mrs. H. Munday, returned home yesterday.

Owing to the illness of A. Nelson, one of the members of the Township Committee, the monthly meeting has been postponed until next week.

Mrs. William Farrel has returned to her home in Metuchen after being the guest of her mother, Mrs. Mary McDonough.

Mrs. Melvin Shrope returned yesterday from a visit with friends in New York.

Miss Lilly Hogan, who is a trained nurse, returned yesterday to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hogan, after being on a case in Three Bridges for the past month.

Frank, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kravatsky, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Daniel Sofield has returned after being the guest of his sister, Mrs. Joseph Miller, of Newark, for the last few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruth have moved from this place to their former home in Mechanicsburg, Pa. Mr. Ruth still retains his position with the Spicer Company.

Ray Finney, who has been employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad for the past six months as a special officer, has resigned his position to accept another at his home in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. During Mr. Finney's stay in this place he made many friends.

Mrs. H. Shurig and family will remove from this place to Brooklyn on the first of May.

LACK OF POWER CLOSES JOHNS-MANVILLE PLANT

Because of a break in the power lines of the Johns-Manville plant at Manville all of the workers are out today. The plant will be closed indefinitely, but it is believed that the lines will be repaired some time tomorrow, so that the men can go back to work.

"THE RENAISSANCE IN CHINA" MISSION SUBJECT

"The Renaissance in China" was the topic of the fouth of the Interdenominational Mission Study lectures given in the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, by Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery. During her talk she told of the present-day conditions in China and of their modern system of education, a large portion of which is carried on the order of the American system of education. Some knowledge of the size of the Chinese Empire can be gotten from the idea that the country with her three provinces equals one-fourth the population of the globe.

Mrs. Montgomery dwelt on this point at some length, emphasizing the fact that because of her enormous size, China has an important part to play in modern civilization. Next Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Montgomery will devote her talk to "The Apostolic Age in Korea."

RECREATION NOTES

Miss Scarborough's needlework class will meet in the Washington School tonight. The social club and Miss Snyder's dancing classes will hold sessions and roller skating will be enjoyed in the basement. The latter class is probably the most popular of the activities in the school and the committee have a number of pairs of skates available for those who do not personally own them.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MEETING.

The City Union of King's Daughters held its monthly business meeting in the Day Nursery this morning at which time it was announced the annual meeting would be held in Vincent chapel on May 4. Mrs. Charles A. Menet, of Orange, the State president, will give the address. It was also announced that the State meeting would be held in Elizabeth on May 25. Reports for the month showed that the nursing bureau had cared for 996 visits during March and that there had been a total attendance of 437 children at the Day Nursery during that period.

POSTMASTER TO RECEIVE BIDS.

During the next ten days up to Friday, April 14, Postmaster Alvin E. Hoagland will receive bids for the contract of carrying the mail between the postoffice and the North avenue railroad station. The contract for this work is given to the lowest bidder.

—Charles Weaver, son of Edward Weaver, of 39 Lincoln place, is learning the printing trade in the office of W. J. Trembath.

'SAFETY FIRST' IN USE OF MILK

George M. Christian Suggests a Few "Don'ts" as Preventitive Against Disease.

OPINIONS OF EXPERTS

According to Government Reports 80 Per Cent. of All Cows Are Affected With Tuberculosis—What is Being Done to Prevent Spread.

There is a widespread interest at present in the announcement that the dairy division of the Government has undertaken a very thorough investigation into dairy conditions throughout the country, the result of which must affect very household. George M. Christian, of this city, who is the New Jersey member of the International Pure Food and Pure Milk League, an organization with about 600 members, with headquarters in New York, in speaking of conditions in general said:

"The Dairy Division of the Government reports that 80 per cent. of all cows are affected with tuberculosis. To give an idea of conditions in an inspection I made of one of the finest and most sanitary dairies in New York State, I discovered by tests that in the herd of 87 cows, 72 by the tubercular test had tuberculosis.

"It is very difficult to discover an affected cow's condition as the supply of milk will keep up, the appearance of the cow is not changed and they do not cough as does the human being. Taking all cases of tuberculosis 10 per cent. are caused by bovine troubles. Very few cities outside of Plainfield permit the sale of raw milk. We have our anti-tuberculosis organizations and they are doing good work, but why not prevent the principal cause of the disease? The sale of raw milk is prohibited in New York city. The Newark Board of Health and similar bodies are taking drastic measures to prevent the sale of any other than pasteurized milk. Pasteurization of milk is all right in a way, provided the milk is used within 36 hours, otherwise it becomes putrid and is worse than contaminated raw milk. Even pasteurized milk should be clarified before being pasteurized. It is just as dirty, containing particles of hay, dust, cow feed, bedding and manure, all likely to carry germs. All first-class dairies clarify milk before pasteurization.

"The much lauded and high priced certified milk is ideal in the matter of cleanliness, but in the matter of safety certified milk cannot furnish any guarantee. This is confirmed by Dr. Charles F. North, the sanitary expert of the International Milk Association. Not only has bovine tuberculosis been found constantly present in certified milk, but very frequently to a large extent. Since cows are affected with tuberculosis the loss from this cause is enormous.

"Dr. W. Reed Blair, of New York, is authority that dogs and cats are liable to have the disease. He claims that 80 per cent. of all animals in the zoological parks and circuses on the road have the disease. Goats are the only animals not affected with tuberculosis. The Swiss goat innoculated a number of milch goats with dpyhtheric, typhoid and tubercular germs. After numerous blood and milk tests it was discovered for some reason the goats had thrown off all traces of the malignant diseases. Goat's milk is the same as human milk, it contains 6½ per cent. sugar of milk, where cow's milk contains only 4½ per cent.

"A few suggestions that may be of value to those who have little folks. The stomach of the baby is a most peculiar portion of his anatomy. Food that will assimilate and build up one child will be of no value to another. It is often the case that cow's milk, or condensed milk does not agree with the little one. Why? Cow's milk is hard to digest on account of the protein and casein in the indigestible parts of the milk. Condensed milk, if the use is continued for any length of time, tends to produce rickets, and the 25 per cent. of cane sugar in condensed milk is injurious for the babies' kidneys. Ninety per cent. of the bottled milk that is delivered to families is in good condition at the time of delivery, but becomes contaminated by carelessness. I will suggest a few don'ts.

"To prevent milk from becoming unfit for food, especially for the babies, the sick or convalescent, don't empty the milk from the bottle into a pitcher and place it in the ice box, or on your table. Don't fail to wipe off the mouth of the bottle before emptying it on account of great chances of contamination from handling, delivery to trains, icing, distributing to the delivery wagons, the filling of bottles, capping, danger of dust and dirt from the street and last and worse than all the danger of flies settling in the bottle. Milk is delivered in the early morning hours and the flies have a feast, and this contaminated milk goes into your homes. By an actual test by the U. S. Dairy Division it was discovered that on the feet of one fly there was 100,000 malignant bacteria.

"Don't pour back in the bottle milk which has been exposed to the air. Don't leave the milk bottle open on your table or in the ice box. Cover it with an inverted tumbler or a paper bag. Don't wash any utensil used for feeding milk to children, the sick or convalescents in dish water used for washing other utensils. It is far better to boil them in clean water and set them away unwiped.

"These suggestions may prevent serious intestinal troubles to the little ones and would apply well to people. These facts are confirmed by the well-known health specialists, including Dr. Martin J. Synnott, of Montclair; Dr. Henry L. Colt, of Newark; Dr. Charles E. North, of New York, and Dr. Vail, president of the Board of Health of Newark."

WASTE OF WATER POWER LEAVES U. S. WITHOUT POWDER SUPPLY

SEN. SHIELDS, AUTHOR of BILL

A 10,000 HORSE POWER WHEEL READY to be PUT to WORK

Sensational charges involving America's pitiful lack of ingredients for explosives are stirring the Senate of the United States. Developments of the last few days have brought out the fact that the United States is absolutely dependent on foreign countries for the bases of all its explosives.

The revelation of actual conditions is regarded as the most important development up to date in the preparedness situation. Senators are saying there is little use to provide fortifications, big guns or even more battleships if our powder supply runs out. The keen edge of interest has been whetted by cables revealing the tremendous use of explosives in the present war, especially at Verdun.

In spite of efforts to keep this information [illegible] from the public—or rather from agents of foreign countries—disclosure of the facts has just been made in the Senate debate on water power legislation. The reason for the revelation is that the passage of two bills, the general dam bill introduced by Senator Shields, of Tennessee, and the bill for leasing power sites on the public domain, introduced by Senator Myers, of Montana, open the way for Uncle Sam to make his own nitrates for explosives right at home by taking nitrogen from the atmosphere through water power, without asking leave of any foreign nation.

Will Reduce Fertilizer Prices.

Besides making the United States independent in its supply of what the big guns eat, the pending legislation will, if passed, reduce the price of the farmers' fertilizer by supplying cheaper nitrates. It would also immediately open the way for cheap power for a multitude of other purposes.

The proposed measures are not political. They are regarded as not only an essential part of the "preparedness" program, but also as an urgent economical necessity. President Wilson has urged legislation to unlock the Nation's water powers to use. Secretary of the Interior Lane has endorsed the Myers bill for power-site leases in the public lands. Former Secretary of War Garrison urged strongly the need for passing the Shields bill. Other prominent men have given their approval to these conservation measures. One of the few sources of strong opposition is reported to be certain groups of big corporations which now have a monopoly of power in their territory and which are opposing development which might lead to competition and possible reduction in power prices.

Engineers, bankers, chemists, business men and others who know the practical side of the water power business have told congressional committees that the reason America has none of these new industries and the reason why seventy percent of our water powers are running to waste is because the present laws do not offer terms upon which American investors are willing to put their money into these enterprises. Pending legislation, they say, will, if passed, furnish the necessary incentive to capital.

Those in charge of the legislation say they are encouraged greatly over the letters that farmers and other citizens are writing to their Senators and Congressmen in favor

FAREWELL SERVICE OF DR. BIEDERWOLF

Norristown Turned Out 170,500 People at His Services.

A combined rehearsal of the choir and orchestra which is to sing at the Biederwolf campaign meetings will be held in the Plainfield High School this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. It is essential that every member be present, and those who have not as yet joined the choir or orchestra will be given an opportunity of so doing at this time.

Rev. C. A. Raach met the official boards of all the co-operating churches at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last evening for the union prayer meetings, one of which was held in the First M. E. church, that church, First Presbyterian, First Baptist, Trinity Reformed and Temple Baptist uniting. Another in the Crescent Avenue church with Park Avenue Baptist and Seventh-Day Baptist uniting, while the third group met in Grace M. E. church with Warren chapel and Wilson Memorial uniting.

DESERTED FAMILY AND WILL BE BROUGHT BACK

Clarence Horner, formerly a driver for the Zeek Baking Company here, is under arrest in Philadelphia for the Plainfield police. Horner is wanted here for embezzlement and for deserting his wife and two children. He left Plainfield about three months ago.

An indictment was found against him sometime ago for having taken about $100 from the baking company. Prosecutor Stein is co-operating with Chief Kiely in his efforts to have Horner brought back to Plainfield for trial. He is being held in Philadelphia awaiting requisition papers.

NEW JERSEY POULTRY ASSOCIATION INCORPORATES

Articles of incorporation of the New Jersey State Poultry Association were filed Wednesday at the Middlesex County clerk's office. The corporation is formed to take over the society of the same name, and to improve the poultry industry throughout the State generally. Rufus Delafield, of South Plainfield, is named as agent in charge.

Incorporators and trustees for the ensuing year are as follows: J. Harry Wolsieffer, Vineland; Charles D. Cleveland, Eatontown; Carroll H. Hoagland, Dover; Charles J. Fisk, Plainfield; Rufus Delafield, South Plainfield; W. P. Laing, Woodbury Heights, and Charles W. Warner, Toms River.

TO CONDUCT CAKE SALE.

Under the auspices of the Boys' Auxiliary of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild a cake sale will be held at 320 West Front street, next to Gavett's crockery store, on Saturday. By patronizing this sale the guild will be able to continue its work of brightening and cheering many lives who otherwise would know only suffering and privation.

NEW RECORD, 14 YEARS FROM COLLEGE TO RAILROAD HEAD

TRAIN SHED, WINDSOR STATION, MONTREAL and E.W. BEATTY

New laurels for college education have been won in Canada by "Ed" W. Beatty, who recently was elected the youngest director and vice-president of the Dominion's great railroad, steamship and colonization system, the "C. P. R.," at 38 years, only 15 years from graduation.

From a lawyer's office to the board of the "C. P. R." in 14 years is Beatty's record since he won a lawyer's sheepskin. His training as an athlete made long hours of work possible; quietly but persistently he strove for success and won it. He is characterized as "a combination of eternal youth, dominant intellect, magnetic personality and dynamic energy." He was born in a small Ontario town, Thorold, and spent his boyhood there. Now with the legal affairs of the giant railway under his hand, his is a strong hand, opening and shutting with a keenness and farsightedness not often found in so young a man.

VISITING NURSE ASS'N PLANS SEASON'S WORK

There was a meeting of the members of the Baby Welfare Committee at the office of the Visiting Nurse Association, yesterday afternoon, to hear reports of the work that is to be done and to plan the work that is to be done later in the spring. A great many of the stores, it is reported, assisted the committee by exhibits and by allowing milk bottles to be placed on their counters for collection. Seventy-five dollars was collected for the milk stations in this way. The bottles that had the largest amounts were from the railroad station, Tepper's, United Cigar Company, Randolph's, Smalley's and the Woman's Exchange. Perhaps the best exhibit was held at Tepper's.

There is to be a baby welfare exhibit held for the West End of Plainfield under the direction of the Civic Section of the Monday Afternoon Club. There will be special features to this exhibit which will be published later.

—The next meeting of the Young Friends Association will be held tomorrow evening at the meeting house on Watchung.

Official Ignorance.

One of the best of the many stories of English official ignorance of the colonies is recalled by P. A. Silburn in "The Governance of Empire." Lord Palmerston was forming a new ministry and in a preliminary council was arranging its composition. He had filled up all the portfolios with the exception of the colonial office. First one name and then another was suggested and thrown aside. At last he said to Sir Arthur Helps: "I suppose I must take the thing myself. Come upstairs with me and show me where these places are on the maps."

ISSUES STATED BY ROOSEVELT

Is Now Openly Candidate For Republican Nomination.

NAMES HIS CONDITIONS.

No "Pussy-footing;" United States First, Last and All the Time—Would Defend Nation's Rights Without Desiring War—Abhors Divided Loyalty.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., April 6.—Colonel Roosevelt has made known the terms upon which he would accept the Republican nomination for president of the United States.

He made known his attitude to a visitor from a nearby state who expects to go to the Republican national convention as a delegate. There were five men present in the big trophy room at Sagamore hill who heard the conversation.

The colonel, with his characteristic vehemence, had been talking of Mexico and other international problems when the visitor broke in.

"You know, colonel," he said, "I may make up my mind that we will have to nominate you."

Like a flash the colonel turned to his visitor.

"Well, now, let me give you a piece of advice," he said, pounding the chair arm. "If you have any doubt on the subject do not nominate me. Get it perfectly clear in your head that if you nominate me it mustn't be because you think it is in my interest, but because you think it is in your interest and the interest of the Republican party and because you think it to the interest of the United States to do so.

Says He Won't "Pussy-foot."

"And, more than that, don't you do it if you expect me to pussy-foot on any single issue I have raised," he continued. "Don't be for me unless you are prepared to say that every citizen of this country has got to be pro-United States first, last and all the time and no pro-anything else at all and that we stand for every good American everywhere whatever his birthplace or creed and wherever he now lives and that in return we demand that he be an American and nothing else, with no hyphen about him.

"Every American citizen must be for America first and for no other country even second, and he hasn't any right to be in the United States at all if he has any divided loyalty between this country and any other.

"I don't care a rap for the man's creed or birthplace or national origin so long as he is straight United States. I am for him if he is straight United States, and if he isn't I am against him. And don't you nominate me unless you are prepared to take the position that Uncle Sam is to be strong enough to defend his rights and to defend every one of his people, wherever those people are, and he can't be strong enough unless he prepares in advance.

"I am not for war. On the contrary, I abhor an unjust or a wanton war, and I would use every honorable expedient to avoid even a just war. But I feel with all my heart that you don't in the long run avoid war my making other people believe that you are afraid to fight for your own rights.

"Uncle Sam Must Be Prepared."

"Uncle Sam must never wrong the weak. He must never insult any one or wantonly give cause of offense to either the weak or the strong, and the squarest possible way to enable him to keep the peace and to keep it on terms that will enable Americans to hold their heads high and not hang them in shame is for him to be so prepared in advance—and I mean prepared in his own soul as well as with his army and navy—that when he says anything the rest of the world will know that he means it and that he can make good.

"Don't you try to nominate me unless you think that is the policy that ought to be followed out, and followed out for your sake as much as for mine, and for the sake of the rest of us here in the United States, and don't forget that isn't a course that provokes war. It is the only course that in the long run prevents war and secures national self respect and guarantees the honor of this country and the rights of its citizens wherever they may be."

The conversation between the colonel and his visitors came as a logical sequence to the Roosevelt-Root-Lodge luncheon last Friday at the home of Robert Bacon in New York, which gave such a mighty impetus to the boom which Roosevelt's followers were conducting for his nomination.

NOTED COUNTRY HOME BURNED

Show Place at Long Branch Destroyed by Fire.

HOME OF D. GUGGENHEIM

"Firenzi," Palace With Twenty-five Rooms and Furniture, Wiped Out. Loss Said to Be Fully $100,000—Stood on Estate of L. B. Brown, the Founder of Elberon.

Long Branch, April 6.—"Firenzi," the country home of Daniel Guggenheim of New York, was destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is not known. Nobody was in the house when the blaze started.

The house was situated at Ocean and Sycamore avenues, in the Elberon section of this city. It was erected twelve years ago on the L. B. Brown estate, from which Elberon takes its name.

The house contained twenty-five rooms. It was one of the show places on the coast. Not far away are the handsome homes of Mr. Guggenheim's brothers, Murray and Sol.

A gardener employed by Mr. Guggenheim discovered the fire. It was then burning a porch, but by the time the firemen arrived the flames had broken into the building and were soon sweeping through it.

From the start the fight of the firemen was hopeless, and it was evident that the handsome house, fully furnished, was doomed. There was a stiff north wind blowing, and this carried the flames and sparks toward several cottages. These escaped damage owing to their being kept wet down by the firemen.

By daylight the house had fallen in and the ruins were burning. The loss is said to be about $100,000. It is said to be covered by insurance. No one was hurt.

SECONDHAND GLASS.

Interesting Methods of a Business That Is Quite Extensive.

The salvage glass industry is of such importance and extent that many dealers in secondhand glass specialize in one branch or another. Some, for instance, handle only plate glass that comes to them by reason of the demolition of old buildings, razed to make place for new structures. Salvage glass of this sort brings prices not far below those of new glass.

A considerable quantity of the salvage glass dealer's stock emanates from the plate glass insurance companies. The methods of these companies in taking over glass vary. One concern may keep no stock on hand, simply buying whatever is required to replace a broken pane, disposing of the broken glass, if enough remains to be sold, to the salvage dealer. Sometimes a company will have a warehouse of its own, to which it will remove broken glass that may still be in condition to use. Frequently it will happen that only one corner has been broken from a large pane and that this may be cut down to fit a smaller window.

Most plate glass is insured, but there is much that is not. In the case of an uninsured plate that is broken the owner must, of course, go to a dealer for a new plate. He will sell the broken plate to the salvage dealer. It follows therefore that from insurance companies, from building wreckers and from owners of uninsured glass the salvage glass dealers accumulate great quantities of secondhand plate glass. Much of this is in such a condition that it may be reset anywhere. Should the injury consist, for instance, of simply a deep scratch in the center it is easy to make that plate salable. The secondhand dealer cuts out a strip containing the scratch and thus have left two smaller plates, quite suitable for smaller windows.

When injured plate glass is too much scratched to be available for windows it is sometimes made into ground or frosted glass for office partitions or doors. Salvage plate glass too small for use in windows is employed for the glass doors of refrigerators, and larger pieces are utilized in the making of glass table tops. Small fragments go to the making of hand mirrors, although only clear pieces may be so employed. Other pieces, too small for other purposes, enter into the manufacture of glass signs.

Eventually, when the last piece of merchantable glass has been cut from the damaged piece, there remain the scraps and fragments accumulated in the cutting. Even these have their uses, although they do not bring much. They are melted and used in the manufacture of bottles.—Washington Star.

The Cloth

When have you found before such materials as these in shirts at 95c?

Some are silk striped fabrics, beautifully woven. Hundreds are of super-fine madras in brilliant new patterns.

Dozen after dozen are made of mercerized cloths, which simulate silk in appearance. Cotton crepes are favorites. We have hundreds of them.

Reps, percales and fancy weaves are here in a wealth of pattern originality.

Magnificent jacquard weaves, fresh from the looms, abound throughout the assortment of 15,000.

The Colorings

All the cloth in the world, no matter how fine it might be, would be refused admission to this sale were not the patterns newer and better than anything ever shown before.

Since we began to assemble the shirts we insisted emphatically that every maker produce his best patterns and colorings.

Warm spring days and coming summer weather urge the necessity of shirts which are distinctive because of their colorings and patterns.

The Dyes

We are ready to guarantee the dyes.

We first had the makers guarantee them. Not even the brightest red, nor the palest blue should turn a shade from the time we sell it until the time you wear it out, because of the dyes.

Sizes 13½ to 18

The question of size we impressed upon the makers repeatedly.

Our shirts had to be cut properly or not at all. We declared that we would discard any shirt that was not up to exact specifications as to size.

All shirts in this sale are cut full. There is no skimping of the skirts. They are full rounded.

Every detail from the buttonholes to the neckbands is perfect. In these shirts you will find the very newest features of the finest custom-made shirts in the country.

There are shirts here from 13½ to as large as 18.

We have them with soft or laundered cuffs.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

FOR FINAL STEPS IN SUBMARINE ISSUE

President Decides to Take Decisive Action.

Washington, April 6.—President Wilson is now determined to take final steps in the submarine issue with Germany which will, he believes, protect the rights of American citizens and the honor of the nation.

He will use the recent instances of attacks on ships carrying Americans as a means of obtaining ironclad assurances of this protection from Germany or he will go before congress and ask that a joint resolution be adopted authorizing him to take whatever steps he may deem necessary to obtain it. The president's decision has just become known.

It is understood that Secretary of State Lansing explained the position of the United States to M. Jusserand, the French ambassador.

The situation is neither more nor less serious than it was a week ago, but the president's views have crystallized into definite shape, and the policy of "watchful waiting" has given way to a policy of "prospective action."

This action, it is said, now awaits only the reply which Berlin makes to the list of instances where American lives have been jeopardized by alleged attacks of German submarines and which Ambassador Gerard at Berlin has brought to the attention of the German foreign office.

"ANTIS" RAID SENATE.

Delegation of 60 Women Fights Strenuously Against Suffrage Referendum.

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—"Remember the vote at Albany!" With this new slogan sixty anti-suffragists from New York city and a few other sections of the state advanced on the senate to do what they could to prevent the passage of the woman suffrage amendment referendum.

They were armed with a resolution adopted at an anti-suffrage state council meeting in New York last Friday pledging their future support "through husbands, brothers, fathers, sons and friends who represent them at the polls to the men who recognize the authority of majority rule" as expressed at the polls last November when the woman suffrage amendment was beaten.

BATTER UP!

In less than a week the umpires will shout "Play Ball" in the big leagues. The office boy will begin to lose his grandparents, the boss will have an important engagement out of town, and minds will begin to wander away from work about 3 o'clock every afternoon. Every red-blooded American is glad of it. With the first game everybody knows that the last definite announcement of spring has come, and averages, hits, runs and other baseball terms creep into every conversation. The sporting editor has pulled down his little book of slang terms and is brushing up on the work of the players in the past years, and the small boys are already "hitting 'em out" on the lots around town. Life is just one run after another for the younger generation.

The forty-two centimetre shells will take second place to tales of some well known player's hickory bat, and more interest will be shown in the fellow that made a home run than in how far the Germans or French or the English have been made to run by their opponents abroad. Lots of the fans will forget there is a war in progress. The battle on the diamond will be the real thing, so far as this country is concerned, and there is not a human being who does not give thanks that this country is reading of that kind of battles.

It is high time some relief were afforded man from the evils of his daily walk, as one of our exchanges says, and baseball will furnish that relief. The call of the umpire will ring louder than the voice of the rifle, and the attendance it will command will be more spontaneous. The ball game is a grand game, deservedly popular, sufficiently venerable to command respect because of its years, but ever renewing its youth with the coming of spring; always calling the young men and the boys out to active participation in its athletic delights, and giving to those whose limbs are no longer supple and active the reminiscent joy of vigorous games played long ago.

Baseball is typical as an American institution. It furnishes good, wholesome, lively sport, and after a winter of war, and snow and slush, and icy sidewalks, and the session of the Legislature, the fire investigation, and other dismal things, it will be a great big relief to change the subject.

"Batter Up!"

• • • • • •

The State S. P. C. A. reports that since the Legislature passed a law taking away from the justices of the peace all jurisdiction in cruelty cases, the organization has met with a deficit. To the way of thinking of the average man, the very need for the law is fully demonstrated by that frank admission. The society is supported largely by its share of fines received, and it was formerly able to take good care of itself through friendly justices of the peace. There were undoubtedly times when these country magistrates, amenable to "suggestion" laid the fines on good and thick, and it was the abuse of this privilege that prompted the Legislature to take the authority away from them in the same way that they took the right to perform marriages away. The Plainfield Branch of the S. P. C. A. has done its work in a sensible manner, due to the intelligent use of the powers by Mrs. Van Hoesen, the agent in charge, and there has never been complaint about unjust persecution in this section of the State as a result. If other branches in the State had conducted the work in the same manner, and not been unreasonable in their prosecutions, the complaint now being made would not be heard.

Tax Collector William R. Townsend, in accordance with the law passed by the last Legislature, will in a few days advertise the list of citizens of Plainfield who have failed to pay their personal taxes for last year, and in cases for some years prior to that time. By the hardest kind of personal solicitation, and the sending out of final warnings, the collector has reduced the list to about 800 names, the amounts ranging from a dollar to several hundred dollars. By his hard work Mr. Townsend has collected $20,000 or more, but there is still a large sum due the city, and there will be plenty of work for him after the list has been made public, for the unpleasant publicity given to the delinquents will not relieve them of the obligation to settle, but will in fact increase their bill, owing to the expense of the advertising. There will also be other fees and interest added. Those who have not yet paid their personal taxes will therefore save themselves considerable embarrassment by settling up before the list is published.

An amendment to the road laws passed by the last Legislature adds to the penalty for violating the act requiring that every vehicle drawn by horse, horses or other animals shall carry a light during the period from half an hour after sunset until half an hour before sunrise, and whenever fog renders it impossible to see a long distance. Heretofore it has been a fine of $2.50 to $5. Now, on failure to pay a fine the violator may be sent to jail for not more than thirty days. The Trenton Times says that since the light requirement is quite as much for the protection of the driver and pedestrian as for the automobilist, it was expected that compliance would be made with the law, but after several years' experience it has been found that the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles think they have superior rights in the roads and are under no obligation to consider the safety of themselves or others. The jail penalty will no doubt bring some of them to their senses and reduce the number of accidents caused by failure to observe the law.

The Daily Press had no idea of starting a discussion on Monday when we stated our position regarding the Marjorie Sterrett Battleship fund, in reply to a member of the Religious Society of Friends who took us to task for encouraging the war spirit in the young. Now another Friend writes and says, "I wish you to know that all members of the Society of Friends do not feel toward 'Preparedness' in the same way that the Friend criticises your paper's action. I am a member of the Society and firmly believe that this country needs a larger and more efficient army and navy. I also know that there are a great many members of the Society who fell as I do about it, not only in Plainfield, but in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and elsewhere. This in spite of the fact that the Society of Friends is continually going on record as opposed to anything of the sort." It is very evident that as a class or organization there is no body of people opposed to preparedness.

Police officers have been called upon to report to headquarters all hedges and bushes which hang over the sidewalks, and thus endanger pedestrians. This is the first step in a move which has been undertaken by the street committee to remedy an abuse which has become very prevalent in some sections of the city. Many persons walking along the sidewalks at night have received unexpected blows in the face from overhanging branches, because property owners have not been careful to see that their bushes and trees have been properly trimmed, and the committee is deserving of congratulation for tackling the problem.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Space Writer's Soliloquy.

The birds are singing in the trees,
The swallow's note is on the breeze,
'Tis rumored there's an anthem choice
Abroad these days in Nature's voice.
I say, "'tis rumored," for I've lacked
The time to verify the fact.
You see the only sound I've heard,
Has been one single haunting word,
A word of threatening command;
A word of urgent, stern demand:
"Copy!!!"

'Tis rumored autos chug and snort
Down at the stylish lake resort;
That gasoline yachts puff and pant,
But verify these facts, I can't.
I fear that Gabriel in vain
Will toot his horn with might and main,
Providing that he toots for me.
I'll never hear it, for you see
I'll be hemmed in by copy boys,
Who with this word will drown his noise:
"Copy!!!"

Mr. Smith expects to organize a stock company for the purpose of selling these microbes to the farmers throughout the State.

All About the War.

Our office statistician presents the following facts about the war, which may be relied upon as being as good as any other guesses that are being made at the present time.

Peace will be declared October 21, 1921, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

There will be 7,671,982 men lost in this war.

The Germans will keep on pushing the Allies back and the Allies will keep on pushing the Germans back every day till the war closes.

Portugal will put 97,893 men in the field, and when the war is over she will have 893 men left.

The Kaiser will confer 527,893 iron crosses during the course of the campaign.

The battle of the North Sea will be fought February 15, 1917, at 1 o'clock in the morning. The British will lose nine ships and the Germans eleven.

When the war is over every soldier will have eaten three tons and 871 pounds of beans and nineteen barrels of flour.

Proctor's Theatre

Every film fan is aware of the sterling character delineations of William S. Hart, the famous Triangle dramatic star, whose sphere is the appealing western type of emotional roles, is seen today at Proctor's in what is doubtless his greatest picture. It is "Hell's Hinges," and deals with life in a western "bad" town. Seldom has there been a motion picture so intensely interesting, so absorbing. Not for a moment are you permitted to relay or forget the stirring action on the screen. No time or money was spared to make this Triangle play so good that it would set a new standard, with the result that for the benefit of one stirring scene an entire town was destroyed by fire—really burned to the ground. W. S. Hart, as the leading mon in this swift moving western picture, more than equals the previous high standard which he attained in such productions as "The Disciple" and "Between Men," recently presented here. Supporting Mr. Hart are three Triangle stars who have many other successes to their credit—Clara Williams, Louise Glaum and Jack Standing. Full of life and stirring adventure everyone is bound to enjoy this picture. In addition today, William Collier is seen in a rip-roaring Keystone farce entitled "Wife and Auto Trouble," and several comedy cartoon and scenic features that are the acme of perfection. On Friday little Mary Pickford, the greatest and most popular of screen stars, will be seen in a role that brings to the fore with delightful realism all of her dainty characteristics and bits of personality. It is entitled "The Girl of Yesterday," and shows in a charming way how a girl a bit old-fashioned today. Mary Pickford does some artistic characteristic delineations in tistics characteristic delineations in this picture and the whole production is one that deserves the highest commendation. In addition Friday, the second chapter of "The Social Pirates," the new fascinating series will be shown. On Saturday, Mmle. Petrova, the renowned Metro star, will be seen in "What Will People Say?" Charlie Chaplin will appear in an uproarious comedy, and "Musty Suffer" will also arouse storms of mirth. On Wednesday, April 12, Theda Bara will star in her latest picture, "Gold and the Woman," and on Saturday, the fifteenth, E. M. Gorman, the child actress, will appear in person in "The Little Orphan."

AT PROCTOR'S THEATRE TODAY.

Plainfield Theatre

Sylvester Schaeffer, vaudeville's conspicuous and high-salaried performer, comes to the Plainfield Theatre today for a three-day engagement that is one of the most extraordinary offerings Manager Shannon has yet given his patrons. Not only does Mr. Schaeffer present himself as a sketch artist, a sharpshooter, a juggler and an animal trainer, but he is surrounded by several of the cleverest artists touring America. These include Ota Gydi, court violinist to the King of Spain; Mlle. Maryon Vadie, America's wonderful dancer, and Joseph Hess and partner, famous ball-room dancers. The full program provided is one that is worthy of the most exclusive vaudeville house on exclusive Broadway, but is given to the Plainfield public at only a slight advance in prices.

Mr. Schaeffer only recently concluded a long engagement at the Palace Theatre, New York, at the weekly rate of $5,000. He will go directly from Plainfield to Philadelphia, from which port he will sail next week to begin a two years' engagement in Australia. This city is one of the few small places where he has been booked, and from the advance sale of seats it is now certain that Manager Shannon's efforts to secure him will be rewarded with capacity audiences.

MLLE. MARYON VADIE,

America's wonderful dancer with Sylvester Schaeffer, at the Plainfield Theatre today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Photoplay features will form a part of the program today, and for the rest of the week, although the vaudeville bill is quite lengthy. The sixth episode of "The Iron Claw" will be presented today, and on Saturday, the Pathe semi-weekly will be one of the feature films. Reserved seats may now be had for the remainder of the Schaeffer engagement, which positively closes Saturday night.

"The Midnight Maidens," the one distinctly different burlesque show on the Columbian Circuit, comes to the Plainfield Theatre, Monday (matinee and night), April 10. A burlesque show, to retain its place on the wheel must now reach a standard of excellence that will meet with the approval of the censor board in five different cities of the United States. Clean wholesome entertainment is what the public demands in this calibre of performance, as well as the legitimate drama. "The Midnight Maidens" fills the bill both with the Censor Board and the public in general. It is away from the beaten path, with new faces and new environment, offering a distinctly new brand of comedy, music and dances. A cast of unusual excellence is offered, headed by Pete Curley, Harvey Brooks, Billy Walsh, Frank Lynch, Tony Shane, Bob Calvert, Ed Bisland, Norma Bell, Rose Kessner, Jean Leonard and a chorus of sprightly "Midnight Maidens." The strongest olio in burlesque is credited to this organization, which consists of the following well-known big time acts:

Walsh, Lynch & Co., in "Along the Erie"; Jolly John Larkins, undoubtedly the funniest colored performer in the world; Calvert, Shane & Bisland, the best singing and dancing trio in burlesque; The Boulowa Sisters, the three French dolls of the slack wire—the best wire act on the American stage. A magnificent scenic production with gorgeous electrical effects. A chorus of striking beauties, gowned like a fashion show. Music that will bring pleasant memories and send you home whistling. What more can you ask for a pleasant evening at the popular Plainfield Theatre?

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME—

CURIOUS NAMES FOR VARIOUS OLD EDITIONS OF THE BIBLE

Down through the centuries the human hands that set the types of the Bible often made human errors. Nor did the human eyes that read the proofs detect them. In this wise did certain curious mistakes creep in that gave to whole editions their earmarks of distinguishment. And then again some quaint phrase or word, wrought in the idiom of the translator, struck the fancy of the learned or the vulgar, who seized upon it as a sort of titulus.

For instance, these:

THE BREECHES BIBLE, published in 1560, so-called because in Genesis, III, 7, it read: "They sewed fig leaves together and made themselves "breeches" instead of "aprons."

THE BUG BIBLE, published in CI, 5, it read: "So that thou shalt not need to be afraid for any 'bugges' by night," meaning "terrors."

THE HE BIBLE, published in 1611, so-called because in Ruth, III, 15, it read "he" instead of "she."

THE PRINTERS' BIBLE, published in 1702, so-called because in Psalm CXIX, 161, it read: "Printers have persecuted me without a cause"—instead of "princes."

THE ROSIN BIBLE, published in 1609, so-called because in Jeremiah XIII, 22, it read: "Is there no 'rosin in Galaad,'" instead of "balm in Gilead."

THE WICKED BIBLE, published in 1631, so-called because the printer left out the word "not" in the seventh commandment.

The famous Big Print Red Letter Edition, now being distributed by the Daily Press is one of the best editions ever published, without errors, and contains many valuable features that render it unique among Bibles. The coupon in today's issue, elsewhere, describes terms to our readers.—Adv.

FEAR FOR BARGEMEN.

Six Seamen Thought Lost In Storm Near Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, April 6. — Two coal barges and a crew of six seamen are thought to have been lost in a storm off Brigantine shoals. The barges are believed to belong to the Reading Coal company. A revenue cutter summoned by wireless has failed to locate the barges.

Battered by the gale which had been sweeping the coast, the barges were compelled to anchor off the shoals. They were under surveillance of the coast guard until a fog shut them from sight. It is feared the barges dragged their anchors in the heavy sea and were broken on the shoals.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Chalk Mark on Some Gates.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"ONCE upon a time an enchanted dog that used to belong to an old witch brought a princess from her great copper castle to visit a soldier who loved her," daddy told the children. "When her lady in waiting followed the princess and saw the dog carry her into a big house she chalk marked the gate and went back to tell the king, the princess' father. But the sly dog had seen the lady put a mark on the soldier's gate. So he carefully went about and chalked every gate in town."

"The king would have a merry time finding which house it was," Jack understood.

"Then the clever dog waited till morning, when the king, the queen and the lady in waiting set out to find the house where the princess had made a visit.

"'Here it is!' cried the king when he saw the first gate with a chalk mark.

"'No, my dear husband, it is there,' said the queen, pointing to another gate with a mark on it.

"'There's another!' cried the lady in waiting. And they all saw how hopeless it was to try to find the right house.

"Now, the queen was almost as clever as the dog. She knew more than how to ride in a carriage. So she took her big gold scissors and cut a large piece of silk into small pieces. Then she made a little silk bag, which she filled with grains of buckwheat. She tied this bag on the princess' back and then cut a little hole in the bag, so that grains would drop out all the way wherever the princess went.

"That night the soldier wanted to see the princess, so he sent his enchanted dog to fetch her from the castle. He was so fond of her that he longed to be a prince that he might have her for his wife.

"Now, clever as the dog was, he did not notice that grain dropped all the way along the road from the castle to the soldier's window. So up the wall he ran, with the princess on his back. Soon as daylight came the king and queen easily saw where the princess had been. So they seized the soldier and threw him into their dungeon.

"There he lay. Oh, how dark and tiresome it was! Then one day they said to him, 'Tomorrow you will be hanged.' It was not nice to be told that, especially as he had left the old witch's enchanted tinder box back at his hotel. The next morning through the bars of his dungeon window he could see all the town people hurrying along to see him hanged. He heard the drums beat and the soldiers marching along the street. They were making a holiday of it."

USES FOR OLD EMBROIDERED WAISTS

When hand-embroidered waists become worn under the arms or out of style they are still good enough to make several small articles.

If of thin material and buttoned down the back, there will be enough goods in the front of waist for an ordinary cap. The plain round caps are easiest made, but there are other pretty patterns to be had. If the waists are trimmed with lace insertion, so much the better.

Baby pillows, round, square or oblong, can also be made if the waist is in fairly good shape.

Pretty aprons can be made from the waists embroidered in groups of flowers. If a large pattern is embroidered on the waist, cut the apron so the largest part of the design is at the bottom of apron. Strings for the apron can be made from the sleeves of the waist, or any white material.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

A coffee strainer is a fine thing to strain hot starch through, instead of a starch bag; saves hands from being burned.

To clean silk or fine goods of a delicate color, take a basin large enough to hold the garment, add naphtha enough to wash it in, then take a white soap and rub gently on the soiled parts; press out under the hands and take clean naphtha enough to rinse well. Hang out of doors for one hour. Makes gloves or dress goods like new. Be careful not to work near a fire.

If Your Rubber Plant is looking sickly, leaves getting brown spots on the mand falling off, take dry mustard, put in water and pour on the earth; then watch for the worms to come to the top, which they will soon do, and you can gather and destroy them. Your plant will brighten and grow.

In Cutting the Fur Bands, as popular now, turn with fur side down, mark your strips with a pencil on skin side and run a safety razor blade along the line marked. It is very easily done and does not leave a ragged appearance.

Easy Way to Thread Sewing Machine Needle—Put something white under needle.

In Washing Curtains of Madras, stitch them on curtain stretchers; they have the appearance of being new and do not need to be ironed.

MARMALADES.

Orange-Grapefruit—Half a grapefruit, two oranges, one lemon; cut in fine pieces, add seven pints water and let stand twenty-four hours. Next morning cook two hours, then stand again twenty-four hours. Next day add five pounds granulated sugar and cook two hours or until it thickens. This makes about twenty-four glasses and is fine.

Orange—Twelve oranges, two lemons. Slice fruit thinly, removing inner pith and pips. Weigh it, and to each pound add three pints of cold water. Let the whole remain covered in an earthenware vessel for two days, then turn preparation into preserving pan and boil gently until tender. Let cool, weigh again and to each pound fruit add one pound sugar; bring to boiling point, skim well and cook gently until sirup stiffens when tested on a cold plate. Store in a cool, dry place.

Orange-Lemon—Wash thoroughly and wipe four oranges and two lemons. Snip oranges, rind and pulp with a sharp knife, removing the seeds. Grate the lemon rind and add lemon juice to the oranges. Measure fruit and add an equal part of water. Stir well and set aside in an earthern bowl for twenty-four hours. Then put fruit over fire and boil until tender; set aside again for twenty-four hours. Measure fruit again and add sugar cup for cup; boil until consistency of marmalade (about twenty-five to thirty minutes). This makes about seven jelly glasses and will be a pretty, clear orange color. This marmalade may be finished in one day, but is much improved if set aside and finished as above.

Marrying for Money

By MRS. BURTON LEONARD

Ortrude Townsend Tries to Show a More Human Side.

"Dudley, may I speak to you?" asked Ortrude as they left the dining room.

"Certainly. Shall we go in here?" he asked, indicating the living room.

After he had entered she closed the door and drew a couple of chairs up to the blazing fire. Dudley, seeing that the communication promised to be a long one, sat down.

"It is very hard for me to tell you what I wish to," began Ortrude nervously. "I know what you think of me, that you think I care only for money, and you have reason to think no good of me. But I have a side that is not quite so bad as the side you have seen—a side that loves fair dealing." She paused to consider how to go on. Dudley looked up at her, but she dropped her eyes.

"Is it true that you are in great need of money in the business?" she asked in a low voice.

"The business is pretty badly tied up," he replied in a constrained voice.

"Could you—— Would anything that belongs to me be of any use to you? Would it help you out in any way?" She paused and glanced at him to see how he was taking her suggestion.

"Thank you, no," said Dudley in surprise. "You have no ready money. It is that that is needed."

"Surely you could borrow money on the land that was left to me." Ortrude's tone was almost eager.

"I do appreciate your offer, but we would rather not." It was Dudley's turn to seem embarrassed.

"I am not willing, indeed I will not consent to have more than a third of the estate as it stands now. If there have been losses since the division was made I want to stand my share. I have no way of knowing how things are except through you." Ortrude sat fingering her handkerchief and looking down.

Dudley was silent for a while; then he said in a low tone:

"I am sure if my father knows of your attitude it gives him pleasure." Ortrude gave him a quick, grateful look. "I am also sure that I am doing as he would wish me to when I say that we will on no account touch what seemed ample provision for you."

"It was given me to do with as I pleased, and I would gladly part with some of it to buy a little respect from you." She did not drop her eyes soon enough to hide the tears.

"It will not be necessary for you to do that. I already see that you have not shown your best side in our brief acquaintance. Some situations act like poison on us and bring out the worst that is in us." Dudley smiled into her face.

"Thank you for saying that. It will be a comfort to me. I want to tell you that I am expecting to start for the East next week." Ortrude rose.

"It will not be necessary for you to leave in order to be by yourself. We are planning to move into the old house the first of the month." Dudley stood with his back to the fire as he spoke.

"Do not do that. You are perfectly welcome to the use of the house," said Ortrude eagerly.

"Thank you. We want to bring back as much of the old happy atmosphere as possible and—the house and furnishings are yours. We will take the old things with their associations. You had better wait and dispose of things before you go."

They moved toward the door. "Good-night," said Dudley at the foot of the stairs, extending his hand. She grasped it in silence.

Flowers.

By Lalia Mitchell.

You love your flowers in dainty garden beds,
Praising their purples and their blues and reds.
But better love I little hands that stray,
Pulling the blossoms set along the way.

Rules of Sleep.

When children sleep it is better for them to lie straight, so that their backs will be straight, or to have a very flat pillow under their heads. Children's bones are not very hard, and the oftener they are bent in one particular way, the more likely they are to stay in that particular shape, and high pillows may bend bones unnaturally. Here are some simple rules of sleep for children. They all mean that children should go to bed early.

1. Children four years old need about twelve hours of sleep.
2. Children seven years old need to sleep about eleven hours.
3. Children eight or nine years old need to sleep about ten and a half hours.
4. Children ten and eleven years old need to sleep about ten hours.
5. Children twelve years old need to sleep about nine hours.

Children should go to bed and get up at regular times. Unless they are sick, children should get up as soon as awake and not lie in bed.

Kindergarten.

"There are no children on earth to whom the kindergarten is such a blessing as the selfish and the sulky ones, and to these it comes like an angel of deliverance. It is because the devil which dominates the sulky child is a dumb one, and therefore deaf, that he is so difficult to cast out. He cannot hear reason, and he has never learned to speak it, and every avenue of self-expression which we open is for this cause a distinct and separate gain. The child draws and colors, moulds, builds and invents, and the demon in his heart begins to oppress him less. He uses his voice and moves his body in song and game, and still greater relief is felt; he is led to express a thought or an opinion through his absorption in his work; and before long he is free, happy and unconscious. He is in the society of his equals, those who are of like age and strength and interests; he has occupation which his soul loves; and he is, for the most part, too busy to brood, and too interested in other things and people to think about himself."—Nora A. Smith.

Results to be Hoped for in Character Building.

The work is not to be judged till sundown.

There are some responsibilities that you are not called upon to share.

What you may hope for is not finished character, fully matured judgments, perfectly polished manners, before the years of maturity. But you may hope for these: the general disposition to will well and wisely; the ability of your children to propel themselves after you have ceased to push them from behind; undying affection for yourself coupled with a growing appreciation of what you have meant to them; and the power of handing on to their descendants and yours the goodly heritage of bodily, mental and moral soundness, with all that means to society and to the world.

Bent Nails.

Bob Mason and his uncle came down from the city on the same car one evening. "I saved my nickel," said Bob, with a chuckle, as they walked home together.

"So I noticed," was the grave reply.

"Well, I had it in my hand; if the conductor had asked me for it I should have given it to him," said Bob, rather sulkily. "I don't see why I was to blame."

"Because you cheated," answered his uncle. "Just before the conductor got to you he turned to help some one off. You moved up where he had collected fares and appeared to be deeply engaged in your paper. I know that you did not say in so many words—'I've paid my fare,' but you looked it as hard as you could, and he apparently understood it so. It was cheating as I look at it."

"Oh, well," said Bob, carelessly, "it was only a nickel, anyway; the B. R. T. will never know the difference."

"But you will, my boy. Some one wisely bids us to call nothing small in a world where a mud creek swells into an Amazon, and the stealing of a penny may end on the scaffold.

"I remember when I was about your age," his uncle continued, "I was helping a carpenter about a piece of work he was doing for my father. I had made a little mistake and was trying to pull out a nail.

"'Draw it straight; don't bend it,' he cautioned.

"'Why, what harm would it do? I could straighten it, couldn't I?' I asked. 'Possibly, but it would never be as strong. You would find it very apt to bend again, and you would also find it hard to drive it true.'

"It is pretty much so with us; if we yield to temptation in any way today we shall find we have weakened ourselves, and it will be harder to hold true tomorrow.

"Don't deceive yourself by thinking it is only a little thing, too small to make any difference. I once saw a large and seemingly strong telegraph pole come suddenly crashing down without any warning or visible cause. But investigation showed that woodpeckers had cut a nest just where the pole broke.

"So, little sins, as we mistakenly call them, eat into our lives and weaken us. Like the bent nail, we are liable to break at that place any time. The only sure way to keep in the right path is never to take the first step out. Remember that, my boy."

"I will," replied Bob, gravely.—Exchange.

RELIEF FORCES ARE NEAR KUT-EL-AMARA

British Defeat Turks Twenty Miles From Town.

London, April 5.—A victory for the British over the Turks on the Tigris below Kut-el-Amara has been reported by General Lake, in command of the British forces there. The Turkish intrenched position at Umm-el-Henna was attacked and carried by the Tigris corps, General Lake telegraphed, and the operations are proceeding satisfactorily.

The capture of Umm-el-Henna, which is on the Tigris, about twenty miles downstream from Kut-el-Amara, is the most important news from this theater in some time and is regarded here as giving promise of the early relief of General Townshend's force, which has been besieged in Kut-el-Amara since the first week in December.

Umm-el-Henna is a strong position at an important bend of the river and is said to be the last serious barrier to the relief of General Townshend, although two or three less strong positions are still to be overcome before Kut-el-Amara is reached.

SUFFRAGE BILL REPORTED.

New York Legislature Rewards Women's Patient Waiting.

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—After many weeks of watchful waiting the little band of patient suffragists were rewarded when the Whitney-Brereton suffrage amendment was taken out of general orders and placed on the third reading calendar for final passage by a vote of 29 to 13.

The passing of the bill will end the suffrage fight before this year's legislature.

FORCE GERMANS BACK.

French Successes Endanger Teuton Hold on Douaumont.

Paris, April 6.—Powerful French counter attacks in the fighting about Verdun have driven the Germans back with heavy losses, the official communique announces.

As a result of these successes the Germans are in danger of losing their hold on Douaumont village, which they captured early in the battle for the fortress.

SHIFT IN ITALIAN CABINET.

Minister of War Resigns, and General Morone Gets Post.

Rome, April 6.—Minister of War General Zuppelli and Undersecretary For War General Ella have resigned, it was officially announced.

General Morone has become minister of war, and General Alfieri will succeed General Ella.

LOCAL SQUASH TEAM REMAINS UNBEATEN

Interclub League Champions Win Final Match at Montclair Athletic Club.

By winning three out of five matches at the Montclair Athletic Club last night, the Plainfield Squash Club finished its schedule in the Interclub Squash League with a record of six victories and no defeats.

The new champions get the pennant which goes to the winning team. The other two teams in the league are the Englewood Field Club and Morristown Squash Club. In former years, the Montclair players had everything their own way, so that the local racqueters take particular pleasure in the fact that they twice defeated the Athletic Club this season.

The Englewood and Montclair teams have been fighting for second place in the standing. Morristown is last.

Those who comprised the Plainfield team this year are Henry L. DeForest, Butler Duyckinck, Rex Carter, T. M. Day, Jr., and C. B. Tyler.

DATES FOR SPRING EVENTS ON W. M. G. A. SCHEDULE

Miss Marion Hollins, secretary of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, announced yesterday the spring schedule of the association as completed to date. One-day tournaments are the feature of the schedule, and it is expected that more such events will be added to the calendar in the near future. The incomplete schedule is as follows:

May 16, one-day tournament at Dunwoodie Country Club; May 18, one-day tournament at Apawamis; June 1, one-day-tournament at Glen Ridge; June 5-10, Tri-City matches for the Griscom Cup at the Essex County Country Club of Massachusetts; June 12-16, women's metropolitan championship at Baltusrol; June 19, one-day tournament at Piping Rock; June 21, one-day tournament at Sleepy Hollow; June 27, one-day tournament at Essex County Country Club of Orange; July 6, one-day tournament at Montclair; July 14, one-day tournament at Siwanoy.

FAVORITES COME THROUGH IN PINEHURST GOLF PLAY

Pinehurst, N. C., April 6.—In the North and South golf championship yesterday the favorites won in all cases by safe margins. Philip Carter had his match with Donald Parson well in hand from the start and there was never any doubt as to the final outcome.

Charles Skehens, the medalist, had the advantage most of the way with C. L. Becker, being one up at the turn and all even at the thirteenth. He won the next three holes, playing them one better than par and settled the match 3 and 2 in his favor. Skehens laid himself a stymie on the fifth green, but made a perfect jump shot and got a half.

F. W. Dyer, the Pennsylvania State champion, was playing too steady for E. C. Van Vleck, Jr., and won on the fifteenth green by 4 and 3.

Jesse P. Guilford, several times winner of the New Hampshire State championship, had an easy match with H. S. Cummings. He was out in 38 and was 7 up and came home in 36, ending his match on the eleventh green, 8 and 7.

CANADIAN HOCKEY STARS NOSE OUT U. S. PLAYERS

In that which many old time hockey enthusiasts described as the liveliest and best played hockey game ever seen in New York, the Canadian professional six defeated the Portland, Oregon, team by a single goal, the final score being 8 to 7, and it required an extra or fourth period, as at the end of the third period the score was 7 to 7.

The Canadians started in with an advantage of three goals, the score at the end of Tuesday's game being 6 goals to 3, the total of the two nights to decide. There was none of the listless play last night, and those who were present saw some fine team work as well as stick handling and remarkable skating.

COACH PATCH MAY ANNOUNCE FIRST STRING MEN TOMORROW

Although Plainfield High School's baseball team will start the season on Saturday, Manager Percy Stelle has announced a slight change in the attraction. Instead of playing a team of college fellows under the name of Camp Bowser, Paul Collier has agreed to pick a team composed of former P. H. S. diamond artists to play the schoolboys on Parker Field.

Coach Patch now has the entire squad at practice every afternoon at 3 o'clock on Crescent Oval and is beginning to weed out the first team. He will probably make known some of his selections tomorrow.

PAYNE WHITNEY AND JOSHUA CRANE AFTER WORLD'S CROWN

Payne Whitney, of New York, and Joshua Crane, of Boston, will contest the final round of the national court tennis singles championship tournament today to decide which is to meet Jay Gould, the holder, in the challenge match on Saturday at the Racquet and Tennis Club for the title and custody of the championship trophy. Mr. Crane came through on a victory in four sets over C. S. Cutting, of New York, by a score of 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, while Mr. Whitney just barely scraped into the last bracket against C. E. Sands, of New York, the score of this contest being 6-4, 6 3, 3-6, 2-6, 7-5.

TANK MEET POSTPONED.

The P. H. S. boys' tank squad will be seen in action but once more this year. The return meet with the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the school pool the latter part of this month, having been postponed from Easter week owing to the closing of school.

EUCHRE PLAY TONIGHT.

The tri-church euchre tournament will be continued this evening in St. Mary's Social Hall. Teams representing the Holy Name Societies of St. John's, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's churches are competing.

GIRLS' SWIMMING TEAM.

The P. H. S. Girls' swimming team will hold its first meet of the year in the High School pool tomorrow afternoon, when it contests with the girls of the Plainfield Grammar School. The meet will start at 3 o'clock.

BEST COMBINATIONS DO NOT LAST LONG

Personnel of Big League Pennant Winners Changes Very Frequently.

Championship baseball teams in the major leagues of recent years do not seem so stable as were the great teams that represented Detroit and Philadelphia in the American League, and New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh in the National League a few years back. Of recent championship teams the Athletics should not be included in the list of pennant winners that were quickly broken up, because it was not a lack of ability that prompted Connie Mack to tear his wonderful machine apart. In fact, it seems as though the great Athletic team could have gone on for two or three more years winning pennants in the American League.

Back in 1901, 1902 and 1903 the Pittsburgh Pirates won three pennants in a row in the National League, and then came the New York Giants with two in succession. They were followed by the great Cub machine, with a record of three straight and then another after the Pirates broke their string in 1909. The Giants came to the front again with three straight pennants. The last championship team of the Giants was in 1913, and although that is only two seasons ago, there are but six of the regular players of that aggregation on the Giants roster today. Mathewson and Tesreau are all that remain of the pitching staff, Merkle, Doyle and Fletcher of the infielders, and George Burns of the outfielders.

The Boston Braves won the National League pennant and world's series in 1914, and during the season used 30 players. Of this number there remain on the club today only ten, including Pitchers Rudolph, Tyler, James, Davis and Strand; Catcher Gowdy, Infielders Evers, Smith and Maranville and Outfielder Connolly.

With the exception of Beals Becker, who was released, the Phillies have all the players who helped to win the pennant last season, and it remains to be seen how long this championship club will remain intact.

In the American League the Detroit club was the first to win three pennants in a row, turning the trick in 1907, 1908 and 1909. All that remain of those winning teams are Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford. Then came the famous Athletics, with four pennants in five years, with only eight players left of the 25 that helped win the last pennant in 1914. The Athletics' string of consecutive pennants was broken by the Boston Red Sox in 1912, of whom there are nine left with the present world's champions. This number is likely to be reduced to six by the releasing of Wood, Collins and Cady.

In recent years championship clubs seem to be of the one-year variety, but there are now in the making several clubs that may finally be developed into pennant winners that will be able to repeat for one or two years. Among them are the New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox in the American League and the Giants and Braves in the National League. These four clubs have done more to strengthen since last season than any of the others, although it is hard to estimate how the amalgamated Cubs and Browns will compare with the other teams in their respective leagues

BUSHERS BEAT GIANTS.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 6.—The New York Giants played a spiritless and apparently indifferent game here yesterday afternoon and were soundly and deservedly thrashed by "Kid" Elberfield's Lookouts, of the Southern Association, 7 to 1. The New York battery was weak and their fielding weaker. The "Lookouts" were the tailenders in last season's race and previous to yesterday's exhibition had not made over three hits in any one game this spring, and still with those records the locals found the pitching of Perritt, who was in the box six innings, and Benton, who finished the game, ridiculously easy.

YANKS LICK DODGERS.

Exhibiting a pleasing and well defined power both afield and at bat, the Yankees yesterday played at Ebbets' Field and tucked a Dodger scalp under their belts, while some 4,000 early baseball well wishers looed on. The score was 4 to 2.

RETAINS CUE TITLE.

Pittsburgh, Penn., April 6.—Charles Ellis, of this city, retained the three-cushion billiard championship last night by defeating Pierre Maupome, of St. Louis, by a score of 150 to 148.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR "GYM" EXHIBIT

Annual Demonstration and Basketball Game at Y. W. C. A. on April 8.

Miss Winifred Mann, director of the physical department of the Young Women's Christian Association, has practically completed arrangements for the annual gymnasium exhibit and basketball game to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday night, April 8. The members of the classes have been holding rehearsals for several weeks and the demonstration this year promises to eclipse all previous exhibits of the department.

During the evening the participants will go through various drills, dances and games. A feature of the exhibit will be the return basketball game with the Sunshine Weavers of Scotch Plains. The young women of the local association who will take part in the contest are Misses Ethel Blazier and Nettie Steiner, forwards; Miss Gertrude Mair, center; Misses Ellen Doughty and Laura Smith, guards.

The young women who are taking part in the exhibit are the Misses Helen Almy, Gladys Davis, Alice Hicks, Florence Hicks, Helen Willet, Carla Castaldi, Evelyn Krymer, Anna Blaich, Mildred Dewey, Evelyn Tennyson, Solita Weeks, Dorothy Ferguson, Ethel Blazier, Ellen Doughty, Margaret Ewart, Mary Mair, Marion Reed, Laura Smith, Gertrude Mair, Lucy Johnson, Mrs. Frank Squire, Marie Pyquette, Ada Van Hise, Mable Townley, Emily Pleydell, Nettie Steiner, Mildred Bamberger, Estelle Homann, Eleanor Sminck and Alberta Dolliver.

TIGERS RELEASE OLDHAM.

Detroit, April 6.—The Detroit Baseball Club has released Pitcher "Red" Oldham to San Francisco, under optional agreement.

HELMETS SAVE MANY LIVES.

Many of Those Struck in Head Were Only Slightly Wounded.

The protection afforded by the steel helmets of the French infantry in the Verdun fighting is the subject of a communication by Dr. Roussy of the Paris military medical corps to the Academy of Medicine.

Before the distribution of 4,000,000 steel helmets last August, Dr. Roussy said, statistics showed that only 8.5 per cent of the wounded were struck in the skull. In the last few months the figures show 16.82 per cent of skull wounds, which, he said, means many thousands of men struck in the head are wounded instead of being killed.

Regarding the lessened gravity of head wounds, he said, it is fully confirmed by examination of men wounded with and without the protection of the helmet.

Mexican Quail In Missouri.

Ten thousand quail that have been brought from Mexico to Missouri, where they will be used to restock depleted covers, will not suffer from the change of climate because they were caught in the Coahuila mountains, and their former home was just about as chilly in winter as their new one.

Corporation Notice.

ALTERING AND WIDENING OF CENTRAL AVENUE.

Notice is hereby given that the Common Council has fixed the twenty-fourth day of April, A. D., 1916, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Albert H. Atterbury, J. Fred MacDonald and Arthur E. Smith, the commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to alter and widen Central avenue from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey," approved December 6, 1915, and the resolution of the Common Council in the premises, adopted April 3, 1916, to meet and proceed with the discharge of their duties and hear all persons interested in the premises, and make their estimates and assessments under said ordinance and said resolution and the statutes in such case made and provided.

The street to be altered and widened to extend from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, the center and side lines of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map therein referred to, and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Map showing proposed altering and widening of Central avenue, from West Front street to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1915."

The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the northeasterly side thereof from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, includes a strip four and three hundred seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by Charles B. Lufburrow, Ella B. Benson, Charles P. Sebring, Estate of Juliet Runyon, Mary Augusta Runyon, Calvary Baptist church, Plainfield Reform Club, and Wadley & Goodenough.

The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the southwesterly side thereof, from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly side line of West Second street, includes a strip six and three hundred and seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by Walter F. Manning, Estate of Lebbeus L. Manning (Elizabeth Manning, Walter F. Manning, Carrie E. MacIntyre), Mary McNamara and Abrams & Kunzman. The land to be taken for such altering and widening of said Central avenue on the southwesterly side thereof, from the southeasterly side line of West Second street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, includes a strip three and nine hundred and seventy-five thousandths feet wide, being property owned by P. Ballantine & Son (a corporation), as shown on said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for a more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.

STORY OF A RIFLE

The Derringer Used in the Graves and Cilley Duel.

AND ALSO BY DAVY CROCKETT

It Was Made About a Century Ago and Is Still In Good Condition—The Meeting That Resulted in the Death of the Maine Congressman.

Among the thousands of relics in the United States National museum at Washington there are few objects more replete with historical interest than a certain derringer rifle, catalogue No. 9509. This rifle was used by Colonel David Crockett of Alamo fame and was also the weapon fired by Hon. William J. Graves in the duel with Hon. Jonathan Cilley, resulting in the death of the latter. It was made about a hundred years ago and is still in excellent condition.

Colonel Wright Rives, U. S. A., who deposited the rifle in the museum, states that it was made for his father, John Cook Rives, by Henry Derringer. John C. Rives was one of the publishers of the Congressional Globe, now the Congressional Record, and knew many congressmen, several of whom he was accustomed to take out to a field for rifle practice. Among them was David Crockett, pioneer hunter, soldier and congressman from 1827-31 and 1833-5, who later lost his life at the Alamo in the Texas struggle for freedom. Crockett seemed to particularly like this rifle and often joined the shooting parties to use it.

The circumstances which led to the fatal duel between Messrs. Graves and Cilley of the house of representatives, in which this rifle figured so conspicuously, were quite unusual and more or less complicated. The report of the investigating committee appointed by the house covers the story of this duel well. An abstract of it taken from "Notes on Duels and Dueling," by Lorenzo Sabine, follows:

On Feb. 12, 1838, Henry A. Wise of Virginia presented to the house a copy of the New York Courier and Enquirer, charging a member of congress with corruption, and asked for an investigation of the charge. Mr. Wise stated that the author of the article was vouched for by the editor of the paper and that the house was called upon to defend its honor. Jonathan Cilley, member from Maine, opposed the resolution and in debate said that if it was the same editor who once made charges against a certain institution and later received facilities amounting to $52,000 from the same institution, which he then gave his hearty support, he did not think the recent charges were entitled to much credit in an American congress. Mr. Cilley was quoting a published house committee report on the subject, but a few days later the editor of the paper, Colonel James Watson Webb, addressed a note to him asking if he were the editor referred to and, if so, demanding an explanation.

This note was directly responsible for the duel between Cilley and William J. Graves of Kentucky, who undertook its delivery on the floor of the house for his friend Colonel Webb. Mr. Cilley refused to receive the note, because he chose to be drawn into no controversy with Colonel Webb, stating that by so doing he meant no disrespect to the bearer. But he refused to affirm or deny anything in regard to Colonel Webb's character. Mr. Graves was not satisfied, however, and several notes between them were exchanged, with the result that Mr. Graves finally challenged Mr. Cilley because he would not say whether he refused the note on the grounds of any personal exception to Colonel Webb as a man of honor.

Naturally Mr. Cilley denied Mr. Graves the right to demand an absolute "yes" or "no" answer and accepted the challenge.

Their seconds, Hon. George W. Jones, delegate from Wisconsin territory, for Mr. Cilley and Hon. Henry A. Wise of Virginia, for Mr. Graves, arranged the details of the duel, which was fought with rifles at a distance of about ninety yards near the road to Marlborough, in Maryland. Mr. Wise experienced some difficulty in securing a rifle for Mr. Graves' use, but finally succeeded in borrowing Mr. Rives' derringer rifle.

The duel was scheduled for 3 p. m. on Feb. 24, 1838, and the two parties met near the boundary line of the District, on the Marlborough road. Mr. Cilley was accompanied by his second, Mr. Jones; his friends, Mr. Bynum of North Carolina and Colonel James W. Schaumburg, and by Dr. Duncan of Ohio as his surgeon. Mr. Graves was attended by Mr. Wise, his second; by his friends, Senator Crittenden and Mr. Menefee of Kentucky, and Dr. Foltz of the city of Washington. The ground was marked off and the contestants took their places, with rifles cocked and triggers set. Mr. Jones gave the word. Mr. Cilley fired first and Mr. Graves a second or two after him, but both missed. Despite the efforts of their friends to adjust the matter after each had been exposed to the fire of the other, no satisfactory arrangement could be made, and they exchanged shots again, also without effect. Still being unable to agree after much further argument, their rifles being loaded, they went to their positions the third time. This time Cilley was shot through the body and killed.

The congressional committee found Mr. Graves guilty of a breach of privileges in the house, but held that Mr. Cilley had remained within his rights. They recommended the expulsion of Mr. Graves from the house and that the seconds and friends be censured.

Young "Jeff" Pfeffer Better Than Brother

"Jeff" Pfeiffer is known to baseball students as one of the best little pitchers in the National League. Tiny Jeff has made a great reputation in the uniform of the Brooklyn Dodgers. In 1914, his first season in the big entertainment, he won 23 games and lost only 12. Last year he was a bit slow in starting, but he won 19 games against 14 lost. He stood fourth among National League twirlers in 1915, and third in 1914. Some record, that, for a new beginner who is handicapped by being a little sawed-off runt only six feet and some three or four inches in height. This year the Brooklyn fans confidently expect Pfeffer to give Alexander a run for his money in the race for the premier pitching honors of the old league.

There is a mystery in connection with Jeff Pfeffer which has baffled many fans, and which will here be elucidated. Although Jeff has been in the majors only two seasons, yet one occasionally comes across references to a Jeff Pfeffer, right-handed pitcher, who was with the Cubs more than a decade ago.

The original "Jeff" was Frank X. Pfeffer, and he was born in Champaign, Ill., 34 years ago. Old Jeff was educated at the University of Illinois, near his home town, and made a great reputation as a pitcher on the Illini team in 1903 and 1904. The following year Frank Selee hired him for the Cubs, and in 1906 Pfeffer was with the Boston Nationals. After two seasons with the Bean City Club, Frank was turned over to Baltimore, and in 1909 he wore a Toronto uniform. He returned to the Cubs in 1910, and went back to Boston again in 1911. The first time Pfeffer went from Chicago to Boston he was traded for Pat Moran, now the Philadelphia pilot.

While old Jeff was going back, his kid brother, Edward, some seven years his junior, was forging his way to the front. Frank had been called "Jeff" since his Illini days, and for some reason the fans attached the same monaker to Edward. Why they did it is unknown, unless with the malicious design of making the printer send out a hurry call for more "f's" for his linotype magazine

Young "Jeff" got his professional start in Fort Wayne in 1909, but he was soon turned over to LaCrosse, Wis., where he made a fine record, and was recalled to Fort Wayne in 1910. The Central League swatters fell on him pretty hard, and he lost more games than he won that year. Nevertheless he got a trial with the St. Louis Browns in 1911, but was turned back to Fort Wayne, and that fall he was sold to Denver. The Grizzlies turned him over to Grand Rapids, and in 1912 he broke even with nine games won and nine lost.

Up to that time young Pfeffer hadn't shown much but promise, but in 1913 the promise was made good. He suddenly developed surprising and sensational class, and in 1913 he won 25 games for Grand Rapids, losing only eight. Toward the close of the season he was sold to Brooklyn, and got a chance to display his wares under the main tent.

Few twirlers in baseball history have come within shouting distance of the first year major league record hung up by Edward "Jeff" "Hassan" Pfeffer. If he improves with age he should be one of the marvels of the sport. Already he has far surpassed the big league record of his older brother—and the original Jeff was a steady, dependable twirler.

BRAVES GET COMPTON.

Cincinnati, O., April 6.—The National Baseball Commission yesterday awarded the services of Player Bash Compton to the Boston National League Club. Compton deserted the Kansas City Club and signed with the St. Louis Federals. The St. Louis Club gained his services under the rules of the peace agreement, but the Commission stated that, as Compton had returned to organized baseball by signing with the Boston team previous to the signing of the peace agreement, the latter team was entitled to his services.

MOTOR RACES MAY 13.

Sprint races will be the feature of the opening day's program at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway on May 13. There are four races scheduled, the longest of which is to cover a distance of 150 miles, with Mulford, Oldfield, Franschini, Carl Limberg and other speed kings entered with the fastest cars in the world. The races will be for the Metropolitan Trophy at 150 miles, the Queens County Cup at 50 miles, the Coney Island Cup at 20 miles, and the William B. Kemble Cup at 10 miles.

OLD WALKER TO COMPETE.

"Dan" O'Leary, the seventy-four-year-old pedestrian, is to walk one mile against a roller skater's two and one-half miles at the Newark Rink this evening. O'Leary says he is ready to walk any man five hundred miles indoors.

LEHIGH WINS EASILY.

Lehigh's baseball opening resulted in an easy victory over Albright at South Bethlehem yesterday by the score of 15 to 3. Heavy hitting and good pitching featured Lehigh's playing.

HOPE TO TAKE VILLA AND MEN

Chieftain Heads For Torreon to Procure Help.

CARRANZISTS AFTER HIM

General Gutierrez Sends Several Forces to Cut Off His Retreat—Bandit Now Has Big Lead Over American Pursuers—Peace Offer to Reyes Fails.

El Paso, Tex., April 6.—According to information received by General Gavira, commander of the Carranza forces at Juarez, the forces of the Mexican de facto government are likely to be successful in capturing Villa.

A telegram from General Luis Gutierrez, commander of the state of Chihuahua, informed General Gavira that Roman Taranzo, one of Villa's most trusted lieutenants, and Eliseo Hernandez were killed in the fighting either with the American troops in San Geronimo or the Mexican troops at Guerrero.

Mexican ranchers in the district surrounding Chihuahua City are reported in private advices from Chihuahua to be joining the Villa bandits in considerable numbers. Villa agents are said to have been recruiting among the small ranchers, and several hundred already have left their homes to join the bandit bands operating within thirty or forty miles of Chihuahua City, the report says.

The telegram from General Gutierrez to General Gavira states that a Carranza captain and two soldiers who had been captured by Villa and his men at Guerrero escaped and have arrived at Santa Ysabel and gave an account of the Guerrero engagement. The men were from the Morelos brigade in command of Colonel Salaz.

They say that Villa, with 200 men, went toward the llanos of San Juan Bautista. The men under the Villa general Pablo Lopez, who is reported dead, are now under Candelario Cervantez and number 200. Julio Acosta, a second of Villa's chiefs, is with a band of twenty men in the mountains of Guerrero, while Martin Lopez is with a hundred men in the vicinity of Bachiniví.

Garza Routs One Band.

General Benjamin Garza communicates to General Gutierrez from Laja de Abajaco that a detachment of scouts from the Constitutionalist forces engaged a band of Villistas recently in that locality and routed the band, capturing their rifles. The message says that by today General Garza expected to be upon the enemy, now at Gieneca.

General Cavazos wired from Cienegato that he had attacked the enemy in central Benito Juarez and that he had killed ten and wounded many others. He also reported having captured a number of rifles and some ammunition. General Cavazos' loss is one wounded man. General Cavazos reports that he continues to pursue the enemy and asks that troops be rushed to Satevo, Santa Gertrudes and Niaci that Villa may not escape to the south.

General Luis Herrera, who was reported at Lagune, north of Chihuahua City, is announced as being at Bustillos, near by, guarding against any possible retreat of Villa to the east. Denial is made that any change in commands is contemplated in Juarez.

Reports from Torreon were that the peace commissioners appointed there by the Carranzistas to treat with General Canuto Reyes, who had asked for terms of surrender, failed in their mission. The situation was muddled by the act of one of the bands operating under Reyes in burning a bridge and wrecking a passenger train near Sombrerete, in Durango. Train service has been resumed between Torreon and Durango City, according to official announcement.

Will Transmit Mail.

Arrangements are being made with the postal officials of Juarez for the transmission of mail to the American soldiers over the Northwestern road. Mexican Consul Garcia called upon the postmaster of Juarez relative to the handling of the mail for the soldiers, and it is thought everything will be adjusted by the time a train departs for Madera and Casas Grandes. Heretofore all mail has been sent south to the army from Columbus by aeroplane and motor trucks.

The train will carry several carloads of supplies for the Mormon merchants in the vicinity of the American base in Mexico, to be sold to the American forces. The troops were paid this week, and there is plenty of money in the camps to buy everything the merchants can ship in.

Arrangements are being made to establish a branch of the United States postoffice at the Pershing base so that officers and enlisted men may send money orders home if they wish.

American army officers have found it necessary to follow the example set by the Carranza officers recently and fix the price to be charged the soldiers by the Mexican natives for all staple articles. General Pershing has ordered that the Mexican natives must sell fresh eggs, for instance, at 5 cents each, Mexican money, or 50 cents a dozen, American money.

General Pershing at Front.

General Pershing is still at the front, according to advices received at the border from his base at Colonia Dublan, near Casas Grandes.

The weather in the mountains where the American army is operating has modified considerably, but the forests and mountains are still buried in snow, which is melting very slowly.

Seven sick soldiers were brought to Fort Bliss from the front. None was wounded, and none had pneumonia. Stomach disorders were the principal ailments.

A message was received at the hospital that fourteen motor ambulances had been shipped to the border for use in hauling the wounded and sick.

The public execution of six conspirators who were found guilty of plotting to capture Juarez for Felix Diaz did not take place. A respite has been granted pending a further investigation.

Six women, wives of the men imprisoned, were in the commandancia at daybreak supplicating for the lives of the men.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease. —Adv.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Use "Tiz" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

"How 'TIZ' does help sore feet."

People who are forced to stand on their feet all day know what sore, tender, sweaty, burning feet mean. They use "Tiz," and "Tiz" cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. "Tiz" is the only remedy in the world that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet and cause tender, sore, tired, aching feet. It instantly stops the pain in corns, callouses and bunions. It's simply glorious. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel after using "Tiz." You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't tighten and hurt your feet.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" now from any druggist. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents.—Adv.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminating tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

DENIES GERMANY IS MENACE TO AMERICA

German Chancellor Derides Idea of Invasion.

Berlin, April 6.—In the reichstag Chancellor Hollweg in the most comprehensive speech he has delivered since the war began derided the reports that Germany contemplated an attack upon the United States after the European war was ended and had designs upon the territory of South American states.

Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg said:

"The latest offspring of the calumniating campaign directed against us is a report that we after the end of this war shall rush against the American continent and that we shall attempt to conquer Canada. This is the silliest of all the imputations invented against us. Equally silly are the reports that we contemplate the acquisition of any territory on American soil, as in Brazil, or in any American country whatsoever."

The German submarine warfare is the one effective defensive weapon against England's announced plan to starve out Germany, said the chancellor. It is Germany's aim to respect neutral rights, but she must in turn expect neutrals to appreciate her position, which compels her to use all means at her disposal.

WILSON TO SOUND KEYNOTE.

Will Address Party Leaders April 13 at Banquet.

Washington, April 6.—The Jefferson day banquet on April 13 of the Common Counsel club, composed of officials of the Wilson administration, will mark the opening of the preconvention preparations of the Democratic party for the coming national campaign. President Wilson's speech is expected to be the keynote declaration of the administration in making a bid for popular approval.

In addition to the political speech-making, the opportunity will be given for important conferences between Democratic state chairmen and national committeemen.

Chairman Roland S. Morris of the Democratic state committee of Pennsylvania has invited the state chairmen to attend a conference here on April 13. This will be the first gathering of its kind in the history of the Democratic party. It is planned to have group gatherings at first and later a general conference of all the committeemen. An extensive program has been outlined.

NEGRO KILLS 2 U. S. SAILORS

Shoots In Norfolk Street and Escapes as Bluejackets Die.

Norfolk, Va., April 6.—C. E. Davis, ordinary seaman from the battleship New Hampshire, and Charles Stronstrom, from the naval hospital, were shot and killed here by George Carter, a negro.

Davis, Stronstrom and several other bluejackets interfered with several negroes who were mistreating an aged white man. William Carter started to run and the sailors pursued, while his brother, George Carter, borrowed a gun and opened fire on the sailors without warning. Davis and Stronstrom, shot in the breast, died as they reached a hospital. George Carter escaped.

Asks Powder Lobby Inquiry.

Washington, April 6.—Another lobby investigation was in a resolution offered by Senator Sherman. The proposed investigation grows out of charges made by Senator Underwood that a lobby representing explosive makers had obstructed the passage of the bill for a nitrate plant.

NO TRACE OF LOST GIRL.

Father and Police Search In New York For Missing Alma Myers.

East Orange, April 6.—In company with Lieutenant Williams of New York city Charles Myers, the father of Alma Fuller Myers, the young church worker of this city who has been missing since last Saturday, continued the search for the girl.

The two men searched boarding and furnished room houses in East and West Ninety-eighth street, Manhattan, following a clew that she had been seen in that vicinity. No trace of the young woman was found.

BOOMED FOR JUDGESHIP.

Three Names Suggested to Wilson For New Federal Court.

Washington, April 6.—Three candidates for the federal district judgeship in New Jersey, recently created by congress, were suggested to President Wilson.

They were J. Warren Davis of Salem county, suggested by Senator Hughes; George J. McEwan of West Hoboken, suggested by Representative Eagan, and Representative A. C. Hart of Hackensack, suggested by a number of New Jersey people.

Dynamite Englewood Plant.

Englewood, April 6.—An explosion of dynamite, believed to have been caused by somebody who had a grudge against the firm, wrecked the stone crushing plant of the Prentice company in Jones road, causing $600 damage and shaking pretty nearly every house in Bergen county with such force that the occupants thought they were in the throes of an earthquake.

A woman with buying to do never saves any time by omitting to read the advertisements. No does she always secure par-value for her dollar.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

THE PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS

is constantly seeking new features of local and general interest that will command the attention of its readers. It prints daily many exclusive articles and syndicate offerings which appear in no other paper in its territory. Included among these are

Saturday Contributed Editorial, a feature unique with this newspaper in the State of New Jersey. These editorials are from the pens of well known citizens of Plainfield, or persons identified with local interests, and cover a wide range of subjects, the writers being urged to express their own views, whether they agree with the policy of this newspaper or not.

Mothers' Column, prepared by a committee from the Plainfield Mothers' Association, containing valuable hints on matters which are of especial interest to the home.

Building Page on Saturdays, containing a review of all the activities of the week, and articles about proposed new work to be done in Plainfield and vicinity.

Scoop, The Cub Reporter, a strip comic which has been running continuously for over four years, and getting more amusing every day.

Daddy's Bedtime Story, a feature for the children which has no equal in its class.

Mrs. Leonard's Article, of particular interest to the women readers.

Cartoons by one of the best known artists in the country.

W. C. T. U. Column, conducted by the Plainfield branch of this work, and detailing activities of the fight being made by this and allied organizations throughout the country.

And last but not least

Advertisements of every up-to-date and progressive store in Plainfield, Newark and New York.

All of these and many other features are to be found each week in the various issues of the

PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS.

THE PRESS' SPECIAL OFFER TO PLAINFIELD

THIS is one of our big achievements, of which we are justly proud. Every reader of this paper—yes, every family in the city and in its environments—can this year enjoy either of these two nationally famous magazines, or both of them, with this paper, for but little more than the price of the paper alone. These two great magazines with approximately 1,500,000 subscribers, are known and loved the whole country over. At 15 cents a copy, $1.80 a year—$3.60 for the two, purchased by the month—they are unquestioned leaders in their respective fields.

How We Did It

We went to the publishers of these magazines and told them about this city. How its population has increased! How its wealth has increased! How its trade has increased! How its bank clearings have increased! We showed them how desirable it was for them, and for their advertisers, that they should have a large circulation here! Then we showed them how this paper was the one paper in this city to make this offer, and how we knew that the citizens of this city would welcome this opportunity enthusiastically.

Woman's Home Companion

Splendid Serial Novels Woman's Home Companion is famous for the excellence of its fiction, particularly its full-length serial novels. There will be at least four novels this year, by Margaret Deland, Fannie Heaslip Lea, and others of equal power. Hundreds of thousands will later pay $1.50 each for them, when they are published in book form, but readers of Woman's Home Companion will have had them first.

Fifty Splendid Short Stories By distinguished authors whose work you are always eager to read, will fill the pages of the Companion. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, William J. Burns (the great detective), Zona Gale, Mary Heaton Vorse, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, Grace S. Richmond—these are only a few of the popular favorites whose stories will appear during the year.

The Finer Things of Life Inspiration, ideals, culture, the things that lift us above the commonplace and the monotony of living—these have an important place in the program for 1916. The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson has prepared a series of intimate sermons for the Companion family on the duties and privileges of family life and the real meaning of family ties.

Laura Spencer Porter will help those who love pictures and want to know the best. Anne Bryan McCall, in The Tower Room, will continue her popular department for girls.

The New Fashions Fashion's new ideas, the chic touches that distinguish the smartly dressed woman of Fifth Avenue will always be found first in the Companion. Grace Margaret Gould, the Companion Fashion Editor, keeps her readers in constant touch with the great creators of fashion in Paris and New York.

For the Little People The Cherubs are coming! The cunningest, funniest little people you ever saw—drawn and versified by Olive Rush. Also stories, puzzles and prizes, plays for school and nursery, plans for kites, aeroplanes and boats, doll dressmaking lessons—all kinds of things to interest and amuse the little Companion readers.

Helpful, Home Departments The Companion is famous for its practical departments. Every month it offers new ideas for cooking, for serving, for entertaining, for fancy work. Hundreds of ideas every month! Practical, really helpful ideas. Companion readers find these departments most valuable.

The American Magazine

aims to be, and is, a magazine for the whole family to share, each with the other—full of the new things, the interesting things, this month, next month, every month!

George Ade
William Allen White
Ellis Parker Butler
David Grayson
Ida Tarbell
John Sharp Williams
Ray Stannard Baker
Hough Fullerton
Stephen Leacock
John Taintor Foote
Walter Pritchard Eaton
James Montgomery Flagg

These, and scores of other favorites, will contribute the timely and interesting articles, the stories, the striking illustrations, the departments. You will find The American Magazine always full of the things you are interested in; the things you want to read about.

The Effect of the War on America New industries have been created; old industries have been given new life; new cities have sprung up full sized in a month; men have become millionaires over night—these are some of the effects of the war on America. These articles tell a wonderful story of problems met, difficulties overcome, and successful achievement. They give a splendid, true picture of the war industries, the war fortunes, and the men that made them.

Being Better Business Men An intensely interesting series of practical, fact-bottom articles about the Retail Business, Real Estate, Advertising, Selling, and other important lines of business. Other articles for young men will take up the problems of young men—going into business in his own town; going into business with his father; going to the large city. It will be a very interesting and really valuable series.

Stories—Short and Long There is always a generous measure of stories in The American Magazine. Stories of city life; of country life; home stories; dog stories; love stories and adventure stories—a real feast of fiction. Important, too, no suggestive or unclean story has ever found its way into The American Magazine. Its stories are wholesome and cleverly told, that the whole family can, and does, enjoy.

The Big Saving

If you bought either of these magazines by the month you would pay fifteen cents for it. If you bought both of them you would pay thirty cents. One magazine purchased this way for the year would cost you $1.80. Both magazines $3.60. Our plan will give you the magazines each month by mail at your home, promptly on publication date for but a few cents more than this paper alone would cost. It is a big, big saving in convenience and in money.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

DEDICATION OF SALVATION SHED

All is in Readiness for Opening of Biederwolf Tabernacle Tonight.

BIG CHOIR TO SING

Expected that Building Will Be Crowded to Capacity—Services Begin Promptly at 7:30—Dr. Carson is Principal Speaker.

All is in readiness for the dedication of the Biederwolf Tabernacle tonight.

For the first time the big "Salvation Shed" will resound with the tuneful praise of six hundred voices, for the chorus-choir has been rehearsed almost to perfection, and its members will sing together in public for the first time at the dedicatory services tonight. The Tabernacle orchestra will also take part in the services.

It is expected that the building will be filled to capacity. All of the churches uniting in the services will be represented by good delegations, and many will attend to get a first look at the big structure that is to be Plainfield's "sawdust trail" for the next five weeks. Dr. Biederwolf will not be here in time for the services tonight, but at least two members of his party will take part.

The Rev. John F. Carson, pastor of one of the largest Presbyterian churches in Brooklyn, is to be the principal speaker. Dr. Carson is an able pulpit orator, and members of the committee in charge of arrangements feel that they were fortunate in securing him for the services.

W. D. Murray, chairman of the general committee in charge of the Biederwolf campaign, will preside at the meeting of tonight, which is to begin promptly at 7:30. The program follows:

Song, service, conducted by Clifford A. Braider.
Invocation, Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor First M E. church.
Responsive reading, Psalm 34, Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor Netherwood Reformed church.
Lesson from the Old Testament, Haggai 1:1-15, Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor Presbyterian church, Dunellen.
Lesson from the New Testament, Luke 2:41-52, Rev. William Lloyd Imes, pastor Bethel Presbyterian chapel.
Hymn 202, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."
Prayer of dedication, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor First Baptist church.
Dedicatory address, Rev. John F. Carson, D. D., pastor Central Presbyterian church, Brooklyn.
Hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."
Benediction, Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor Monroe Avenue M. E. church

Big Choir is Ready.

A most enthusiastic and responsive rehearsal of the choir and orchestra that are to have such a leading part in the work of the Union Evangelistic Campaign, under the leadership of Dr. Biederwolf, was held last evening in the auditorium of the High School.

The rehearsal was made a very happy ocasion when Clifford A. Braider, the leader, took the opportunity of thanking his music committee, the ministers, the Board of Education, the High School janitor, the four assistants of Mr. Braider, the campaign executive committee and all the members of both the choir and orchestra for the loyal and faithful service rendered to date. In expression of his appreciation to his accompanist, Wilbur E. Moke, he presented him with a book as a token of regard. After Mr. Braider had finished, W. D. Murray, chairman of the executive committee, asking the privilege of the floor, called for a rising vote of thanks to Mr. Braider for what he had done. Rev. C. F. Raach expressed his appreciation on behalf of the Biederwolf party for the splendid work of the musicians, and stated also that the work was so superior to that of a week ago in quantity and quality that there was no comparison with the previous rehearsal.

Before dismissing the choir and orchestra, Mr. Braider urged every member of both organizations to be present tonight at the dedicatory service and to be on hand promptly at 7:30.

To Meet Dr. Biederwolf.

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf will meet the pastors, the executive committee and the chairmen of all committees of the campaign organization, Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m., at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Superintendents to Confer.

Mr. Bachmeyer, of the Biederwolf party, will meet Rev. Dr. Strong, all the superintendents of the cottage prayer meetings and their assistants at 8 p. m., Saturday evening, April 8, at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

TEMPLE SHOLEM GIVES A SURPRISE

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Newcorn Are Pleasantly Remembered by Congregation.

Invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Salls, of East Front street, under a pretense of meeting the new rabbi for Temple Sholem, former Judge and Mrs. William Newcorn were accorded a pleasant surprise by about sixty of their friends, last night. The committee in charge of the arrangements consisted of Mrs. Gustave Mendel, Mrs. S. G. Salls and Mrs. H. Schuldenfrei. The affair was arranged primarily as an appreciation of the work of Mr. and Mrs. Newcorn at Temple Sholem. During the last six months that the Temple has been without a rabbi, Mr. Newcorn has filled the vacancy willingly and in a manner that won commendation from the members of the congregation. While the former has been engaged in the spiritual welfare of the congregation, Mrs. Newcorn has been actively associated with her husband, a large portion of her time being devoted to work in the Sunday-school.

During the evening Samuel Rothberg took occasion to extend the thanks of the guests and presented the couple with tokens of the esteem in which they are held by their many friends. To Mr. Newcorn he gave a silver humidor filled with the latter's favorite cigars and to Mrs. Newcorn was given a pair of silver candlesticks. Both responded in a happy way and joined in the merrymaking which followed. Dancing, music and vocal selections were enjoyed by those present until a late hour and refreshments were served at a late hour.

FIRST REHEARSAL OF "MYSTIC ROSE" HELD

Successful Production Under Auspices of the Local Lodge of Elks Now Assured.

In spite of the storm at just the hour the singers were gathering for the first rehearsal of "The Mystic Rose," Robert P. Skilling's comic opera production, which is to be presented at the Plainfield theatre under the auspices of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks on May 2 and 3, 132 singers were on hand when Mr. Skilling was introduced. About a dozen women were present, who are to act as chaperones, while at least twenty-five singers could not attend last evening because of other appointments, but will attend future rehearsals. The members of the committee were pleased with the large attendance and with the music of the opera, and the manner in which the affair is being conducted thus far.

Mr. Skilling, author and composer of the opera, explained the plot of the production, the costumes, etc., and immediately began a general rehearsal, which went with vim. The music is catchy and tuneful, and all were delighted with it.

Mr. Skilling was surprised at the merit shown by the singers. After he had tried the chorus out a few times, he seemed to feel that he had a large representation of excellent talent in attendance. He said: "They took hold of the opera in a manner which showed that they are real singers. That they have had experience is shown by the manner in which they responded from the start. The next day or so will be devoted to assigning the fifteen leading roles and in gathering the two hundred little girls necessary for the 'Flower and Butterfly Ballet,' and then the work will begin in earnest. We can use from 150 to 200 adults and at least 200 children—the more the better, so long as they have good voices. There is a leading soprano, a leading tenor and a leading basso part, a character woman who has no singing, yet this is one of the most important parts. There is also a character man and two comedy parts for men."

The committee is not prepared as yet to state just who will appear in the leading roles, and a number of "try-outs" for principal parts will take place tonight. Invitations are now being mailed to children from seven to fourteen who are needed for the ballet, the first rehearsal being set for next Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the lodge room of the Elks' Club. Parents need have no fear in regards to the welfare of their children being well looked after, as a number of well-known women have consented to act as chaperones at each rehearsal.

HERR'S EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Owing to the unprecedented number of calls for all kinds of office help, which it is unable to supply from the school classes, Herr's School has organized a Public Employment Bureau for Office Assistants, and invites persons looking for bookkeeping, stenography or clerical positions to register and use this bureau as a means of getting a position. All students of Herr's School will receive this service free. No charge to employers.

MAYBANK GETS SEAT.

New York, April 7.—J. F. Maybank, of Maybank & Co., Charleston, S. C., has been elected a member of the New York Cotton Exchange.

GRANDMOTHER GIVEN CUSTODY OF CHILD

J. William Waters Must Also Pay $4 a Week for Support of Son.

Sitting as advisory master in chancery, former Chancellor William J. Magie, in the Elizabeth courthouse on Wednesday heard testimony in an action brought by Mrs. Augusta Waters, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, against her former husband, J. William Waters, formerly of Plainfield, from whom she was divorced in 1914, for alimony and the custody of her eleven-year-old son, Herman.

As the result of the hearing, the former chancellor allowed $4 a week for the care of the child and placed the boy in the custody of his grandmother, Mrs. Herman Klinsman, of North Plainfield. It was the contention of Mr. Crane, who represented the defendant, that the mother was not the proper person to care for the child.

According to the bill of complaint, Mrs. Waters obtained the decree of divorce in Pennsylvania, but at that time no provision was made for maintenance for herself and child nor for the custody of the latter. The husband, to whom she was married in 1903, was not present in court yesterday, but was represented by Robert N. Crane, of Plainfield. Charles A. Cogan, of Camden, appeared for Mrs. Waters.

The complainant testified that her former husband is now employed in Chicago, and she said he receives a salary of $45 a week. She asked for $4 a week as maintenance for the child, declaring that she wants nothing herself. She and her son are living now with her mother at the Plainfield address.

Herman, the boy, was placed on the witness stand and his statement was taken without being sworn. He said he preferred to live with his mother.

DELEGATES TO BIG Y. M. C. A. SESSION

Local Directors Name Men to Attend National Convention in Cleveland.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association was held at the home of W. D. Murray, president, last night.

Reports of the various committees showed many activities during the month. The following were elected as delegates to the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association which will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, May 12 to 16, W. D. Murray, Howard McWilliams, George E. Hall, L. D. Albin, E. R. Ackerman, J. H. Manning and A. C. Estes.

SON IS ARRESTED ON COMPLAINT OF MOTHER

Elmer Kane, arrested on complaint of his mother, was arraigned in police court this morning. The charge against him was disorderly conduct. His mother said that he would not work and that he refused to contribute his part to the support of the family. Judge De Meza gave him a good lecture on his duties toward his parents and on the young man's promise to get a job he was released.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB TO DISCUSS "PREPAREDNESS"

At the meeting of the civic section of the Monday Afternoon Club to be held Monday afternoon, April 10, in the parish house of the Congregational church, there will be discussions on "Preparedness." This will be followed by an illustrated lecture on "Modern Methods in Prisons and Reformatories" by Dr. Frank Moore, superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway. The public is invited to hear Dr. Moore, who is well known in Plainfield as a convincing speaker. The lecture will start promptly at 3:45.

ENGLAND BUYS $75,000,000 WORTH OF COPPER IN U. S.

New York, April 7.—The English Government has exercised on option with the United States Metals Smelting Company, the American Smelting and Refining Company and the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company for the largest amount of copper ever sold in the history of the United States. It was learned this afternoon that the amount was in the neighborhood of between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 pounds. The price, it was said, was close to the prevailing quotation now being given by leading producers.

A conservative contract price for copper for later delivery would make the total sale approximately $75,000,000.

Rev. Dr. Edward P. Johnson, of Rutgers College, will preach at the Congregational church, Sunday, April 16.

U. S. TROOPS CLASH WITH VILLA AGAIN

Battle Was Successful, Col. Brown Reports—Carranzistas Helped.

Washington, April 7.—News of a second clash with Villa troops came to the War Department today. The American troopers and the Carranza forces joined in the attack which was successful. No details are given. Colonel Brown said that General Gutierrez gave the information of the location of the Carranza troops and that the co-operation of the latter with American forces was most effective. Colonel Brown says he has received many supplemental reports about Villa being wounded.

CHAMBER INVITES ALL OTHER BODIES

Will Take Them in, But Opposes Consolidation on Any Other Plan.

The Plainfield Chamber of Commerce is ready and willing to receive any other commercial organization here "back into the fold," but its members will not discuss a reorganization of local bodies on any other basis, according to a decision reached at the meeting of last night. John J. Carroll, chairman of a committee on consolidation from the Board of Trade appeared to urge that all organizations in the city get together. A review of the life of the Chamber of Commerce was given by several members, and they took the position that the chamber was the parent body in Plainfield, and that as others had branched off from it, they should come back.

C. B. Repp and Paul H. Burns, who represented the Plainfield Chamber at the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce held in Washington, recently submitted interesting and detailed reports of the meeting there.

The freight congestion on New Jersey and other Eastern roads was discussed, but no action was taken, as it was reported that the Trenton Chamber has recently taken this up with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and results were being secured.

Secretary Garret Keating reported that he had received a communication from Secretary Redfield, of the United States Department of Commerce, in which he called attention to the fact that the paper makers were facing a crisis because of the shortage of material for the making of pulp. He asked that local business men aid in a national movement to conserve waste paper and rags, from which paper is made. Mr. Keating will furnish information to anyone as to firms buying waste paper and rags or to those desiring to engage in this business.

DAILY PRESS CUP GIVEN TO P. H. S. COURT TEAM

At the assembly exercises in the Plainfield High School this morning, the members of the boys' basketball team were presented with the city scholastic championship medals. Principal Lindsey Best presented to the school the Daily Press cup, which is symbolic of the title.

GOOD SAMARITANS ORGANIZE BUREAU

Object of the Movement is to Secure Employment for Odd Fellows.

Members of the Sussex County Good Samaritan Bureau of the I. O. O. F. organized a local bureau for the Tenth district of New Jersey in Memorial Lodge rooms, in Elizabeth, Wednesday night. Members of the Tenth district were present and the workings of the bureau were explained. The object of the organization is to secure employment for members.

District Deputy George W. Newton, of Rahway, was made temporary chairman, and Adolph Ulrich, also of Rahway, was made temporary secretary. The following officers were then elected: President, George W. Newton, of Essex Lodge, No. 27, of Rahway; first vice-president, Joseph Franklin, of Elizabethport Lodge, No. 116, Elizabeth; second vice-president, Morris Goldberg, of Laurence Lodge, No. 62, Perth Amboy; secretary, L. W. Carkhuff, of Franklin Lodge, No. 9, Elizabeth; assistant secretary, Louis Vonah, of Carteret Lodge, No. 267, Carteret; treasurer, A. H. Steglitz, of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Plainfield.

Beside Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Queen City Lodge, No. 262, also of Plainfield, was numbered among the many lodges represented. Among the Rebekah lodges present were members from Friendship, No., 4, of this. During the evening three applications were made for positions, and six persons stated that they were in need of help.

WATER CO. WINS IN SUIT AGAINST FERN

Verdict of $133.40 is Given by Jury in Local District Court.

A verdict for $133.40, the full amount asked in the suit, was handed down by a jury in District Court yesterday in the suit of the City Water Company against Max Fern, of Elizabeth. The water company sued on a bill for several months' service in two houses in Roselle Park. After a hearing that took the entire day, the case went to a jury at 5:30. The verdict was reached after an hour's deliberation.

Attorney Walter Hetfield, Jr., appeared for the water company, and Fern was represented by Attorney John P. Owens. L. Bergen and John Whelan, experts in the employ of the National Meter Company, were here as witnesses in the case, one point at issue being the condition of the meter for a part of the time it was used by Fern.

CHIEF WARNS BICYCLE RIDERS OFF SIDEWALKS

Chief Kiely has sent word to public schools that students, especially boys, who ride bicycles on sidewalks are to be arrested and fined. With the coming of spring many complaints have been received on the dangerous practice of using sidewalks as race-track and residents in the High School section have asked for an abatement of the nuisance.

JOSEPH SIKORA.

Joseph Sikora, a well-known truck farmer, whose place was located on lower Terrill road, died yesterday after an illness of only a few days. He had been an active member for a number of years in the John III. Sobieski Society, which had its own hall on East Second street. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church, of which he was a commmunicant, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, at which time a high mass of requiem will be said. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

A. D. FINDLEY VERY ILL.

A. D. Findley, a former well known resident of Plainfield, who conducted a cafe on East Second street, but is now proprietor of the Madison House, at Madison, has been seriously ill for the past week. His trouble has been diagnosed as a heart affection and complications. For several days recently Mr. Findley was unable to see his closest friends, but word came last night that he is now considerably improved.

A Big Automobile Auction Sale will be held at Thompson's Garage this coming Saturday, April 8, 2 p. m., when the following desirable cars taken in trade will be sold to highest bidders regardless of price: 1915 Hudson light six, 1915 Dodge, 1914 Cadillac, 1913 Cadillac, 1913 Studebaker, 1913 Westcott touring cars and 1913 Jeffery Sedan, 1913 Studebaker coupe, all electrically started and lighted and in first class shape; also 1912 E. M. F. and 1910 Cadillac. Any of these cars will be sold or exchanged for your old car for very little money before noon Saturday. Be sure and attend this sale and bring a friend along.—Adv.

MRS. PANKHURST TO SPEAK IN THIS CITY

Will Address Audience at High School in Behalf of Relief Work for Serbia.

Mrs. Emmelin Pankhurst, the noted English suffragist and His Excellency, Cheddo Miyatovich, will both come to Plainfield tomorrow night under the auspices of the Mercy Committee of New Jersey and will speak of the distress in Serbia in the Hartridge School Auditorium. The addresses will commence at 8:30.

Like all other suffragists in England, Mrs. Pankhurst dropped all political work and turned her energies to war relief. She has taken up as her special activity the cause of the suffering Serbians. This work has now brought her to this country and a few weeks ago the metropolitan dailies recorded enthusiastic reports of the various meetings held at the Hotel McAlpin and elsewhere, at which Mrs. Pankhurst and His Excellency Cheddo Miyatovich, the Serbian ambassador to the Court of St. James, were the speakers. Since their first lecture in New York they have spoken in all the larger cities in Canada and the Middle West and Plainfield is particularly fortunate to be included in this crowded itinerary. All who have heard Mrs. Pankhurst know what a charming and convincing speaker she is and the pathos and simple dignity with which His Excellency tells of the sorrows and sufferings of his countrymen has made a profound impression on the large and sympathetic audiences which he had addressed. During the evening, a collection will be taken for the Serbian Relief and at the conclusion a reception for all who desire to meet His Excellency and Mrs. Pankhurst.

TRAFFIC RULES FOR THE TABERNACLE

Mayor Calkins Issues Regulations for Handling Big Crowds Expected.

In expectation of big crowds afternoon and evening at the Biederwolf Tabernacle, Mayor Calkins has framed traffic regulations to govern all vehicles there. They will be enforced by the police of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The regulations follow:

1. Cars and vehicles may approach the Tabernacle either from Front street or from North Plainfield.

2. After leaving the Tabernacle all cars and vehicles must turn to the right into Geraud avenue and proceed towards Front street; and will "not" be permitted to turn to the left and proceed along Geraud avenue toward North Plainfield.

3. Cars must not be left standing at the curb anywhere on Sachar place; or on Geraud avenue, btween Front street and Green Brook; or on Front street anywhere within 200 feet of Geraud avenue.

4. On reaching the Tabernacle a limited number of cars may park on an adjacent private lot on payment of 50 cents for each car. But parties wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity should arrive at the Tabernacle at an early hour.

MICE AND MATCHES START LIVELY BLAZE IN BOROUGH

An alarm of fire sent in by George W. Bird from box 131, summoned the borough department to the home of Howard Woolston on Mountain avenue at 8:35 o'clock this morning, where a lively blaze was discovered in the attic. When the firemen reached the scene, the blaze was spreading rapidly through the beams and side walls, and some clothing was also burning. One chemical tank was sufficient to extinguish the flames. The damage totaled about $100.

The fire, which was discovered by Mrs. Woolston, is believed to have been caused by mice and matches. It is her opinion that the fire had been burning for some little time, judging by the way it had spread through the attic.

GEORGE W. HUNT.

George W. Hunt, a former resident of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., died last night at the home of his sister, Dr. Ida D. Hunt, of Prospect avenue. He was a widower and is survived by one son, George D. Hunt, of Mt. Vernon; also two other sisters, beside Dr. Hunt. These are Mrs. B. J. Dell, of Jamaica, L. I., and Mrs. W. F. Arnold, of this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the home of Dr. Hunt, and interment will be in the Cypress Hills cemetery, L. I., Sunday.

PARENTS OF TWINS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson, of Stebbins place, are the parents of twins, two boys, who arrived at their home a few days ago. Mr. Pearson is employed as a machinist in one of the local shops.

GERMANS TAKE MORE TRENCHES

Paris Admits Losses in Fiercest Infantry Fighting of 47 Days.

FRONT IS EXTENDED

French Continue Advance East of Meuse, but Onslaughts of Kaiser's Troops Carry on West—Guns Heard at Sea.

Paris, April 7.—German troops have made further gains west of the Meuse river, while the French continue to advance east of the river, the French War Office announced today. In a furious night attack the Teutons penetrated the first line trenches of the French on the Bethincourt front, northwest of Verdun, but they were thrown back except on a front of 300 yards. The Germans drove violently against the French positions on the Bethincourt-Chattoncourt road, following bombardment, and succeeded in entering them. Counter attacks were immediately launched by the French. At every point except one the Kaiser's men were forced back. They managed to hold one section over a width of 300 yards northeast of Verdun. The French delivered further attacks against the German positions southwest of Douaumont. The Teutons were unabel to withstand the furious onslaughts and had to give further ground. The infantry assaults are both preceded and followed by furious artillery duels that rage night and day. The Germans are making violent efforts to stem the French advance in the Douaumont region, calling up fresh troops for support, but have been unable to do so. Infantry fighting is now in progress over the widest front in the Verdun sector since the great battle opened 47 days ago.

Germany May Apologize.

London, April 7.—A despatch from Berlin says that United States Ambassador Gerard yesterday talked on submarine matters with Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs Zimmermann. The message says:

"It is understood that the Foreign Office had no information to convey to the ambassador regarding the Sussex and the other steamships in which the United States Government has manifested an interest, but that there was an intimation that Germany is undoubtedly ready to meet the United States more than half way if it should develop that the Sussex was torpedoed erroneously.

Discuss Sussex Sinking.

Washington, April 7.—Recent developments in the Sussex case were taken up at the Cabinet meeting today and a course of action to be followed by the American Government was again under discussion. Counsellor Polk, of the State Department, said that no despatches relating to the Sussex case had been received this morning.

England Seizes Neutral Ships.

London, April 7.—Three Swedish steamers, the Hakon, Hera and Olaf, have been seized by British warships while on their way to Germany with cargoes of herring valued at $250,000.

French Bark Sunk.

London, April 7.—The St. Hubert, a French bark of 123 tons, acording to a dispatch received at Lloyds, has been sunk by a submarine. The crew has been rescued.

Sea Battle May Be On.

Copenhagen, April 7.—Messages from the Danish island of Langeland, in the Baltic, state that a violent sea cannonade was heard last night. Windows on shore were broken and houses shaken.

47 Zeppelins Lost.

Rome, April 7.—Germany has lost 368 aeroplanes and 47 Zeppelins since the war began, according to a Rome newspaper.

Holland Crisis is Passed.

Amsterdam, April 7.—Leave is again being granted to employees of the State railroads who request it. This indicates that the crisis in Holland has passed.

Holland Commandeers Ships.

The Hague, April 7.—The Dutch Ministry of Marine has begun to commandeer steamships for military purposes.

Report Bernstorff Recalled.

Washington, April 7.—Secretary of State Lansing declined to make any statement regarding the international situation after the Cabinet meeting. The rumor that Ambassador Bernstorff had been recalled by his home government was current today, but officials of the State Department said they knew nothing about it. It is not believed the rumor has any foundation.

OWLS TO MEET.

The girls' Parish House team will go to Plainfield tomorrow night to play the Y. W. C. A. team on the Y. M. C. A. court.

MAY OPPOSE BRANDEIS.

Senate Confirmation May Be Deadlocked, Is New Report.

Washington, April 7.—Possibility was seen that the senate judiciary committee may not, as had been expected, report out favorably the name of Louis D. Brandeis for confirmation to the United States supreme bench.

Hoke Smith of Georgia and John K. Shields of Tennessee both are said to be undecided whether to vote for or against recommending confirmation.

The presumption has been that the administration would be able to line up all the Democratic members for Brandeis.

Consideration of the nomination will begin in full committee next Monday.

OBREGON SAYS U. S. SHOULD QUIT

Mexican War Minister Thinks Mission Is Done.

FUNSTON WANTS MORE MEN

Secretary Lansing Issues Denial That Punitive Expedition Will Be Recalled. Indians Leave El Paso to Act as Guides For American Forces.

El Paso, Tex., April 7.—The minister of war for Mexico, General Alvaro Obregon, expresses the opinion that Villa has been completely crushed and that the work of the United States punitive expedition in Mexico has been virtually completed.

In a dispatch to Consul Garcia dated at Queretaro he advises that, according to information from Chihuahua, Villa has been defeated in the several engagements with the Constitutionalist forces. He states that the crushing defeats have all been confirmed. The telegram says in addition that "General Gutierrez, chief of the forces in the Chihuahua state, has assured me that it will not be long before Villa is captured."

The Constitutional authorities have, it is authoritatively stated, deferred any action relative to the use of the railroads by the American troops pending the outcome of the Villa campaign. The fact that his men are routed and he himself is wounded is construed by the Constitutionalists as the first step in the acknowledgment from the American troops that their mission in Mexico has been performed.

Neither Consul Garcia nor General Gavira would talk upon the question of the use of railroads in Mexico by American troops. General Gavira also was reluctant in expressing himself upon the passage of American troops any farther south.

Fifteen Cars of Hay Sent In.

Fifteen carloads of hay crossed to Juarez for shipment to Casas Grandes and points south. The shipment is the largest of any single article of feed for live stock that has yet moved toward the United States troops, and, like other shipments, it is a private undertaking, though destined for the army horses.

A delay in the departure of the freight and passenger train to Casas Grandes and points south was occasioned, and the mixed train will go at once.

Two thousand pounds of chocolate and 300 pounds of stick candy were requisitioned from the local quartermaster supply depot by the field quartermaster with the Pershing command, who said the soldiers are crazed for something sweet. The order will be filled by way of Columbus, but candy will be shipped in large quantities in the merchandise to be taken down by private storekeepers.

Quartermaster Sergeant C. H. Beaver, who with Porter Hinckley of the Sixteenth infantry was here to take back the extra kits and equipment for the regiments, said:

"All of the soldiers are brown and hardy and are anxious for a chance to use their rifles and meet Villa. They are hard as nails and declare that this work is a pleasure, although at one time they had to go thirty hours without water, except the quart in their canteens. The men also have their heads shaved as a preventive against disease.

Indians Cross Border.

With eagle feathers in their hats and pistols in their belt scabbards twenty Apache Indians of the White Mountain Apache Indian reservation in Arizona left El Paso for the military base at Namiquipa, where they will be placed on the trail of Villa. The Indians were in charge of Captain O. P. M. Hazzard of the Tenth cavalry at Fort Apache. The chief dignitary of the group is Sun-Yet-Day, who is a full chief and one of the fourteen Indians detailed to trail Geronimo.

News of wholesale murder by a Villista band south of Torreon has reached the border. According to this information brought to the border, many passengers, including women and children, were killed by bandits between Torreon and Zacatecas on March 28, when the marauders wrecked the train on which they were riding.

The Villistas, according to the story told, wrecked the train in a hilly section far from any place of habitation, and shot down the passengers one by one as they emerged from the wreckage When all the passengers were killed or wounded the bandits set fire to the wreckage and cremated the bodies.

A miltary train following the passenger train reached the wrecked train shortly afterward, but turned back to Torreon without rendering aid.

More Troops to Guard Border.

Washington, April 7.—Secretary Lansing made a positive denial of reports that American troops might be withdrawn from Mexico soon, inasmuch as the Villa band had been scattered. On the other hand, it was disclosed that Major General Frederick Funston, commanding the Mexican border patrol, had recommended to the war department that the recruits enlisted for the United States army under authority of the Hay emergency resolution be sent to the border as fast as obtained so that they may be utilized in strengthening the border forces.

Two Reasons for Buying Rothberg Clothes

THE FIT. Lots of clothes look more like a seperation suit than a gentlemen's agreement. A Rothberg fit is in perfect harmony with the man, conforms implicity to the architectural specifications and "stays put."

PRICES. Rothberg prices are the only average thing we have in the store. They are no higher than ordinary prices, but their purchasing power is greater. Now add the two paragraphs together and you will find the value of the ROTHBERG proposition to you.

SECRETARY LANSING.

Confers With President on Submarine Crisis.

Secretary of State Lansing, according to Washington reports, is holding important conferences with President Wilson, giving rise to the belief that evidence in the Sussex case is complete and that congress will be asked to support the rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany.

GERMANS AT NIGHT STORM HAUCOURT

Take Village From French After Hard Battle.

London, April 7.—German attacks have won more ground west of the Meuse, the village of Haucourt, on the Avocourt-Behincourt salient, having been taken by storm. Admission of this success of the crown prince's forces is made by Paris, which sets forth that French pressure succeeded in making gains in the region north of Avocourt.

To the east of the Meuse French troops, it is stated, have carried underground works of the Germans to the southwest of Fort de Douaumont, the total area captured having a front of 500 meters and a depth of 200 meters. A violent bombardment was directed by the Germans against Cote du Poivre, but the French curtain of fire prevented an infantry attack, according to the Paris bulletin.

The capture of Haucourt, the most important result of the operations chronicled, was the climax of intense fighting. This village and fortified works to the eastward lay north of Forges Brook, being the northern end of the French lines on that side of the stream.

A heavy preliminary fire was directed at the entire French front between Avocourt and Bethincourt. Then a series of attacks in force was made by the Germans. At Bethincourt they were repulsed, but repeated assaults finally drove the French out of Haucourt and back on the elevations behind.

New Time For Germany.

Berlin, April 7.—The German federal council has passed a measure providing that on May 1 all clocks shall be set ahead one hour. The measure was proposed for hygienic and economic reasons as lengthening working time during daylight and decreasing the necessity for artificial light.

CLAIM AUDITOR KING DID NOT DO HIS WORK

McLeod Also Fears He is to Be Made "Goat" for Political Reasons.

There was a shortage in the office of the Union county clerk of $18,368.88 at the time of the death of James C. Calvert, according to a report filed with the Board of Freeholders by a firm of special accountants which recently went over the books. More than $16,000 has been paid over to the county by Mrs. Calvert and in doing this the widow has disposed of the entire Calvert estate, even including the beautiful Calvert home on Madison avenue, Elizabeth, which went to her husband's bondsmen, Hamilton F. Kean and Nathan Leavitt.

According to a political story current in Elizabeth, Major Benjamin King, county auditor, and Neil McLeod, deputy county clerk, will be held responsible for failure to inform the public of a shortage in Clerk Calvert's office. It was said that the Board of Freeholders would take this action yesterday, but nothing happened at the meeting. Mr. McLeod is now a Republican candidate to succeed Mr. Calvert and he charges that the movement is one to cripple him in his race before the people.

ROGER MELLICK BECOMES MEMBER OF EXCHANGE

Roger D. Mellick, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of this city, yesterday became a member of the New York Stock Exchange, acquiring a seat formerly owned by Edward J. Cook, of New York. The seat sold for $61,000. George P. Mellick is a member of the New York firm of Carlisle & Co., and with the addition of Roger D. Mellick, Carlisle & Mellick now have seven firm members on the floor of the exchange. The firm does a large odd lot business.

PERU MAN INSPECTS DAILY PRESS PLANT

Making an Investigation of American Industries for So. American Mfgrs.

Haias de Picrola, of Lima, Peru, visited the Plainfield Daily Press publishing plant this afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the new equipment preliminary to purchasing some American machinery for South American industries. The Peru man was accompanied by V. Gonzales, of the National Association of Manufacturers, with offices in New York City, and Arthur S. Pease, representing Walter Scott & Company, from whom the big press being used in this plant was purchased. Mr. Picrola inspected the stereotyping, composing and printing departments and paid special attention to the working of the Scott press, while it was running at a speed of 10,000 papers an hour, turning off today's edition of the Daily Press.

The South American arrived in New York a few days ago and during his stay here will spend his time in visiting industrial plants in this section of the country, particularly those with modern printing facilities. He speaks no English, and Mr. Gonzales acts as his interpreter.

Although he would make no positive statement, Mr. Picrola hinted that hi svisit here might possibly result in the installation of a Plainfield-made press in his home city.

"BIG JIM," DOORMAN FOR MORGAN, IS DEAD

New York, April 7.—James H. McDermott, better known in Wall street as "Big Jim," died Thursday night in the Volunteer Hospital after an attack of apoplexy on his way home in the afternoon. He was 63 years old and had been in the employ of J. P. Morgan & Co. as doorman for about twelve years. Mr. McDermott was formerly a member of the New York police force.

HARDING TO PRESIDE AT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Chicago, April 7.—Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, today was named temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention which will meet here June 7. The action was taken at a meeting of the sub-committees. The action was unanimous. Senator Harding will make the keynote speech. The action of the sub-committee was in the nature of a surprise as it was expected that James R. Mann, minority leader of the House, would be named.

U. S. DIRIGIBLE BREAKS LOOSE--NO ONE ABOARD

Jensacila, Fla., April 7.—The big new dirigible airship recently brought to the aviation field here for experimental use in connection with aerial and water manoeuvres by the navy broke away from its moorings in a high wind early today and rising rapidly soon was lost to view. Telephone notices were sent to Mobile and other points to the westward warning the residents to be on the lookout for the big craft. No one was aboard but the dirigible was fully inflated and naval officers said there was nothing to prevent its remaining aloft for many hours.

UNTIMELY DEATH OF MISS CATHERINE DAY

Miss Catherine Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Day, of Church street, South Plainfield, died at 7 o'clock this morning at the home of her parents, following a lingering illness. Miss Day was seventeen years old, and the news of her death was a source of much regret to her many friends. Beside her parents, she is survived by one sister, Alice Day.

The funeral will be held from the Sacred Heart church, Monday morning, where a high mass of requiem will be offered at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's church, Plainfield.

COMPANY DECIDES TO HONOR RAILROAD PASSES

Robert Newton Crane, the attorney, who is a file clerk in the Assembly, yesterday received official notification from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, that all conductors running on the New Jersey Division had been instructed to recognize his pass issued to him by reason of the fact that he is a State official. Similar notification has been given to all others who are entitled to ride on a pass.

Early in the year the railroad company disputed the right of legislative officials to ride on passes and the matter was taken to the courts with the result that the company lost out by the decision.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property.

MISS SARAH WRIGHT 97 YEARS OLD TODAY

North Plainfield's Oldest Woman is Celebrating Birthday Anniversary.

Miss Sarah McKissick Wright, one of the oldest if not the oldest woman resident of North Plainfield, is today observing the ninety-seventh anniversary of her birth, by receiving a few intimate friends at her home at 33 Manning avenue. She has been in receipt of numerous floral remembrances and showers of postal cards from relatives and friends, a number of the mail missives coming from points as far West as Texas. Miss Wright is in the possession of fairly good health but any unusual period of entertainment causes a relaxation and for that reason no pretentious observance of her natal day is held.

Miss Wright was born at Millstone, Middlesex county, April 7, 1819, and has resided in this State practically all her life. Her parents died when she was a child and after their death she made her home in the family of an uncle, Dr. McKissick, a prominent practicing physician of that day. At the death of the uncle when she was about thirty years old, she decided to take up teaching as a vocation, graduating shortly afterwards from the Trenton Normal School. For more than thirty years after that she taught in schools at Washingtonville, now Watchung, Smalleytown, Pleasant Plains and in Alabama. There are still many men and women residing in this vicinity who studied their first lesson under her guidance.

Miss Wright was in charge of a school in Alabama when the Civil War broke out and with many other Northerners, hurried back to New Jersey. In after years she became very fond of traveling and spent her summers visiting in all parts of the country. She was always observing and her descriptions of the points of interest she had journeyed to made her a most entertaining talker. Up until two years ago Miss Wright was an ardent reader of the newspapers and there was hardly a current topic that she could not discuss. The perusal of papers has been denied her of late because of impaired eyesight, but she is always a keen listener when anyone talks about the happenings of the day, especially when the latest doings in the European war zone are touched upon. She is the oldest member of the Grace M. E. church and attended service regularly as long as her health permitted.

Miss Wright has a large number of relatives only a few of whom live in or about Plainfield. Mrs. Voorhees Laing, of East Front street, is one of them being a niece and for a number of years Miss Wright has enjoyed automobile rides at regular intervals through the kindness of Mrs. Laing. These little trips in the countryside about Plainfield have been among her chief pleasures, and furnish her much information to discuss with her callers.

HUMAN VISION.

Farsight, Nearsight and Method In Testing the Eyes.

Farsight or nearsight—which is better? We must remember that he who has unusually acute vision for objects at a great distance can rarely thread a needle or read small print without glasses, while the person whose near vision is so acute as to serve him almost like a microscope sees distant objects as a blurred mass.

The Medical Record comments on "how little is known as to the extent of vision of the farsighted and still less of the nearsighted." We have two eyes in order that our vision may be stereoscopic, and it is thus that we are able to judge of the relative distances of objects, and it brings a greater field before the retina at one time, but the sight of two eyes is no keener than that of one. "Indeed, if there be required a greater intensity in a given field it is a natural tendency to obscure the vision of one eye." That is why most women close one eye when threading a fine needle and why men in firing a rifle at a target shut one eye.

The Medical Record doubts the value of uniform tests for eyesight, urging that tests be made in relation to definite occupations. For example, a very nearsighted man would be totally incapacitated from work in the field of transportation, yet admirably fitted for such work as engraving. A very farsighted man, on the other hand, who would be utterly useless as a proofreader or a gem setter, might be a prize as a field surveyor, a forest ranger or even a locomotive engineer.

"Many misfits," says the Medical Record, "can be prevented by determining the kind of occupation the individual will be best fitted for. In the last analysis it should be the aim to educate the vision one has to greater powers by calling to aid all sources of orientation—to educate and train visual perception so that one may perceive more of the objects within the field of one's vision."

MILITARY AND CIVIC BALL.

Posters have been placed about the borough and this city advertising a military and civic ball to be given by Company H, First Regiment Uniformed Rank of New Jersey, Jr. O. U. A. M., in Saengerbund Hall on the evening of May 5th. Music will be furnished by Halfoerster's orchestra. There will be a competitive drill at 10 o'clock by out of town companies. The prize waltz will take place at 11 o'clock.

SERVICE FIRST AND SAFETY SECOND.

"Safety First" is a phrase much used by telephone employees except when a great crisis puts service before safety. Then their personal safety or danger is ignored by the loyal employees who think first of keeping up the service in spite of anything in order that the facility which may mean life and death to subscribers may be maintained. A striking evidence of this staunch spirit which puts service first and safety second, appears in The Telephone Review, N. Y., in the account of a speech delivered before the Telephone Society of New York by Mr. L. H. Kinnard, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. It is the story of the service and heroism of some Atlantic City operators. We quote from The Telephone Review:

Down in Atlantic City a few nights ago, an operator stood at an end position of the switchboard scraping some multiple markings. It was five o'clock in the morning, calls were few and the other five operators were answering the occasional calls and sorting tickets.

The winter's night had not yet given way to the dawning day. The young woman as she worked had a window at her right hand just a few feet away. Suddenly out of the corner of her eye she felt rather than saw a flash of light. One glance told her that the hotel across the way was afire. In an instant she had given the alarm to the Fire Bureau and reported to her supervisor. Then she rang the hotel. She received no reply, but kept on ringing.

You read the story in the papers, of the rapid spread of the fire, of the lives lost and of the greater number saved. Without doubt, all but a few of the latter would have perished if the operator had not acted so promptly.

That is the story from the public's viewpoint. They've made a heroine of the operator, Miss Katherine Stokes, but every man and woman on the job that night showed what stuff they were made of. Scarcely sixty feet across the narrow street was this raging conflagration. The roar and pump of the engines was terrific right beneath the windows; the hoarse shouts of the crowd added to the din; and piercing shrieks could be heard from time to time which, though the operators dared not look, needed no great imagination to interpret; the room was getting hotter every moment—so hot that the globes on the gas fixtures were cracking and the smoke was coming in somewhere; the windows were breaking—plate glass could not stand such heat; the glare of the fire lighted the room so brightly that no one noticed when the electric lights went out; but still those girls worked on.

In the meantime the Chief Operator, who had prevailed on some passing citizen to bring her to the central office in his automobile, and the Traffic Supervisor, who had jumped fences and dodged through alleys to get to the office when he found that the police wouldn't let him through the fire lines, together with the Plant Supervisor and one of the Wire Chief's men, played chemical extinguishers on the window frames to prevent their bursting into flames.

At last, however, the Fire Department ordered everyone out of the building and reluctantly the operators withdrew and the Plant men drew tarpaulins on the switchboards and the test table and pulled the main fuse.

However, in less than an hour the fire was under control and the people were permitted to return to the central office and the service was resumed. It was a close call, but it served to show how a force can be put on its mettle. Four or five of the day operators reported for duty and the District Chief Operator also hustled to the office.

The Plant men were all on the job in a very few moments and, in fact, it is probably due to their good work with the fire extinguishers that ruinous floods of water were not turned into the building by the firemen.

JAPAN AND THE TELEPHONE.

Japan recently celebrated the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the telephone in that country.

In 1890 the first exchange was installed at Tatsunokuchi, although instruments were in use "from one room to another" as early as 1877.

On March 31, 1915, the total number of telephones in Japan aggregated 234,484, equivalent to 0.4 telephones per 100 population; at the same date the number of unfilled applications for service was 134,313, as against 132,757 on March 31, 1914.

"The Journal of the Communication Association," a monthly magazine published in Japan, devotes considerable space in its issues of November and December, 1915, to the development of the telephone in that country, with pictures of Mr. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. The November issue reproduces Mr. Carty's message to Mr. Y. Riko, Department of Communications, Tokyo, sent after the first demonstration of wireless telephony from New York to San Francisco:

To-day I heard speech by our Company's new wireless telephone from New York to San Francisco. I am sure of ultimate success in talking from New York to Tokyo.

And Mr. Riko's reply:

Beg tender our sincere congratulations upon great achievement which your unceasing and never flinching researches into remote secrecy of science have attained; may you be crowned with further success.

ARCH DEACON STUCK WILL PREACH HERE

Well Known Prelate Who Ascended Mt. McKinley to Visit Grace Church.

Archdeacon Stuck, who, it will be recalled ascended to the top-most point of Mt. McKinley in June, 1913, where he crowned the peak with a cross, will be the special preacher at Grace Episcopal church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The presence of such a notable personage should attract a large congregation. The Spirit of Missions, published by the Episcopal church, in speaking of Archdeacon Stuck's achievement said:

"Archdeacon Stuck and three companions reached the summit of Mt. McKinley, or Mt. Denali, as it is known by the Indians. Here, on the highest point in North America, they said the Te Deum and erected a large cross. These acts of praise and devotion indicate the spirit in which the feat was accomplished.

"The underlying motive was no mere desire to establish a record, as the party has now done, of climbing higher above the perpetual snow line than any other man in the world. It was a desire to bring within the range of human knowledge one more of the world's unknown spots and to mark it, in all its majestic isolation, with the sign of the world's redemption. It was an 'adventure for God' different in some respects from that which for nine years has sent Archdeacon Stuck nearly 15,000 miles along the snow trails of the great Northland in order that he might carry the message of his Master's life and love to neglected Indians and lonely white men. But after all the spirit was much the same, for men may build cathedrals or search the heavens for new stars of redeem slums or climb mountains for the glory of God, just as truly as they may preach sermons for His glory. One cannot help feeling gratified that a churchman and a missionary should have succeeded in a feat that has hitherto baffled scientists and explorers."

RELIEF CORPS GIVES SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

Auxiliary to G. A. R. Entertain Members and Friends With Attractive Program.

The Dime Social, given under the auspices of the Women's Relief Corps in Reform Hall last night, was one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever conducted by the organization. The initial part of the program consisted of recitations by Miss Kelly, Charles Mumford, Miss Tryphena Mattax and Miss Lucy Johnson; piano solos by Miss Frazee, and vocal selections by Miss Helen Thompson and Miss Frazee.

"The Sweet Family," a sketch in one act, occupied the second portion of the program, and was a source of much amusement to the many present. "Ma Sweet," impersonated by Mrs. Harriet L. Gibbons, proved equal to all the emergencies which arose, and showed her capability in dealing with her seven daughters.

These were "Elizabeth Eliza," Miss Edna Smith; "Carolina Cordelia," Miss Tryphena Mattox; "Gloria Gadabout," Miss Lucy Johnson; "Araminta Ann," Miss Elsie Townley; "Dorothy Delila," Miss Elizabeth Leach; "Betty Belinda," Miss Marjorie Chandler; and "Frances Theodora," Mrs. Frazee.

Following the program, refreshments were served and a general social time followed, features of which were Virginia reels and waltzes. The committee in charge of the arrangements comprised Mrs. Annie Smith, Mrs. Adzetta Townley, Mrs. Mary Kitchell, Mrs. Elizabeth Leach, Mrs. Ada T. England, Mrs. Harriet Gibbons and Mrs. Sarah P. Struthers.

ORDINATION OF PRIESTS SET FORWARD BY BISHOP

Orange, April 7.—To meet an urgent need for priests in the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark eight of the fifteen members of the fourth year class at the seminary of Seton Hall College, South Orange, will be ordained by Bishop John J. O'Connor on May 3. The remaining members of the class will be ordained on June 10.

The men who will receive hold orders next month are: James F. Flanagan, of Jersey City; Christian A. Pfister, of Paterson; Cornelius J. McInerney, of Bayonne; Walter A. Hennessey, of New Haven, Conn.; Elwin F. Nestor, of Franklin Furnace; John J. Finnerty and Ralph J. Glover, of Hoboken, and Julian A. Roszkowski, of Worcester, Mass. The priests will say masses in their home churches the Sunday following ordination.

The remaining members of the class who are to be ordained in June are William B. Donnelly and William J. Feeney, of Paterson; William A. Costello and Peter A. Boyle, of East Orange, Metislaus C. Lankau, of Newark; James A. O'Donnell, of New York, and the Rev. Charles D. Meyer, of Montclair, a one-time Episcopal clergymen. The college will close on June 14.

CORNELIUS GUINEE DIES AFTER A BRIEF ILLNESS

Following an illness of several weeks with pneumonia and complications, Cornelius Guinee, a well known resident of this city, died at his home, at Spooner avenue and Fourth street, shortly before 10 o'clock last night. Mr. Guinee was fifty-three years old and was a native of Ireland but had lived in Plainfield for the past thirty years. For a long time he conducted a livery business with a stand at the North Avenue station, but owing to the shifting of this class of trade through the introduction of automobiles he retired a few years ago. Since then he had been employed in one of the local shops.

Mr. Guinee had a host of friends in both the city and borough, all of whom heard of his death with keen regret. He is survived by his wife and one son, John Guinee, a fireman in the local department attached to headquarters on East Second street, also one brother, Patrick Guinee, of West Third street. The latter is seriously ill at the present time. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church, 9 o'clock Monday morning, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

HOLD APRON SALE.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of St. Peter's Lutheran church, will hold an apron sale for the benefit of the Red Cross in the Sunday-school rooms, corner Grove street and Mercer avenue, on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, May 3. Home made cake will also be sold. Everybody welcome.

PRIMARY BALLOT NAMES SENT OUT

Complete List of Delegates Are Received by County Clerks of the State.

Trenton, April 7.—The county throughout the State received yesterday from Secretary of State Thomas B. Martin the certification of the names of those who have filed petitions of nomination for delegates and alternate delegates to the national conventions. This completes the preliminary arrangements for the primary election on Tuesday, April 25, as far as the State is concerned. By tomorrow each county clerk must forward to the clerk of each municipality in his county a statement of the persons whose names are to be printed on the primary ballot of each party, as certified to him, or filed with him. The municipal clerks are required to have the ballots printed.

The election which will decide the choice of delegates and alternates to the conventions will be held from 1 to 9 p. m., on April 25. It will be conducted by the regular election officers, and the election act provides that it shall be conducted "as near as may be in the manner now required by law for the conduct of the annual primary elections in September of each year."

The form of ballot is regulated for this occasion by section 40 of the Geran act, and, therefore, will be substantially in the same form as the ballots for the September primary elections. Candidates for delegates or alternates may be grouped together on the ballot, that is bracketed, if they so desire, thus giving any faction the advantage of having its particular candidates stand together.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERESY, APRIL 7, 1916.

THE PUPILS LIKE IT.

That the school pupils would like an opportunity to become proficient in military drill, such as was proposed by the Pierson bill which was defeated in the Legislature, is reasonable to assume. There are several places where the plan has been tried in the State, and the Hoboken Board of Education has taken the matter up seriously, even without the law to back them, and has made provision for regular training in the schools of that city. The Perth Amboy Evening News tells of the success of a similar experiment in Woodbridge and on Staten Island. In the Middlesex county town the schoolboys are already drilling, and so popular has the military instruction become during the first few weeks that it has been found necessary to divide the pupils into two platoons. The boys are most enthusiastic in the work and readily give their time after school to the exercises.

In the Woodbridge schools nothing more bloodthirsty is taught than erect posture, facings, marching steps, simple squad and oblique movements. Everyone from the faculty down is enthusiastic in the new departure, and there is no doubt that the boys will be greatly benefitted.

But Woodbridge is not the only place where military drill has been introduced within the past few months. At the Curtis High School on Staten Island the director of physical training has organized a corps of boys. This is in line with the bill introduced in the New York State Legislature requiring military training for boys in the public schools of that State. There were a large number of women at the hearing given this bill recently. Practically all who attended were in favor of military training. Many of the women who spoke for the measure had sons, and declared that they would more willingly give them to the service of their country if they know that they were to be a part of a thoroughly equipped and prepared fighting force.

Evidently both children and parents favor some training.

RUNYON'S WORDS AS VIEWED IN MONMOUTH.

From the Long Branch Record.

Former Judge William N. Runyon, of Union, Republican Assembly leader last year and a useful members of the House at its recent session, doesn't hesitate to say that "it was a very unsatisfactory sort of session." Mild as that is phrased, it is a remarkable admission. A Legislature that extended the terms of members of its party, took appointments away from the Governor because he happened to be of another party, although he had shown such fairness as to reappoint a Republican chief justice, a Republican judge in Essex and other Republicans, and held up court proceedings in two counties by not acting upon—either confirming or rejecting—prosecutor appointments, that passed the jitney bill in the interest of corporations, that tried to break down one of the safeguards against murder, that weakened the honest election laws and the requisition law that has put the State finances on a sound basis, that muddled and confused legislation generally and raised many salaries was worse than a do-nothing Legislature. Judge Runyon, as an independent, conscientious Republican, cannot refrain from expressing his disappointment. He doesn't rave or rant, but no one can mistake his meaning.

Another illustration of the fact that we are getting entirely too much judge-made law in New Jersey is found in the punishment for contempt of an Atlantic City newspaper man because he urged the prosecutor in that county to do his duty in a specific case. The case, which has been decided in the Supreme Court, should be appealed to the Court of Errors and Appeals. As the Trenton Times says, the Supreme Court, which upheld the Atlantic County Court of Quarter Sessions, has a habit of invoking the old English law on some occasions and rejecting it on others. If there is any doubt in the matter, the Legislature should decide as to the power in contempt cases. It does not seem to be a function of the Supreme Court to decide that because the Quarter Sessions is the higher court in a county, it should have the same power to punish for contempt not committed in its presence that is possessed by the superior courts under the old English law. If the Legislature desires to confer extra powers on any of its courts, it should say so in an act the language of which cannot be misunderstood; and this it may do in time, though it will undoubtedly hesitate to do so immediately since three of the justices of the Supreme Court have attempted to usurp its powers. "The legislative power should be vested in a Senate and General Assembly," says the constitution.

Somebody was rash enough to state at the time that the postoffice cornerstone was laid that Postmaster Hoagland would see it finished before his present term of office expires. That may be so. BUT—to the average man on the street, it looks suspiciously as if the Federal inspector was laying each stone himself, and then taking the rest of each day off!

In stating that Dalrymple, the Essex county Republican boss, is not "double-crossing" Senator Austen Colgate in his race for the Republican nomination for Governor, the Bayonne Review assures the public that "Mr. Dalrymple is Austen Colgate's close friend and one of his warmest supporters." That's the worst blow that Colgate has had yet.

That town evidently needed the Biederwolf revival services, which are bearing fruit. But all the sinners were not won over, for the vote in favor of the resolution was 16 to 9.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

The Cannibal Queen.

Oh, the cannibal queen
Is a lady, I ween,
Who must live in state of content.
She is free from the wiles
Of fashion an styles,
And doesn't depend on some gent
Of the tight-fashioned way
Who has plenty to say
On the subject of money that's spent.

If some dame of her set
Happens but to forget
And says catty things of Her Nibs,
She can chop off the head
Of the lady instead
Of bearing the gossipy fibs.
She can always collect
Quite a lot of respect
That most men don't hand to their "ribs."

She can wear what she likes
When she goes on her hikes
And no one dares utter a word,
Though her gown is passe
Or is gaudy and gay,
And her hat a thing quite absurd,
They have got to admit,
There is no doubt of it,
That their monarch is surely a bird.

Uncle Abner

UNCLE ABNER.

There was a bad fire the other night in Anse Purdy's corncrib. It was explained that the Wide Awake Hose Company's uniform shirts had been sent to the laundry and the members would not appear without the proper regalia. Anse tried to form a bucket brigade, but his wife had soft soap in all the pails around the house and wouldn't allow 'em to be disturbed. It was a turrible conflaggeration while it lasted and one life was putty nigh lost. When the fire was at its height, it was discovered that Uncle Ezra Peters was inside, and had been there three days hidin' from his wife. He didn't dast come out then for his wife was in the crowd watchin' the fire, but was dragged out unsensible and inconscious, having lost his self respek and most of his whiskers. Uncle Ezra is now on the rud to recovery, but will not be the same man again until his whiskers grow out.

Hank Purdy says the cost of livin' surely must be gettin' higher in Washington, as Congress is receiving so many bills lately.

Hod Renfrew was appointed a committee of his lodge to buy flowers for a singer who appeared in our midst recently and the hothouse feller sent the bill direct to Hod's house and Hod is doin' more useless explainin' than as though he had started the European war.

It is pretty tough to build a $10,000,000 battleship and when you get it done discover that it is four years behind the style.

Having decided on the perfect 36 model of women, tailors have given as measurements for the perfect man: Chest, 86 inches; waist, 34 inches; hips, 40 inches. That all? No light on height, hair, corns, warts, dimensions of ears, calf and so on?

Those Garden Seeds.

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
–They are but an empty dream—
Those seed catalogues I'm getting—
And are not just what they seem.

I have spent my heard-earned money,
Tightly to the seeds I've clung,
As I've lugged them often homeward,
Just to find that I've been stung.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Mary Pickford, the most-beloved and idolized of screen stars, appears in a Paramount production today at Proctor's, which is admirably suited to her charming personality. It is "The Girl of Yesterday," and tells a simple tale of how an old-fashioned girl is molded to the ways of those who indulge in up-to-date amusements. Miss Pickford's innumerable admirers will have an opportunity to see the world's most popular motion picture star in the thrilling role of companion to the internationally-famous aviator, Glenn Martin, in one of his daring aeroplane flights. Aside from the delightful mixture of quaint humor and romantic thrills, there are many points of novelty and of unusual interest in this remarkable feature. For the first time in her life, Mary Pickford is seen in actual aerial flight, while conversely, Glenn Martin makes his debut as a motion picture actor. Another production today of particular interest is the presentation of the last episode of "The Red Circle," the Pathe serial that has amused hundreds of film fans by its element of mystery and extremely clever cast of capable screen stars. In addition, today, the first episode of "The Social Pirates," the new and novel series, with Martin Sais and Ollie Kirkby in the leading roles, will be shown. Saturday is a gala day, indeed, and provides a variety of features both dramatic and comic, being provided for all classes and whims. Olga Petrova, renowned as one of the world's greatest dramatic stars, will be seen in a fitting vehicle, entitled, "What Will People Say." Harry Watson, the eccentric comedian who has won hundreds of friends in this vicinity, will appear in "Musty Suffer," while last, but not least, Charlie Chaplin, the peer of all comedians, will provide continual laughter by his comic antics in "His Trysting Place," an uproarious two-reel comedy. On Monday, Marie Doro will appear in a Paramount offering entitled "The White Pearl," and three famous comedy creations will be presented, featuring Frank Daniels, Si Hopkins and Ham and Bud. On Tuesday, a remarkable treatise on "Preparedness" will appear in the form of "The Flying Torpedo," featuring John Emerson, while Wednesday will bring Theda Bara in her latest and greatest picture, "Gold and the Woman."

DEED DATED 1773 IS RECORDED IN MIDDLESEX

New Brunswick, April 7.—One on the oldest deeds recorded in Middlesex county in recent years has been presented to the county clerk by representatives of Lee W. Jaques and J. Eugenia Jaques, of Jersey City, the present owners of the land. The deed is dated September 23, 1773, and is from John Blanchard, of Elizabethtown, executor of the estate of Charles Wright, of Woodbridge, Eastern Province of New Jersey, to Joseph Lester, of New York.

The property transferred consists of twenty-one and a half acres of upland and six acres of salt meadow, both in Woodbridge township, the latter being in the Rahway Great Meadows. The consideration mentioned in the deed is £300. The affidavit made by Mr. Jaques and his sister, for the purpose of recording, state that Lester conveyed the property by deed in April, 1795, to their great-grandfather, Jonathan Jaques, who left it to their grandfather, Robert L. Jaques, who in turn devised it to his son, Eugene A. Jaques, deceased father of the present claimants. The law requires that the original deed be retained by the county clerk.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

And still another question.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

MORE ABOUT JUDGE RUNYON.

"Gone, but not forgotten," may be appropriately applied to the 1916 session of the Legislature. There is but one thing that could be said in favor of this Legislature without an embarrassing stretch of the most elastic imagination, and that is that it lasted only twelve weeks.

The leader of the Republican majority in 1915 was Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of Union county. He was an able, conscientious legislator, but was the possessor of an independent spirit that would not bow to the dictation of those few men who have placed themselves in the saddle again in the G. O. P. ranks. This year, Mr. Runyon was relegated to the rear because he was not amenable.

This is what Assemblyman Runyon said when the session of the Legislature just closed:

"I wasn't very much impressed with it. I think it was a very unsatisfactory sort of session. A session couldn't be very satisfactory where a lot of members have to go around and get someone else's opinion before they can decide on a question."

Judge Runyon does not explain what he meant by that remark, but it must be very potent to the people of the State that he had "Davy" Baird and Alfred N. Dalrymple in mind when he said it. This is the expression of a member of the majority who is as warm a partisan as any in the Legislature, but he has the additional quality of being fair and he just had to have his little say about the way things went.

Runyon, however, was one of the very few members of the majority party who had any idea of being fair. The Senate particularly acted in a manner that was so offensively partisan that the independent press of the State cried out in disgust.

∴ Plainfield Theatre ∴

Capacity audiences at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night discovered that all the advance notices regarding the amazing ability of Sylvester Schaeffer, vaudeville's most talented artist, were true in every respect. He is beyond doubt the cleverest performer who has ever been seen at the local playhouse, and, surrounded by a supporting company of fifteen in all, he gave a program that kept everyone spellbound for nearly two hours. The offering comes to this city with two carloads of special scenery, costumes and scenic effects exactly the same as they were seen at the Palace Theatre, New York, recently, when the artiste received $5,000 weekly for the act.

Mr. Schaeffer proceeds quickly from one demonstration of his ability to another. He plays the violin like a concert performer, executes marvelous sharpshooting feats, juggles like a wizard—at one time using a racing chariot to throw about, exhibits herculean strength in weight-lifting and, finally, concludes with a marvelous animal act. His offering in the latter number includes three beautiful horses, and five almost human fox terriers. Besides these, he carries two reindeer, a baby rhinoceros and other quadrupeds. It seemed to the spectators that there was no limit to Mr. Schaeffer's versatility, and it is safe to predict that everyone was more than amazed.

Beside the appearance of Mr. Schaeffer himself, the program included Ota Gydi, court violinist to the King of Spain; Mlle. Maryon Vadie, America's wonderful dancer, and Joseph Hess and partner, famous ballroom dancers. The engagement of this company is positively only for the remainder of this week, as Mr. Schaeffer and his supporting artists sail from Philadelphia next week for a two-year tour of Australia.

"The Midnight Maidens," which comes to the Plainfield Theatre on Monday (matinee and night), April 10 next, represents a complete transformation in the production of a burlesque entertainment. The best elements of musical comedy have been combined with the hilarious comedy of a farce, the "pep" and ginger of extravaganza and music of light opera, thereby forming an entertainment pleasing to all kinds of people. The few people who like "smut" will not find that in the Midnight Maidens. Pete Curley and Frank Lynch, probably the best duo of comedians in this line of work; Tony Shane, Bob Calvert and Ed Bisland, a trio of pleasing singers and dancers; Harvey Brooks, Norma Bell, Rose Kessner, Jean Leonard—with a chorus of dainty maidens—form a combination hard to duplicate in any show on the Columbia wheel this season. Big special features are the famous Walsh, Lynch & Co., who offer a new act entitled "Along the Erie"; Three Bullowa sisters, French dolls on the slack wire—one of the best acts of its kind on the road. Then Jolly John Larkins, the only rival of Bert Williams. Larkins is, without a doubt, the funniest colored comedian on the American stage today. His impersonations of a cab driver, Benj. Butler Lincoln, is a scream of laughter from the start to the finish.

CHAPTER IN ISAIAH IS ONE OF BEST IN WHOLE BIBLE

One of the greatest chapters in the entire Bible is the 55th Chapter of Isaiah—Old Testament or New. Nowhere else a greater confidence in God's loving kindness; such a message to humanity of His mercy and forgiveness; such a statement of His Divine Fatherhood and our own common brotherhood. It is a hymn of praise and thanksgiving, a testimony of rejoicing to the humblest as well as the greatest; an affirmation of this life, and a bond and surety of the life to come. It ought to be read frequently, as well as the whole book of Isaiah. The text in the Big Print Red Letter Edition now offered by the Daily Press to its readers is so clear, so easy on the eyes, that elderly people say it is a pleasure beyond ordinary words to describe, to sit down and read from its pages. The coupon, elsewhere in this issue, shows how simple it is to acquire this lifetime treasure.—Adv.

The spring hikes will be resumed at the association on Saturday, April 15. Miss Winifred Mann, the physical director, intends to begin these walks this year, with an average of six miles daily, and prolong them until they finally become all-day jaunts.

The formation of an association orchestra, under the direction of Miss Alice Titus, has met with universal approval among the members, and, without a doubt, the group will appear at some of the association socials.

Because of the Biederwolf campaign, the weekly Bible stpdy classes will be postponed at the association until after the evangelistic campaign.

BIG PAY FOR SCHOONER.

Norfolk, Va., April 7.—The new schooner Jerome Jones will load with coal here in a few weeks and will make her maiden voyage a memorable one. She will take a cargo of coal to Argentina, receiving $20 a ton for transporting this much-needed fuel. The outward voyage will net the vessel $40,000, and a return cargo is assured at Buenos Aires.

URGES EMPLOYMENT OF STATE REGISTERED NURSES

Beside electing officers, the New Jersey State Nurses' Association, at its fourteenth annual convention, held in Passaic, passed a resolution urging that municipal officers intending to employ district nurses or nurses in other capacities, use discretion in making selections and give preference to graduates who are registered under the State law.

The resolution was adopted unanimously after several nurses had reported that, by some of the municipalities, women had been employed as district nurses who not only did not live in the locality, but who were not even what is known as practical nurses. This was considered an injustice to women who had spent years in training for their profession. The officers of the association will send a circular letter to municipal officers urging the adoption of this plan. Members of the Muhlenberg Hospital Alumnae were present as delegates from Plainfield.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Soldier Got Out of A Dungeon.

"I won't!" yelled the king.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"A STORY, daddy; a story!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

So daddy told them about a soldier who loved a king's daughter and got pitched into a dungeon for it. It is most unpleasant to lie in a dirty prison and through your bars watch people coming to see you hanged. That is just what the soldier did, till by and by along passed a shoemaker's boy in his leather apron and slippers. He was in such a hurry to see the soldier hanged that he lost one of his slippers. It fell close under the soldier's window, where he was peeking through.

"'Boy, don't be in such a hurry,' whispered the soldier through the bars. 'Nothing will happen till I get there. But if you will run to my hotel and fetch me my tinder box I'll give you a penny.'

"The boy was delighted to earn a penny and soon fetched the soldier his tinder box. Out in the square the king and queen sat upon a beautiful throne raised before a scaffold, and the place thronged with people. The soldier mounted the scaffold and asked if he might be allowed to smoke his last pipe. The king granted this, and the soldier took his tinder box and struck fire three times, and up popped three enchanted dogs—one with eyes as big as saucers, one with eyes as big as millstones and another with eyes as big as the round tower of the dungeon the soldier had just left. Then the dogs flew at the soldiers who guarded the prisoner and tossed them up in the air, so that when they fell they broke all to pieces. Some they took by the legs, some by their ears and some by their noses, throwing them away into the air.

"'I won't go!' yelled the king as the dog with eyes like a round tower took him and the queen and threw them after the soldiers.

"Then the people in the square became frightened and shouted, 'Oh, good soldier, you shall be our king and marry the beautiful princess!'

"So they led the soldier to the king's chariot and put him in it, while the three dogs frisked along in front and shouted 'Hurrah! Hurrah!' All the small boys put their fingers in their mouths and whistled, and all the soldiers who had not been thrown away in the air presented arms. The beautiful princess came out of her great copper castle and became queen, which pleased her very much after being locked up so long. The wedding took place within a week, and all three dogs had seats at the wedding breakfast, where they sat staring at the new queen with all six of their huge eyes," daddy finished.

"And did the new king and his queen live happily ever afterward?" Jack wanted to know. And daddy and Evelyn smiled.

LUNCHEON MENU

The following menu would be tasteful and easy to prepare:

Orange or Grapefruit Halved, with Sugar.
Cold Baked Ham or Boiled Tongue Sliced, Garnished with Parsley or Lemon Slices.
Creamed Potatoes.
Horseradish Sauce.
Celery. Olives.
Marshmalow Whip.
Sponge Cake or Nut Strips.
Cocoa.

HOME-MADE CANDLESTICKS

Take a block of wood three or four inches square and about an inch thick. On this glue a ribbon spool and on this a smaller one which has had ordinary sewing thread. These when finished with a stain or gilded and fitted up with candles and shades, are very attractive and inexpensive.

THE TABLE

Salmon Balls—One can red salmon, two large cups bread crumbs, one egg, one-half cup sweet milk, two tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Remove bones from salmon, mince fine with a fork, mix all together. Form in small balls. Fry in generous amount of butter.

Steamed Salmon Loaf—One can salmon, three eggs, one cupful bread crumbs, half teaspoonful salt, two tablespoons butter (melted), one tablespoonful lemon juice, paprika. Remove skin and bones carefully from a large can of salmon and chop fish fine. Beat eggs well, add bread crumbs and seasoning. Mix well and pour into greased mold. Steam one-half hour. Serve with plain white sauce or with hard-boiled egg chopped fine and added to it.

Egg Muffins—One quart flour sifted twice, three eggs (whites and yolks beaten separately), three teacups sweet milk, teaspoon of salt, tablespoon of sugar, a large tablespoon of lard or butter and two heaping teaspoons baking powder. Sift together flour, sugar, salt and baking powder; rub in the lard cold. Add the beaten eggs and milk. Mix into a smooth batter a little firmer than for griddle cakes. Grease well some muffin pans and fill them two-thirds full. Bake in hot oven fifteen or twenty minutes. These made of cream, omitting the butter, are excellent.

Fancy Apple Pie—Make a very rich pie shell (one teaspoon of bacon drippings added to the shortening for one pie shell makes an extra rich crust). Peel, core and quarter about five large apples. Put over same about two-thirds cup water and one-half cup sugar. Cover and let cook slowly till apples are done. If careful they will be in whole pieces when served, which makes a nicer appearance than crushed. Whip half pint cream. Fill shell with apples, put cream over same and sprinkle crushed walnut meats over top.

Apple Mallow Pie—Line pie pan with rich crust, bake to a light brown, fill with sweetened applesauce, grate on a little nutmeg and cover with marshmallows. Return to oven and brown delicately.

Marrow Balls—Grate one medium thick slice of bread large loaf) and add to another slice that has been soaked and pressed; mix together with one egg, salt, pepper, dash of nutmeg, a little parsley chopped fine (if liked) and take enough melted marrow out of soupbones to make two or three tablespoonfuls. Stir smooth and form balls the size of medium-sized marble. Cook in rice soup five or ten minutes and serve. Almost a meal in itself.

Tomato Jelly Salad—One and one-half boxes of gelatine soaked in one-half cup cold water. Take one can tomatoes, boil ten minutes, strain, add one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon powdered sugar; add while hot to gelatine. This makes a delicious salad, served with mayonnaise dressing or lettuce leaf.

Cream Puffs—One full cup of hot water, one-half cup butter; boil together and, while boiling, stir in gradually one cup flour previously sifted several times. When smooth take from fire and allow to cool; then stir in three eggs (unbeaten), one at a time; stir five minutes. Flavor with vanilla. Drop by tablespoonful on buttered pan. Bake twenty minutes in moderate oven. Makes twelve puffs. When baked carefully open up and fill with whipped cream or custard.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Ortrude Confidesin Nell Her Determination to Live a Different Life.

"Well, Mrs. Morton, I ran in to say good-bye. All my packing is done. I have just seen the last box nailed up and tagged for shipping. The house will be empty tomorrow night." Ortrude Townsend sank wearily into the easy chair Nell drew up for her.

"I am sure you are thankful that it is over," sympathized Nell. "It is a forlorn task to break up a home, and you had been settled only a few months."

"It is only a few months, but it seems half a lifetime. When I handled the things I had selected so short a time ago—filled with such pride that I was to be mistress of a well-appointed home—when I handled them, I say, I wondered how many years had passed. I felt so old, so different." Ortrude leaned back wearily and closed her eyes.

"A change will be good for you. With new surroundings you will soon feel like yourself." Nell's tone was cheerful.

"I know what you think; that I have not suffered an irreparable loss as long as I cared so little for my husband." There was the old toss of the head that Nell had liked so little in their first acquaintance. "But you do not understand what I mean. I do not see how I can tolerate life with myself since I have had a good view of myself and see how contemptible I am." Nell laughed, but Ortrude's face remained sober.

"I have been thinking of something you said the first time we went riding together. You said, 'Anyone who is so self-centered as to push his own plans through with no consideration for anyone else is doing himself an injury.' I realize how true that is, and the injury was greater than I ever dreamed it could be. And I must live with that knowledge all the rest of my life."

There was silence in the room when Ortrude ceased speaking. Finally Nell said:

"I wish dear Mother Morton was here. She could say something to help you; she has lived so nobly and learned so much. So many times when I am regretting something I have done she says, 'Don't mourn over what is past; that is yours no longer. Learn the lesson your failure should teach you and leave it. The past is gone; the future we cannot control; only the present is ours in which to make amends for past mistakes.'"

"I wish I knew her," said Ortrude after a pause. "I need someone strong and helpful to help me learn to live so that I shall not ruin any more lives."

"I think there is always plenty to help one who is really trying to do the right thing," said Nell. "I have noticed that just as soon as I was ready for truth I found it in some form, and when I needed help and was doing all I could myself, the help came, too."

"That is a comforting thought." Ortrude's tone was low and distinct. "Perhaps the shaking up I have received from this earthquake in my life was necessary to wake me and make me think. I do not believe it will be possible for me ever to be quite so selfish and self-centered again." She rose as she spoke.

"I wonder if we ever shall meet again. It is not likely that I shall ever come to Fairport again," she said, extending her hand.

"Oh, I hope so. We are always running into people we never expected to meet in this changing world. Where do you expect to make your home?" asked Nell.

"I have not decided. I may live in the same town with my cousin, or Adelaide may come and live with me in some place I like. Everything is very uncertain. I am sending my furniture to them to store for the present." Ortrude moved toward the door.

"I hope you will be happy wherever you are," said Nell as they parted, "for that will mean that you have learned to be friends with yourself."

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides, with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

We Give Travelstamps

Saving Travelstamps Is Just Like Saving Real Money---

THE Travelstamps you receive with your purchases actually mean dollars and cents to you. They have the highest cash redemption value of any stamp or coupon at present in circulation, and may be conveniently redeemed for cash if you prefer not to use them for transportation.

So be sure to ask for Travelstamps whenever you make a cash purchase at the stores listed below. It would be just as extravagant to refuse to receive money offered across the counter as to fail to receive the Travelstamps you are entitled to.

TRAVELSTAMPS

PAY YOUR FARE EVERYWHERE

Most people prefer to save Travelstamps and exchange them for railroad or steamship tickets. Travelstamps encourage thrift and make possible many delightful little journeys that could not be enjoyed under ordinary circumstances.

By saving Travelstamps you are making your living expenses pay for your traveling expenses. Travelstamp mileage is quickly accumulated and by confining your purchases to stores that give Travelstamps it will not be long before you will be able to enjoy the benefits to be derived.

Serving Its Twenty-ninth Year. PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1916. Sports Dept. Tel. 3000—Extension 3.

P.H.S. Nine, on Eve of First Game, Looks Good

After looking over the Plainfield High School baseball squad on the eve of the first game, it is safe to say that the prospects of the Red and Blue on the diamond this year are very bright. In place of the annual Camp Bowser game as the opening contest of the season, Ben Rosenson, a graduate of last year, has agreed to get together a bunch of former players of the school and line up against the High School nine on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon.

For several weeks yet Coach Patch and Captain "Box" Apgar will not be able to decide on any definite line-up, but tomorrow everyone will be given a try. At first base Art Kyle is the one best bet. Kyle has been one of the mainstays of the T. A. B. S. nine in the City League, and his ability to cover the initial bag is unquestionable. At second base there is a choice between McDowell and Lewis, with the former having slightly more experience. "Mac," however, will be a relief man on the hurling mound, and Lewis, who is a former Berkeley School diamond artist, will be first choice. To get the right combination at the difficult corner, Coach Patch is doing some tall experimenting, but as matters now stand Victorson, who ably covered first base last year, will be made custodian of third base, while Gerald Linke will undoubtedly be seen at shortstop. "Vic" is a valuable man at bat, and Linke is dependable as a utility man, besides putting plenty of "pep" in the team.

In the box the coach is encountering one of the biggest problems. Sidney "Buck" Butler seems to be the only one at present who is able to go the route, and he will probably be the mainstay of the pitching corps. He is there with the speed and has a good assortment of curves and will improve with coaching. "Dutch" Hutchcroft is the only southpaw on the squad, and shows prospects of being turned into a reliable portside flinger. McDowell will be used as relief man, as over a short distance heis a mystery to the batters. Captain "Box" Apgar will do the bulk of the work at the other end of the battery. "Box" was the backstop for P. H. S. last year, and with a year's experience in the City League on the Clinton Avenues, he should have his best season.

The outfield is causing worry more on account of the problem of choosing the right combination than from lack of material. Dunham, Mills, Noonan, Eder, Alpaugh, Snyder, Kline and Davidson all have a chance for a berth in the garden. Mills, who covered one section very creditably last year, is practically certain of a berth, while Dunham will likely be first choice for another part of the outer garden. Mills can play either right field or center field, but will probably have the latter berth, with Jim Noonan patroling in left field. The others will be coached for infield berths as well, so as to act as utility men in case of need.

From present indications the team will be strong on both the attack and defensive. All of the first string men seem to be fairly good hitters, with Apgar, Noonan, Victorson and Linke looking to be the best.

A. A. U. CRITICISED ALL OVER THE STATE

Experiences of Plainfield Boxing Promoters Corroborated by Others.

Complaints voiced in Plainfield against the attitude of the A. A. U., to which body has been given the authority to sanction amateur boxing bouts held in New Jersey under the new law, are similar to protests heard in other cities. One Plainfield promoter made inquiries at A. A. U. headquarters in New York about what was necessary for any incorporated club to do in order to get a license, and the official who talked to the local man hinted in no uncertain terms that the men sent out from New York would have to be paid considerably more than their actual expenses.

Other protests being made in Jersey City and Newark are that it is impossible to procure sanctions, the prevailing feeling being that the A. A. U. is holding back so that interest will not be taken from the celebration tournament to be held in Newark this summer. This tourney has already been sanctioned.

Thomas Cassidy, the A. A. U. commissioner for the district, has been appealed to by the disgruntled clubs. The issuing of sanctions is not in his hands, however, and the best the commissioner could do was to promise he would take the matter up with the members of the registration committee. There are said to be 1,500 amateur boxers in New Jersey ready and anxious to don the mitts and the athletic clubs are more than willing to put on bouts, but are tied up by the reluctance of the body authorized to issue sanctions.

Professional promoters have complained that the act savors of class legislation and want to know how it is that a body such as the A. A. U. is intrusted with the issuing of licenses rather than a commission such as exists in New York State. The politicians have been approached and Senator Charles Egan, of Jersey City, stated that in case there is any trouble over the working of the law, he will move to have it repealed. As it is, no club can go ahead without the A. A. U. sanction, which must be backed up by a police permit.

TRI-CHURCH EUCHRE CONTEST VERY CLOSE

Score is St. Joseph's, 24; St. Mary's, 21; St. John's, 18.

The second round of the series of three euchre sittings to be played by the Holy Name Societies of St. John's, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's churches was played last evening in St. Mary's Social Hall, with the result that St. Joseph's is first, being three games ahead of St. Mary's. St. Mary's is three games ahead of Dunellen. The score stands: St. Joseph's, 24; St. Mary's, 21; Dunellen, 18.

The hall was filled with rooters following each church. St. Joseph's Bible-class was much in evidence. The last and third of the series will be played in St. Stephen's Hall next Thursday evening.

In this session the teams promise to make it very interesting by putting in their best players. Captain John McMahon, of Dunellen, hinted last night that he still has in his reserves some players who cannot be surpassed, and will produce them at the next meeting. The other leaders, Robert McCormack of St. Joseph's, and Patrick O'Brien of St. Mary's, will profit by the little bit of information and thereby strengthen their teams.

SHAMROCKS EVEN WITH SOMERVILLE JUNIORS

The Shamrocks evened things with the Somerville Juniors by taking the second game of the series last night on the T. A. B. S. alleys. The rubber will be rolled on the Tabs' chutes in the near future. The Somervilles were shy one man, so Kyle rolled with them and tried hard to beat his home town team. He hit 219 in the last game. The Shamrocks totaled 890 in the second game, Scott rolling 214. Lawton averaged 192, rolling three good tallies.

The scores:

NEW MANAGER FOR N. P. H. S. NINE

Chas. Roll Returned to His Old Office by Resignation of Wm. Seidel.

William Seidel, '17, of North Plainfield High School, has resigned the managership of the baseball team, Charles Roll, a member of the senior class, being elected his successor. The former manager has accepted after school hours which would not enable him to fill the office adequately. The election of Roll was in a way a re-election. At the last meeting of the Athletic Association at the close of school last spring he was appointed to fill this position, but when his family was thinking seriously of moving last fall he was forced to resign the position.

The borough team has been practicing this week under the supervision of Carroll Taylor, '12, who has been appointed coach. Taylor has been attending the Colorado School of Mines until recently, when he was forced to discontinue his studies on account of an injury which he received in football. He played on the baseball team while attending the western institution while he was also prominent in athletics during his high school career. Eddie Stallings, who was mentioned as coach of N. P. H. S., was unable to offer his services to the maroon and black team this year.

GAUB TEAM STRENGTHENS LEAD IN PINOCHLE PLAY

As a result of last evening's matches of the North Plainfield pinochle tournament, the Gaub's barber-shop team by winning three straight games from the North Plainfield Republican Club made its hold on first place more secure, and the Firemen by winning two games out of three from the Domino Club team caused a triple tie to exist for second place.

The Gaub's team has a standing of .667 and the other three teams .416.

CHARLEY MONTROSS TO ROLL OFF FOR TROPHY

Charley Montross will roll off the high score prize of the Union County Royal Arcanum League, on Dobbins' alleys in Roselle Park tonight. The former Plainfielder tied with John Schrieber, of Elizabeth. Both men hit 255. Three out of five games will decide the trophy.

P. M. C. TO START SERIES OF RUNS SUNDAY, APRIL 16

The semi-monthly meeting of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club was held in the club rooms on Somerset street, last evening, fourteen members being present. The chief news item of the meeting is the fact that the members voted to hold their first run of the season on Sunday, April 16, to Flemington. It will be known as a picture run because the riders will have their pictures taken in a group before starting out.

CHASE SIGNS WITH REDS.

Cincinnati, April 7.—Hal Chase, former American and Federal League star, has been signed by the Cincinnati Reds, President Herrmann announced last night. Chase was signed because reports state Mollwitz's throwing arm is not in condition. Mollwitz will be retained.

CHIEF KIELY RETIRES AS HEAD OF STATE BODY

Chief Kiely, of the Plainfield police force, presided at his last meeting as president of the State Association of Chiefs of Police, when that body met yesterday in Elizabeth. At the election of officers which followed the business session, Chief Bimson, of Paterson, was elected to succeed Chief Kiely as president. The meeting was addressed by Judge Connolly, Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein and Chief Galatian.

Flemington

The Usher's Association of the Presbyterian church was organized Tuesday night with the following officers: President, George H. Danley; vice-president, Furnian C. Boughner; secretary, Earle G. Kinney; treasurer, G. Wesley Allegar; head ushers, Wesley E. Schuyler and Richard O. Wilde.

Rev. Dr. A. W. Sonne will attend the Presbytery of New Brunswick at Trenton, Tuesday. An invitation will be extended to the presbytery to hold the June meeting here.

John P. McPherson will soon begin the erection of a new dwelling at Spring street and Maple avenue, which he will occupy when completed.

SLOCUM TO TWIRL FOR JONES' TEAM

Two Alberts, Betzenberger and Lee Also Sign—to Travel Sundays.

Lou Slocum will pitch for the Plainfield A. A. team of the City Baseball League. This announcement, made today by Gifford Jones, manager of the P. A. A., is a surprise, as Slocum was with the Netherwood Club last year, and was expected to twirl for the champions again this year. Jones also announced today that his club would travel Sundays, and named several other players who will be on the team, among them Joe Albert, Frank Lee and Henny Albert, of Scotch Plains, and several former Saurer players, including Henry Betzenberger, George Miller and Johnny Dixon.

Harry Moulton will do the catching. He and Slocum will work out for the first time Sunday. A week from tomorrow the Plainfields will play a practice game with some local nine, probably the St. Joseph's. A week from Sunday, Manager Jones hopes to secure the Emerson avenue field for a game with the Farmers' A. C.

Another former Saurer player who may be seen in the P. A. A. line-up is Albert Jaeger. A few other men who haven't been signed yet may also join Jones' team, which promises to be one of the strongest in the league.

EXPERTS TO SPEAK AT WESTFIELD ON "CLEAN MILK"

The local dairymen, milk dealers and all others who are interested, are invited by the Westfield Board of Health to attend a free, illustrated lecture on "Clean Milk," to be given in the Westfield Town Hall, this evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Millard Knowlton, chief of the Bureau of Education and Publicity, and William G. Tice, acting chief of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs, of the State Board of Health, are to be the speakers. The Plainfield Board of Health urges everyone who can to attend.

Westfield.

John H. Guise, of the Union County Mosquito Commission, gave an illustrated talk on the work of the commission before the High School pupils this morning.

Westfield Council, Knights of Columbus, has accepted an invitation to parade in Newark, May 15.

Major General Leonard A. Wood will speak at the High School auditorium Tuesday night on "The Military Obligations of the Citizen." General Wood will be accompanied by several members of his staff. A reception committee is to be appointed to meet him and the Westfield Band will act as an escort from the train to the school.

Carmon Emmons, of Steiner place, North Plainfield, who was seriously burned at the New Jersey Central shops at Jersey City some time ago, is slowly improving.

CHOOSE LEADERS OF P. H. S. COURT SIX

Miss Clementine Bremble to Be Captain and Miss Palmer Manager Next Year.

An election held yesterday afternoon by the members of the girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School resulted in the choice of Miss Clementine Bremble as captain for next year. Miss Bremble has played centre on the Red and Blue team for two seasons, and is one of the best the school has turned out in a number of years. The season just past was her best, and it is doubtful if there were any centers in the State who played a better game than she. Besides being the only one on the squad to play in every game, she established the rather unique record of shooting three goals from the middle of the court. Miss Elsa Palmer, forward for the past two seasons and manager during the past season, was again appointed to that position by the G. A. A. board.

The whole basketball squad, eleven in number, counting Miss Ruth Wean, who was the coach, posed for their pictures. Those in the group include Miss Ruth Wean, Irma Good, Dorothy Butler, Mary Simons, Elsa Palmer, Jennie Bremble, Clementine Bremble, Priscilla Pennock, Gertrude Head, Marion Lansdale and Natalie Goetter.

SWIMMING ADDED TO RECREATION PROGRAM

Wednesday Night Classes for Both Sexes to Be Started in High School.

Announcement was made today that the public of Plainfield is invited to join in one of the greatest movements ever presented to the public of any city in the line of recreation, health and body culture in connection with swimming. The pool and gymnasium at the Plainfield High School are to be opened each Wednesday evening, the girls and women having the use of the pool from 7:30 until 8:30 o'clock. The gymnasium will be open to the young men's class at 8:15. Dry land swimming exercises will be followed by the class for about fifteen minutes, the object being to instruct the pupils in the correct swimming strokes and the art of breathing properly in order to familiarize the members with the proper methods of swimming, relaxation and breathing before entering the water.

The setting up exercises in the gym will consist of correct standing position, limbering up exercises and different movements designed to reach and strengthen the swimming nerves and muscles of the neck, chest, back and limbs.

This course of training will prepare for the actual work to follow in the swimming pool, where instruction will be continued along the line of swimming, diving, life saving and racing.

The Recreation Committee has arranged with George A. Keene, former editor of Health Magazine, of New York city, to conduct this work for boys and men on Wednesday evenings. This includes the use of the gymnasium, with instruction in the gym and pool and use of the pool.

LATE START FOR LOCAL BASEBALL.

Plainfield's season of exhibition baseball will be opened tomorrow afternoon, when the Plainfield High School squad will appear in a practice encounter with a pickup team of diamond nondescripts. A regular ball game was on the bill for tomorrow, but Bernardsville High, the bunch that was carded to meet North Plainfield High School here, postponed the tilt.

While Coach Patch's products are gauging their batting eyes and tempering their throwing wings, several other city outfits will be holding practice. The Hope Chapels will work out on the Soccer Field, the First Baptists on their grounds at Myrtle and West End avenues, and the N. P. H. S. tossers will train on Hyde Field. From present indications, the first regular game to be played in this city will not take place until April 15, when several teams will get into action. This is the latest opening date in many years.

The heavyweight spotlight is focused on Jess Willard, Frank Moran, Jack Dillon, Jim Coffey and Fred Fulton, but one who should be in the calcium but isn't, on account of his own foolishness, is Charley Weinert, the Jersey boy. The men who were formerly Weinert's strongest supporters have been hoping to see him get knocked out, simply because he has not enough sense to behave himself and grasp the fortune that sane conduct will earn him in the ring. Fight men agree that Weinert has the qualities to put him at the top of his class. His first successes turned his head, and his disregard of training disgusted his friends. Weinert is said to have recently seen the light, and may yet claim the big money that he is capable of winning in the squared circle.

As pleasing as it is surprising is the record of the Plainfield Squash Club in the Interclub League. To have gone through the league schedule against such players as those of the Montclair Athletic Club and Englewood Field Club without losing a match is a remarkable record. The indoor game is steadily growing in favor here, and it remains only for one or two other clubs to take it up, in order to be one of the most popular winter sports. It is possible that a court will be built at the Park Club next season.

Climax Gun Club trapshooters will go to Flemington tomorrow for the rubber shoot of the inter-club series with the marksmen of the Hunterdon county seat. Team matches have been few here this season. The Flemington-Climax shoots have been the only ones held, and on the result of their record tomorrow rests the only showing of how Plainfielders compare with out-of-town competitors.

EIGHT TOWNS IN PENN STATE BASEBALL LOOP

Lancaster, Pa., April 7.—Leo Groome, organizer of the Pennsylvania State Baseball League, was here yesterday arranging for opening the season at Rossmere Park. He announced the league as completed with eight clubs. Lancaster, with I. B. Reinhart as president and Bill Dahlen, of Brooklyn, or Bill Phillips, National Leaguer, as manager; Reading, James T. Sheckard, manager; Harrisburg, George Cockhill; Lebanon, Hugh McKinnon; Allentown, Willie Keeler; York, Lew Ritter, and Altoona, Percy Stettler.

Groome said that President Tener, of the National League, is favoring their movement and will see it gets protection. The Lancaster team has twenty-two men under contract who will report on April 27. The season opens May 10.

VOLLMER MEETS KAHANOMOKU.

New Brunswick, April 7.—Duke Kahanomoku, the Hawaiian swimmer, has agreed to meet Hal Vollmer, the Columbia star, in a special match race in the Rutgers pool some time in May. This was announced yesterday by Coach Jim Reilly, of the Rutgers team.

SPAKER HAS COME TO TERMS WITH RED SOX

Boston, April 7.—It was stated on good authority today that Tris Speaker is as good as signed with the world's champions. He and President Lannin have come to an understanding and the Texan will play ball for Boston, notwithstanding the story circulated in New York that Tris Speaker is to be traded for Fritz Maisel and a lot of money.

COLLEGES TAKE UP BOWLING.

An intercollegiate bowling tournament will be held at New Haven tomorrow, following which steps will be taken to form an Intercollegiate Bowling Association.

It is proposed that all association games be bowled by telegraph, and it is probable that neutral officials will be seected and definite plans made at the meeting.

START WATER DIVERSION SUIT

Paterson, Newark and Jersey City Are Defendants.

WATER COMPANY INCLUDED

Riparian Owners Complain of Pollution of Passaic River — Development of Wanaque Watershed by Five Cities Will Also Be Fought by the Plaintiffs.

Paterson, April 7.—Coincident with the beginning in chancery court here of water diversion and pollution suits against Paterson, Newark, Jersey City and the East Jersey Water company, it was announced definitely by a member of the Riparian Land Owners' association, plaintiff in the action, that suit will be started against the North Jersey water commission as soon as that body shall have been appointed by the governor. The latter action will seek to restrain the commission from proceeding with the development of the Wanaque watershed.

It is planned to have Newark, Paterson, Passaic, Montclair and Harrison use the Wanaque shed jointly.

The diversion suit to which all the parties except Paterson are made co-defendants comprises a demand upon the cities to state by what right they divert water from the Passaic river and the amount of water diverted daily. Notice of the suit was served upon Mayor Amos H. Radcliffe of Paterson and upon Samuel Orcutt, Paterson city clerk.

The riparian association is also named as plaintiff in the pollution action in which notices were served on twelve manufacturers of Paterson, who are said to discharge sewage into the river.

In the suit against the cities Paterson is required to state by what right it casts sewage into the river and the amount of this sewage. The east Jersey company is required to state its right to divert Passaic river water, the parties to whom it sells the water and what contract it has made with Paterson to deliver Passaic river water.

The basic claim of the riparian owners in all of their actions is that 100,000,000 gallons of water are being diverted from the river every day and that the flow of the water is lessened by this, and also that the river is being polluted by the sewage emptied into it by Paterson and some of the manufacturers located there.

RECTOR SEEKS LOST GIRL.

Newark Pastor Abandons Church to Find Alma Fuller Myers.

Newark, April 7.—Determined to leave no stone unturned in the search for Alma Fuller Myers, who disappeared last Saturday, the Rev. J. C. Donnell, rector of St. Thomas' Episcopal church, Newark, to which the girl belonged, has put an assistant in charge of his parish work and announces that he will take active part in the work of searching for her.

Miss Myers has not been at her home in Ampere, East Orange, since last Friday morning. She left home to go to the office of Dr. J. C. Gibson, a Bronx dentist, at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

WOMEN STRIKERS FIGHT.

Five Arrested After Pitched Battle With Workers Refusing to Quit.

Garfield, April 7.—Women strikers at the Garfield Worsted mills fought the police in a pitched battle. Five women were arrested. The riot followed a similar outbreak late yesterday.

The fight started when women strikers attacked women workers who had refused to go out on strike. It was half an hour before the patrol wagon arrived. When it did arrive sympathizers of the prisoners attempted to upset the wagon, but were driven off.

Won't Close All Convict Camps.

Bridgeton, April 7.—Announcement has been made by the state road department that it will not be obliged to close all its convict road camps on April 8, as had been announced. The supplemental bill of the legislature carries an appropriation of $25,000 for the camps. The department asked for $75,000. It has been arranged so that the south Jersey camp at Elmer will be reduced one-half and the work upon the roads with convicts will be continued. The camp at Rocky hill, near Princeton, will be continued until July.

To Hold Shakespeare Celebration.

Princeton, April 7.—Preparations are being made by the authorities of Princeton university to hold a celebration April 17 commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the death of Shakespeare. Edith Wynne Matthison has been engaged for the Princeton celebration, and her interpretation of several of Shakespeare's greatest scenes will be the principal feature of the program. The Orphic order, composed of undergraduates, will open the program.

State Prison Head Ill.

Trenton, April 7.—Head Keeper Thomas B. Madden of the New Jersey state prison is in a critical condition at his home here, suffering from an attack of pneumonia. Attending physicians entertain but slight hopes for his recovery.

WOMEN'S POLITICAL PARTY WILL BATTLE FOR VOTES

Washington, April 7.—Plans for the formation of a Women's Party by women voters in the enfranchized States for the promotion of national woman suffrage will be outlined at a conference of the leaders of the Congressional Union which will be held here tomorrow at the national headquarters. The women voters of the twelve enfranchised States will be organized into an effective political weapon, say the Congressional Union leaders.

To push the work of organization, 36 women, one from each of the non-suffrage States, will be sent into the Western States where the women vote. The delegates will be selected tomorrow, and they will leave next week on a special car, and will make a six weeks' tour.

"Suffrage First" will be the slogan of the campaigners, and the women who have the vote will be exhorted "not to waste their vote" in the coming election.

SENIOR CLASS TO GIVE "TAMING OF THE SHREW"

After weeks of preparation all is in readiness for the annual play of the Senior class of the Plainfield High School tomorrow night, and there is every indication that the presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" will rank high in the theatricals of the High School.

The present play by the Bard of Avon is appropriate at this time as the 300th anniversary of his death is now being celebrated. In coaching the members of the cast Harold F. Biddle, head of dramatics at the High School, has worked hard for several months with the cast. A presentation of the play especially for the members of the school is being given this afternoon.

PLAN MONUMENT FOR DISCOVERER OF OXYGEN

Washington, April 7.—Prof. Francis C. Phillips, noted chemist of the University of Pittsburg and chairman of the Society of American Chemists, has sounded a call for the perpetuation by means of a suitable monument of the memory of Dr. Joseph Priestley, the English-American scientist and author who discovered oxygen and other important chemical elements. Prof. Phillips' plan is for the erection of this monument at Northumberland, Pa., the former home of the scientist, to whom no fewer than four such testimonials have been erected in England. His project will be taken up at the next annual meeting of the society.

The frame building which the scientist erected at Northumberland as a residence, together with the wing he used as a laboratory, are still standing, while many of the instruments he used are now in the Smithsonian Institution in this city.

The centennial of the discovery of oxygen was celebrated in Northumberland in 1874, and Dr. Priestley is buried in the cemetery of that town. The scientific pioneer not only discovered the element, but made the first preparation of nitric oxide, nitrous oxide and hydrochloric and other important acids. He was the author of works of great importance, both in chemistry and theology, and established in his town of residence the first Unitarian church in Central Pennsylvania.

YOUNG WOMEN

Suits, Coats, Dresses by the Thousands—Attractive Variety

We have pictured a few, but can't even begin to give an idea of the hundreds of smart fashions, youthful and becoming, of the fineness of the tailoring, even in the least expensive suit, and of the goodness of the materials.

1,267 New Suits, $16.50 to $62.50

Specially good choosing at $16.50, $18.75, $23.50, $25, $27.50, $30 and $32.50. All taffeta suits, serge and taffeta, Poiret twill, serge, gabardine, stockinet, tweed, worsted and velours checks. Navy blue, gray, black, tan, and colored and black-and-white checks; sizes 14 to 20 years.

Fillette suits (sizes 12 to 16 years), $11.75 to $21.75.

700 Smart Coats, $10.75 to $68.50

Street coats of serge and gabardine, some combined with silk; sports coats of velours, silk jersey, Bolivia cloth, corduroy, chinchilla, novelty fabrics.

Special choosing at $20, $23.75 and $25. Sizes 14 to 20 years. Fillette coats (12 to 16 years), $11.75 to $32.50.

Some Pretty Dress Specials

New Georgette crepe and taffeta frocks in three becoming models, $25. Another taffeta frock with Georgette crepe sleeves, $22.75. Crepe de chine and crepe Georgette, $17.50. Serge coat dresses with pongee vests, collar and cuffs, $16.50. Sizes 14 to 20 years.

Girls' Clothes

Coats, $6.75 to $32.50.
Colored dresses, $1 to $10.50.
White dresses, $2.25 to $14.50.
Sizes 6 to 14 years.

Second floor, Old Bldg.

$2 Sale of Handbags

Made of real leather—pin seal, matt seal, crepe seal or vachette, quite the equal of bags that sell usually at $3 to $5.

Variety is large, including every style from a practical carriage bag to the very daintily fitted vanity bags. Of course there are envelope bags in the collection, for they are very fashionable right now. Each bag fresh, newly made, suitable for Spring.

With the cost of leather, frames and labor advancing steadily, we can't promise another such sale as this.

Main floor, Old Building.

$3.50 and $3.85 Silk Petticoats

Last Saturday women could not say enough about the prettiness of their changeable shades, the quality of the taffeta, and the attractive ways in which they were made.

Extra supplies for this week-end. Two styles at $3.50, three styles at $3.85 and dozens of color combinations.

Third floor, Old Building

Women's Shoes at $4 and $5

Every woman will want a pair of new shoes for the Easter promenade. We have a large variety of tan and black low and high shoes, at $4 and $5, well made, exceptionally good for the money. In fact shoes of similar material and make will cost 25 per cent more within a few months.

At the same prices, several models of white canvas shoes.

Main floor, Old Building.

LAST DAY AT $15

Wanamaker Wardrobe Trunk—NEVERBREAK

On Monday next, April 10, and thereafter, the price will be $20. Tomorrow, Saturday, will be the last day on which it may be bought for $15.

Rise in prices of raw materials and labor makes the increase unavoidable. The makers of the trunks advise us that prices have risen as follows—on vulcanized fibre, 400 per cent.

on locks, 150 per cent.
on hardware, 100 per cent.
on linings, 75 per cent.
on veneer, 15 per cent.
on labor, 25 per cent.

Two courses were open to the makers—they could either (1) cheapen the trunk by using "seconds," or inferior materials, so that the price of $15 could be continued; or (2) give the same good standard value at the increased price of $20, and maintain the five years' guarantee.

They decided on the latter course.

We are glad they did. We could not have offered to our customers a cheapened, inferior NEVERBREAK. And our customers would not want it.

So tomorrow, Saturday, until the closing of the Store, or so long as our stocks hold out, we will fill all orders received for the Wanamaker NEVERBREAK wardrobe trunk at $15.

Subway floor, New Building.

ORDER 600,000,000 IRISH STEWS FOR TOMMY ATKINS

Philadelphia, April 7.—Six hundred million one-pound tins of Irish stew for the armies of Great Britain and her allies have been ordered by the commission handling food supplies for the Entente. Philadelphia gets a large share of the contract, for a fourth of the order for Irish stews has been placed with a local packing company.

Deliveries of the stews are to begin May 1, and twelve million cans a week are to be shipped until the entire order is filled. Montreal, St. John and Halifax are to be the shipping points. Most of the order, it is understood, is destined for France and Russia.

As a ration for soldiers in the field, this special form of beef stew—or Irish stew, as it is popularly known—is said to have a number of good points. Not only does it form a highly-nutritive ration, easily prepared by Tommy Atkins on active duty, but it also guards against scurvy, which rages aboard ships and in camps where vegetables are lacking.

It is said that a considerable amount of the beef to be used is Canadian beef, the balance being American and Argentine beef.

—Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

—When discontent reaches a certain point, the furnished room advertisements become very interesting to some people.

OCCOQUAN PRISON FARM WORKHOUSE

Miss Townsend Prepares Extensive Report to Be Presented to Co. Committee.

ENDORSES THE SYSTEM

Believes That It Would Be Ideal for Union County From a Standpoint of Both Discipline and Economics.

As a result of her visit to Washington as a member of the committee appointed recently by Judge J. C. Connolly to investigate the question of establishing a county work farm for prisoners, Miss Harriet Townsend, of Elizabeth, has prepared a report which she will present to the committee in which she explains the system employed at the Occoquan farm, in the District of Columbia. This system she has enthusiastically indorsed as ideal for Union county from a standpoint of both discipline and economics.

The Occoquan system, she reports, receives prisoners from the Washington police court sentenced to from 5 to 720 days and puts them to work on a tract containing 1,150 acres of woods and farm land. The results have been remarkable.

Miss Townsend's report on the Occoquan system, with figures and other information concerning its operation, is as follows:

"Occuquan Prison farm, the workhouse for the District of Columbia, is a demonstration of simplicity, efficiency and humanity in dealing with the short-term prisoner.

"Prisoners with five-day to 720-day sentences, from 15 years of age to 65 years, men and women, white and colored, are sent directly from the police courts in the city of Washington to the prison farm, thirty miles out into the country, where, within an hour of their arrival, they are put to work.

"The prison farm is a tract of 1,150 acres, consisting of hills and woods and poor soil which the District of Columbia bought six years ago for $18 an acre. At that time Warden Whittaker was sent into this wilderness thirty miles from Washington with fifty prisoners. There were no buildings, not even a clearing in the woods; all they took with them were army tents, tools and supplies.

"In a month's time three acres had been cleared, stumps pulled, lumber cut, shacks erected, which provided dormitories, dining room and kitchen and storehouse to accommodate 300 prisoners.

"All this has been done by prison labor, taking the skilled and unskilled just as they have been sent up from the police court on short- and long-term sentences, putting them to work under skilled foreman in squads of from twenty to thirty. Land has been cleared, trees grubbed, hills graded and roads made, sewer and water system built, lumber sawed, concrete and cement mixed, buildings constructed—so that the warden is able to tell you that nothing had to purchased but window glass, fixtures, tools and machinery.

"The notable departure from the elaborate and expensive institutional type of building, in which to house the inmates, is the economical feature of the prison farm and offers a solution to the cost problem of prison erection.

"The prisoners sleep in plain board one-story dormitory buildings, each accommodating 200. There are no beds except in the female dormitories. A platform 8 feet wide, 2 feet high, runs the length of both sides and double down the center, making two aisles. Upon these are placed the mattresses and bedding. Every day these are put out in the air and the whole building is washed out.

"The buildings have no cellars or foundation; they stand on wooden piles, the spaces between being filled in with concrete as time allows in this hive of industry. The washhouse is separate, of the same construction, but having a concrete floor. Wash sinks are provided, also bathing facilities by the substitution of rows of water pipes with shower fixtures instead of bathtubs. Nothing could be simpler, cheaper or more cleanly.

"The mess hall and kitchen, also the rest hall, are of similar plan and construction, always the maximum of utility and cleanliness with minimum cost.

"From the enumeration of all these prison industries and home construction, it is readily understood that there isn't an idle prisoner from morning to night, except the sick, for whom a well-equipped hospital is provided, with open-air treatment provided on screened porches.

"In addition, the women make all the clothing for both male and female inmates, do all the laundry for both, clear the land about their own building, make paths, manage their own poultry yard, can the fruit from the orchard, paint their own buildings and, besides, make hundreds of garments for other institutions belonging to the District of Columbia.

"Over and above the stone and brick used in the prison farm construction, there have been shipped from the farm to Washington for its streets, sewers and schoolhouses in the five years $57,058 worth of red brick, $2,992 worth of paving blocks, $7,258 worth of crushed stone.

"For the year 1914-1915 the institution expended for all purposes, including maintenance, manufacturing account and permanent structure, $187,468.79.

"The following table shows the actual cost to the district of the operation of this institution of 750 inmates.

"Debit: 1915—June 30: appropriations, $187,468.79; farm products and milk, $20,786.01; lumber sawed, $1,697.11; total, $209,951.94.

"Credit: 1915—June 30: By farm products, $18,434.15; by milk to United States jail, $3,351.89; lumber used, $1,697.11; three barges completed, $9,000; one sand dredge, $3,000; lumber and machinery on hand, $3,000; 4,266,410 red brick delivered to Washington, D. C., $29,364.87; 2,500 paving blocks, $32.50; 4,236½ cubic yards stone delivered to Washington, D. C., $3,252.38; brick used on farm, $3,645.15; stone used on farm, $1,332.80; net cost of maintenance and construction, $134,341.09; total, $209,951.94.

"It is no wonder that with further development of these prison farm industries the warden counts on this institution, which takes care of 725 prisoners, becoming entirely self-supporting within two years.

"This solution of the economic side of prison or jail management is only half the problem. The discipline and custody of the offender is the primary reason for maintaining prisons."

CONTINENTAL ARMY UPHELD BY SENATE

Vote of 36 to 34 Indorses Garrison Plan.

Washington, April 7.—By a vote of 34 to 36 the senate after five days of debate refused to strike from the army reorganization bill the section authorizing the president to organize a volunteer army analogous to the continental army recommended by President Wilson and Secretary Garrison.

This vote, which came on an amendment offered by Mr. Lee of Maryland to strike out the volunteer section, cut across all party and factional lines, though it was noteworthy that twenty-four of the thirty-four votes hostile to the volunteer force came from the Democrats.

Only ten Republicans voted to kill the volunteer section of the bill, seventeen Republicans voted to save it, while nineteen Democrats did likewise. The Progressive Republicans were almost equally divided, four voting to strike the section out, while three, including Mr. Poindexter of Washington, who is Roosevelt Progressive, voted to preserve it.

The final vote suggested that the fear of the formation of negro volunteer regiments had its weight with southern senators, for seventeen of the twenty Democrats voting to kill the section were from the south. Fourteen regular Republicans voted for the section recommended by the president, and only six voted against it.

50 LOST BY U-BOAT SINKING BRITISH SHIP

Liner Zent Is Torpedoed Without Warning.

Queenstown, April 7.—Fifty lives were probably lost when the British steamship Zent of the Elder line was torpedoed without warning west of Fastnet.

Captain Martin and nine men of the crew were landed here, bringing with them the bodies of two of the crew who were killed by the explosion. The remaining forty-eight men, unaccounted for, are said to have been drowned.

The Zent was nearing the south coast of Ireland when the torpedo struck her. The men tried to launch small boats, but in the confusion several were overturned, throwing the occupants into the cold water, in which they were not able to keep afloat very long. The vessel sank rapidly, the torpedo evidently having made a large hole in her side.

The ten men who survived managed to keep afloat in the water and by united efforts righted a capsized lifeboat. Although they rowed about for some time seeking other survivors who might be clinging to wreckage, they could not find any.

The Zent was of 3,890 tons displacement. She was built in 1905 and was 367 feet long. On Feb. 28 she sailed for Colon, arriving on March 6. She was last reported as having sailed for Santa Marta on March 9. It is thought that she was bound for Liverpool when she was sunk. She was owned at Belfast.

$1,000,000 FOR AVIATION.

Is Proposed For Militia Corps In Ten States.

Washington, April 7.—Appropriation of $1,000,000 for the aviation corps for state militia in ten states was urged before the house military affairs committee by Colonel G. W. McIvor and Captain John L. De Witt of the division of military affairs of the war department.

This appropriation, they said, would give machines to the following ten states which have requested them:

Virginia, Tennessee, Kansas, California, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, New York, Indiana, Rhode Island and Texas.

WILSON CHANGES BOUNDARY.

Washington, April 7.—Rear Admiral Fiske wrote to the house naval committee asking that he be permitted to reappear before the committee to contradict statements made by Secretary Daniels at the navy bill hearing about the admiral's conduct before he resigned as aid for operations.

Chairman Padgett replied that since the hearing had closed and "no public interest could be subserved" by an inquiry he saw no reason why the matter should again be taken up.

WILSON DECIDES SUSSEX POLICY

Evidence Piles Up Steamer Was Torpedoed.

WILL CONSULT CONGRESS

President Holds Conferences With Colonel House and Secretary Lansing. No Word Yet Received From Ambassador Gerard—Prospects of Amicable Settlement Thought More Remote.

Washington, April 7.—It has become known that President Wilson has determined upon a course of action in the submarine controversy in case Germany fails to disprove the accumulating evidence that the Sussex was torpedoed without warning by a German submarine. This became known after a series of conferences had been held at the White House.

The president discussed the government's relations with Germany with Secretary Lansing, Counselor Polk and Colonel E. M. House, who came to Washington at this time at the invitation of Mr. Wilson.

Just what course the president has determined on is not disclosed. It is known, however, that before acting the president will discuss the case with congress.

The president and Secretary Lansing conferred for more than an hour on the submarine issue. The prospects of an amicable adjustment have not improved in the last twenty-four hours. The persistence of Germany in evading by indirection any responsibility in the case of the Sussex has made a bad impression on officials of this government.

No Word From Gerard.

When Secretary Lansing came from the White House he showed clearly that questions of moment were being finally decided. He said he could not comment in any way on the matters which were under discussion.

"Has Ambassador Gerard received any word from Germany on the Sussex case?" was asked.

"No, he has not," the secretary answered emphatically, and hurried back to the state department, where fresh dispatches on the situation demanded his attention.

The president went over the latest developments in the situation with Colonel House and Counselor Polk of the state department. At the same time Secretary Lansing was in consultation with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador.

The fact that both the British and French ambassadors are assisting Secretary Lansing in placing responsibility for the Sussex disaster, while Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, declines to mention the matter, is regarded here as significant in the sense that it reflects the official attitudes of the respective governments.

Count von Bernstorff was at the state department, but did not see Secretary Lansing. He conferred with Mr. Polk on what was described as "routine commercial business." Secretary Lansing later said that the ambassador came to discuss with Mr. Polk the questions pertaining to importation of dyestuffs from Germany. Both Secretary Lansing and Count von Bernstorff emphasized that the submarine issue was not mentioned.

BOYS BEAT MAN FATALLY.

Honor Inmates of Jamesburg Home Satisfy Grudge.

New Brunswick, N. J., April 7.—Charles Cox, sixty years old, an officer at the Jamesburg Home For Boys, was probably fatally injured when several of the boys beat him into insensibility with a piece of lead pipe.

The boys lay in wait for Cox, against whom they had a grudge, and when he was passing down a dark corridor they struck him from behind. The boys had special privileges under the honor system at the home.

There is little chance that Cox will recover.

STOLE ENGINE TO GET DRINK

He Got It, but Is Caught and May Get Ten Years.

Connellsville, Pa., April 7.—Desiring a drink, Richard Nash, recently employed as a machinist in the shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad here, climbed into a big passenger engine which was standing on a sidetrack, ran it nearly a mile, sideswiping a freight car en route, to a point near a saloon where he got his drink.

Nash was arrested and is under $1,000 bail for malicious injury to a railroad, punishable by a fine of not exceeding $10,000 or imprisonment not exceeding ten years.

10,000 MILES TO SEE GRAVE

Australian Read of Brother's Death in Newspaper Thirty-five Years Ago.

Paterson, N. J., April 7.—When George Hidson of Sydney, Australia, arrived in Paterson he completed a 10,000 mile journey across land and sea for the purpose of seeing the grave of his brother, who died in this city thirty-five years ago.

As he stood with bared head beside the tombstone, the traveler told how the news of his brother's death had come to him through an old newspaper clipping.

YELLOW FLIER ON ITS WAY.

Suffs Start on Their Auto Tour of Thirty-two States.

New York, April 7.—With three evening dresses in their tire trunk and other dresses in another trunk in the body of the car, with a baby typewriter, a hand sewing machine, a fireless cooker and more conveniences than any man could pack in one small roadster, Mrs Alice Snitje Burke and Miss Nell Richardson started for their votes for women trip around the United States.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt broke a pint bottle of gasoline over the radiator of the machine by way of christening, and the bottle proved so hard to crack that the "Yellow Flier," as it is named, got its first dent.

MIKE O'DOWD WINS.

Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul middleweight, whipped Jack Toland, of Philadelphia, in ten rounds, at the Clermont Athletic Club, in New York, last night.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

LONELY WOMEN

Their name is legion. Widows—unmarried women who find themselves alone in the world—women who until late in life have never had to cope with business problems and whose training and environment have not adequately fitted them for the task.

To all such we offer our service, a service that is based on a sympathetic knowledge of their needs. We will care for their securities, collect their income, invest their principal, and relieve them of responsibility in countless ways suggested by our broad experience. Full information on this subject will be gladly furnished.

ASKS LOYALTY FOR BIEDERWOLF

Dr. Carson in Eloquent Sermon at Dedication of Tabernacle.

GET RIGHT WITH GOD

Success of Campaign Depends Upon People of Plainfield, He Says—Crowd of 3,000 Hears Speakers and Chorus Choir.

PROGRAM—SATURDAY.
8:00 p. m.—All prayer meeting superintendent and their assistants meet Dr. P. B. Strong and Henry Backmeyer at Y. M. C. A.

SUNDAY.
10:30—Union services of all churches in the Tabernacle, Front street and Geraud avenue.
3:00—Choir rehearsal in Tabernacle, with Mr. McEwan, director.
3:00—Campaign executive committee and pastors meet Dr. Biederwolf in Y. M. C. A.
6:30—Official board members of all churches meet Dr. Biederwolf, First Baptist church.
7:30—Tabernacle services—opening night.

The success of the Biederwolf Campaign, which opens tomorrow, depends upon the people of Plainfield, not the great evangelist and his party, declared the Rev. John F. Carson, DD., of Brooklyn, in his dedicatory sermon at the Tabernacle last night, and he urged local men and women, especially church workers, to enter into the spirit of the campaign with energy, enthusiasm and Christianity, so that good might come of it.

"Get right with God!" Dr. Carson dramatically demanded. "You must get right yourself before asking others to come here and accept Jesus Christ as their savior. You will succeed according to your faith."

The dedicatory services were attended by about 3,000 people, and almost 1,000 sat in the choir and orchestra. Apart from the stirring address of Dr. Carson, the music was enough to attract even a larger audience. Under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, more than 700 men and women of Plainfield have been trained until they sing with the harmony of an opera chorus, and that they have an interest in the work was evidenced last night, when at least 600 turned out for the initial service.

The crowd, which filled only a little more than half of the great pine structure, was not a typical tabernacle audience. It was made up mostly of church members and church workers, who are well-wishers in the campaign, yet have not caught any of the enthusiasm which usually follows after one or two sermons from the great evangelist. The first songs of the chorus, with accompaniment from the orchestra, stirred the more than 2,000 listeners, and one of them started to applaud. Others seemed to be seeking some manner of expressing their admiration and enjoyment, but they refrained from the popular method of handclapping. This wore off as the service progressed, however, and several times during the talk of Dr. Carson, the "Salvation Shed" resounded from choir loft to usher's stand with the popping of palms.

Dr. Carson congratulated Plainfield on securing Dr. Biederwolf for the campaign. He said that the evangelist was an intellectual power and spiritual force and that his sanity and sanctity, his loyalty to the truth and to his Savior, has received the approval of men and the favor of God.

For Dr. Biederwolf and for the pastors who are responsible for his services, he asked loyalty. "Pray for us! Pray for us! he begged. "Pray for your preacher! He needs it and it will do you good."

Dr. Carson said that there were too many people in the church today who were patrons of propriety, were piously anti-worldly in exterior, but were really backsliders. He said a soul that had slipped away from God was the greatest tragedy of the world, and declared that his one message to Plainfielders was "Back to your God."

He admitted that the church had

LOCAL MAN WINS SUIT OVER BILL FOR ICE CREAM

In the case of Castles' Ice Cream Co. vs. Morris Deutsch, of Plainfield, which was tried before Judge David in Elizabeth, Monday, in which they sued to collect a bill alleging $172.00 due them for ice cream, a decision was rendered yesterday in favor of Deutsch, the defendant. Newton P. Kinsey, of Newark, represented the plaintiffs, and DeMeza and Crane were attorneys for Duetsch.

HOLD FATHER AND SON FOR GRAND JURY

Harry Sofield, Sr., and Harry Sofield, Jr., Charged With Harboring Girl.

On the complaint of Mrs. John Gueber, who charged that Harry Sofield, Sr., and his son, Daniel Sofield, were harboring her daughter, Miss Rose Gueber, and that the latter took her to the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph Miller in Newark, the father and son were given a hearing before Justice P. F. Kaine at South Plainfield yesterday afternoon. Although Robert Newton Crane, counsel for the defendants, declared that there was no evidence nor law to substantiate the charge, Justice Kaine held both in $500 to await the action of the grand jury.

Miss Gueber is 17 years old. The defense set up by Mr. Crane for his clients was that the young woman frequently visited the daughter of Harry Sofield, Sr., against which there was no law, and he scouted the idea that the latter had harbored her at any time. Regarding the charge that young Sofield had abducted the young woman, he called the young woman to the stand to show that Miss Gueber had requested Mr. Sofield to accompany her to Newark and the testimony showed that when she had remained there a few days she was afraid to go home because she might be scolded and chastised by her mother.

The testimony also brought out the fact that Miss Gueber had been given $11 with which to pay the premium on a life insurance policy carried by her father, and it was alleged that instead of doing this she took the money and purchased some clothes. Mr. Crane cought to prove that this was one of the principal reasons for the action. The hearing attracted considerable attention and the court room was filled with curious spectators.

MRS. C. L. RILEY CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Annual Meeting of the Mothers' Association Held at Home of Mrs. Sandford.

The following officers were elected for the coming year at the annual meeting of the Mothers' Association held in the home of Mrs. W. M. Sandford, in the Crescent Court, yesterday afternoon: President, Mrs. Champlain Riley; first vice president, Mrs. C. G. Munro, second vice president, Mrs. S. H. Voorhees; third vice president, Mrs. George B. Wean; recording secretary, Mrs. H. G. Phillips; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. T. Buxton; treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Bucklin.

The reports submitted by the various committees were both interesting and encouraging, the treasurer and the membership chairmen both turning in especially fine statements. The meeting yesterday was the last official business meeting the association will hold this year, but the members will meet again on Friday, May 5, at which a lawn party will be held, the place to be announced later. During the meeting the date of meetings were changed from the first Friday of each month to the second Wednesday of each month. Meetings will be resumed about the middle of October and a tentative program of next year's work was laid before the members yesterday.

RAY STRAYER QUITS AS A PATROLMAN

Popular Young Member Will Go Back to the Electrical Business.

Ray Strayer, a member of the Plainfield police force for the past ten months, has submitted his resignation. It is in the hands of the Police Board and will be acted on at the next meeting. The resignation is to take effect immediately, and it is understood that Mr. Strayer specified tomorrow night as the time when he would leave the service of the city. He will go back into the electrical business, having accepted a position with Ryder & Graves, electrical contractors, and will take up his new duties at once. Mr. Strayer has been one of the most popular members of the department during the short time he has been a patrolman and has made a record for efficiency and dependability.

HOLY CROSS PREACHERS.
Rev. Dr. Charles L. Pardee, of the Board of Episcopal Missions, New York, will preach at Holy Cross church tomorrow at 11 and 7:45 o'clock. Rev. E. Russell Bourne, of the Church of the Incarnation, New York, will be the Lenten preacher Thursday night next at 7:45.

DOGS DAMAGE PROPERTY.
Alfred F. H. Struli, of 1035 Hillside avenue, reported to the police yesterday that a band of stray dogs had been damaging his lawn and killing pet rabbits for some time. Chief Kiely ordered that an officer watch the premises and kill the dogs if their owners would not keep them at home.

FUND BOOSTERS STILL WORKING

Daily Press Has a Supply of Marjorie Sterrett Buttons for Distribution Here.

AMOUNT IS SOARING

Marjorie's Father Refuses to Let Her Go Into the Movie Game—Letters From Some Interested Youngsters—Fund Nearly $160.

Increasing interest in the Marjorie Sterrett battleship "U. S. S. America" fund has been evidenced during the past few days in the number of individual contributions that have been sent to the Plainfield Daily Press, the ten cent pieces having accumulated to nearly $160. A big supply of buttons has been secured by the Press and each contributor should see that he or she secures ones of the emblems of patriotism by which all of Marjorie's helpers will be recognized. Those who witnessed the production of the battleship film "Defense or Tribute" at Proctor's Theatre under the auspices of the Daily Press well remember the moral drawn by that film and it has proven a notable stimulant in the collection of ten cent pieces.

Suggestion has been made at various times that the appearance of little Marjorie in a motion picture scenario for the benefit of her many friends in all parts of the country would prove a big feature but her parents have seen fit to turn down the many offers of different movie concerns to place her in the leading role of some big film. A letter from her father in response to these offers follows:

"Several motion picture concerns have offered inducements to Marjorie to take up a career with them, but the little girl has flatly refused them. She is more interested in her school work than acting in the movies, and I am glad it is so. Neither Marjorie's mother nor myself would consent to her appearing in any sort of performance—stage or motion pictures—that was not directly concerned with the Battleship Fund and for its sole benefit.

"We will gladly lend our little girl to the cause of Americanism and patriotism, but we will not consent to have her patriotism commercialized. Neither she nor we have received one cent either directly or indirectly through the Battleship Fund, and we do not expect to receive any. Marjorie is now just an ordinary American school girl, and we mean to keep her so."

Among the letters received by the Press today is one from Frances McLean Higgins, of 93 Grandview avenue, who encloses a dime and says: "Kindly add my offering to the battleship fund. I am only a little girl but I certainly would like to see the United States well equipped with battleships."

Edna S. Barrett, of 31 Regent street, sends the following letter with a dime: "Enclosed please find ten cents for the U. S. S. America. As I have a brother in the U. S. Navy I am very much interested and think it an excellent plan."

Shirley Way and Ethel Hall have also sent ten cents each to the Press fund.

WATCHUNG TROOPS WILL GIVE DANCE FOR HOSPITAL

Watchung Troop will hold a dance in Hartridge auditorium, Friday evening, April 28, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. The decorations will be in military style, and Frantzen's orchestra from Sherry's, in New York, will furnish the music. The troop is sparing no efforts to make the dance one of the biggest affairs of the waning social season. Tickets will be on sale in a few days at local drug stores, or may be procured from members of the troop.

CANTATA REHEARSALS.
Final rehearsals are being held for the cantata, "Bethany," which will be given in St. Joseph's church, next Wednesday evening, April 12, at 8 o'clock. The soloists for the sacred selections are: Soprano, Miss Irma Good; contralto, Mrs. F. M. Ward; tenor, Randall Trumpe, and bass, Alvah Dunham. A chorus of forty voices will assist. J. E. Bailey is the director in charge, and Stephen Haff will play the organ, while Mrs. Harry DeMeza will preside at the piano. There will be no admission fee to hear the cantata.

MISS ARROWSMITH'S FUNERAL.
The funeral of Miss Susan A. Arrowsmith, who died at the home of Mrs. P. C. Voorhees, at Rock avenue and Greenbrook road, was held yesterday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of G. W. Cole and Son, 200 West Second street, and was conducted by Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, and was attended by a gathering of friends. Burial was made at noon today in the cemetery at Lawrenceville, Mercer county.

MRS. MARY SHAY LEFT $15,000 ESTATE

Mrs. John Brick and George Shay, of Fanwood, Children, the Beneficiaries.

The will of Mrs. Mary Shay, of Terrill road, Fanwood, who died on March 24, was offered for probate in the surrogate's court, Elizabeth, yesterday by Charles Sheelen, of Fanwood. The entire estate, which is valued at $15,000, comprising personal and realty in Scotch Plains, Fanwood and Plainfield, is left to the testator's children, Mrs. John Brick and George Shay, of Fanwood. The latter's share is placed in a trust fund.

Mrs. Brick is named as executrix and trustee. The largest part of the estate is invested in mortgages bringing a good return. Mrs. Shay was a native of Ireland and lived in Fanwood forty years. Her husband died over twenty-five years ago.

TAXI COLLIDES WITH BIG TRUCK--ONE IS INJURED

A taxicab and a heavy truck collided at the corner of Sixth street and Watchung avenue shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, badly damaging both machines, but all passengers escaped without serious injury. Harry Brenner, of 532 Timpson avenue, New York, who was riding in the taxicab, received a bump on the head. George Barry, driver of the taxicab, and Thomas Walker, of Newark, who was at the wheel of the big James A. Hearn & Son truck, both came out of the collision without injury.

DAMAGE BY FIRE AT WOOLSTON HOME OVER $100

The damage done to the home of Howard Woolston, at 47 Mountain avenue, by the attic fire yesterday morning was greater than first reported. It had been estimated that $100 would cover the damage but the value of bedding and other contents of the house ruined is double that amount alone. Two feather bed ticks listed among the destroyed goods were worth at least $25 a piece.

It has also been ascertained that part of one side of the roof will have to be torn down and rebuilt and that a stretch of the attic floor will also have to be relaid. The cost of these two items of repair is estimated at $100, making the total loss in the neighborhood of $300.

FRIENDS PAY TRIBUTE TO GEORGE W. RANDOLPH

A funeral befitting the faithful life of the deceased was conducted this morning over the body of George Washington Randolph, the trusted janitor of the Vandebeek building, who pined away and died when his associations were lost through the structure being torn down. It took place at the undertaking parlors at 402 Park avenue, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including many prominent residents of Plainfield who had known him for a score of years. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, was the officiating clergyman. He was numbered among the personal acquaintances and spoke on the life of the old colored man as he had known him, taking as his theme the though of "Duty." The clergyman's remarks were supplemented by others from Assemblyman William N. Runyon, who enlarged upon George Washington Randolph's devotion to all who put trust in him, and how, when the place of his duty was removed, it was more than his faithful old heart could bear, and brought his end sooner than it would have come otherwise. Assemblyman Runyon also described his response to the call for volunteers in the Civil War and how he served in the great conflict with credit to himself and his race.

The casket was draped with the American flag and at his graveside in the soldiers' plot at Hillside cemetery, a delegation of Grand Army men conferred the final honors becoming a veteran of his calibre. Numerous floral tributes came from persons who had known the old man in his days of devotion and duty. The pall bearers were six men over whom he had exercised particular guardianship and who honored him for what he had been. These were Vincent W. Nash, Jr., Assemblyman William N. Runyon, Tax Collector William R. Townsend, Thomas M. Muir, George York and E. F. Dorman.

COMMUNITY CENTER DANCE.
Another community center dance was held in the Harrison Avenue School last evening. The affair, as on former occasions, was well attended, seventy-five being present. The school auditorium was attractively decorated with American flags and a large sign of "Welcome." The music was furnished by Miss Bertha Keller and Prof. Sionin.

Mrs. John Manley, of this city, will return Monday from a visit with her sister and mother at Albany, N. Y., and the Bronx

BORO TO CLOSE SALOONS EARLY

Council Passes Resolution Asking for Same Hour as Plainfield.

MAYOR PRESENTS IT

Present Regulations Bring Many Undesirable Citizens at Night—Contract Given for Iron Work on Remodeling of Fire Hall.

If a resolution passed by the Common Council of the Borough of North Plainfield last night carries any weight with the judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Somerset county Plainfield folk who are still thirsty when 11 p. m. comes will have to go thirsty until the next day. Mayor Smalley explained to the Council that many undesirable citizens were brought to North Plainfield in the late hours of the evening by the half-hour extra allowed saloons and hotels there and he presented the following resolution:

"Whereas, The saloons and hotels in the Borough of North Plainfield remain open until 11:30 p. m. and

"Whereas, The saloons and hotels of the city of Plainfield are compelled to close at 11 p. m., and

"Whereas, As a result the Borough of North Plainfield acquires a large number of undesirable persons between the hours above mentioned, and

"Whereas, In the opinion of the Mayor and Common Council, the best interests of the Borough of North Plainfield would be served by closing all saloons and hotels at 11 p. m. Now therefore,

"Be it Resolved by the Mayor and Common Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, that the borough clerk be and is hereby instructed to communicate with the judge of the Court of Common Pleas and request him in the name of the Mayor and Common Council of the Borough of North Plainfield to fix the time of closing of all saloons and hotels in the Borough of North Plainfield at the hour of 11 p. m.

"Be it Further Resolved, That a certified copy of the foregoing be sent to the above mentioned judge at once."

It was adopted by unanimous vote.

Claims amounting to $3,795 were ordered paid. Expenses for the past month were as follows: Streets, $390.90; police, $548.21; fire, $222.74.

Arthur E. Smith was given a contract for furnishing the iron to be used in the remodeling of the old fire hall and to perform this part of the work. The figure was $478.60. He was also given a contract to remove the cells from the old police station to the new. This work will be done for $50.

The board authorized the payment of $735 to the Plainfield-Union Water Company for the use of 98 hydrants for six months.

The treasurer was authorized to pay $4,000 as a special school tax. He was also authorized to take up $2,000 of sewer bonds, and to borrow $5,000 to be used in paying current expenses.

The street department was authorized to buy a grader at a cost not to exceed $150.

A. A. Cannon was appointed a member of the Board of Education.

The clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for cracked stone, curbing and flagging. These will be received at a special adjourned meeting of the Council to be held April 21.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY DANCE IN BOROUGH

One hundred and fifty young people were present at the invitation dance conducted by Ernest Pruden and Walter Debele in Debele's Hall last evening. All of the latest dances, such as the "Paul Jones," the "Tag" and the "Leap Year," were indulged in. The music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Albert Squires, Antone Paroubeck, Harold Storrs and Albert Naylor. Punch was served throughout the evening.

WILL MAKE PERSONAL SOLICITATION FOR FUNDS

At an enthusiastic meeting of the citizens' committee of the Letter Carriers' convention to be held here Memorial Day, in the Chamber of Commerce room last night, it was announced that $650 of the necessary $1,500 was already in hand, and that steps would be taken to get the remaining $900 by personal solicitation.

A delegation of the New York Letter Carriers' Association will come to Plainfield, Monday, to look over the city. A body of 1,600 men from this organization will march in the convention parade, and will have four bands of music, including the brass band of forty pieces, a fife and drum corps of forty pieces, a Federal band and a band composed of letter carriers' sons, to the number of thirty-five. Local uniformed lodges will also be in line.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETING.
The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Wednesday night, April 12, at 7:45 o'clock, when officers will be elected and reports presented.

BERFELDEN MILLS COMPANY ENTERTAINS

Employes Given Dance in Newly-Completed Addition. Loving Cup for Foreman.

The employes of the Berfelden Silk Mills on Watchung avenue were entertained last night with a dance in the company's new building, which is adjacent to its main building and which was completed a few days ago. The affair was arranged by S. M. Rosenthal, the head of the company, and an attractive program of entertainment was provided. During the evening, Mr. Rosenthal was presented with a large floral horseshoe by Orra Baker, on behalf of the employes, and Eugene Renz, the highly-esteemed foreman of the mills, was presented with a handsome silver loving cup.

Mr. Rosenthal and Mr. Renz responded with appropriate speeches, the latter taking occasion to emphasize the harmony which exists between the company and employes, which he hoped would always continue. He briefly reviewed his experience and gave some excellent advice to the employes, telling them how they could always have the respect and confidence of their employer by being fair and doing the right thing.

The principal diversion during the evening was dancing, music being furnished by Charles Suhr's orchestra. A feature was the dancing of the Irish jig and hornpipe by Miss Clara Hunt, accompanied on the violin by Martin Cuniff. Miss Hunt was obliged to respond to several encores.

Among the guests of the evening was William M. Poz, the New York representative of the Berfelden Mills. He assisted Mr. Rosenthal in entertaining those present and otherwise providing a pleasant evening. During an intermission, refreshments were served under the direction of Mr. Baker and other employes of the mills. The new addition just completed by the company will give much needed room for the increasing business.

LARGE AUDIENCE GREETS MISS AYRES

Artist Recital for Belgian Relief Society at Hartridge Auditorium a Success.

The Hartridge Auditorium was filled with a capacity audience last night when Miss Cecile Ayres, pianist, gave a delightful artist recital for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Society. The hearty response to this worthy appeal was most gratifying to the members of the society and it is believed that a good sized sum will be realized for the object.

Miss Ayres, who is a finished and talented pianist, was well received by the large audience and her several numbers were followed by hearty applause. She clearly demonstrated her complete mastery of the piano in the rendition of many difficult selections from well-known composers and her work throughout was most pleasing. Miss Ayres occupied the whole evening in the presentation of the following well-selected program:

Variations on a Norwegian Theme, Grieg; Papillons, Schumann; Hark! Hark! the Lark, Schubert-Liszt; Reflections in the Water, Debussy; In Autumn, Moszkowski; Minuet, Rameau-Godowsky; Toccata, Leschetizky; Sonata in G Minor, Schumann; Presto; Andantino, Scherzo, Rondo. Polonaise in F sharp minor, Two Preludes, Waltz in A flat major, Chopin; Gavotte, de Horvath; Toccata, Saint-Saens; Belgian National Hymn.

NEW BICYCLE STOLEN FROM FRONT OF SCHOOL

Benjamin Kornfield, a schoolboy, living at 127 Front street, had a bicycle stolen from in front of the Plainfield High School building sometime yesterday morning. The machine was new, and was used for the first time yesterday morning to make the trip to school. The police are looking for it.

FREIGHT TRAIN TIEUP ON THE FANWOOD GRADE

Trains going east on the Central Railroad were delayed this morning by a freight tie-up near the Fanwood cut, it being necessary to run several east-bound trains on the west-bound tracks in order to pass the stalled cars at the Fanwood depot. One trainload of passengers on an east-bound Philadelphia express were transferred to a local at the Plainfield station.

The cause of the tie-up was due to the "stalling" of a freight locomotive, and it was necessary to send to Roselle for another engine.

HOLLAND DEFIES GREAT BRITAIN

Relations Between Two Countries Admitted to Be Greatly Strained.

DUTCH RECRUITS OUT

Class of 1917 Called—3 More British Steamers Sunk—Germany is Willing to Satisfy U. S. on the Sinking of Sussex.

Berlin, April 8.—Dutch reports received by the Overseas News Agency today indicate that the relations between Holland and England are greatly strained. These state that the British Government requested Dutch ship owners to make annually some trips to British ports with British goods, with notice that otherwise Dutch ships could not get pilots through mine fields along the British coast, and could not take coal from British stations. Nevertheless, according to these advices, the shipowners refused and decided that hereafter their vessels shall take the route to the North of Scotland.

Dutch Recruits Called.
The Hague, April 8.—At a meeting of the Dutch Cabinet today, it was decided to introduce a bill, calling upon the 1917 class of recruits, if necessary, in view of the prevailing extraordinary circumstances.

Three Steamers Destroyed.
London, April 8.—The British liner Chantala has been sunk by a submarine. The British steamers Brauton and Clyde have been blown up, presumably by mines. Lloyd's despatches, announcing the destruction of the three vessels, state that the crews of the Braunton and Clyde were saved, but give no information with reference to the Chantala's sailors.

Send Disclaimer to Holland.
The Hague, April 8.—Replying to inquiries made by the Dutch Minister at Berlin, Germany has informed Holland that it would have been impossible for a German submarine to have torpedoed the steamer Palembang, as no German vessel was near the vicinity where the Palembang sank. A despatch from Berlin intimates that a similar reply has been sent to the United States Government with reference to the Sussex.

Bulgars are Advancing.
Saloniki, April 7.—German airmen, attacking the Allied position at Karasuli, 45 miles northwest of Saloniki, have been repulsed. Fighting between advanced posts continues in the vicinity of Machikovo. Bulgarian deserters report that the Bulgarians are advancing on the frontier.

Mass Men Along Ypres.
Amsterdam, April 8.—A big battle on the West Flanders front is believed to be imminent. The Germans are making extensive preparations for a severe struggle between Ypres and the North Sea coast, massing heavy forces of fresh troops and great quantities of guns and ammunition.

French Lose Mere Ground.
Paris, April 8.—French war statement:

According to the statement issued by the War Office this afternoon, the Germans renewed their attack south of Haucourt in the Verdun region last night and gained a footing in two small field works between Haucourt and Hill No. 287. Fighting with grenades between Bethincourt and Chattancourt turned to the advantage of the French. East of the Meuse there was intermittent bombardment of French positions. Near Fort Vaux the Germans made an attack with grenades and were repulsed.

Spanish Minister to Paris.
Madrid, April 8.—Dr. Alphonso Costa, Spanish Minister of Finance, has gone to Paris to attend a conference on economic affairs held by representatives of the Allies, it was announced today.

MISSIONARY GUILD OF TRINITY CHURCH ELECTS

The annual meeting of the Missionary Guild of Trinity Reformed church held at the home of Mrs. F. S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, yesterday afternoon resulted in the following elections for the coming year: President, Mrs. L. M. Leek; vice president, Miss Winifred Rapalje; secretary, Mrs. H. R. Stafford; treasurer, Miss Helen Woodruff.

Reports submitted by the various chairmen were received with much enthusiasm and the prospects for the coming year are unusually bright. During the meeting a chart was exhibited showing the amounts donated to the different fields. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of the church, led the devotional portion of the meeting.

FUNERAL OF W. A. READ.
New York, April 8.—The funeral services of William A. Read will be held at the church of the incarnation, Madison avenue and Thirty-fifth street, on Monday, at 10 a. m. The offices of the firm in this city, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and London will be closed on that day until noon.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED BY DUNELLEN COMPANY

At the annual meeting of the Dunellen Company held last evening the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Abner S. Coriell, San Fransisco, Cal.; E. I. Ferris, New York city; William H. Nischwitz, Stephen T. Kennedy and Orrin P. Curl, Plainfield; Lewis T. Churchill, J. Raymond Hamley, John Loughlin and Robert Bogardus, this place.

The directors organized by electing the following officers: Lewis T. Churchill, president; Wm. H. Nischwitz, first vice president; Stephen T. Kennedy, second vice president; J. Raymond Hamley, secretary; Robert Bogardus, treasurer.

The concern deals in investment securities. It earned 30 per cent. on its capitalization last year as against slightly over 10 per cent. in 1914.

JAMES BROWN INJURED WHEN WAGON UPSETS

James Brown, of 231 Somerset street, was thrown out of his wagon in front of the Lytle home on Bound Brook road, near Gallagher's corner, yesterday afternoon, when his horse became frightened, it is said, by the noise of a gasoline water pump belonging to the H. K. Corbin Company, the sewer contractors, and shied to one side causing one of the wheels to strike the trolley switch in such a manner as to break the axle at the hub.

Brown landed on his head and lay unconscious. He was carried to the front porch of the Lytle home and a physician was summoned. Fifteen or twenty minutes elapsed before he regained consciousness. After receiving the attention of the physician he was taken home by Herbert E. Nelson, the taxi-man. Mr. Brown's son came up after the horse which had been placed in a barn on the Lytle premises at 6 o'clock.

MANY ATTEND JUNIOR DEPARTMENT ENTERTAINMENT

Fully one hundred were present last evening at the entertainment given in the Presbyterian chapel for the benefit of the junior department of the Sunday-school. The program was presented under the direction of Miss Irene Day, who had devoted considerable of her time drilling the young folks for their respective parts at no remuneration whatsoever. Following the entertainment ice cream was placed on sale. The ice cream sold rapidly and the supply gave out inside of an hour. The entire proceeds will be used to purchase needed supplies for the junior department.

The program follows:

Part I—Piano duet, First Regiment March, Kelly, Ruth Noble, Miss Day; song, Musical Alphabet, Ruth Coriell; piano selections, (a) Waltz, Streabbog, (b) Waltz, Mack, Howard Dayton; piano solo, Two Angels, Blumenthal, Helen Goodruff; song, Come Play With Us, Zella Nable, Elizabeth Hipp, Mary Fenner; piano solo, (a) Valse Petite, Virgil, (b) selected, Evelyn Noble; recitation, The Seven Days of the Week, seven girls; vocal duet, Where Are You Going? Edna Day, James Day; piano solo, Valse Brillante, Virgil, Beatrice Coriell; piano duet, Marche de Concert, Morrison, Ruth Noble, Edna Day; chorus.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood

NO MEETING TOMORROW.

For the first Sunday in many weeks there will be no meeting of the Parish House Men's Forum tomorrow afternoon. The transportation meeting last Sunday marked the discontinuance of the popular Sunday meetings until September. The average attendance at each meeting was about twenty-five, although last Sunday there were sixty men present. Nearly every Sunday the Rev. J. Madison Hare secured some speaker to lecture, and wound up the last meeting by having William C. Hope, general passenger agent of New Jersey Central, speak.

SCOTCH PLAINS LISTED.

The new time-tables of the New Jersey Central have recently made their appearance announcing the spring schedule. One of the changes noticed is the placing of Scotch Plains under the Fanwood listing.

BEEKEN A CANDIDATE.

William Beeken, of North avenue, is a candidate for the Westfield High School baseball team, and is practically certain of a berth, probably in the outfield.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE.

S. Dana Townsend, superintendent of local schools, has announced that the schools will close for the Easter vacation April 14 and reopen on April 24.

Mrs. Paul Tuzo has returned to her home on Terrill road after visiting relatives in Maryland.

NO SEMI-PRO TEAM.

As there does not seem to be any chances of a local semi-pro baseball team this year all of the local players are gradually signing up with other teams in the vicinity. Joe and Henry Alberts and Frank Lee have signed to play with the Plainfield A. A. Eugene Lidgate is to catch for the Media team of the Delaware County League, and Frank Hand is to catch for the Perth Amboy Pacers.

The Misses Margaret and Susan Scudder, of West Broad street, have been spending the past week in Philadelphia.

ATTENDED LECTURE.

A number of local residents attended a lecture in Westfield last night, under the auspices of the Board of Health of that town, on "Pure Milk." A special invitation was extended through the township and borough Boards of Health.

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES.

The usual services will be held at the Methodist church tomorrow with the pastor oin charge. Following the evening service there will be a special business meeting of the Epworth League.

The monthly meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society will be held Monday evening.

The Wilson Memorial church held its second annual meeting Wednesday evening. George W. Winans, chairman of the executive committee, presided. The officers and committess showed much progress in the past year by their reports Eleven members were added to the church making a total membership of 85. The budget for the coming year will be $1,500. The following members of the executive committee were elected: George W. Winans, Harry B. MacDonald, John Hermann, William E. Patte, John Mobus, Melvin H. Cleaves, Ephriam S. Ackor, George T. Hughes, Henry R. Kennedy and Dauglas W. Demler. The following were elected trustees for two years: John Mobus and Henry R. Kennedy.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George A. Schmidt. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. Hippolyte Texier; first vice-president, Mrs. Harry B. MacDonald; second vice-president, Mrs. George Mobus; secretary, Mrs. Geo. W. Schmidt; treasurer, Miss Marietta Cass.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society held its meeting Friday afternoon in the Wilson chapel. Miss Dorothy Hermann was the leader and the topic on which her talk was based was "Missions in Africa."

Miss Dorothy Underhill, who has been visiting at West New Brighton, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Curtis and family, of Brooklyn, have leased C. M. Spicer's house.

The Indian Players will meet Wednesday evening in the Improvement Hall.

The monthly meeting of Watchung Chemical Engine Co. will be held Tuesday evening at fire headquarters.

Mrs. Robert Cunningham and Mrs. John Rooney, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., are spending a few days with Mrs. Cunningham's brother, John Kaine.

Mrs. William Nevins has returned to her home in Jersey City from a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Sandhere.

Flemington

Elias Vosseller and John P. Bartles were elected delegates Wednesday to represent the Flemington Presbyterian church at the April meeting Tuesday, at Trenton, of the Presbytery of New Brunswick.

Miss Mary H. Cope returned to her home in Trenton Thursday after visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Alvater.

The Reading Academy High School baseball team will open its season Saturday afternoon, when they will play the Princeton High School team here.

The adult Bible class of the Methodist church Wednesday elected these officers: President, F. A. Nims; vice-president, Otto J. Raube; statistical secretary, William V. Fisher; recording secretary, Amos Reading; treasurer, Bergen Carter.

DR. BIEDERWOLF WILL ARRIVE EARLY TONIGHT

Dr. Biederwolf will probably reach Plainfield sometime this evening. He has been at the bedside of his father, who is seriously ill in Chicago, and in a letter received by Paul L. Roberts, publicity man, here this morning, the evangelist said that he would come by way of Philadelphia this evening. He said he hoped to arrived by 8 p. m. Secretary Estes, Chairman Murray and other leaders in the local work will meet him at the depot, and it had been planned that a large delegation of local citizens should be at the station, with automobiles, also members of the choir, but the inclement weather necessitates a public reception being called off.

P. H. S. PLAY TONIGHT.

The last dress rehearsal of "The Taming of the Shrew," to be presented by the senior class of the Plainfield High School in the school auditorium tonight was held yesterday afternoon before the student body. The members of the cast have taken hold of the parts in the Shakespearean drama in an excellent way under the coaching of Harold F. Biddle, and it is certain the affair will be a success. The play is of special interest because the 300th anniversary of the death of Shakespear is now being observed. Practically the entire house is sold out for this evening's performance, which will start promptly at 8:15.

TO MEET DR. BIEDERWOLF.

Dr. Biederwolf will meet the pastors, the executive committee and chairmen of committees of the campaign organization tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The official boards of the different churches co-operating are to meet Dr Biederwolf at 6:30 in the First Baptist church tomorrow evening. Mr. Backmeyer and Rev. Dr. P. B Strong will meet all the superintendents of the prayer meeting districts and their assistants at 8 o'clock at the Y M. C. A. Auditorium this evening.

—Still-useful furniture may be sold for what it is worth to somebody else—if you give the selling-task to a classified ad.

FRELINGHUYSEN OPENS CAMPAIGN

Scores Watchful Waiting Policy of Wilson and Urges Action, Not Words.

IS FOR PREPAREDNESS

Believes American Citizens On Foreign Waters or Foreign Soil Should Be Protected—Is Running as An Independent Candidate.

In the opening speech of his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, ex-Senator Frelinghuysen said in Somerville this afternoon:

"We have gathered as members of the great Republican party because we are interested in its welfare and success. The time is near at hand when the citizens of this county must again select their chief executive and representatives, and a governor and Legislature for this State.

"It is an important time in our history, a serious time, perhaps a crisis. It calls for men of broad vision, of sound wisdom, of deep patriotism. The Republican party has always furnished such men to lead the country during its darkest days. It will do so again.

"We are not here to criticise or abuse any man or group of men who are striving to govern this country to the best of their ability. The American people have chosen a president for four years and while he is having great and trying problems, and is endeavoring to solve these problems, it is our duty as patriotic citizens to forget party lines and wait until his plan is tried, even if we do not believe in it. But when a president becomes a candidate for re-election, he leaves the realm of office and becomes, in the light of our Governmental plan, an individual who, if he again asks the suffrage of the people, must give an account of his stewardship and then it is the privilege, yea, even the duty of every pubic spirited citizen to discuss the record of his service and that of his party and determine whether he or another shall become chief ruler of this nation.

"The questions asked today are these:

"Has our present government maintained the national honor and dignity here and abroad?

"Has it done everything within its power to protect the lives of our citizens and their property?

"Has it upheld civilization?

"Has it maintained the best interest of America and avoided evils; and, if so, has that been due to accident and chance rather than wise statesmanship?

"In enunciating policies never heretofore practiced have these policies made for stability, progress and future peace?

"Is the prosperity the Democratic leaders so loudly claim a stable one and is it based on sound economic policies?

"Have prompt and efficient steps been taken in this time of danger to defend our homes and the institutions we hold most sacred?

"Has our national standard been jealously guarded and do they present it to us unsullied?

"It must be deeds done. It is not what has been written or said, it is what has been accomplished.

"Let us review from a historical standpoint.

"The Democratic party hastily enacted a tariff law, boasted of it as a measure beneficial to our material existence, lowering the cost of necessities in the market basket and reducing the high cost of living. In six months it so seriously affected our industries and reduced our revenue that the Secretary of the Interior (Redfield) was sent to Minneapolis to make a speech in which he excused the administration and accused the manufacturers of the country of closing their factories for political effect, and to point failure to the tariff law; notwithstanding the assistance of the income tax, the duties were so insufficient that they would not meet expenses, so a war tax was levied on the country. This burdensome tax still exists.

"We have seen in our relations with Mexico, a comedy, no, not a comedy, a tragedy of errors; their friendship turned to deadly hate, and our relations brought to a confused and hopeless condition; our flag insulted, American sailors killed by American rifles in Mexican hands—far worse than this—several thousand American women, men and children, murdered and outraged and no protest made; the humiliation of the invasion of our border by that murderous bandit Villa with whom they once had official relations, and to whom they furnished arms with which he murdered our soldiers, accomplished by lack of proper protection to the frontier bordering on Mexico.

The attempted enforcement of a salute to our national standard from Huerta, by the taking of Vera Cruz, losing many of our sailors, and finally abandoned without satisfaction, givin ga false impression that we giving a false impression that we have been compelled to witness the vacillating policy for more than three years until this country has been humiliated by indecision and timidity. In the face of an impending crisis our army has been allowed to deteriorate until today it is insufficient seemingly to protect itself against one lone bandit.

The Democratic party also will be held responsible for the appointment of an inefficient man at the head of a growing and efficient navy, whose vagaries and foolish policies have weakened its discipline and impaired its efficiency.

In a message to Congress, opposing further national defense, the country has been mislead by statements that our defenses were strong and our navy efficient, when they were not, and in one short year that position reversed and in a speech-making tour in the West, ominous warnings sounded and immediate and extensive defense proposed.

"The building of a strong merchant marine has been urged, yet at the same time a Seaman's Act has been signed, making the building of our commerce on the high seas well-nigh impossible.

"We will receive plausible answers to these criticisms, but the time has gone by when in the face of trifling and indecision, mere words will be convincing. The people cannot be rebuked for thinking, and as they think so will they vote. And when our citizens, none lacking in patriotis mand loyalty, have protested in the name of humanity at these outrages, we have been confronted by a Presidential censorship, and hypnotized into silence by clever phrases such as "Stop rocking the boat"; or "Don't interfere with a peaceful solution of the problem." Congress has been lulled to sleep and induced to enter into blind policies, by being told in a vague and mysterious way that such policies must be adopted to avoid dangers of 'graver concern' until a trusting people, entitled to full confidence, have wondered, and when, in the face of the deep sorrow and horror at the sinking of the Lusitania, and the loss of 300 American lives, out President calmly tells the world, in that city where the great bell proclaimed 'Human Liberty' in America for the first time, 'that we were too proud to fight.' These words have been endured in mute submission, but they lighted a spark that started a smouldering fire that will not be quenched, for the people will speak with one voice in November next and 'watchful waiting' will be cremated in 'nocuous desuetude,' and other men will be entrusted with the destiny and dignity of this great country henceforth and forever.

"The Republican party will stand for the immediate preparation for defense o fthis country—not the creation of a great military establishment with heavy burdens of taxation, but the building of the strongest and most impregnable coast defenses. The improving and strengthening of our navy and making it capabel of withstanding any that may be sent to attack us. Sufficient men and guns for our coast force, a systematic method of universal service that will train and discipline our citizens without interfering to a deterring degree with their professional, industrial or commercial pursuits; instruction of sufficient officers to command such an army; the creation of medical quartermasters and ordnance departments that can be enlarged to take care of a volunteer army; the building and developing of the best and most efficient aircraft, submarines and equipment, with sufficient munitions and supplies to meet the need of the army and navy.

"Then the Republican party will always stand for peace—no greater blessing can rest on America than peace with honor. That party will exhaust all honorable means to maintain it. It will demand, however, that international treaties be observed; that the lives of its citizens shall be protected on land and sea, at home and abroad—and, if necessary for the maintenance of these principles, it would not hesitate to use force.

"The time has passed when any government can be under the control of a few men. There was a time when a group of men exerted their influence in Trenton for the purpose of controlling the legislation.

"The people of New Jersey do not want to return to these old conditions. They want representatives who will not yield to selfish influences, but who will represent all the people. I have tried, in public life, to be free and independent, and I shall continue to maintain that attitude. I dislike personal privilege, and I am opposed to the so-called 'subterranean' methods. My acts shall bear the light of day. Under the direct primary, the younger man has a chance. One of the reasons for protest of the Progressives was the absence of that chance in machine politics.

"The bosses, jealous of their power, defeated the ambitions of many able men because they were young.

"I believe, as a Republican, in organization and in the machinery of system and good methods, but when it is used against the interests of the people, I am opposed to it. My record on legislation, my work for agriculture, the schools, civil service and other constructive measures, can be compared with the records of other candidates. The question of selecting the best man is up to the people.

Let the people decide.

THOMAS OTTO AALHOLM.

Thomas Otto Aalholm, a resident of this city for the past fifteen years, died early this morning at his home on Second place, following a long illness. He was born in Brooklyn sixty-two years ago and was in business in New York city until failing health compelled retirement. He is survived by one son, Arthur C. Aalholm, of this city, and two daughter, Miss Rosalie Aalholm, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Antoinette Darnell, of Easton, Pa. The funeral and interment will be private.

WILL ARRIVE AT 6:59.

Rev. Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, the evangelist, will arrive here at 6:59 this evening, instead of 8 o'clock as previously announced.

James Penny and family, of 128 East Seventh street, have removed to 403 Watchung avenue.

GERMANS GAIN IN FIGHT NEAR VERDUN

Attack Heavily on French Salient on Meuse.

London, April 8.—A gigantic squeezing operation has been begun by the German forces on the west of the Meuse in an attempt to break into the Avocourt-Bethincourt salient from both east and west and force the French troops holding that area to withdraw southward.

French official reports give the only information concerning two severe assaults made by the crown prince's troops on the sallent.

The first attack and apparently the most severe was directed at the eastern side of the French wedge between the heavily fortified village of Bethincourt and hill 265 to the southeast. As has been the case with most of the successful German attacks lately, this one was started under cover of darkness, following a very severe artillery bombardment.

The German infantry penetrated the first line of French trenches at a point on the Bethincourt-Chattancourt highway. A counter attack was begun immediately and, according to the French account, won back all of the lost ground except on a front of 300 yards.

The French troops resumed the fighting there and by a hand grenade attack drove the Germans from other portions of the trenches.

The other assault by the Germans on the salient was directed on the west from around the village of Haucourt, which was wrested from the French during Wednesday night. An advance was made on a front of a mile and a quarter, but after some stiff fighting the Germans were compelled to retire.

LEFT OUT IN SIN, HE SUES.

Wife Follows Higher Cult, So Husband Gets Divorce.

Hartford, Conn., April 8.—Because Mrs. Ellen E. Yale Webber, now living in Somerville, Mass., joined a peculiar higher power cult, Byron P. Webber of this city has been awarded a divorce in the superior court. Webber, who was married on March 27, 1877, told of his wife leaving him in November, 1908, because she was moved by the higher power.

"It was because of her new religion," he explained to the court. "She believed that everybody on earth was guilty of sin and would be destroyed except a dozen, who were to start things all over again."

"I see," sympathized Judge Case. "And she didn't include you in the chosen twelve?"

"No, your honor; nor any of my relatives or friends either," replied Webber.

CARRANZA TO SEND ULTIMATUM TO U. S.

Will Make American Troops Leave or Fight His Soldiers.

El Paso, April 8.—Carranza is preparing to send an ultimatum to the United States, according to dispatches received here today. His ultimatum will be, "Get out of Mexico or fight."

Every Carranza commander in Northern Mexico has been advised to this effect within the last forty-eight hours. General Gavira, at Juarez, has received two such notices, the second one late last night. The ultimatum, it is understood, gives the United States army only four days to complete the evacuation of Mexico.

No Permit to Use Railroads.

Queretaro, April 8.—After a Cabinet meeting here General Candido Aguilar, Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations, made this statement:

"As the American papers have published the statement that the Mexican Government has permitted the use of railroads by the American troops to ship supplies destined for the use of the Amerfican troops in Mexico, prease rectify this notice as it is false.

"The Mexican Government has not given permission to the American Government to use the railroads for the purpose of transporting supplies destined for the use of its troops or for any other reason."

DIES AFTER SAVING 600 LIVES

Veteran Coast Guard Is Survived by Ten Children.

Norfolk, Va., April 8.—Captain Nelson Holmes, for thirty-seven years a life saver, died after a week's illness. He was sixty-three years of age, but was still engaged in saving lives from ships wrecked on the shoals of Cape Henry.

Captain Holmes was in charge of the Cape Henry coast guard station. He saved more than 600 lives during the thirty-seven years he had been in the service. It is said that only two lives were lost on all the ships he assisted. He is survived by ten children, four sons and six daughters.

MRS. NICHOLAS CROWLL.

Mrs. Ncholas Crowll, of 1 Walter street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, last night. She had been undergoing treatment at that institution since April 1.

W. J. Firstbrook and family, of 300 East Front street, have removed to 149 Westervelt avenue.

SETTLEMENT UNDERWAY IN POSTOFFICE DISPUTE

Representatives of Charles Gilpin, the Philadelphia contractor erecting the Federal postoffice on Watchung avenue, attended the regular weekly meeting of the Building Trades Council last night to discuss the labor troubles that have arisen in connection with the work on the structure. The special bone of contention devolves about help employed by the sub-contracting plumber on the job, who, it is asserted, has been using non-union journeymen. As a result of this the men of other trades refused to work on the structure, and there has been a considerable tie-up.

Mr. Gilpin's representatives related the former's side of the matter, and officers of the Trades Council recited the local end of it. At the close of the conference it was agreed that Mr. Gilpin's representatives should talk with him in Philadelphia today and also confer with the sub-contracting plumber. What developes will be related at a meeting of the Allied Trades tonight, when it is hoped that a satisfactory settlement can be reached.

ENTERTAINED AT BRUNSWICK.

A delegation of twenty-five members from Local No. 262, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, of this city, were guests of the New Brunswick local at the latter's annual banquet in New Brunswick last night. The Plainfielders were accorded an enthusiastic reception and assisted in the program of entertainment which followed the dinner. The trip to and from New Brunswick was made by automobile, the delegation returning to Plainfield shortly after midnight.

AUSTRIAN TRANSPORT SUNK.

The Meyersville Women's Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Cornish in Gillette.

The cast for the play, "When a Man's Single," rehearsed last night. The play will be given April 28 for the benefit of the New Providence Lyceum. Mis Marion Johnson, one of the teachers of the Lincoln School, and Dr. Lafayette Talbott, the principal, are coaches.

Miss Kate Place, of Bloomfield, has been a visitor at the home of Freeholder and Mrs. Bradford Jones in Elkwood avenue.

Edward Avis will give a bird lecture and recital Monday night in the Presbyterian chapel.

THE PIONEER

in the savage wilderness may have his Shakespeare, his Scott, his Dickens or his Burns—but first of all he will have his Bible! The sailor on the boundless main may barely know his letters, but somewhere in his kit you will find a Bible—perhaps with tear-stained inscription written with the trembling hands of old age—from his mother—next to God his best and truest friend! Seek any habitation of men in lands remote and distant—search the rude cabin of the settler—and you will find a Bible—thumbed—worn—ragged, maybe,—but loved and revered as the chiefest treasure of the little family in the clearing!

Two Reasons for Buying Rothberg Clothes

THE FIT. Lots of clothes look more like a seperation suit than a gentlemen's agreement. A Rothberg fit is in perfect harmony with the man, conforms implicity to the architectural specifications and "stays put."

PRICES. Rothberg prices are the only average thing we have in the store. They are no higher than ordinary prices, but their purchasing power is greater. Now add the two paragraphs together and you will find the value of the ROTHBERG proposition to you.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I tried seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drugs Store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of my kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person.

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Gardneer had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

UNION COUNTY COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Assessments for Street Improvements in the City of Plainfield.

ARMSTRONG MULFORD, FRANK J. HUBBARD and JOHN ABBOTT, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the fourteenth day of January 1916, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified), and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof, which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz.:

West Third street, from the northeasterly side line of Liberty street to the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue;

under the ordinance of said City, entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of a Portion of West Third street in the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Concrete Pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," Approved August 20th, 1914, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the lands and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by survey and map prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinances; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax; and the other matters required by said acts of the Legislature, as by reference to said report and maps, will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the Twenty-eighth day of April, 1916, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said Court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

MISSING MYERS GIRL IS FOUND

East Orange Young Woman at Port Jervis.

WANTED LIBERTY, SHE SAYS

Police Find Her In Boarding House, About to Take Position as Servant Girl—Objected to Attention of Orange Man and Could Not Agree With Her Parents.

Port Jervis, N. Y., April 8.—Miss Alma Fuller Myers of 66 Ellington street, East Orange, N. J., for whom the police of New Jersey and New York have been searching for the past few weeks, was found by Policeman Stephen Campbell at the Wickham boarding house, 17 Broome street, this city, where she had secured a room and had made her headquarters. She was to take a position as a domestic servant in the home of a wealthy local hardware merchant, John D. Swinton, Jr., Sullivan avenue, one of the principal residential streets in this city.

Miss Myers came to this city on Wednesday morning and had been known here for the past three days as Grace Davis. She spent her time here visiting in the business and professional offices and answered an advertisement for help wanted by a well known underwear manufacturer, D. M. McCathie. She tried to get a position as stenographer with the latter company, but being unable to secure this position and being at the end of her resources she took the only available position left her, that of being a domestic in the home of Mr. Swinton, Jr.

Mrs. Iola Whittaker discovered in the Miss Davis a resemblance to the missing Miss Myers. She confided her suspicions to Chief of Police Campbell, who visited the young lady and learned that she had spent some time in previous years at Millrift, Pa., where she, with her parents, had been in the habit of spending the summer months. She also told of the drowning of a brother in the Walkill river at Middletown, N. Y., in May, 1914. At Millrift the police officer could find no one by the name of Davis, and he advised his informer to have a heart to heart talk with the girl. In the course of the interview the girl broke down and confessed she was the much sought Miss Myers of East Orange, N. J.

In conversation with the newspaper men the girl said: "I left home Friday morning, March 31, to visit a friend, Mrs. Arnold Nettel, 1136 Bryant avenue, the Bronx, New York. I came to Port Jervis on Saturday and stayed at the Bennett House until Wednesday.

"I have always lived at home, but I could not always agree with my mother and sometimes with my father. A young man has been paying me some attention in Orange, N. J., but I did not like him, and whenever I went out he followed me. I came away out of the city determined to paddle my own canoe."

TWO COMMIT SUICIDE.

Asylum Patient and Invalid Physician End Their Lives.

East Orange, April 8.—Miss Grace Peck, thirty-two years old, of 471 William street, who had been a patient at the insane asylum in Overbrook, swallowed bichloride of mercury tablets in the bathroom of her house and was found dead by her mother.

Dr. George W. Warford, fifty-six years old, who had been ill for two weeks from heart disease, put a revolver to his right temple after eating breakfast and killed himself. Dr. Warford practiced medicine in New York for twenty-five years.

JERSEY PRISON KEEPER DIES.

Thomas B. Madden Had Worked In Penitentiary Forty Years.

Trenton, April 8.—Thomas B. Madden, principal keeper at the New Jersey state prison here, died in his home on Third street of a complication of diseases.

Mr. Madden was born in Tuckahoe, Atlantic county, N. J., April 18, 1849. At the age of twenty-seven he retired from mercantile pursuits to become deputy keeper in the New Jersey state prison. Mr. Madden since had been resident of Trenton, associated continuously with the New Jersey state prison forty years.

SAY POLICEMAN IS THIEF.

Man Appointed to Jersey City Force Arrested in New York.

Jersey City, April 8.—Edmund Murphy, twenty-nine, of 246 Thirteenth street, this city, was appointed a policeman here, to don his shield on Monday.

But he has been arrested at the Pennsylvania station in New York city, where he has been a porter eight years, charged with grand larceny. It is alleged he broke open a trunk and took $60 worth of its contents.

Wilson to Plant Highway Tree.

Trenton, April 8.—When President Wilson goes to Princeton to vote in the primary April 25 he will plant a memorial tree there on the route of the Lincoln highway. The program for the ceremonies is being arranged by the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Rose Judson, Trustee for Plainfield Plumbing, Hardware and Paint Supply Cimpany.

By virtue of an Order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Ernst Kubler is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the 8th day of May next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said Bill is filed for the purpose of foreclosing a mortgage given by Daniel J. Devoe to Jersey State Realty Company, and now held by the complainant, dated April 1, 1912, covering premises in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey, and you are made defendant, because it is alleged in said Bill that in the conveyance which you made to the Plainfield Plumbing, Hardware and Paint Supply Company, your trusteeship was erroneously described, and that the said deed is not sealed by you, and thereby you may claim to have some interest in the mortgaged premises, a sale of which is prayed for in said bill.

AN ORDINANCE

To provide for the construction of a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield, No. 17—

WHEREAS, There has been constructed in said city a system of sewerage and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the preamble to the ordinance of said city, entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the construction of an addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, to which preamble reference is hereby made for greater certainty and

WHEREAS, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act in said preamble referred to, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed under said Act and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, be constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act of the Legislature above referred to, with all the appurtenances necessary to complete the same, and of such dimensions and material and according to such plans as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights of way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance to wit:

Ravine road, from the present sewer to Dixie Lane;
Williver street;
Lafayette place;
Clinton place;
Johannis place;
Stelle avenue, from Hobert avenue to Grant avenue;
Hobert avenue, from Sherman avenue to Stelle avenue.

Section 2. That house connections shall be constructed from the above-named sewers to the curb lines.

Adopted by the Common Council, April 3, 1916.

Approved by the Mayor, April 7, 1916.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

For The Home Builder

BROOKS HOUSE WILL BE RAZED

Structure On City Hall Site Cannot Be Moved Away Because of Shade Trees.

WORK COMING SOON

Competitive Contest of Architects for Plans of Municipal Building Will Be Closed April 20 and the Lucky Contestant Named.

The commission appointed by the Common Council to take full charge of the City Hall proposition has reached the conclusion that the former Brooks residence now encumbering the property at Watchung avenue and East Sixth street will have to be torn down. It was proposed at first to sell the structure and have it moved somewhere else and bids for it were invited. Several were received but when measurements were taken it was found that the house could not be moved through the adjacent streets without practically destroying a large number of large shade trees lining the curbs and neither the shade tree commission or property owners would permit this, accordingly the idea of removal was given up.

The Brooks residence is a large house of fairly modern type and when the actual work of building the City Hall is commenced the materials in it will be sold to second-hand men. The offers for the house to be removed averaged about $700.

The Common Council has announced that April 20 will mark the close of the time for presenting competitive plans. Practically all the Plainfield architects are now busy drawing up designs, although others will be submitted by out of town firms. It is the hope of the commission that a Plainfielder will submit the lucky plans and everything to aid in this respect is being done. The cost will run over $100,000 and will not only be an ornament to Plainfield but will stand as a monument to the designer. Just when the actual work of construction can be started is not known at this time but it is the hope of the commission to let the contract during the present year.

Although there have been objections from several quarters to the City Hall site selected, the belief now exists that it is the best that could be secured under the circumstances and will eventually meet with unanimous approval. The grounds about the building will be arranged with a park effect and will aid to raise realty values in the neighborhood.

TRADES LOCAL RESIDENCE FOR YORK STATE FARM

An important real estate deal which includes a well known local residence was consummated yesterday when Mrs. Mary Taylor, widow of the late Rev. J. T. Taylor, traded the handsome residential property at the northeasterly corner of West Seventh street and Spooner avenue for a large farm in northern New York State. The latter property has an acreage of about one hundred and includes a number of up-to-date buildings, one of them being a modern residence. It was owned by Mrs. Emily Tapscott, of Mercer avenue.

The deal involved an amount of about $12,000 on each side and was negotiated by Howard Tapscott. Mrs. Taylor has owned the Seventh street place for many years and made the trade only on a speculative basis.

REALTY TRANSFERS

The local realty transfers recorded at the office of the county clerk in Elizabeth during the past week were as follows:

Henry J. Stilson et ux. to Mechanics Trust Co., northwesterly side East Second street, southwesterly Leland avenue, Plainfield $1

PERMITS FOR APRIL START OFF BRISKLY

Eight Granted Past Week Call for Total Expenditures of $17,200.

While the permits granted by Building Inspector T. O. Doane during the past week did not include any especially large ones, there were eight in all that started April off in good shape. The total amount represented by the applications passed amounted to $17,200. They were divided into two new residences, one of them to be erected on West Fifth street and the other on Stelle avenue; one garage and five additions. By adding the $17,200 to the figures for the first three months of the year it shows that Inspector Doane has already given permits in 1916 for a total of $259,636, an aggregate that bears out the predictions that despite the present high prices of materials, the present spring and coming summer will witness unusual activities in the building line. The permits granted for the week ending yesterday were as follows:

Charles A. Borman, 115 Church street, extension to rear of house at a cost of $2,500. Walter L. Clawson, carpenter, and W. D. Bird, mason.

Francis M. Tilley, 933 Stelle avenue; two and a half story frame dwelling fitted with all improvements at an approximate cost of $4,500. George D. Wilson has the general contract.

Agnes Hendry, 925 West Fourth street; erection of frame garage at that address; approximate cost $100.

Mary Hibbets, 521 West Fifth street, extension to residence at that address, at a cost of $1,500. Contractor's name not given.

Bernard Butensky, 546 West Front street, extension to building at that address. Approximate cost $300; contractor's name not given.

Jennie Taub, 523 West Fifth street, erection of frame dwelling of the two family type, two stories in height; estimated cost $5,000. Louis Cohen has the general contract.

F. L. Pilliofd, 812 Dixie lane, kitchen extension to residence at that address at a cost of $600. J. L. Manning, carpenter, has the general contract.

Noah C. Barnhart, 970 Hillside avenue, extension to rear of residence at that address at a cost of $2,700. Michael Rimmer has the general contract.

IN THE SUBURBS

The house on Front street, Dunellen, recently sold to Julius Klemko by Clawson and Mohan and rented by the new owner to a family of foreigners who moved to Plainfield on Saturday, is now occupied by the Klemko family, who moved from Brooklyn on Tuesday.

The real estate agency of John Fedderman, of Dunellen, reports considerable increase of activity this week. Among other things reported is the renting of the bungalow of Edward Maurer on Madison avenue, near Mountain View terrace, to Carl S. Schaab, of New York.

The contract for erecting the new concrete garage for Taximan Herbert E. Nelson, of Dunellen, on the Alvah Gray property in the rear of the Smalley Brothers' hardware store, has been awerded to Contractor C. Lester Rule, of New Market.

Two houses on Front street, Dunellen, have been rented this week by William S. Freeman, the one known as 702 being taken by H. F. Bach, who will take possession on May 1, and the one known as 712 to H. G. Rekemier, who will take possession at once.

Tallamy Brothers are making rapid progress with the Hofheimer residence on Mountainside boulevard, near Warrenville. This is one of the largest private houses being built this season in the vicinity of Plainfield and is counted upon to do wonders for further handsome residences in that section. The complete job, which is to include a modern garage, will represent an expenditure of about $50,000.

The news that the Spicer plant has orders now on hand to keep its big plant busy day and night for nearly a year has added impetus to the building boom at South Plainfield. Investors continue to give out contracts for moderate sized houses and plans are being prepared for many more. The belief exists that South Plainfield's population will increase at least twenty-five per cent. in the coming year and the territory is looked upon as one of the best for investment there is in or about Plainfield.

NASH, JR., BUYS RESIDENCE.

Vincent W. Nash, Jr., has purchased from Ernest Sharp, the residence property at 1218 Martine avenue and will take possession of it May 1. Mr. Nash has resided for the past eight years at 165 North avenue. His new purchase is a house with nine rooms and butler's pantry and has a lot 100 feet front by 200 feet deep.

BORO BUILDING PERMITS.

The following building permits were authorized by the Council of the borough of North Plainfield last night: B. A. Paroubeck, to build garage on Pearl street; C. M. Smith, to build bungalow on Greenbrook road.

A SUBSTANTIAL BRICK HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

THE use of brick for the walls in the construction of a substantial home is recognized as the very best and of course costs most. However, the difference is not so great when the durability is considered and the saving in cost of painting. In order to make a dry wall, there are several methods adopted, the inner course of brick should be hollow, or a hollow tile may be used. This does not add to the cost of the wall, but prevents moisture from coming through the wall. The design shown in our illustration is for a medium-size brick house and the difference in cost between using brick and a frame construction in this house would not exceed $1,200. The size is 35 ft. in width and 38 ft. in depth, exclusive of the front and rear porches.

The arrangement is suited to an east or south front. The large living room is 14 ft. x 24 ft. with a wide fireplace on the outside and projected, making a very good feature in the elevation. The outside of the chimney is faced with bowlder stone for a height of 15 feet from grade.

The first story is finished in oak with oak floor and the second floor is finished in white enamel. The rooms are medium size but well arranged and many good little conveniences are added. It is estimated to build for $5,500 to $6,000, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The exterior walls are faced with dark tapestry brick laid in red mortar, the roof slated with good black slate. The attic story is not finished but there is ample space for two or more rooms. There is a full and complete basement. The stairs are on the combination order, with grade entrance to kitchen and basement and stairs from kitchen to platform of main stairs. This is a very complete and homelike house, well built but economical.

MILLINGTON HAS A LARGE CLAY PLANT

Crabb Corporation Now Turning Out 250 Tons of Tile Products a Month.

The Crabb Clay Products Corporation, at Millington, has now got its extensive factory in operation, for the making of all sizes of drain tile and a variety of building material. Its first kiln was successfully burned on Monday of last week, containing about eighty tons, all of which proved to be of exceptionally fine quality. Since then the works have been running at their fullest capacity, for filling the many advance orders which had accumulated and for meeting the new demands for both land and building tile which are now coming it. The present capacity of the establishment is about 250 tons a month, but with the steadily increasing demand for its wares a considerable enlargement of it may have to be made in the near futuere.

The clay in the vast beds which are being worked by this corporation is of very fine and uniform quality, well adapted to making the highest grades of both building tile and drain pipes. The factory is a new one, with the most thoroughly up-to-date equipment in the State. The burning in the kilns is done with coal, thus securing a more uniform and certain result than is possible with wood, and avoiding the dubious and unsatisfactory results of oil furnaces. In consequence the products are declared by experts to be fully equal to the best made in Ohio and Indiana, from which States the greater part of the present supply comes.

The Millington establishment obviously enjoys a great advantage over those in the Western States, in supplying the local market; in avoiding the necessity of paying heavy freight charges on railroads for long distances; and also in being able to fill orders much more promptly. It is backed by substantial men with ample capital for its full development, and will prove an important and most beneficent addition to the industries of this part of the State.

The demand for first class tile, both for building construction and for underdraining farm and garden land, is steadily increasing. There can be little doubt that tile is destined in the near future to be the favorite building material. Lumber has become too costly, and is subject to too much danger of fire; while concrete has proved decidedly unsatisfactory for a number of reasons, at least for domestic construction. Tile is cheaper than either lumber or concrete; it is more durable and more fireproof than either; and it is free from the dampness and other grave objections to concrete.

LOCAL FIRM GETS ELIZABETH CONTRACT

Ryder & Graves Will Do All Electrical Work on a $150,000 Mansion.

Ryder & Graves, of this city, have been named as the only out of town contractors to receive a contract on a new residence to be erected in Elizabeth that will be one of the finest mansions in Union county. The structure is to be built on West Jersey street for A. H. Bull, of that place, and will cost between $100,000 and $150,000, the exact figure not being known as yet as many portions of the job are to be done as "extras." Contractors from all parts of the metropolitan district submitted bids but practically everything went to Elizabeth. Ryder & Graves will install all the electrical wiring at a cost slightly in excess of $2,000 and reflects no small credit on the enterprising firm that it was selected to undertake such an important proposition.

The new residence will be of fireproof construction throughout, mainly of concrete and having no wood exposed except in the attic floor. The partitions are to be mostly of concrete and the floors of a new gypsum composition. The electrical appurtenances will be absolutely the "last word" in electrical conveniences, everything being strictly of the latest modern type. The contract of Ryder & Graves calls for the installation of electric bells, an inter-communicating telephone system, a vacuum cleaning plant, electric lights, burglar alarms, complete equipment for a laundry and also the wiring of a garage. A refrigerating plant is to be added later and there will also be various ideas embodied as the work is carried on. Mr. Bull is a New York business man and is one of the most prominent residents of the county seat. The new house is to be surrounded by beautiful grounds, expert landscape artists having been engaged to arrange the horticultural rarities that have been imported from foreign countries.

ASKS FOR LOYALTY

been accused of every sort of folly, but said that no criticism would come from him. To those who would say that the Biederwolf campaign meant an admission of weakness on the part of the churches of Plainfield he cried "Silence! This is the church; it is not an outside movement. It is no confession of inefficiency, but is an evidence of vitality in the churches of Plainfield."

Dr. Carson talked of the popular movement to make the church "up-to-date," and said that a church up-to-date was out of date. He told of one minister who had hardwood floors put in the prayer meeting room so that those who attended might dance after the services. "God pity us when we must turn our churches into dance halls to attract the crowd," he said. He admitted that a temple of God transformed into a picture might attract a crowd, but insisted that such a crowd was not worth anything to a church.

Dr. Carson took from his text a portion of the first chapter of Haggai, as read by Dr. Ernest R. Brown as a lesson from the Old Testament: "Go up to the mountains and bring wood and build My house."

He urged church people to go up to the mountains and commune with God, that they might have greater courage and strength for the task before them. To bring wood, he said, was to bring to the people the fundamental truths of the Christian religion, which were the absolute diety of Jesus Christ, the truth of the atoning sacrifice, the substitution of the Son of God for the sinner, and the presence and potency of the Holy Spirit. He said he was tired of hearing the plea of men for a new phraseology in preaching the Gospel, and he asked that no one be shocked when he used the literal expression, "substitution of the Son of God for the sinner." "I am not saved by his example," said Dr. Carson. "I am not saved by His teaching, but I am saved because He gave Himself on the cross."

The speaker urged a campaign for the open Bible. He expressed a hope that the Tabernacle would soon ring with a demand for a more general reading of the word of God, and said that he recently told a preacher who was seeking a novel way of attracting an audience, to preach from the Bible. This, he said, would prove a novelty to most churchgoers. Dr. Carson urged the teaching of the Bible in the public schools. Andrew Jackson pronounced it the foundation of the American Republic, and the speaker said that it was nothing short of a crime today to deny children knowledge of the word of God.

The mission of the church, according to the minister, is to build the Temple of God; and its stones are immortals, brought together and fashioned in the church. He said that the church was beset on every side, but that most of its failures were due to the fact that it was doing all work to the sacrifice of its real duty. Dr. Carson told of a woman in his congregation who wrote that she had nominated him for president of the S. S. S. S., and later explained that this meant the Society for the Suppression of Superfluous Societies. He confessed a pride in heading such a society.

Dr. Carson left to catch an early train for Brooklyn.

Last night's service was arranged by a committee consisting of the Rev. J. Y. Broek, chairman; the Rev. James McKelvey, and the Rev. C. S. Gillespie. It was attended by practically all of the pastors in the city. A noticeable feature of the meeting was the number of colored people in the audience.

The program in full follows:

William D. Murray, Chairman of General Committee, presiding.

Song Service—Conducted by Clifford A. Braider.

Invocation—Rev. Charles M. Anderson, D. D., pastor First M. E. church.

Responsive Reading (Psalm 84)—Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor Netherwood Reformed church.

On Saturdays the editorial column of the Daily Press is conducted, at our request, by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Rev. Edward G. Read, Chaplain of the New Jersey Senate.

A FINER PLAINFIELD.

There has been much discussion in our city press from time to time of plans for the enlargement and beautification of Plainfield and the winning to it of newcomers who may make their homes in a place of so many attractions. Attention has been called to the betterment of our streets and roadways; to the need of more briliant lights; to improved equipment of our police and fire departments; to the erection of additional school buildings and various classes of residences; to the provision of a City Hall to house our municipal government. And measures have already been taken on most of these lines of advance to put Plainfield far forward among the cities of our State.

But there is one subject I have failed to see mentioned in the discussion—the desirability of preventing the multiplication of one-story buildings on our principal business streets. A considerable number of these have been put up in recent years, much to the detriment of the city's appearance in the eyes of visitors. They give a cheap John look to some of our best thoroughfares, such as Front street, Watchung avenue, and the block on North avenue, opposite the railroad station. There are on these highways some noble and beautiful buildings, in which the citizen takes pride and which he delights to point out to the visiting stranger. But some of them are sadly disfigured by the immediate proximity of these inferior one-story affairs that are sprinkled like dwarfs in a battalion of soldiers of normal height and size, giving to the whole assemblage a look of ridiculousness. Plainfield is made to resemble one of those mushroom towns in the far West, where temporary shacks, only one-story high, abound on leading business streets. Indeed, it is worse with us than with those Western towns, for in them it is well understood that these makeshifts are only temporary, and will quickly be replaced as the towns grow older and richer, by substantial brick or stone structures of imposing height. With us there seems to be no hope of such a pleasing change; the one-story building, once erected, usually remains for all time to come.

Many citizens think that our City Council should pass an ordinance prohibiting in future this impairment of our most prominent avenues. Certainly no permit should be granted for a building less than two stories high, and it would be better to make the lowest limit three stories, on Front street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue and North avenue. If our Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce and our civic associations and our clubs—both of men and women—would take this matter up and use their influence with the City Council to secure the passage of a suitable ordinance, surely a great and needed improvement would be effected. While we aim at a larger and finer Plainfield, we should not be content to allow our handsomest thoroughfares to be marred by an ever-increasing number of low and unsightly constructions. Our civic pride should revolt against such a debasement of the possibilities of our fair city.

ADAPTING MEALS FOR THE CHILD

Noon-day Bill of Fare Should Be Suitable and Served With Care.

MENUS ARE SUGGESTED

U. S. Department of Agriculture Presents Some Interesting Facts About the Preparation and Serving of "School Lunches."

Washington, D. C., April 8.—There is no reason why the ordinary family dinner should not be suitable for school children or served in a way that adapts it to their needs, according to Farmers' Bulletin 712, "School Lunches," just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The usual first course of meat and vegetables contains nothing, except the meat, which cannot be given even to the youngest children. The vegetables, providing they are carefully prepared by simple methods, are specially needed, and can often be made attractive to children by being served with a little meat gravy. As a substitute for the meat itself, milk can be provided in the case of the younger children. These articles, with the bread and butter, provide most of the food needed.

The dessert course is suitable for children as well as for grown people unless it consists of rich pastries or puddings. The latter are not considered wholesome for children, if for no other reason than that they are likely to lead to overeating. Such desserts as fruit, fresh or cooked, with cake; cereals with milk or cream and sugar; custards and custard puddings; gelatin dishes; simple ice cream; water ices, and other simple desserts may be given.

All dishes that are likely to contain overheated and scorched fats, such as foods carelessly fried in a pan in a small amount of fat, should be avoided. Deep-fat frying is open to fewer objections, since, if properly done, foods will absorb little fat, and the fat will not scorch. Vegetables cooked in water or in their own juices and seasoned with salt and a little butter or cream are easier to prepare than those that are served with white sauce, scalloped or cooked in other elaborate ways.

What is said above applies equally to all meals. There is, however, one special precaution that applies to the noon meal when it is hurried. This refers to tough, hard foods that are likely to escape proper mastication. When time for eating is limited, however, it is well to omit foods that are difficult to chew, and in extreme cases it may be necessary to serve only soft or finely divided foods—sandwiches made from crustless bread with finely chopped fillings, for example. The advantage of putting the meal on the table promptly and of having foods served in individual portions, or at least ready to eat when they are brought to the table, should be kept in mind.

If special lunches, different from those prepared for the family in general, are to be given to school children, the following are suggested as bills of fare. They are only typical and many others might be given which would be just as good:

1. Eggs, boiled, coddled, poached or scrambled; bread and butter; spinach or other greens; cake.
2. Beef stew with vegetables; milk; crisp, thin tea biscuits; honey.
3. Dried bean or pea puree; toast; baked apple; cookies.
4. Vegetable-milk soup; zwieback; rice with maple sugar and butter or with milk or cream.
5. Potato chowder; crackers; jelly sandwiches.
6. Cold meat; creamed potatoes; peas; bread and butter; frozen custard or plain ice cream and plain cake.
7. Lamb chop; baked potatoes; bread and butter; sliced mixed fruits; cookies.
8. Baked omelet with spinach, kale or other greens; bread and butter; apple sauce; cake.
9. Milk toast; string beans; stewed fruit; cake.
10. Boiled potatoes; codfish gravy; bread and butter; lettuce; custard.

SCOTTISH PASTOR OFF TO WAR.

New York, April 8.—The Rev. John W. Gammack, who has been rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, at Glen Cove, Long Island, for nineteen years, has resigned his church, and sails to day for England to enter the cavalry service. The minister was born in Drumlithie, Scotland, 47 years ago, and was graduated from Gordon College, in Aberdeen. He studied for the ministry in Hartford, Conn., where his father was a rector for many years. His brother, Rev. Arthur Gammack, is rector of a church at Lenox, Mass.

The Hickeyville Clarion

Three life insurace agents are on the trail of Hank Purdy, and it doesn't look as though he is going to have time to do much of his farm work this spring.

Anse Frisby says one very superfluous thing in this world to do is to allow your wife to take elocution lessons. He never yet seen a woman who wasn't fluent enough without 'em.

Unce Ezra Harkins went to sleep back of the stove during the sermon at the Hardshell church Sunday evening and didn't wake up until Monday afternoon. Rev. Hanks says if he tried to wake up all the members of his congregation after church he wouldn't get home himself until midnight, so he lets 'em dream.

The lighting system of Hoopertown was out of commission last Thursday night. Station Agent Jordan forgot to get any oil for the switch lights.

The Hardshell people are thinkin' of building a new church. All of the seats will be back seats and there will be a brick wall between the choir and the congregation. Let the improvements go on.

Our New Garage.

During the long and tedious winter months we labored on an invention which is expected to make us rich beyond the dreams of avarice. The invention is now complete and is ready to be placed upon the market as soon as we can float the bonds, inflate the capital stock, water the valuation, oil the machinery and turn on the steam. Nothing like it has been invented since the odorless onion.

Our invention comes to fill a long-felt want. It is nothing more not less than a collapsible garage, which can be set up or taken down in eight minutes, central standard time, and is meant for the use of automobile owners who cannot pay their rent and are obliged to move frequently to different localities where there are strange meat markets and grocery stores, where new lines of credit may be established.

Our garage is made of tin and can be carried in the ordinary suitcase when folded up. When opened up it keeps unfolding and unfolding until you have a regular garage, with two windows, double doors and a gasoline can sitting out behind. It is much easier than a tent to put up and take down, and will accommodate any sized automobile from the $250 peanut roaster variety up to the seven-passenger plutocrat.

When going on a long tour the owner can take the garage along with him in a suitcase and pitch it anywhere he decides to spend the night. The price of this garage is going to be in the neighborhood of $8 cash or $117 if paid in monthly instalments. They will come in all colors, pink garages to match pink houses, blue garages to match blue houses, etc. We are ready to sell territory to anybody who calls. We have already disposed of Alaska, Iceland and Montenegro.

We forgot to mention that the garage has a padlock on the front door, open plumbing, hot water heat, gas grate, hard an soft water and a looking glass in the bathroom. If you have no automobile the garage can easily be used as a bungalow.

Plainfield Theatre.

Pete Curley, principal comedian with the "Midnight Maidens," tells of a funny experience on a one-night stand. It was in a small town down South, one of those where you get in, play and then get right out to the next town. The company had played the town and were all at the depot ready for the train to take them to the next stand. The train being late and the company rather a large one to play the town created no end of excitement to the natives who were all at the depot full of curiosity. Mr. Curley was at one end of the platform conversing with the manager, nothing of any importance, while talking he turned and directly behind him stood a seedy looking individual who seemed to be very much interested in what he was talking about. Curley seeing the opportunity to have a little sport at the curious one's expense (giving the manager a nudge), exclaimed, "It surely was awful. I am sure that the fellow killed the girl, and it's funny they don't arrest him." The manager wanting to be in on the fun answered, "Yes she was killed all right, for when I passed the back room to the office I noticed they had a cover over something on the floor. The fellow ought to be apprehended and punished." At that the bystander stepped up saying, "Did I understand you gentlemen to say a woman was killed?" "Yes," answered Curley. "Well, I am sorry, gentlemen, but you will have to accompany me to the city hall until I investigate this thing," and showing a badge took hold of both Curley and the manager, who strongly protested, trying to explain the joke. The constable wouldn't allow them to go until he was through with the investigation. And the result was the company lost the day, as they were too late to get the train that would get them in the next town in time for the performance. Now Mr. Curley looks and tries to see if they wear badges or are just curious persons before he does any joking.

Norma Bell, the prima-donna with the "Midnight Maidens" company, which appears at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday afternoon and night, received her first start in the profession while singing at a church concert in one of the large cities of the East. At that time she was in her 'teens and was a member of the church choir, but had never sang a solo until the night of the concert. One of the singers who had been expected to take part was taken suddenly ill, and the little girl offered to sing a solo. In order to round out the program this was accepted and on that night the audience was astounded when they saw a might of a girl appear on a platform, attired in a simple little white dress. Everyone in the audience knew "little Norma" as she had been affectionately called and they all laughed at her nerve in attempting a solo before such a large crowd. When she started singing the laughter turned to applause, for she astounded everyone with her volume and clearness of voice. The advance agent of a theatrical company happened to be in the audience that night and he wanted to know "who was the kid with the big voice." After the concert was over he met her parents and told them what a marvelous voice their daughter possessed and stated that if they would place her in the care of competent tutors that she would soon be capable of earning a splendid salary. Norma was delighted with the proposition and during the next year she studied music every day. The following season she was given a small part with an opera company. And her rise from that time has been rapid. She still spends many hours every day in practicing music and the title bestowed upon her on the night of the concert has only been changed to "The little woman with the big voice."

FIRST CHAPTER OF GENESIS ONE OF MOST INTERESTING

A hymn of praise from man to his Creator that has never been equalled is to be found in the First Chapter of Genesis. An anticipation of all the discoveries of science made and yet to come. The inspired writer beheld the glories of the ages revealed as in a vision, and prophesied the inheritance of him who was created in the image of his Maker. While this is one of the most interesting chapters in the Bible, yet it is only one of the many treasures that the Book of Books contains. Perhaps the Bible would be read oftener if the text were easier on the eye. The Big Print Red Letter Bible has this advantage, and is not so bulky or inconvenient as the pulpit editions would be for home use. The Daily Press has obtained the exclusive local distribution of this now famous edition, and offers it to its readers at a nominal price—much less than such a book could be bought elsewhere. The coupons which are printed daily explain the easy terms of acquisition. Be sure to cut out the one in today's issue. It is important that you own this Bible.—Adv.

- Proctor's Theatre -

A modern society drama from the Metro studios graces the Gold Fibre screen at Proctor's today, entitled, "What Will People Say?" featuring Mme. Olga Petrova, whose fame as a dramatic star is world wide. This drama is based on Rupert Hughes' novel and deals with one of the oldest superstitions of the race; the fear of what other people will say. This picture is splendidly mounted and contains some exceptionally good acting performaed by a cast of capable film stars. The selection of Mme. Petrova in the leading role of this engrossing story is to be greatly commended, for her dramatic supremacy and emotional talents fit her perfectly for this difficult part. In addition today two of the world's greatest comedians appear in their funniest comedy creations, one being Charlie Chaplin, peer of them all, in a two reel side-splitter entitled, "Mabel at the Wheel," and the other Harry Watson, Jr., whose comic capers are winning for him hundreds of admirers each day, in the latest chapter of "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer." On Monday, Dainty Marie Doro will be starred in her first Paramount picture, "The White Pearl," a story with a universal appeal, and three comedy masterpieces featuring the following quartet of talented artists will also appear on that day, Sis Hopkins, Ham and Bud and Frank Daniels. On Tuesday, Triangle presents an out-of-the ordinary feature entitled, "The Flying Torpedo," featuring John Emerson. This is the latest of the plea for "Preparedness" film spectacles, and can safely be said to be the greatest. It deals with science, intrigue and romance in such a delightful manner as to captivate every class of amusement seeker, and in its effects in arousing the patriotism now so dormant in many of our breasts, it is in a class by itself. In addition Tuesday, Hank Mann will be seen in a three reel Keystone riot entitled, "The Village Blacksmith," and the sixth episode of "Mary Page" will also be shown. Wednesday is Theda Bara day, and that most famous of emotional stars will appear in her latest production, "Gold and the Woman." This feature will be presented one day only, so it is imperative that all those who can do so attend in the afternoon, in order to accommodate the large crowds who will clamor for admission in the evening.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Soldier Met an Old Witch.

"Fetch money," shrieked the old witch.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

"ONCE upon a time there was a soldier coming home from wars," daddy told Jack and Evelyn when they teased for a story. "One-two! One-two! he came marching down a dusty road, with his knapsack on his back. The first person he met was an old witch limping along the road. She was very ugly to look at. Her lower lip hung down on her chin.

"'Good evening, soldier,' she said. 'What a nice sword you've got and such a big knapsack! You're a real soldier. You shall have money!

"'Do you see that big tree?' asked the witch. 'It's hollow inside. Climb the tree, and at the tiptop you will see a hole. Let yourself down—right down under the tree. I'll tie this rope around your waist so I can pull you up again.'

"'What shall I do under the tree?' asked the soldier.

"'Fetch money!' shrieked the old witch. 'Surely you know that soon as you get down to the bottom of the tree you will be in a wide passage. It is light down there, for over a hundred lamps are blazing. You will see three doors, which you can open, for here are my keys. In the first room you will see a big box in the middle of the floor. A dog sits on it, and his eyes are as big as saucers, but you mustn't mind that. Here's my blue checked apron, which you must spread on the floor. Then go to the dog quickly and put him on my apron. Then you can open the big box and take out as much money as you like. It's all copper, but if you like silver better go to the next room. There you will find a dog with eyes as big as millstones. But never mind that. Put him on my apron and take the silver. If you want gold you can have all you want by going into the next room. The dog sitting on the gold box has eyes as big as the round tower. He is a dog! But don't let that trouble you. Put him on my apron, and he won't hurt you. Then take all the gold you like.'

"'That sounds good!' cried the soldier. 'But what am I to give you, old witch? You want something, that I know!'

"'Not a single penny. But I do want you to bring me my tinder box, which my grandmother unfortunately forgot the last time she was down there.'

"'Tie your rope around my waist!' shouted the soldier.

"'Here it is,' said the witch, 'and here is my blue checked apron.'

"Then the soldier climbed the tall tree and let himself slide right down the hollow trunk. When he landed on his feet he found himself in a wide passage with hundreds of lamps burning in it, just as the old witch had said," daddy finished.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

If the enamel in your cooking utensils (or pots) has become chipped, discard them. You will notice it chipping off more all the time. These chips get in the food and enter the stomach. They are sharp as glass and may cause a great deal of stomach trouble.

To fasten dress with buttons which will not stand washing, use small safety pins on the inside. This will save time sewing them on each time after washing, and they will be easily taken off.

THE TABLE

Stuffed Eggs for Luncheon—Put six eggs into cold water, boil fifteen minutes, put back in cold water (keep whites of eggs a good color). Cut eggs in halves lengthwise and take out yolks. Pound yolks in a mortar with two tablespoons chopped cold meat. Add one teaspoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste and two tablespoons melted butter. Mix, fill hollows of egg whites, join halves, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine bread crumbs, fry a pale brown color in plenty of smoking hot fat. Decorate with parsley and serve very hot.

Cranberry Sauce With Raisins—Add one cup seeded raisins to one quart cranberries. Pour over them a cup of boiling water, boil twenty minutes, rub through sieve, then add 1½ cups seeded raisins scalded and drained. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly, then turn into a mold. Chill and serve.

Graham Cookies—One egg, one cup white sugar, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon cinnamon, one cup sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoon soda dissolved in the milk, two cups graham flour and one cup chopped raisins. Drop on greased pan, bake in moderate oven.

Berlin Cabbage—Slice red cabbage very thin; soak in cold water an hour; drain. Put one quart cabbage in stew pan with two tablespoons butter, half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon chopped onion, a grating of nutmeg, and dash of pepper. Cover, cook until cabbage is tender, then add two tablespoons vinegar, half tablespoon sugar; cool five minutes more.

Taragon Salad Dressing—Six tablespoons Taragon vinegar, four tablespoons sugar, yolks four eggs, pinch salt. Cook until thick. When cold beat into one-half pint cream whipped stiff. This is excellent for any kind of salad, but especially good on salad made of assorted fruits, nuts and marshmallows.

Maple-Walnut Dessert—Dissolve one package peach or orange gelatine in half pint boiling water. Add half pint maple syrup. When nearly cold, add one cup broken wanut meats. Set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream.

Delicious Raisin Bread—One big cup brown sugar, one cup sour milk (dissolve one teaspoon soda in part of milk), add pinch of salt, two cups graham flour, big cup of chopped raisins. Put in small deep cake pan and bake fifty minutes in very slow oven.

Hermits—One cup brown sugar, one egg, butter size of walnut, one cup nuts chopped fine (or currants), pinch salt, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon sloves, one teaspoon cinnamon, enough flour to make quite a stiff batter. Put one teaspoon baking powder in flour.

FROZEN FRUIT SALAD.

This is a recipe for frozen fruit salad that melts in one's mouth:

Mix one heaping tablespoon flour, one heaping tablespoon sugar, one teaspoone mustard, one and one-half teaspoon salt and a very little paprika and cayenne. Blend thoroughly. Melt one tablespoon butter, add it slowly to the well-beaten yolks of two eggs, with the seasoning, one-third of a cup of vinegar and two-thirds of a cup of milk. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until well thickened; remove from fire, beat for a moment with the egg beater and add slowly one cup of stiffly whipped cream. Meanwhile cut in small pieces one-half pound of seeded Malaga grapes, one-half pineapple, two bananas, three orange, and a small bottle of Maraschino cherries. Mix the fruit together, drain thoroughly, and mix with the prepared dressing. Pour in a brick mold with a water tight cover and bury in ice and rock salt for four hours. To serve, unmold, cut in slices and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

In Which All Ends Happily Despite Sorrows of the Recent Past

"I could hardly wait to have you come and see how cozy we are," said Marian Townsend as she ushered Nell and Olive into the living room. "This room seemed very small at first because the one at the other house was exceptionally large, but, as I told Dudley, that was an advantage, for we want to get close together. It is only in a divided house that you need long corridors to soften harsh moods by putting distance enough between factions to keep the peace."

"You certainly are very cozy and comfortable here," said Nell, taking a seat by the baseburner. "I grew to love the cheerful glow of our stove and actually missed it when we built our new house."

"It has done a great deal to recreate the old cheerful atmosphere," said Marian softly. "Mother used to sit and rock me in the winter twilight and tell me stories. Those stories have all come back to my mind very clearly while I sat watching the red coals."

"No one realizes how memories are revived by old associations and furnishings until they have returned to them after a separation," remarked Olive

"As I sit here and listen toTupper moving about the kitchen I half expect to hear Daddy come up the walk. I can almost persuade myself that all the heartbreak and trouble were a bad dream from which I had happily wakened and all is as it used to be." The girl stealthily wiped her eyes.

"I am sure you will be happier here, dear, but we miss you, and the big empty house with the 'For Sale' card on it is not a good substitute for our good neighbors," said Nell, pretending not to notice the handkerchief.

"You are back in school, I hear. I suppose you will go on and graduate next June?" asked Olive.

"Yes, and after that I am to be a business woman. I am to help the boys in the store. It will save the expense of a clerk and we can the sooner get out of debt." The girl's face was bright and eager. "I shall feel that I am helping in earnest, and Tupper does not need me here, of course."

"That will be fine," chorused the friends.

"I do not suppose you hear from Mrs. Townsend," remarked Nell. "Do you know where she is?"

"Of course we want to lose track of her at the earliest possible moment, but the lawyer happened to mention yesterday that she was living in Chicago with Adelaide Blakely, the same Adelaide that visited here, I suppose. Probably she will not find life so dull there as she did at Fairport." Marian's voice had not lost its scornful tone when she spoke of Ortrude.

"I do not believe the woman corresponds with a single person here. It is strange that in over a year she did not make a single intimate friend," said Nell.

"To have friends one must show one's self friendly, and she was too bent on doing what pleased herself to consider anyone else," answered Olive.

"I told you about her last talk with me. I really think the woman changed and will think a little more of other people in the future." Nell look at Marian.

"Well, there was certainly room for improvement, but her repentance will not give us Daddy back again," said the girl sadly.

Cooking Eggs In Simple Ways

One of the dictums of modern dietary science is, "A boiled egg should never be boiled." There are many housekeepers who do not know exactly what that means. It sounds to them like a poor attempt at a joke.

How to Boil Eggs.

What it does mean is that so called boiled eggs should not be cooked in smartly boiling water as this hardens and toughens the whites so that they become much less digestible than when let to slowly coagulate in water that is below the boiling point. Many people like a "boiled" egg for breakfast the year through and they should not take it in the form of a daily dose of indigestible food or a food that makes the stomach perform an unnecessary amount of work.

Eggs to be "boiled" should be put into water that is just below the boiling point and let to remain for five minutes over heat that will not raise the temperature to the boil; or they should be put over the fire in cold water and let to heat up gradually with the water until the boiling point is reached, when they should be taken out and served.

If an egg is wanted cold "hard boiled," it should be really boiled for forty or forty-five minutes. Long boiling changes the toughness which results from a few minutes boiling, and the egg white becomes once more comparatively easy of digestion. Hard boiled eggs should be dropped into cold water as soon as they are taken out of the hot water, so that the yolk may not acquire a dark coating. Then the egg may be rolled on a flat surface until the shell cracks into pieces, when the pieces can be picked off.

Eggs to be poached should also be cooked in water below the boiling point. If a little vinegar or lemon juice—say a tablespoonful to a quart—is added to water, together with a teaspoonful of salt, the egg will keep a good shape. This is a good way to do when one has no poaching ring.

The caution against too rapid cooking in boiling and poaching eggs, applies as well to frying them. "Fried eggs" should be slowly sauteed in an open frying pan sparsely greased, instead of having them dropped into pan of smoking fat. If they are to be served with bacon, the bacon should first be fried out and most of the bacon fat poured out of the pan before the eggs are put in.

In cooking eggs for Lenten dishes, however, they are to be served or dressed, the basic rule of cooking them slowly should be kept in mind. The following suggestions may offer a few novelties to some of our readers for simple Lenten breakfasts.

Instead of dropping the eggs into water, drop them into milk, and when they are cooked take them out, dress them on toast, make a white sauce from the milk and pour over. Garnish with parsley. Or drop into veal or chicken broth and when the eggs are cooked make a sauce by thickening the broth, adding a little tomato paste, if liked.

Bake large potatoes and when they are nearly done cut in halves, scrape out a little from each half to make a "nest" and drop an egg in each nest. Cover with a cream sauce with or without a grating of cheese and put in the oven for the egg to "set."

Suit of serge, braid bound and bone bottom, self belt collar; can be buttoned high neck as well as low. Straight plaits, side stitch and bound braid to yoke effect; navy and black, with black braid, and black and white check with white braid, $32.50.

Don't Give Way to Worry

Fear and worry are chiefly known as very unpleasant states of mind, and it is seldom realized, except by medical men, that they exercise a most profound influence on the health.

When the mind is anxious and disturbed, all the functions of the body go wrong. The digestive system is especially disordered, and this gives rise to what is known as auto-intoxication, an exceedingly common condition.

Auto-intoxication means the absorption into the blood of poisons formed in the body itself, and these have much the same effect as poisons taken in from the outside. When the stomach sulks, these poisons are carried to the brain and nerves, with the result that the mind is dulled, the heart weakened, and the breathing disturbed.

If the anxiety and worry are not forcibly checked, things go from bad to worse, and the person falls into a condition of neurasthenia.

On the other hand, feelings of hope, pleasure and joy both stimulate the digestion and help to get rid of the poisons which are formed by the breaking down of foodstuffs.

The cheerful person is rarely a victim of auto-intoxication. We should therefore make a habit of cultivating a cheerful, joyous state of mind. It is not always an easy task, but with constant trying the most despondent person may succeed in the end.

Serenity of mind is natural to some, but all may cultivate it. If one says to himself on rising in the morning, "I will be cheerful and happy to-day, no matter what may happen to irritate and depress me," and if he repeats that assurance to himself many times in the day, he will find that most of the inevitable worries are borne lightly.

At the end of the day his digestion and other functions will be in a healthy state.

In the course of a few weeks, if this method be perseveringly followed, almost complete control of the mind will be obtained, the trials of life will be borne with equanimity, the bodily functions will be strengthened, and the evils of auto-intoxication will be avoided.

THE INDIAN BABE.

In the social life of the North American Indians many little dramatic acts occur significant of beliefs that are difficult for a stranger to understand correctly.

A relative comes to the home of an infant and presents it with a tiny pair of moccasins with a hole cut in each sole. The Indian mother understands the tender wish conveyed by the act. The baby is thus recognized as an Omaha child, for the moccasins anticipate the ceremony in which the "new life" is proclaimed a member of the tribe.

The holes are a sign of usage; they express the giver's prayer for long life to the child. A person might enter the tent, see the tiny moccasins with holes, and exclaim, "What a long way the little one has travelled!" This too would be a prayer for long life to the child.

If an unseen messenger from the spirit world should approach the infant to ask it to come with him, the child would be able to say, "No, I can't go with you; look, my moccasins are worn out!" And so the baby would not be taken away from its mother.

To Clean Brass and Copper

To clean brass or copper dip a piece of old flannel in vinegar, then into powdered bathbrick, and rub the articles well over with this. Polish with dry bathbrick.

The cleaning of brass and copper is rendered comparatively easy if the articles are first scrubbed with warm water, to which a generous allowance of cloudy ammonia has been added. After washing rinse in hot water, dry thoroughly and polish.

FOR A MAN.

A tobacco bag is needed by almost every man and is one of the most popular gifts made. Green or tan silk lined with rubber can be used.

A small wreath of leaves and red berries with the initials inside or a wreath or small flowers and leaves in Dresden colors embroidered on one side of the bag will be a good design to choose.

If Dresden shades are used they should be arranged to harmonize well together.

Coat of wool poplin, half lined, satin collar, which buttons up high; when low down forms cape effect; self belt and fancy bone buttons; black and navy, $25.00.

Children's Lunches

Lemon cheese makes a healthful filling for sandwiches for the lunch-box. Place in a double boiler, or in a bowl in a saucepan, containing boiling water, one cup of powdered sugar, four tablespoons of butter, the juice and rind of two lemons, and three well-beaten eggs. Cook, stirring constantly, till the mixture is very thick; when cool, put in a jar with a close fitting lid, and it will keep for weeks.

Orange ginger cakes are also good for the little folks to take to school. Heat one and three-fourths pounds of molasses and three-fourths of a pound of shortening over a slow fire; when blended, beat well and add three-fourths of a pound of brown sugar, two and one-fourth pounds of flour, one ounce of ground ginger, one grated nutmeg, one-half cup orange juice and the grated rind of the orange and one level teaspoon of soda. Work the dough well and leave in a cool place over night. In the morning roll thin, cut in squares, brush with milk and bake in a moderate oven.

A very nutritious supper dish for the children is made by heating two cups of milk until it almost boils, add the strained juice of half a lemon and sugar to taste. Let this stand until it curdles, strain and serve.

Bedroom Windows to be Kept Open

It is possible and perfectly practical to sleep in comfort during cold weather and at the same time have the sleeping room filled with sweet fresh air.

We have only to place a properly-conducted fresh-air screen opposite the lower sash in one or two windows, then with the windows raised at night we can sleep in perfect safety with the room filled with fresh invigorating air, and one will arise in the morning with renewed energy. There will be no draughts, rain or snow come in, and the room will not seem cold.

Air screens are described as wooden frames made to fiet closely the window-frame opposite the lower sash in such a way that all openings for draughts are closed. This frame is covered with a medium quality of unbleached cotton cloth. When the window is raised the screen allows the fresh air to come slowly into the room.

Dangers of Whooping Cough

Whooping cought is most infectious before the acute or whooping stage. It ceases to be contagious long before the symptoms of the disease have disappeared.

Whooping cough requires that the child shall be isolated from other children. If the paroxysms cause frequent vomiting, the patient must be kept in bed; but fresh air and sunshine are best cures.

If the child can remain out of doors, so much the better; if not, the room in which it says must be well ventilated.

If it vomits a meal, it must receive more food in a few minutes. The best diet consists of cereals and vegetables, with milk and eggs. Meat, tea and coffee should not be given.

A small dose of iron once a day, plenty of water to drink, and hot baths before going to bed, are part of the treatment. An abdominal belt helps to control the paroxysms of coughing and to prevent vomiting.

April Is the Month for Planting

June is the month of roses, April is the month to plant the rose bushes. A glance at the rows and rows of our Holland grown rose bushes, brings to mind visions of summer hours spent in the garden. Why not have a real garden this year? Full of fragrant flowers—roses, mignonette, lilies of the valley, sweet peas, nasturtions, marigolds, snap-dragons, cornflowers, old-fashioned pinks, lovely zenias with their quaint fady colorings, rows of holly hocks, poppies, asters. With a little trouble, thinking, planning and a few garden tools, some pleasant exercise in getting the earth prepared, several packages of seeds and some bulbs, any one can have the loveliest sort of flowers all Summer long.

Garden Furniture

Of Sculptured Carrara Marble, from Italy

On January 4th we were in Petra Santa, Italy, buying garden marbles for this present opening.

We found that many men had been taken away for the war. Raw stone had advanced considerably in price. Most of our buying was done from pieces already finished and in stock. So that you will find in the pieces you are invited to see on Monday, the same careful workmanship that marked our exhibits of former years; the same good selection of stone; and—at no higher prices.

Sculptors were glad to dispose of their accumulated product, not knowing what would happen from day to day.

One well-known sculptor from whom we bought goods said—"I am anxious to sell, for tomorrow I have to close my place and go to the war."

The result of our visit to this garden marble centre are here—

Carrara Marble, $200.

Of Terra Cotta, Moulded in American Shoes

167 Cases

arrived within the last two weeks; with many more to come. This, in addition to the stock we carry the year round; for our business in marbles and terra-cottas goes on through the year. It is we ever had.

The Best Assortment

Several large sales were made before the goods reached our selling floor. Customers who had heard of the wonderful collection we had secured, went up to our receiving-room and bought as the pieces were being opened.

An early selection is advised, since more goods may not be ordered and received in time for use this summer.

In Terra Cotta

we have a full selection from the two best makers in the United States.

All our garden furniture is guaranteed for out-door use.

SAFE FUR STORAGE

Safety Storage for Your Furs

Your furs are not safe now unless they are in a vault of Arctic temperature. It will be unwise to procrastinate. Moths are stirring. Dust is flying. Heat is beginning to dry up skins.

Write or telephone to us—Stuyvesant 4700, Extension 137 or 138—and we will send for your furs.

And They Will Be Safe

We will clean them.

We will repair them—remodel them in the styles of 1816-17, if you wish.

And keep them safe from moth, fire, dust or burglars.

Tens of Thousands of fur coats, rugs and other articles spend the summer safely in the Wanamaker Cold Storage Vault. This vault is an integral part of our New Building. It is constructed scientifically, with 24-inch thick walls of cork and fireproof materials. An incessant circulation of cold air—entering near the ceiling of the vault and leaving through outlets at the bottom—keeps the air pure and at about 16 degrees above zero. It never goes above freezing point.

On the Premises

This Low Even Temperature

keeps furs in as near to their natural condition as possible, preserving the natural oils of the skins, their glossiness, and life.

There Is a Separate Peg

MILLER HUGGINS, THREE DOZEN YEARS OLD, WILL MANAGE FROM THE BENCH THIS SEASON

Miller Huggins, the peppery little manager of the St. Louis Nationals, has attained the venerable age of 36. Like so many other men eminent in American public life, Miller is a native of the Buckeye State, and was born in Cincinnati-by-der-Ohio. Huggins still does his voting in Cincinnati and adds to his income by working as a salesman in the gelid months. Miller was a boyhood chum of "Red" Dooin, the former pilot of the Phillies. They are of about the same age and both got their baseball start on the Cincinnati lots, often playing on the same kid nine.

The Cardinal chief played his first game for money at Wapakoneta, O., a little city a few miles south of Lima, in 1898. The following seasons he was with Mansfield in the Interstate League, and in 1900 he played summer ball at a Catskill Mountain resort. In those days Miller's specialty was shortstopping. In 1901 he was hired to cover second base for the St. Paul Western League Club. Miller's father was strongly opposed to baseball as a profession for his young hopeful, and wanted him to become a lawyer. Miller refused to heed the paternal counsel, but he effected a compromise by adopting an assumed name, and joined the St. Paul team under the alias of James M. Proctor.

When St. Paul was given a franchise in the American Association in 1902, "Jimmy Proctor" remained in the lineup and he remained in the Minnesota capital until the latter part of the 1903 season, when he broke into the National League in the uniform of that dear old Cincinnati. At St. Paul the diminutive Ohioan had played second base like a demon and had batted well over .300 all three seasons.

Huggins wore the uniform of the Reds for six seasons. He never succeeded in breaking into the .300 class while in Cincinnati, his best year having been 1906, when he swatted the pellet for .292. He landed in St. Louis in 1910, having figured in a trade, and the change of air seemed to do him good. He recovered his batting eye, and hung up an average of .304 in 1912. In 1913 he succeeded Roger Bresnahan as leader of the Cardinals. The club finished eighth his first year, but grabbed third place in 1914, and was sixth last year.

Huggins has announced that he will be a bench manager this season, and will not take part in any games between the time the player limit goes into effect and the time the drafting season opens. It is going to be difficult to fill the hole left by the retirement of the little second-bagger, but Hug things he will have a classy infield. On paper the Cardinal bunch looks to be about the weakest in the old circuit, but if Miller is in a despairing mood he hides it pretty well.

Huggins is the twenty-fourth man to pilot the St. Louis Nationals since 1876. In all that time the Mound City has never had a National League flag. When Huggins landed the team third in 1914 he surpassed all his predecessors except S. W. Graffen, who led the Mound City aggregation in 1876, the first year of the National League, when St. Louis was surpassed only by Chicago and Hartford. Charlie Comiskey, Roger Connor, Arlie Latham, Monte Cross, Tim Hurst, Oliver Tebeau, Pat Donovan, John McCluskey, Roger Bresnahan and other stars of the game have all tried in vain to nail the gonfalon to the Mound City flag pole.

P. A. N. HAS PLANS LAID FOR SEASON ON DIAMOND

The P. A. N. wants to book games with junior baseball teams, such as the Inner-Triangles, Dunellen Boy Scouts, Bound Brook Boy Scouts, Somerset Field Club and Netherwood A. C. Manager Poling's telephone number is 2054-R, and his address is 809 West Fifth street.

The probable line-up of the team is as follows: Newell, p.; McCormack, c.; Leo Wilson, 1b; Keating, ss; Muir, 3b; Colley, 2b; J. Newell, rf; R. Clarkson, cf; Wilson, lf.

BASEBALL CHALLENGES.

The Diamond A. C. of Bayonne would like to arrange games with teams offering suitable inducements. Address all challenges to W. Montgomery, Mgr., 682 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.

The fast Sprague Electric Works' baseball team, twice champions of the Electrical Commercial Baseball League, will travel and desires to book games with semi-professional teams. Clubs looking for a first-class attraction will do well to book this fast New York team. Give full particulars, including open dates. Address A. Newman, Sprague Electric Works, No. 527 West Thirty-fourth street, New York City.

OUENA WINS IN L. I. SHOW.

Mrs. A. McClure Halley's Ouena of Llenrud, a Pekingese, was adjudged the best dog in the show at the monthly match of the Long Island Kennel Club last night in the Johnson Building, Brooklyn. The reserve went to a French bulldog owned by John Cresser. Mrs. Heiblien won the ribbon for the best Boston terrier with her handsome bitch, Belle. More than thirty dogs were shown, representing many breeds, the largest exhibitor being William Artz, who had fifteen entries. There were seventy-five members present.

CARTER MEETS DYER.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 8.—P. V. G. Carter, Nassau, the junior metropolitan champion, will meet F. W. Dyer, Montclair, the Pennsylvania State titleholder, today, in the final of the North and South golf championship. The semi-final rounds yesterday were closely contested and ended as sensationally as any ever seen here. Carter was able to beat Charles Skehens, Woods Hole, only after an extra hole.

SNOW CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF P. H. S. BASEBALL START

Plainfield High School's diamond artists will have to wait another week before they can start their season, as the cancellation of the opening game with Benny Rosenson's team was forced on account of the weather. It was to have been played on Parker Field this afternoon, but it is now probable that it will not be played at all as the schedule is practically filled. Next Saturday the P. H. S. team travels to Trenton for a game with the High School of that city and will not play a home game until the following Wednesday, when Westfield High School will appear on Parker Field.

QUAKER JUNIORS READY TO MEET LOCAL JUNIOR NINES

The Quaker Juniors have elected a new manager who thinks he can fulfill his position nicely. George Jackson, the wonderful shortstop, has signed with the Quaker Juniors. Norman Lynch, the manager, will not catch this season, so he is going to play third base. Naylor and Rielley are going to twirl and if they do as well as they did last year, the players will be highly pleased.

The lineup is as follows: J. Donovan, 1b; N. Lynch, 3b; B. Van Nest, c; G. Jackson, ss; W. Rielley, p and lf; E. Naylor, p and lf; E. Vail, 2b; E. Enander, rf; H. Hanigan, cf and 3b.

The Quaker Juniors challenge any team ranging from 14 to 16 years of age. Call at the Quaker Field afternoons or any time Saturdays.

NOTES OF THE DIAMOND.

The Pittsburg National League Club has released Jesse Altenberg, outfielder, and Bernard Cleveland, infielder, to the Wheeling Central League Club. In each case the option clause was exercised.

"Danny" Murphy, formerly of the Philadelphia Americans, will manage the New Haven baseball team, of the Eastern League.

August Herrman, president of the Cincinnati National League Club, has telegraphed to "Ed" Maier, owner of the Vernon (Cal.) team, asserting that George ("Chief") Johnson, Vernon pitcher, remained the property of Cincinnati. Johnson jumped to the Federals last year while owned by the Reds. Maier says he will contest the claim.

THOUSANDS WATCH ROAD RUN.

Close to half a million persons, according to reliable estimate, stretched along nine miles of the principal thoroughfares in Harlem and lower Bronx last night, watched 450 athletes compete in the annual road run of the Home News, held in connection with the Harlem-Bronx carnival. It was the first night race in many seasons in New York, and, with weather conditions excellent, efficient management by Amateur Athletic Union officials, and an almost record field of contestants, proved a decided success. Harry McGinn, junior cross-country champion in 1912, led all the way.

McCOY KNOCKS OUT HAMMON.

Al McCoy, the middleweight champion, made short work of Jack Hammon of Indianapolis at the East New York A. C. last night. Shortly after the bell rang for the first round the champion worked Hammon to a neutral corner and landed a terrific left on the jaw. The Indianapolis fighter hit the floor with a resounding thud. He was carried to his corner after the referee counted him out.

GIRLS' TANK MEET CLOSELY CONTESTED

High School Representatives Have Only Small Margin on Grammar School.

The Plainfield High School girls defeated the Plainfield Grammar School girls in a closely contested swimming meet in the High School pool yesterday afternoon. All of the members of the High School squad did some excellent swimming, but if it had not been for the all around ability of Miss Miny Taylor, the Grammar School, would have carried off first honors. The point score was 31½ to 28½. Miss Taylor won three firsts and tied for second place in two other events. Sarah Johnston did well for the losers.

The summary:

20-yard swim—First, Miss Miny Taylor P. H.; second, Helen Carr, G. S.; third, Jessie Fullerton, G. S.

Front dive—First, Sarah Johnson, G. S.; second, Ruth Fuller, H. S.; third, Helen Sarr, G. S.

ROLL-OFF NEEDED TO DECIDE COLUMBUS CLUB ALLEY PLAY

A roll-off will have to be held in order to decide the three-man house tournament at the Columbus Club. The E and H teams, captained by George Taylor and Mike Moynihan, respectively, have ended their schedule with a record of 17 victories out of 24 games. The A team, captained by Miles Wilson, has won 14 games and lost 7, and may tie the leaders by winning all three games next Monday night from Art Cannon's C team. If the roll-off is between two teams, a match will be bowled, but if three teams are tied, total pins will count. The roll-off has been set for next Thursday night.

Average prizes for each of the three classes are being fought for. George Taylor, who holds the tournament high score, is leading for the average trophy.

TRIANGLES JUNIOR CHAMPIONS OF CITY

Win Close Rubber Game With Somerset Field Club Boys, 16-12.

By virtue of their 16-12 victory over the Somerset Field Club, last evening, on the T. A. B. S. court, the Inner-Triangle Club, of this city, won the junior championship of this city. The tilt was the third struggle between these two contingents, and was keenly waged, the winners having a slight advantage, as the contest was played on their own court.

After leading, 9-5, when half time was called, the borough players suffered a reversal of form and withheld under the attack of their opponents, who swept on to victory. A large crowd witnessed the meeting of these two factions, a great deal of excitement being evidenced by the cohorts of each side.

The playing of Gullberg and K. Cartwright stood out conspicuously. Barry and Townley played equally as prominent parts for the Somerset Field Club, the former performing his guarding duties in a stellar manner, while the latter was responsible for three field goals and a foul.

The score:

MAY AWARD LIFSON FAMOUS PENN BOWL

Local Business Man Asks for Trophy Son Was Killed Fighting For.

At the election for honor men of the Senior class at the University of Pennsylvania, held yesterday, Gordon A. Hardwick, president of the class, won first place as the Spoon man; W. E. Chickering obtained second place as the Bowl man; Arthur Littleton won third honor as the Cane man, and J. E. (Ted) Meredith ran fourth as the Spade man.

Hardwick was guard on the university basketball team for three years. His home is in Fort Dodge, Iowa. He got ninety votes out of a possible 100. Chickering, who is captain of the 'varsity crew, got sixty-eight votes. Littleton is a member of the crew and manager of the wrestling team. Meredith, the Olympic middle-distance runner, holds the world's records for a half-mile and 800 metres.

The Bowl, for over fifty years one of the most famous of Pennsylvania's trophies, will not be fought for again because of the death of William Lifson, an undergraduate, who met his death in the contest last January. It is possible that Chickering will present the Bowl to young Lifson's father, Albert E. Lifson, of Elizabeth, who requested it after his son's death. Mr. Lifson is a member of the firm of Miron & Lifson, which has a store on East Front street, this city, and he and his family are well known in Plainfield.

JACK MARTIN MANAGING THE MILWAUKEE PLAYERS

Jack Martin has been managing the Milwaukee club of the American Association down South in the place of the club's regular leader, who was called home by the illness of one of his family. Reports state that Jack is hitting hard and is in good condition. This is not the first time he has been at the helm of a ball club, as he led the Phillies' second team up North last spring.

MISSIONARY ALLIANCE.

Frank Storr, of West Front street, who has been seriously ill at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation a few days ago, is reported to be out of danger.

ATHENIANS CLAIM TITLE OF STATE

Rout Montclair Players—Seconds Lose to Plainfield Junior Five.

The Athenians claim the colored basketball championship of the State for teams of their weight, as a result of their victory on the Plainfield High School court last night over the Keystone Five of Montclair. The score was 49 to 12. In a game between the two teams at Montclair, an extra-inning tussle ended a tie, the Athenians being handicapped by the Montclair court.

Ralph Greene "chucked" in nine baskets last night. The Athenian Seconds lost by two points, 24-22, to the Plainfield Juniors. Venable made all but four of the losers' points.

FIND PLOT TO KILL EUROPE'S RULERS

Chicago Anarchist Confesses to Authorities.

Chicago, April 8.—Detectives searching through the anarchist clubs of Chicago for a clew to the whereabouts of Jean Crones, who poisoned the soup served at the banquet to Archbishop George W. Mundelein, have uncovered a plot to assassinate all of the rulers of Europe, according to a statement made by State's Attorney Hoyne. The information came to the state's attorney through an anarchist who says that he attended secret meetings at which lots were drawn to pick the assassins.

"I have promised to withhold the identity of my informant," Mr. Hoyne said. "I have investigators trying to obtain corroborative evidence. If they succeed I'll act. Otherwise I can do nothing.

"This man stated that secret meetings have been held in Chicago and a number of other cities and that he attended a meeting in this city at which lots were drawn for the purpose of picking the assassin. He said that the meetings were conducted with such secrecy that only the man chosen for the crime and the chairman or leader of his group of anarchists had knowledge of the particular ruler singled out for death."

When asked if the anarchist who supplied the information concerning the alleged plot was under arrest or in custody, Mr. Hoyne replied in the negative, but added that he knows the name, his whereabouts and can "easily reach him whenever he wants to."

BANDITS KILL POLICE.

St. Louis Auto Thieves Shoot One and Kidnap Another.

St. Louis, April 8.—Motorcycle Policeman John McKenna was shot and killed by one of two automobile bandits he had arrested, and Policeman William A. Dillon, who took up the chase after McKenna was slain, is missing. The police believe that Dillon was killed and his body carried away.

McKenna arrested the two men on suspicion of having stolen the car in which they were riding. He took them to an oil station to call a patrol and was shot down while at the telephone. Dillon picked up the trail later and followed the bandits into an alley. He has not been seen since.

SAFETY FIRST IN THE WATER.

While everyone is engrossed with the question of national preparedness for war, men and women—especially youths and girls—should give more consideration to personal preparedness for emergencies no less uncertain and perilous. Included in this latter category is the knowledge and ability to keep afloat in the water, and, if necessary, to assist another. All who go bathing or boating—and there are few who do not—should know how to swim, and should know how to employ the approved methods of rescue work in the water. Plainfielders who are not prepared along these lines will be ignoring an exceptional opportunity to become efficient if they fail to enroll in one of the Wednesday night classes to be formed in the Plainfield High School under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee. The cost is so small that it is of no importance. The subject is vital. Contrary to the general impression, there is more to swimming that the movements of the arms and limbs. Proper breathing is important in order to realize full conservation of the wind. With an opportunity to learn these important details under the tutelage of a capable instructor, there should be a rush of young people that will make more than two classes necessary.

The dark horse of the City Baseball League fight will be the Plainfield A. A. From the class of the players Manager Jones is signing, the new contenders will be worthy successors to the Saurer tossers, whose place in the league they take. To all intents and purposes, the city circuit is for amateurs, but it's going to have some of the fastest players that have starred in professional company hereabouts, and altogether will be about as speedy an amateur league as could be found anywhere.

Few card tournaments held here have involved as many players or interested so many rooters as the euchre contest between the Holy Name Societies of St. John's, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's churches. The tourney is an annual affair which is increasing in importance each year, and interests many members of each of the three societies.

What there is in the environment of a shaving shop that increases one's skill at pinochle we dunno, but the Gaub barbershop team is holding first place in the borough tourney. Maybe the players use the strops to sharpen their wits, or the scissors to cut the deck.

The local basketball season is passing out with the tamest climax in years. Not one real discussion has been started over the respective merits of city championship claimants—an unprecedented record.

WAR DECLARED ON THE "PEACE HAT"

War on the "peace hat," a late creation in spring millinery, is an imminent possibility. Women friends of the birds declare the dove with which the hat is trimmed must go before they will set the hat on their fair heads. They are for peace, they declare, but they say they will not advertise their principles at the price of an innocent bird's life.

Privately, those who are advocating the wearing of the "peace hat" have confessed that the alleged "dove" is not a "real-for-sure" dove at all. They say it is made of chicken feathers. Nevertheless the bird champions declare it looks like a real dove and they will not wear it. So there!

The subject has been brought to the attention of the National Association of Audubon Societies of America, the [illegible] authority on bird protection. The society is making a vigorous fight against the use of bird plumage for hat trimmings. Secretary Pearson says if the alleged "bird" is the body of a real dove, the Audubon authorities certainly are against its use in millinery.

"As long as they make these 'doves' out of the feathers of domestic birds, there can certainly be no objection to women wearing them," said Mr. Pearson, "unless perhaps it may be said that by doing so they are encouraging the general subject of feather-wearing.

"The feathers of wild birds cannot be obtained unless birds are killed," said Mr. Pearson, "and therefore should never be worn; on the other hand, ostrich feathers are legitimate as well as beautiful decorations and are approved by the Auduben societies."

TO FIGHT AGAINST GUARDSMEN'S PAY

Senators Charge Lobby Is Being Maintained.

Washington, April 8.—A determined fight to eliminate the national guard pay feature of the Chamberlain army bill as well as the Hay bill, recently passed by the house, is to be made on the senate floor by a strong faction led by Senator Borah of Idaho. Allegations have been made on the floor of the senate that the national guard organizations are maintaining a lobby here and are applying unusual methods to force the senate to accept the so called federalized militia provisions of the Hay bill.

Under the provisions of the Chamberlain bill, Senator Borah estimates, the federal appropriation to the national guard would be approximately $75,000,000 annually. It receives about $6,000,000 a year now. On the contention that history from the Revolutionary war down to the present time has demonstrated the folly of depending upon the national guard as a first line of defense Senator Borah will argue that the money can be better spent in adding more battleships to the naval program.

The effort to strike out the national guard pay provision will bring a lineup in the senate similar to that displayed when the senate voted 36 to 34 to retain the federal volunteer army section of the Chamberlain bill. However, some of the senators who voted for the federal volunteer army will also vote for the national guard pay feature.

Republicans Pick Harding.

Chicago, April 8.—Senator Warren G Harding of Ohio was chosen as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention by unanimous vote of the committee on arrangements of the Republican national committee at its meeting here. The subcommittee agreed upon Senator Harding after several hours' debate.

CHANCE FOR PRESS ADVERTISERS TO ATTRACT THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE COUNTY.

As the result of an agreement between the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Evening Times any advertiser placing a classified ad in the Press may have that same ad inserted in the Elizabeth Evening Times upon the payment of one-half more than is charged for the Daily Press insertion alone. Thus, if an advertisement in the Daily Press costs forty cents, the same advertisement may be placed in the Elizabeth paper for an additional twenty cents.

The Elizabeth Evening Times has a circulation of 9,000 and is widely distributed throughout Union County. Thus if an advertiser places his advertisement in the Plainfield Daily Press and Elizabeth Evening Times he places it before the eyes of thousands of readers at a very small cost.

Most advertisers welcome the opportunity to attract the attention of the whole county to their offerings and with the co-operation of the Elizabeth Evening Times the Plainfield Daily Press is now able to make this possible. The Elizabeth Evening Times has earned a reputation for itself as an advertising medium, especially along the classified line, and it is a well known fact that its influence extends into other counties besides Union.

DEATH COMES TO MR. SPANGENBERG

Former City Councilman Passes Away at His Home on Westervelt Avenue.

MEMBER OF "BIG SIX"

Was Known as the "Father" of the Trolley System Here—For Many Years He was Engaged in Cotton Business.

Former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg, aged 76 years, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 123 Westervelt avenue, following a long illness which became acute a week ago. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Birney S. Hudson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which Mr. Spangenberg was a member, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Spangenberg, who was a native of Philadelphia, was a retired cotton merchant for many years, having been associated with the brokerage firm of Henry Hentz, of New York, as junior partner of that concern. He was also financially interested in sugar plantations in New Orleans and in the late 70's took an active part in the supervision of the plantations formerly owned by his late father, who before the Civil War operated his plantations with slave labor.

Since Mr. Spangenberg's retirement from active business life in 1890, he had spent most of his time in Plainfield, where he always took a keen and active interest in the civic welfare of the city. He was a member of the City Council during the reign of the famous "Big Six," and with Mr. Spangenberg's death there remains but one living member of that body, Judge Walter L. Hetfield.

Many of Mr. Spangenberg's friends familiarly called him the "father of the Plainfield trolley," because he took such a prominent part in obtaining the original trolley franchise and in inducing the company to lay its tracks here when the population was much smaller than at the present time.

As chairman of the councilmanic fire committee he was instrumental in having the present Gamewell fire-alarm system installed here. His kindly and genial disposition won him a host of friends and when his last illness confined him to his home, his familiar personality on the streets was missed by all who knew him. He leaves beside his widow, one daughter, Mrs. David M. Runyon, and two sons, William P. and Alfred Spangenbeg, of this city.

MISS ISABELLE GLOAK BRIDE OF G. R. LYMAN

In the presence of only members of the two families, Miss Isabelle V. Gloak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Gloak, of East Second street, and George Raymond Lyman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, of Washington avenue, the borough, were married, the ceremony taking place in Vincent chapel, of the First M. E. church. Rev. C. M. Anderson was the officiating clergyman. The couple were attended by the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Lyman, as best man and matron of honor.

Miss Gloak was attired in a becoming traveling suit of blue taffeta and had a corsage bouquet of violets and lilies-of-the-valley. Her attendant wore a black taffeta suit and a corsage bouquet of violets and orchids. At the conclusion of the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman received congratulations, after which they left for a two weeks' trip to Atlantic City. Upon returning, they will make their home with the bridegroom's parents at 76 Washington avenue. Mr. Lyman is associated with his father in the real estate and insurance business in this city and has a wide local acquaintance. His bride is a native of Plainfield and also has a wide circle of friends.

GERMANY DENIES SUSSEX SINKING

Sends Official Disclaimer of Responsibility to U. S. Government.

AFFIDAVITS ON WAY

These Come From U. S. Consuls and Will Be Evidence Considered—Von Papen Heads German Spies That Overrun Holland.

Washington, April 10.—Germany has sent a disclaimer to this country on the sinking of the Sussex, declaring that there were no submarines in the territory where the vessel went down. It is believed that the threatened crisis between the two governments may be averted. It transpired today that the liner St. Paul, bearing the affidavits of the survivors of the Sussex, will not arrive at New York before Thursday, and that, therefore, it will be impossible to consider these affidavits in connection woth the case before Friday's Cabinet meeting.

Allied Monitor Disabled.

Constantinople, April 10 (via Berlin, wireless).—One of the three Allied monitors that were shelling the coast of Asia Minor, northwest of Uria, near Smyrna, was disabled by Turkish guns, and had to be towed away, it was announced by the Turkish War Office.

Berlin Papers Muzzled.

Amsterdam, April 10.—Private information from Berlin states that German newspapers were forbidden to report Saturday's session of the Reichstag because of the stormy scenes which were precipitated by the speechs of Dr. Karl Liebknacht, the Socialist leader.

Von Papen in Holland.

London, April 10.—Holland is being overrun with agents of the German Secret Service, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Chronicle today. The latest of these agents to arrive in Holland is Capt. Franz Von Papen, former military attache to the German Embassy in Washington.

Four Steamers Torpedoed.

London, April 10.—The past 24 hours have seen an increase in the campaign of German submarines. Up to noon, reports had been received of the torpedoing of four British steamships, whose tonnage totaled 13,805. The victims were the Zafra, 3,578 tons; Silksworth Hall, 4,777 tons; Glenalmond, 2,888 tons, and Yonne, 2,562 tons. Three members of the crew of the Silksworth Hall are missing.

German Losses 2,730,917.

London, April 10.—Newspapers here estimate the German losses up to this time at 2,730,917, this being the total of the losses shown in the various German casualty lists. Of this number, the dead 681,437.

Dutch Ship Commandeered.

San Francisco, April 10.—The steamer Van Der Dam, sailing under the flag of Holland, and at present lying in the Port of New York, has been peremptorily ordered by the Dutch Ambassador at Washington, Chevalier Van Reppard, to stop loading, according to a telegram to Joseph Di Giorgio, of Sacramento and New York, who is the principal charterer of the vessel.

WILL RESIDE IN PITTSBURG.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Frederickson, of Park avenue, will remove this week to Pittsburg, where Mr. Frederickson has made a five years' contract with the American Conduit Company, in whose employ he has been for some time. He is a son of former Police Captain Christian Frederickson and has been prominent in local baseball circles. Mrs. Frederickson was formerly Miss Lillian McInerney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McInerney, of Park avenue.

Dr. Biederwolf In Characteristic Poses As He Drives Home Truths at Tabernacle

DR. WILLIAM E. BIEDERWOLF.

Magnetic evangelist who began six weeks campaign for Christ in Plainfield with two services yesterday. In introducing himself to his audience at the morning service Dr. Biederwolf said: "I am 48 years old, weigh 180 pounds, and am married. Now we are acquainted."

WOMAN WATCHES AS NEGRO ROBS ROOM

Lieut. Higgins Catches Burglar a Few Hours Afterward, However.

James E. Statten, colored, dared rob a home on West Second street Friday night while Mrs. S. Pollock, who lived there, watched him. The woman was paralyzed with fright when she saw the burglar in her room, and was unable to scream for many minutes and Statten went about his work. When the woman finally found her voice and cried aloud for her son who was in the next room, the negro ran downstairs and out the back door, locking doors behind him so that the Pollock boy could not follow. His liberty was short-lived, however, for Lieut. Morris Higgins was detailed on the case Saturday morning and after only a few hours work he arrested the buglar and recovered most of the stolen property. The damaging evidence against Statten is a bag containing 200 pennies. It was found in his rooms at 617 South Second street when Lieut. Higgins arrested him and made a search. Mrs. Pollock runs a small store at 647 West Second street and lives upstairs. In addition to the pennies she lost $12. This has not been recovered. The negro will be tried tomorrow morning.

"MYSTIC ROSE" REHEARSAL AGAIN TOMORROW NIGHT

The second rehearsal for the comic opera, "The Mystic Rose," which is to be given in the Plainfield Theatre under the auspices of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, May 2 and 3, will take place in the lodge room tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. At the first rehearsal Thursday night over 130 attended and it has been learned that at least thirty or forty more women, together with a few additional men will be present tomorrow evening.

Mr. Skilling, the producer, has been hard at work selecting those who are to take leading parts and has been very successful in securing many of the leading local singers. The cast will no doubt be ready to announce by tomorrow evening. This afternoon the first rehearsal for the girls who are to make up the flower and butterfly ballet will be held under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Skilling.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEACHES

William R. Rathvon, C. S. B., Addresses Large Audience at Proctor's Theatre.

J. C. EVANS PRESIDES

Speaker Says to be Healed by Christian Science One Does Not Have to Understand it, Although it is Founded Upon the Bible.

John C. Evans, of the Plainfield High School faculty, who introduced William R. Rathvon, C. S. B., of Denver, who lectured on Christian Science at Proctor's Theatre yesterday afternoon, said:

"It is a pleasant task that I have to perform this afternoon. I am asked to introduce a man who brings to you, not a new religion, but new applications of the principles enunciated by Jesus of Nazareth nearly 2,000 years ago.

"Although Christian Science was announced only fifty years ago, yet its beneficent influence is felt today, either directly or indirectly, in almost every home in our great country. But, it has spread beyond the confines of America, and is being widely received in many foreign countries. It comes to these homes, as to the individual—to cheer, to comfort, to heal to bestow the choices of heaven's blessings.

"While I have not formally subscribed to the doctrines of Christian Science, yet with a large and increasing number of thinking people, I must acknowledge its 'good works' everywhere manifest.

"As I conceive it Christian Science means a higher spirituality, a clearer mental vision and a stronger, healthier body. Christian Science means the doing of the Word as well as hearing and believing it.

"I now introduce William R. Rathvon, C. S. B., of Denver, Colorado, member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Dr. Rathvon said:

FOUNDED UPON THE BIBLE.

To be healed in Christian Science, one does not have to understand it. Infidels frequently have been healed by it, but if one would understand it or apply it for himself he must believe in the Bible, for from first to last, from beginning to end, Chris-

AUTO DRIVERS ARE FINED IN COURT

Two Without License and One Without Lights Pay $10 Each.

It was a bad morning for automobile drivers in police court. Three were before Judge De Meza today and each received a fine of $10 or 20 days. Two were charged with driving an automobile without a license and without lights, and a third with having forgotten to light his headlights. Meyer Canter, a fifteen-year-old schoolboy, who lives at 200 West Fourth street, was arrested by Patrolman Wicht at Sandford avenue and Front street at 9:30 Saturday evening. He had no lights and when stopped by the officer could not show a driver's license. He was fined $10. Charles Barry, driver of a taxicab, was arrested for driving on Park avenue at a late hour without headlights. He paid a fine of $10. William Johnston, coloredfi was arrested by Sergt. Saffron on Park avenue at 3 a. m. Sunday. Johnston had no license, but was driving an automobile. He had failed to light his lights; and for both offenses he paid a fine of $10.

HORSE RUNS AWAY WHEN AUTO DEMOLISHES WAGON

A wagon owned and driven by Daniel Kiederling, of West Second street, was struck by the automobile of H. C. Irons, of 451 West Eighth street, Saturday night on Park avenue, near the corner of Ninth street. The automobile was being driven by W. G. Irons, a son of the owner. B. J. Banks, of Netherwood, was a passenger in the wagon, which was practically demolished. The horse ran away after the accident, but no one was hurt. Mr. Irons admitted responsibility for the accident and no arrests were made.

SOLOISTS FOR CANTATA.

The sacred cantata "Bethany" to be given in St. Joseph's church, Wednesday night, will begin promptly at eight o'clock. The soloists are soprano, Miss Irma Good; contralto, Mrs. F. M. Ward; tenor, Randall Trumpe, and bass, Alvah Dunham. A chorus of forty voices will assist. Stephen Haff will preside at the organ while Mrs. Harry DeMeza will play the piano. J. E. Bailey is the director. A collection will be taken up at the conclusion of the rendition.

BIEDERWOLF TALKS TO 9,000 AT TWO GREAT MEETINGS

Evangelist Opens Plainfield Campaign In Great Tabernacle Speaking to Crowd of 3,000 In Morning.

CHOIR FEATURE AT NIGHT SERVICE

COLLECTIONS FOR FIRST DAY REACH $1,000, GOAL AIMED FOR—SERMONS INSPIRING AND HOLD RAPT ATTENTION OF THRONGS—CHORUS MUSIC SUCH AS NEVER BEFORE BEEN HEARD IN THIS CITY

The Rev. William E. Biederwolf opened his evangelistic campaign at the Tabernacle on Giraud avenue yesterday to two audiences that totaled fully nine thousand people—over three thousand in the morning and nearly six thousand in the evening; and if the first day is prophetic of the full six weeks, Plainfield is to be stirred in every strata of society by the messages that the evangelist has come to deliver. In each of the thousands who heard him, he aroused not only forgotten principles of Christianity, but an interest in the meetings that cannot fail to lead to large crowds during the entire revival, and to that for which he and his associates are giving their time and energy, an awakening of the individual conscience and converts to the cause.

The crowds were made up of all sorts of people. That at the morning service could easily be identified as a congregation of churchgoers, but in the evening there flocked into the Tabernacle, men, women and children wearing the stamp of every distinctive class of Plainfield citizenship, and irrespective of the motives which actuated their coming, all remained to worship. Dr. Biederwolf did not ask for converts at either service. In the morning he told of the wonderful love of God and at night he recited some of the shortcomings of the average man and woman that may be called Christian in the hasty, worldly usage of the word.. He was only "warming-up" — getting acquainted with Plainfielders for the work he is to do for them; and he succeeded admirably.

The collection at the morning service was $813.25, and in the evening $286.19 more, a total of $1,099.44.

Much of the morning was spent in announcements, as all arrangements have not been perfected for the gigantic campaign to be conducted here by Dr. Biederwolf and his party under the auspices and with the help of local ministers, but Dr. Biederwolf at last got down to his sermon and when the audience walked out at 12 o'clock it was with the conviction that the man would bring about an upheaval of conditions during his six weeks' promised stay here.

Dr. Biederwolf is forceful and frank; original and aggressive; at times dynamic and dominating; again an humble pleader, but always reverently religious. He is tall, broad-shouldered, with a strong, well-lined face, topped by a broad forehead, accentuated by a bald upper surface. He holds the attention of every individual in the Tabernacle from the moment he steps onto the platform. He speaks clearly and in unmistakable terms, not always following the strict rules of grammar, as he admitted yesterday, but he advised that no one become alarmed at this, as he once was a teacher of grammar and only defied it when he sought to bring home a thought that might otherwise elude his audience. He will preach to all the people of Plainfield, he said, and asked that all bear in mind that men and women of every class will attend the services; some from the streets, others from the work bench, and others from palatial homes. Some will come with their minds fresh and active, others with brain and body tired from labor. There will be minds that are trained and receptive, others that are sluggish and defiant, and his messages must be so delivered that they will reach all.

"Some will come out of curiosity," said the evangelist. "Perhaps there are some church people in the audience this morning who came out of curiosity. If there is, I hope you will ask God to forgive you before you leave this building. But the others, those that do not know God, let them come, whether sent by curiosity or not."

The acoustics of the Tabernacle were perfect, and everyone, whether in the front row of seats, or standing against the extreme far end of the building, could plainly hear each spoken word. The seats are extremely comfortable for such a building, and only the most fastidious could voice an objection on this ground, or any other that developed yesterday. At the morning service the large coal stoves did not heat the big structure to exactly the proper temperature, and Dr. Biederwolf commented upon this; but there was no discomfort.

The total collection at the two Biederwolf services of yesterday fell only a little short of $1,100. The total atendance was more than 9,000, which meant that an average of

BIEDERWOLF BOMBS

"It is not the will of God that anyone should perish."

"Wrap the banner of God's love around you and all the powers of Hell can't touch you."

"Public opinion don't help you out any in God's sight."

"Could your wife stand around on the street corners and chew and spit and damn and be a lady?"

"If the athiests and infidels and other rebels against Jesus Christ don't like our public schools where the word of God is read, let 'em take their kids and hike out and found schools of their own."

"You can get 98 pages of scandal and social filth in a Sunday newspaper for five cents, but a man with a bunch of stuff like that in his hands don't look any more like a Christian than a turkey buzzard does like a bird of Paradise."

"The only difference is that we send the little thieves to jail and the big ones to the legislature."

MISS ANNA WIEDENHAUPT GIVES A BARN DANCE

Miss Anna Wiedenhaupt, of 308 Madison avenue, gave a barn dance at her home Saturday evening to a number of her friends. To obtain the desired effect the floor near the sidewalls of the rooms was decorated with straw and the girls worn aprons and sunbonnets and the fellows overalls.

Dancing, which commenced early in the evening to music furnished by Alfred Squire, of Plainfield, at the piano, lasted until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served to the guests who squatted on the straw. After the refreshments dancing was continued until 2 o'clock. Punch was served throughout the evening.

The following were present at the affair: Earl Washburn and Arthur Linscott, of Brooklyn; Miss Louise Chapman, Miss Nettie Carnes and John McGuire, of Westfield; Miss Wanda Norma, Harold Nelson and Dudley Dudlop, of Elizabeth; Miss Irma Ewald, Miss Gertrude Loveland, Herbert Reusch and Lyman Loveland, of Cranford; Miss Hazel LaManquis, Miss Velma Littell and Miss Norma LaManquis, of Bound Brook; William Young, of Plainfield; Miss Hazel Watson, Miss Martha Krayzel and Adam and Kenneth Dealaman, of this place.

ATTEND A WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Morse attended the wedding of Mrs. Morse's niece, Miss Helen Lawrence, of Jefferson avenue, North Plainfield, to Ventrice Thaw, of Roselle Park, Saturday night. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Lawrence.

BOY SCOUTS REORGANIZE.

Troop No. 1 of the local Boy Scouts reorganized for the year at a meeting held in the Presbyterian chapel the last part of the week. Scoutmaster C. T. Voorhees presided over the meeting. Howard Bloomfield was elected patrol leader and Theodore Oakley assistant patrol leader.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF FRANK VAN NUIS HELD

"Valmere Cottage," the late home of Frank Van Nuis, who died at Daytona, Fla., Wednesday, was thronged at the funeral service held yesterday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. Mr. Robinson, pastor of the Stelton Baptist church, of which the deceased had long been a member. Two hymns, "Asleep in Jesus" and "Saved By Grace," were sung during the course of the service by a quartet formed by the Misses Hazel Piddington and Gertrude Bunting and Mahlon R. Dayton and John Nelson. They were accompanied by Miss Edith Giles at the piano.

Among the floral tributes were beautiful pieces from Friendship and Lakeside Councils and the Owl Club, to which the deceased belonged. The burial was in the Middlesex Hillside cemetery alongside of the remains of the first wife. The pall-bearers were: Charles, William and Alfred Van Nuis, George and Stanley Day and George Harris.

The ritual service of Friendship Council was performed at the grave by Councilor Alfred Nelson and Chaplain W. F. Mets, and the members of the council sang one verse of "Nearer My God to Thee."

DeWitt Fulton, who has been suffering from blood poisoning and a complication of troubles, is better.

Master Elliott Penrose has the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pfeister entertained their daughter, Miss Kathryn Pfeister, of Jersey City, yesterday.

Mrs. Abe Victorson and daughter returned home last evening from Newark, where they spent a month as the guests of Mrs. Victorson's mother, Mrs. Rose Radler.

South Plainfield.

Plans are out for the new addition which will be made on the machine shop at the Spicer plant. Elias Bailey, the local contractor, received the contract for the grading, and he started his work a few days ago. The new building will enable the company to employ at least three hundred more men, and it will mean that in two months when the building is completed, there will be over 1,000 men employed at the plant. The company is over-rushed with work at present, and they are taking on additional men every day.

The office force of the Spicer Manufacturing Company will hold an invitation dance in the new office building this evening at 8 o'clock. Music will be furnished by Squier's orchestra, of Plainfield. Arrangements have been made with the Suburban Transit Co. to make special trips to and from Plainfield, as a very large number of people from Plainfield are expected.

The monthly meeting of the Piscataway Township Committee will be held in Hotel Nelson, New Morket, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Owing to the weather yesterday the usual baseball practice for the local baseball team was postponed.

There is still much interest being shown in the pool tournament which is being conducted at William Norman's pool parlor, "Bill" Teeple and Phil Smith both have their first game to lose. The tournament is being conducted on a handicap basis, so that each match will be close. There are nineteen entries and the standing of the players will soon be announced.

FINE PERFORMANCE OF TAMING OF THE SHREW

P. H. S. Seniors Present Shakespeare's Comedy Before Large Audience.

Presenting "The Taming of the Shrew," the Senior class of the Plainfield High School delighted a large audience in the school auditorium Saturday night, when the members of the cast interpreted their parts in a way that would have done credit to much older and more experienced actors.

Miss Ruth Voorhees, as Katherine, a beautiful maiden, who is compelled to wed against her wishes, played her part to perfection, while Richmond Ritterbusch, as the bold Petruchio, a suitor for the young woman's hand, did full justice to his part. William Victorson, who as an English lord is always looking for sport, and Herbert Peacock, as Baptista, the rich and persevering father of Katherine, also fitted well into their parts, while the humorous incidents in the play were skilfully handled by Harold Seal, as Grumio. Christopher Sly, a drunken, rollicking tinker, was impersonated by Minor Trowbridge.

A large part of the credit for the success of the affair is due to the excellent coaching of Harold F. Biddle, and the result was one of the best plays ever presented by a Senior class of the High School. The arrangement of the electrical and scenic effects was in charge of R. W. Lord, while William Backer was the business manager.

The members of the cast follow: A Lord, William Victorson; Christopher Sly, a tinker, Minor Trowbridge; a hostess, Charlotte Taylor; page, supposed wife of Sly, Marion Lockwood; Baptista, a rich gentleman of Padua, Herbert Peacock; Petaruchio, a gentleman of Verona and suitor to Katherine, Richmond Ritterbusch; Hortensio, husband to Bianca, Harold Neely; Pedro, servant to Baptista, Louis Starkweather; Biondello, servant to Baptista, William Snowden; Grumio, servant to Petrichio, Harold Seal; Walter, Nathaniel, Gregory and Gabriel, all servants of Petruchio, Eustace Eggie, John Richards, William Backer and William Whelan; a music master, Elizabeth Chickering; Katherine, the Shrew, Ruth Voorhees; Bianca, Florence Neilson; Curtis, housekeeper to Petruchio, Mary Somlock; the tailor, Leon Weintrob; the messenger, Ruth Thomas; extra ladies, Ethel Rosenson, Dorothy Peacock, Olive Lawrence, Marion Lynn, Mildred Burnett, Irma Waldorf, Elizabeth Heidelhoff and Gertrude Blimm.

WEDDING CEREMONY TO TAKE PLACE IN NEW YORK

Miss Eleanor Ryckman Brown, daughter of Mrs. Howard McWilliams, of this city and New York, and Edwin Muller, Jr., of Lexington, Kentucky, will be married Tuesday evening, April 25, at 8 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church, New York City. Rev. Edwin Muller, of Lexington, father of the bridegroom-elect, will perform the ceremony assisted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this city.

Miss Brown has been quite prominent in the younger society set of Plainfield and New York since making her debut in this city some time ago. Her father was the late Paul Taylor Brown. Mr. Muller is a member of an old and well-known Southern family.

"CHURCH DAY" OBSERVANCE.

"Church Day" will be observed at the First M. E. church tomorrow by the women's societies, beginning at 11:30 o'clock in the morning, when the Foreign Missionary Society meets. Luncheon will be served at noon. The Home Missionary Society will meet at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 2:30 o'clock, the Ladies' Aid Society will convene.

WOOD AT WESTFIELD.

Major-General Leonard Wood, who will be in Plainfield, April 29, will talk in the Westfield High School auditorium tomorrow evening. He will arrive at 7:30 o'clock, and will be escorted to the new school by the Westfield band and a citizens' committee of fifty.

SCOUT COUNCIL TO MEET.

The Boy Scout Council of Plainfield will hold its monthly business meeting this evening in the lecture room of the Public Library at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

COMMISSION RULE URGED.

Montclair Civic Association Launches Movement.

Montclair, N. J., April 10.—Action looking toward the adoption of commission form of government for Montclair was taken at the annual meeting of the Montclair Civic association. President James H. Kennedy was authorized to appoint a committee, with Dallas Flannagan as chairman, to take up the question with the possible view of bringing about an official referendum.

Recently much dissatisfaction has been expressed with the present form of town government because it does not centralize responsibility, the mayor being mayor in name only, without any real power.

Jail Contracts Sustained.

Trenton, April 10.—The supreme court has sustained the Hudson county freeholders in awarding three contracts for a new jail costing with site more than $1,000,000 to W. H. and F. W. Cane.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

tian Science is founded upon the Bible of our forefathers.

Besides the Bible there is but one other text book of Christian Science, the book "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, and this book I would commend to every one who would learn for himself at first hand the teachings and practices of Christian Science. A copy may be obtained through any Christian Scientist. How comprehensive and inclusive is that book may be seen when I name to you the headings of some of its chapters, as follows: Prayer; Atonement and Eucharist; Marriage; Christian Science versus Spiritualism; Animal Magnetism Unmasked; Science, Theology, Medicine; Physiology; Footsteps of Truth; Creation; Science of Being; Some Objections Answered; Teaching Christian Science; Recapitulation.

All of Christian Science is contained in that book, and whatever I may here give of some of its teaching is but a small part of what is far better expressed in the book itself.

Christian Science is not a religion of words but of works. To talk Christian Science enthusiastically and indiscriminately without having lived it persistently, is to invite opposition where we had hoped for acceptance. It often produces prejudice instead of support, incredulity instead of belief. More good can be done by ten minutes of right thinking than by hours of talking to those who do not care to hear.

It is not the power of the human mind that heals in Christian Science, but the power of the divine Mind—God Himself.

The word "mind" as used in Christian Science, has a two-fold application. When used in its highest sense it always means God, unchanging good, and when so used in our literature it is always capitalized. This marks it clearly and differentiates it from the word "mind" as ordinarily used, as when one would speak of the mind of man, the human mind and the like.

When the despondent invalid recognizes that God never made a man sick nor a sick man; that on the contrary He has given to man unbroken health; that sickness is an imposition of mortal mind and is illegitimate, abnormal, unrighteous, without divine law, recognition, or sanction, he is then ready to turn to divine Mind, God Himself, "Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases."—(Psalms 103:3).

A man's highest ideas of God can be no higher than his highest conceptions of good, but they should always be that high, for God is infinite, unchanging good.

Here let it be said, and we say it in all humility, that among all forms of the Christian religion, the Christian Science church is the only one that in its praying associates the mother's tender love and watchful care, with the Father's infinite wisdom, protection and power. It is the only church that prays, "Our Father-Mother God."

RIGHT THINKING.

There is a sentence in the text book of Christian Science, which tells us "that all causation is Mind." (Science and Health page 417-13.) This being true it follows that a thought of some kind is the foundation, the starting point of every action and that right habits of thinking lead to right habits of living.

Every word that a man has ever said, idle word or pregnant word, every deed he has ever done, shameful deed or worthy deed, has sprung from the seed of a thought.

The world is slowly awakening to the large part that thought has in determining the effect of occurrences.

Christian Science teaches the art of forgetting the things that are evil and remembering the things that are good. And it is an art to forget evil, for you know how it reaches out and clutches at your thought and forces itself upon you at every opportunity. Yet, nothing but evil can come from thinking of evil and there is no surer way of expelling evil from our lives than to follow the words of the Founder of Christian Science, "Keep your minds so filled with Truth and Love, that sin, disease, and death cannot enter them." (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany 210.)

PRAYER.

Prayer in Christian Science is not an affair of words but of living; not of eloquence, but of character. It is not the man who in public begs the loudest or the longest or with the greatest fluency, whose prayers are answered.

Briefly to consider what constitutes prayer in Christian Science, let us take a few extracts from its text book, Science and Health. On the fourth page of the remarkable chapter on "Prayer," Mrs. Eddy uses these words:

"The habitual struggle to be always good is unceasing prayer."

"What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds."

"Self-forgetfulness, purity, and affection are constant prayers."

In Christian Science there are no formal prayers for special occasions. It has no prayer book. The Lord's Prayer is repeated in unison at all Christian Science services, and it is invariably preceded by a few moments of silent prayer by the congregation. Besides this, there is one short prayer recommended for daily use. So simple is it, yet so reverent in its phraseology, so direct, yet so universal in its inclusions, so free from every suggestion of sect or doctrine is it, that it can be used unreservedly by any sincere man or woman of any church or no church. Here it is as Mrs. Eddy has given it to us:

"'Thy Kingdom come;' let the reign of divine Truth, Life, and Love be established in me, and rule out of me all sin; and may Thy Word enrich the affections of all mankind, and govern them!"

(Manual Art. VIII Sec. 4.)

The day that is begun with this prayer or any other equally unselfish and uplifting, is sure to be a better, happier, healthier, and holier day because of it.

Healing in Christian Science is always by means of prayer. The word generally used is "treatment," but it is always to be understood that a Christian Science treatment is a prayer, and just in the proportion that it is a righteous prayer, does it heal the sick and reform the sinner.

GRATITUDE VERSUS DISCOURAGEMENT.

Christian Science is showing that true gratitude, the gratitude that is expressed in deed as well as in thought and word is more than a mere Christian grace, it is a Christian necessity. Not that God needs our gratitude, but that we need to give it to Him. Gratitude takes our thought from getting to giving, and he who gives good gets good.

Perhaps you may find it difficult to be grateful to God. Many people do. Let me tell you how to make it easy. Whatever of good comes to you, be it little good, or great, think of it as coming to you direct from God. For everything that brings to you quiet joy, or peace, or true delight, be it merely the smile on the face of a child, or the fragrance of a flower, or the daily opening of the welcoming door at your home, or the nightly closing of your eyes in sleep; be it some worthy action well done, or the timely uplift of a friendly hand; be it song or sermon; beauty, art, or science; for every good that comes to you, let some thought of gratitude to God ring through the innermost chambers of your heart of hearts. Do this faithfully and soon you will be doing it easily and soon, too, you will find yourself so frequently in the sweet company of happiness that life will seem to be beginning anew. And it will be the beginning of new things, for gratitude is one of the gateways through which God's blessings enter men's lives. If we keep it shut, need we wonder why more of good does not come to us?

The man who is ill, the man who is unfortunate, the man who is afflicted, the man who has not that which he needs if he wonders why, will do well to ask himself often, "Am I grateful enough for what I already have?" And the man who is discouraged has but to invite gratitude into his consciousness to see discouragement vanish like darkness before the undimmed sun. And here let it be said that there is not one man on this green earth today, but who can find something for which to be grateful to God, if he will but hunt for it honestly and earnestly.

Christian Science is tearing the mask from the gloomy face of discouragement and is exposing it in its true colors. It may be truly said that nine people out of ten submit to discouragement without resistance because they do not know any better. They do not know that it is not only bad, but dangerous. They do not know that it is a mental intruder, a moral nuisance that should never be tolerated but always shunned as one would shun infectious disease.

The Bible tells us that the prayer of faith shall save the sick. What may we not expect then of the prayer in which there is not only the abundance of faith but also of understanding, of that essential knowledge of God, of wisdom, of gratitude, of unselfed love? And every Christian Science treatment that is made up of these elements of righteousness, as every Christian Science treatment should be made up, heals the sick and the sinning and comforts the sorrowing, and with it comes a consciousness of God's protecting care and infinite affection, a consciousness that leads to higher aspirations and purer desires, that makes men and women want to be better and want to know how to be better, that they may share in God's infinite mercy and justice and love.

A Want Ad Is Often the First Link in a Chain of Consequences

It initiates something of far-reaching importance to you. You meet someone with whom you will do business for years—or you buy or sell property that changes the currents of your daily affairs. Many a want ad is of but transient importance of course. But others influence your life for years and years.

FRENCH QUIT BETHINCOURT

Evacuate Village at Point of Verdun Salient.

NEW LINE HOLDING FIRM

Move Has Been Expected For Several Days—Withdrawal Is Followed by Furious Battle—Germans Gain Footing at One Point, but Counter Attacks Dislodge Them.

Paris, April 10.—The French troops have evacuated the village of Bethincourt, which formed the apex of the salient on the western bank of the Meuse. The Germans have been pounding this position for days with heavy artillery.

The new line withstood the most furious assaults which have been made by the crown prince's army in many days.

As now established the French line in this sector runs from the Avocourt redoubt along the wooded slopes to the west of hill 304, follows the Forges creek to the northeast of Haucourt and joins the positions already held to the south of the crossing of the Bethincourt-Esnes and Bethincourt-Chattancourt roads.

The evacuation of Bethincourt, in itself only a small ruined village, has had the effect of flattening the point of the salient, although the successful holding by the French of the line on the Forges creek to the west of Bethincourt and the line just south of the village leaves a still very pronounced salient projecting into the German lines, with the two very important hills 304, east of Haucourt, and Le Mort Homme, southeast of Bethincourt, within it.

Bethincourt lies in the Forges valley at its junction with a valley running into the Forges valley from the south and was at the mercy of the German guns on the hills at three sides. The new French line skirts the higher ground to the south.

Attack Follows Evacuation.

From the incomplete information now available it seems probable that the violent German attack on the western side of the river, made simultaneously with two extremely heavy assaults on the western banks, thus practically covering the whole Verdun front, was undertaken by the Germans as soon as they learned of the withdrawal from Bethincourt in the hope of finding the new French line in this sector not yet strong enough to resist them.

The evacuation of Bethincourt has been regarded as military experts for some days as a military necessity, since it was evident that the group of ruins representing the village was so situated as to make it practically untenable under the protracted fire of the German heavy artillery. The German commanders, anticipating the withdrawal, appear to have timed their attack, which might almost be called a general assault on the Verdun front, to coincide with the evacuation. But the evacuation had been safely completed in the night, and the troops were waiting in the new trenches at the rear when the attack finally was made.

The attack was centered against two sectors on the western bank of the river, one extending from the Bois d'Avocourt to the Forges creek and the other from Le Mort Homme to Cumieres.

New Line Held Firm.

Details of the fighting have not yet been received, but the official announcement indicates that it was of a most violent character. At one point, on the southern end of the Bois d'Avocourt, a German assaulting column gained a temporary footing in a French position, but was immediately driven out by a counter attack.

This single position appears to be the only point on the whole Verdun front where the extensive German attack, repeated time after time and lasting practically all day, gained even a temporary advantage.

Dense formtions, which had been abandoned by the Germans in their recent attacks in favor of a more open order and the employment of five separate waves of men, were used again in the assault on the front between Le Mort Homme and Cumieres. The Germans, debouching from their positions in the Cumieres wood, advanced in masses under the concentrated fire of the French 75's and mitrailleuses. The French fire broke up the formations and the Germans finally withdrew, leaving hundreds of dead on the field. Repeated assaults were made on Le Mort Homme, and here again the Germans lost heavily.

On the eastern bank of the river the attack did not get beyond the stage of artillery preparation, the Germans not being able to leave their positions.

The Cote du Poivre and the Douaumont-Vaux sector were the portions of the French line against which the German artillery directed its most violent fire on the eastern bank, the French second lines being shelled with particular thoroughness. French guns replied at once and won a fire superiority that rendered an infantry attack impracticable.

Heavy French artillery concentrated its fire on lines of communication in the Argonne, to the northwest of Malancourt, while German re-enforcements were being brought up.

TO HOLD CAKE SALE.

The Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will hold a cake sale, Saturday morning and afternoon, in the vacant store on the Madison avenue side of the Babcock building.

PARENTS OF A BOY.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ward, of North Plainfield, are the parents of a ten-pound boy, born yesterday morning.

THE TELEPHONE OPERATOR'S STANDARD.

Over and over again come the evidences that nothing is too impossible for an operator to do when a subscriber is depending on her as the only means of assistance in a crisis. Every new example raises the standard a bit higher, but still the operators measure up to it. They step into the breach whenever the subscribers call on them for emergency service.

The Telephone Review, N. Y., in illustrating this truth affirms that:

"Sometimes it means simply keeping her head; sometimes it means putting two and two together more quickly than it was ever done before, and finding out by hint and intuition and fragments of a sound what it is the subscriber needs; sometimes it means calling on every ounce of ingenuity and resourcefulness she can muster, to fill those needs; and sometimes—usually—it takes patience and persistence and pluck.

"An incident occurred recently, in Poughkeepsie, when Miss Margaret Burr was called upon to use all these faculties and that she did it and did it well is witnessed by the following letter from the subscriber to Miss Potter, chief operator at Poughkeepsie:

"Dear Miss Potter;—

"On the 12th inst., at noon, I was in immediate need of a doctor's service for my little boy.

"At this time also, in Poughkeepsie, a meeting of the Dutchess County Medical Society was in session, making but few doctors available. Who these few were was a question. With absolutely no one to help me I told the operator, whom I found later to be Supervisor No. 2 (Miss Margaret Burr), I must have a doctor. Just how this operator caught what I said in my excited condition, and how she was able to get me a doctor under the above conditions, surely is beyond one outside of such an efficient office. I congratulate you most highly for the very efficient mark reached at the Poughkeepsie office."

HUMAN SERVICE.

The following letter which we reprint from The Telephone Review, N. Y., needs no comment to add to its deep pathos and sincere feeling, but it may serve as one striking reminder to many who have been less conscious of the fact that telephone service is rendered by young women of human sympathies and sensibilities, and not by a machine:

General Manager, Flatbush Branch, New York Telephone Company,

Dear Sir: It gives me a great satisfaction to know that I can call to your thoughtful attention and consideration my little story of perfect service from one of your operators.

Throughout the past three months I have been constantly in need of intelligent, kindly and instantaneous service.

My only son lay dying with tuberculosis and finally passed away. It was often necessary for me to come into instant communication with several different people during those final months and, also, just after he died.

In my well-nigh distracted state of mind, I had the assurance of knowing that the moment I removed my receiver from its hook I would hear the sympathetic kindly voice and get the painstaking service of Operator 65.

This is all I have been able to learn of her, but I say, deep down from a mother's heart, "God bless No. 65, and may she know through her employers that her faithful services have been appreciated."

Perhaps the secret of such human service as the telephone operator gives is in a measure traceable to the spirit of her superiors, and the atmosphere which they endeavor to promote in the central office. We glean something of this from the comment of the telephone manager in transmitting the above letter to the Chief Operator:

It must be very gratifying to realize that in our "Day's Work" we have been able to so shape our efforts as to give such entire satisfaction and happiness as is expressed by the writer of the attached letter, and I am sure that there is nothing that I can add to this letter to prove that courtesy and efficient service do bring their own reward.

TRIBUTE TO OPERATORS.

Fast is the day passing when the jokesmith, failing in any other topic dare turn his barbed witticisms upon the telephone operator. She is too important a personage in the everyday activities of the world—social, domestic, and business—and she has by her sound sense, quick-wittedness, and bravery in the emergency, impressed upon the public's mind that she who can meet the crisis when it comes so suddenly must ordinarily be faithful and efficient in her commonplace, everyday duties.

And there are many examples that proves this to be so. Two young boys living in a small town in Ohio went to the well one day to fetch a pail of water. In this case, as in the nursery rhyme, "Jack fell down." Head first he toppled in and his brother was so frightened that he could do nothing but run back home screaming. The father started for the well, but the mother (wise woman) ran to the telephone. The doctor she called failed to answer and, nearly frantic, she hastily told the operator about the accident, asking for any physician.

The operator made an emergency call and secured a physician and then reported the call to her supervisor. That supervising operator was Miss Nora Harrison. I want you to know her name because I honor her for her quick wit and horse sense. She immediately got the fire department where she knew that a pulmotor was located, and the Fire Chief with that apparatus and the doctor arrived at the same time. That saved a life. The doctor himself wrote the Company that without the pulmotor the boy would surely have died.—L. H. Kinnard in The Telephone Review, N. Y.

TOLEDO CAR STRIKE ENDS.

Men Get Wage Increase, but Will Work Under Open Shop Rule.

Toledo, O., April 10.—The Toledo street car strike is settled and the operation of cars has been resumed.

The men received an increase in wages of 3 cents an hour, but will not be permitted to wear union buttons, and the open shop rule will prevail.

SPECIAL SERVICE TONIGHT.

There will be a special preaching service in the Grace M. E. church this evening. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. F. J. Hubach, the district superintendent.

THINK JIMMIE GLASS IS FOUND

Parents of Lost Boy on Way to Kentucky.

CLEWS APPEAR RELIABLE

Boy Has Been Missing Since May 12, 1915, When He Disappeared at Greeley, Pa.—Child Bears Marked Resemblance to the Missing Youngster.

Jersey City, April 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Glass, parents of little Jimmie Glass, for whom a country wide search has been maintained ever since he disappeared on May 12, 1915, left their home at 13 Lienau place, Jersey City, for Nicholasville, Ky., where a boy has been discovered who they believe is the most likely of any found yet to be their missing son.

Mr. and Mrs. Glass first heard of him when they received letters saying that a Mrs. Martha Miller of Nicholasville was keeping a youngster who answered the description of the long sought Jimmie. The communications, which came from neighbors of the woman, were not considered by Mrs. Glass to be any more important than the clews to her son's whereabouts which have been coming in almost daily since she began her search.

But the accounts of this boy seemed to fit the description of Jimmie Glass so closely that after the neighbors sent photographs of the lad which showed a facial resemblance Mrs. Glass started an active investigation.

The youngster had forgotten his name and where he lived. But he could remember that he had a sister named Blanche and another, Madeline, as well as Aunt Emma, the same as the long sought Jimmie. He recalled going to a postoffice one day and playing with his sister, Blanche, when a woman drove up in an automobile and took him away.

where they went is hazy.

As these details squared with Jimmie's disappearance from in front of the postoffice at Greeley, Pike county, Pa., Mrs. Glass sent pictures of herself, her husband and the two girls to Nicholasville. Word came back that the boy recognized the portraits and said he wanted to "go home to his mamma."

The story told by Mrs. Miller was to the effect that last June two men and a woman attired in man's clothing brought the boy to her farm, promising to pay board for him. They did not keep their promise, and when Mrs. Miller did not see them again she began talking resentfully among her acquaintances. She was unable to read or write, and so knew nothing of the reward of $500 that was offered for Jimmie Glass.

Her acquaintances, however, had read of the search for him in the newspapers and noted the likeness in appearance of Mrs. Miller's charge. Some of them believed they had seen a woman resembling the one who had accompanied the child living about forty miles from Nicholasville.

While the three were in her house, Mrs. Miller said, a quarrel broke out among them, and the woman exclaimed angrily to the men: "You've done enough in this case to be arrested for kidnaping. So you'd better shut up!"

HOUSE MAY HAVE TO EMPLOY GAG RULES

Leaders Plan Measures to Speed Legislation.

Washington, April 10.—The agreement in the senate to speed up its legislative program probably will be followed by action in the house limiting debate on practically all measures called up for consideration hereafter. The house situation is such that the leaders feel that the rules committee soon must step in with a series of "gag rules" to expedite legislation.

Despite the desire of legislators to get away before the end of the summer, there is little prospect today for adjournment before late July or August. The fundamental measures of the comprehensive program of the administration have not been reached in either body. Work is far behind on the appropriation bills. The house, for instance, must yet consider such important bills as the sundry civil, fortifications, agriculture, diplomatic and consular, army, navy and District of Columbia, all annual appropriation measures.

It is the tentative plan of the rules committee to prepare a series of rules limiting debate on these major measures as fast as they are called up. If an agreement can be reached in the house to shut off so many hours of needless discussion the house leaders will not be inclined to apply the "gag." Otherwise the rules committee will put through rules stipulating that hereafter in each case all debate shall be confined to the subject matter of the pending bill and that general debate shall be reduced to a minimum.

MARRIED BY JUDGE.

City Judge William G. DeMeza, Saturday afternoon officiated at the wedding of Miss Nora Leonard, of Watchung avenue, to Ernest Blackman, of 441 Downer street, Westfield. The ceremony was performed in Judge DeMeza's office on Park avenue.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

New York—The New York courts have upheld the will of Annie Coe MacDowell, who died in Yonkers two years ago, leaving her fortune of $63,000 in trust for the establishment of a home of refuge for women who are forced to live unhappily with relatives. Miss MacDowell was 70 years old when she made her will. She lived for a long time with her sister in Yonkers, and the latter's husband. There was occasional friction in the family, at which time Miss MacDowell would live elsewhere. So she decided to leave her fortune to aid women similarly situated. She especially named her own relatives as preferences for the benefit of the home. She made it clear in the will that the inmates could go and come as they pleased, were not to be subjected to rules. A long contest over the will ensued, in which it was claimed that the intention of the testatrix was selfish rather than charitable. The high court as upheld the will, and thereby established a precedent.

St. Louis—The Town Club, of this city, a woman's civic organization, is conducting a membership campaign, with the object of opening a woman's restaurant downtown and clubrooms where women may meet for discussions. The Town Club has had about 400 members, and this number is being raised to 1400. The membership includes business, professional and homekeeping women who are interested in the social, civic and economic advance of the city.

Spokane.—Mrs. Sarah E. Flannigan, of this city, will be the second Washington woman to go to a political convention, it is expected. She is a Progressive, and believes the Republicans and Progressives will get together at their Chicago convention. The late Mrs. May A. Hutton was the first Washington woman delegate to a national convention, having sat in the Baltimore convention of the De the Baltimore convention of the Democrats four years ago. Mrs. Flannigan is chairman of the legislative committee of the Spokane Federation of Women's Clubs, and has demonstrated that women can wield an important influence in politics. Before going to the Chicago convention, she will attend the biennial of the Federated Club Women of America next month in New York.

New York.—The advance of women in the serious affairs of American life quite overshadows the athletic stunts that are being performed by the modern American champions. Mrs. Charles H. Voorhees, of this city, recently won the women's national fencing championship. She was pitted against some of the best fencers in the country, and won every match save one. Miss Clare Galligan, of New Rochelle, has won the first recognized woman championship of the United States in swimming. Her record of 8 minutes 5 2-5 seconds is the recognized record for women over the 500-yard course. Miss Helen Austerhidt, of Indianapolis, recentl yestablished a new world's record for women by plunging 60 feet 31-2 inches at Detroit. Miss Marion Gibson, of Boston, has won the first New England championship in swimming.

San Francisco—That a woman can have children, home, husband, independence and a career, can do justice to all five, and be happy, is the opinion of Miss Emma Fryhofer, the only co-ed graduate student in the College of Commerce of the University of California. After taking her degree in the University of Kansas, she has now switched over to the business studies in the determination to fit herself for secretarial work. She claims that the domestic life is important, but not all-sufficient. "Those who fear the entrance of women into the professions and the industries will leave the world motherless are alarmists," she says. "The average child is spoiled by over-attention. Every one owes some debt to the community, and women of the leosure class can pay it as well as the business or professional woman. Women are coming to realize that the wealth of husband or father does not buy them immunity from service to the world. The time is coming when every girl will be fitted for some productive pursuit other than that of home maker. It will aid rather than hinder the domestic felicity of the nation."

POLITICAL NOTES.

Tom Taggart has decided not to run for the office of United States Senator from Indiana. He is content to don the senatorial toga until the successor of the late Senator Shively is elected.

Iowa and Illinois hold their Statewide primaries next week. Cummins will have the Iowa delegation with him, and Senator Sherman will undoubtedly be Illinois' favorite son at the Republican national convention.

A poll of the Massachusetts Legislature shows 75 of 140 Republicans favor Justice Hughes for the nomination, while the Colonel received 23 votes for second choice. A newspaper poll in Minnesota, however, shows Roosevelt running twice as strong as Justice Hughes, with Cummins and Root trailing.

Charles A. Towne, who formerly served an unexpired term in the United States Senate from Minnesota, is out for the Democratic nomination in New York to succeed Senator O'Gorman.

Nebraska voters will decide at the primaries a week from next Tuesday whether William Jennings Bryan will go to the St. Louis convention as a delegate. The former Democratic chief insists he stands by the President.

CARGO BADLY DAMAGED.

La Rochelle, France, April 10.—The American ship Omehta arrived here today with her cargo badly damaged by fire.

THE SUPERVISOR'S PROFESSION.

The supervisor's profession is one in which the experienced telephone operator may, upon her promotion, find full scope for a great variety of activities along lines peculiarly womanly.

This is largely true of operating, but liberty of action within the limits of the operator's duties is confined to her relations with the office staff, on the one hand, and to actually performing the service which the subscribers' needs require, on the other, and must be more or less according to established and invariable rules. These rules, it is true, replace the independent action of individual operators with uniform action by all, and to this extent are restrictive, but they are the necessary means of giving good telephone service.

This uniformity creates habits that become like second nature, leaving each operator free to express her personality in her own way. Thus the operator becomes a sentient force instead of being inanimate mechanism.

The operator's duties call for no mere mechanical service; she does not simply operate her switchboard. That part of her work must be performed so speedily and unobtrusively that subscribers will have no cause so much as to think about how it is done; in addition to this, she is the responsive agent and executor for her subscribers in ordinary and extraordinary occasions when they may have to call upon her.

This may be illustrated in many ways, for example:

One subscriber calls another, and the operator knows that she is equally responsible to both of them for the service they get. Neither of them is concerned with the means she employs, but both of them at once become affected by any lack of precision or thoroughness on her part. She must, therefore, take into her own hands the carrying out of the calling subscriber's wishes, and if there is an emergency involved, she must accomplish for the subscriber what he desires. This is also true in so far as it affects the called subscriber.

Given a staff of such highly trained and intelligent operators as are found in our central offices, the duties of a supervisor require abilities which are sufficiently rare for her work to possess a charm that appeals to the most ambitious. There is less of inspection, criticism, instruction, and even of managing, than of leadership. Without omitting any of these things when occasion requires, the supervisor looks beyond the switchboard, and, seeing the purpose for which she and the operators are there, she guides her division in the responsive and intelligent service that does more than connect circuits of copper wire for talking purposes.

It is in this relation that the supervisor finds superlative opportunity for the exercise of the qualities which most adorn women. Sympathy, in the sense of sharing the interests of her operators and their subscribers; tact, in the sense of keeping in perfect adjustment and avoiding friction among the operators and with the subscribers; kindliness, in brightening the frame of mind of the operators as they go about their work; intuition, which senses instinctively the hows and whys that are inexplainable; gentleness, refinement, order, all these and innumerable other traits that we respect and admire in women are called into action. — The Telephone Review, N. HALF CENTURY FOR SOCIETY.

New York, April 10.—Many humane societies in the United States are observing today the fiftieth anniversary of the first American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, by Henry Bergh, in this city. Attention to the life and work of Bergh will be called by the workers in the schools. The American Humane Association has undertaken to raise a fund for the establishment of a training school for humane workers and the organizations throughout the country are subscribing. The school will be a memorial to Bergh, who was not only the pioneer in animal rescue in this country, but the founder of the first Prevention of Cruelty to Children organization in the world.

WANTS QUICK ACTION.

Washington, April 10.—Business organizations throughout the country have been asked to join with the Navy League, which convenes today, in support of proposals for immediate action for preparedness of the navy. Three matters require immediate attention, according to the leaders of the organization. The first is the formation of a national defense commission; the second is a navy general staff, and the third is immediate action, independent of cost limitations, looking to a scientific determination as to the needs of preparedness.

The convention, which opens today, will occupy four days, terminating in a banquet.

PELT LONDON MILITANTS.

Crowd Breaks Up Pankhurst Anti-conscription Meeting.

London, April 10.—An attempt to hold a nonconscription and peace meeting in Trafalgar square was unceremoniously broken up by thousands of persons, who charged and dispersed the procession and tore up the banners and flags.

Various peace societies had organized the demonstration. Sylvia Pankhurst, the militant suffragette, was prominent among the promoters. After the procession had been dispersed the leaders in the peace movement mounted the plinth of the Nelson column and endeavored to make speeches, but the crowd pelted them with flour and red and yellow ochre. The speakers faced the ordeal for five minutes and then beat a hasty retreat.

HUMAN DESPAIR OF THE SERBIANS

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and Ambassador Miyatovitch Make Appeal.

TELL OF RELIEF WORK

Well Known Suffragist in Letter Received From Wife of Serbian General Pictures the Terrible Condition of the Natives.

An appreciative, though small, audience gathered at the Hartridge auditorium, Saturday evening and listened to a stirring appeal by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the widely-known English suffragist, and Chedo Miyatovitch, the Serbian Ambassador to England, in behalf of the stricken people of Serbia. As a result, a substantial collection was given to Mrs. Pankhurst for her relief work abroad.

Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal in the interest of the Serbians, was presented in a letter which was received from Madam Nadezda Lazarevitch, widow of a Serbian general, and Mr. Miyatovitch supplemented the suffragist's interesting talk with a vivid picture of the sufferings of his people. The letter from Madam Lazarevitch follows:

"It is impossible to describe all the misery of our flight from Krushovate. The mud on the roads was bottomless. Thousands of soldiers were pressing onwards, wading through mud up to their knees, crowds of women, children and old men were mixed up with horses, cattle, guns, ammunition wagons, all pushing on in one wave of utter human despair. From time to time we came across lakes of mud through which we had to wade as best we could. Not a few people would drown in these lakes of mud. Very many carriages with the belongings of families who themselves were flying on foot were lost there. At the Yankova Klimura our own automobile sank so deep in the mud that we had to leave it and continue our sad journey on foot, to Vuciten.

"Before reaching that town, the weather was cold and dry, but now new misery was in store for the crowds of fugitives on foot. Snow storms and sleet overtook us. Wet, frozen and hungry, starved to death, we crossed the Kossovo plain, so full of sad memories for our nation. Then on the muddy roads we began to come upon the carcases of horses and cattle, which fell dead from exhaustion, and upon dead bodies of women and children left in the middle of the road, where they fell and died. I was unhappy, as I lost my darling boy Boshko a month ago, but I did not weep, but when I saw women and children lying dead along the roads, I could not keep back my tears, and we toiled along, all weeping, some of the women wailing sadly. From that day until we reached the Greek frontier, we were a procession of men and women of all conditions, marching in crowds and all crying practically the whole time. I had money with me, and in the village Blatatz I succeeded in hiring ponies for myself and my daughter Yela, to take us to Albania. We had to ascend steep mountains, 6000 feet high, covered in snow and ice, and cross numerous waterfalls and wild torrents.

"In all my misery and anxiety I could not but realize the magnificence of those wild surroundings. When we reached the first Albanian village, we were met by Albanian women and children begging us for some food. They were starving themselves, and money could not buy a mouthful of bread. Leaving that village we saw again along the paths (there are no roads there!) many dead bodies of our men and women, who died frozen or from starvation. Then we reached a fresh crowd of our refugees, the women cried out: 'For God's sake, have you a piece of bread for our children?' I gave them all the bread I had bought for ourselves. The women and children looked half frozen. We had a couple of rugs on our ponies, and we gave these to them to wrap themselves up in. The women wept and we wept with them. Looking at their misery and suffering, I forgot my own misery. In the Albanian villages, even when we were admitted into the houses, we had to lie down on the bare earth to rest and to sleep. We brought with us some tea, and began the day with a cup of tea, traveled all the day without stopping anywhere and without eating anything, and only late in the evening took a piece of bread. Some peasants suggested that we should spend the night in the village; others said that the snowstorm might last for days, and even bury the entire village under snow. I decided to go on, and not to risk being buried alive there. Two days later, the Albanians of that village, and of a few other villages in the neighborhood, suddenly attacked another group of Serbian refugees and soldiers and killed them all. Among them, the family of a government employe named Hish perished entirely. Father and mother and a boy was killed; the daughter was carried away. On that occasion several Serbian officers were killed and several families have been entirely wiped out. When we reached Ochrida, near the border, we hoped we might at last have peace. But hardly were we in the town before word came that the Bulgarians were on our heels. The flight started again, only this time, women and children and old men were no longer walking. They were running in deadly terror and great distress to get across the frontier."

STRUCK BY STREET CAR BUT IS NOT BADLY HURT

William Johnson, of Dunellen, was struck by a Union line car late Saturday night opposite the day nursery on West Front street and painfully injured. The man was picked up and taken to the office of Dr. Lufburrow, where he was examined, but was later sent to the hospital. Although he was unable to make a statement at first it developed that he was only badly bruised and cut in several places and he will be able to leave the hospital within a few days.

ARCHDEACON TELLS OF WORK AMONG INDIANS

Archdeacon Stuck, who achieved the notable distinction of being the only man to ascend the peak of Mt. McKinley, was the special preacher at Grace church, yesterday, and during the course of his sermon he told of the extensive work that he is doing among the Indians in the West.

The noted prelate gave his hearers a new insight into the lives of the Indians, telling how responsive they are to the teachings of the white man. He also related many hardships encountered in his mission work throughout the western country. This work in which the archdeacon is engaged is supported by the Episcopal church, and during the past few years wonderful progress has been made by the missionaries.

The funeral of Cornelius Guinee, whose death occurred Thursday night, at West Fourth street and Spooner avenue, was held in St. Mary's church, this morning. A large gathering of relatives and friends was in attendance, many of them coming from distant points. A solemn high mass of requiem was offered for the respose of his soul, Rev. B. M. Bogan, acting as celebrant, Rev. Father McGrath, of Stony Hill, deacon and Rev. Father McDonald, sub-deacon. The flowers were numerous and beautiful, among them being set pieces from Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men, the Pond Tool Works Mutual Aid Society, of which Mr. Guinee was a member and the Plainfield Fire Department to which Mr. Guinee's son is attached.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Timothy Guinee, of Boston; Patrick, Daniel and Cornelius Guinee, Edward Kelly and Michael Regan, of this city.

HAD NO DRIVER'S LICENSE.

Arrested by Roundsman Keller, of the borough police, early this morning for driving an automobile without any lights, William Johnson, 20 years old, colored, of 321 Cottage place, was turned over to Chief Kiely because the arrest was made within the city limits. Keller hailed Johnson in the borough for driving the car without any lights, but he did not stop and the officer followed him over the city line and eventually succeeded in arresting him. Upon searching his man, Officer Keller also found that he didn't have a driver's license.

MISS RAE PREGER TO WED B. SCHWARTZ

Engagement of Popular Couple Announced at Newcorn Reception.

The engagement of Mss Rae Preger to Benjamin Schrwartz was announced to a number of friends last night. Cards carrying this announcement are being mailed today. The surprise came at a reception given by Judge and Mrs. William Newcorn at their home for those who took part in the recent kirmess, which was so successfully conducted. All of the young people who contributed to the performance were guests at the reception, and Miss Preger was one of those most active in the entertainment.

The engagement was announced at the dinner table, and was a complete surprise to all the guests. Miss Preger is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Preger, of Third place, is one of the most popular of the younger set in which she moves. She had been a member of the choir of Temle Sholem since its inception, and is a singer of ability, also an accomplished musician. Mr. Schwartz is now a resident of Pottstown, Pa., but lived in Plainfield for three years, and made many friends here during that time. He is engaged in business in New York.

PLAINFIELDER TAKES PART IN SPEAKING CONTEST

Morton Kline, of Plainfield, represented the Plainfield Y. M. H. A. in the speaking contest of the State association held yesterday, following the meeting of the State Council in Jersey City. The contest was won by Miss Anna Levine, of Somerville. Samuel Rothberg, of this city, attended the meeting of the council.

CREDIT BOOK FOR 1916 TO BE PUBLISHED SOON

Within a short time the new 1916 credit rating book for Plainfield and adjacent territory will be issued, and in it will be found the standing of all local people, financially with business houses where they trade. This book is issued annually by the Merchantile Agency, of Pittsburg, but the one to be published here will be purely local. B. W. Stewart and Geo. M. French have been in Plainfield some time securing data for its publication, and promise that it will be distributed within approximately ninety days.

MAYOR LAYS FIRST BRICK IN BOROUGH IMPROVEMENT

Work in remodeling the lower floor of the borough fire department building into a general municipal department floor was started in earnest this morning, when Mayor William L. Smalley laid the first brick of the partition walls. The act was performed by his Honor in the presence of a dozen or more of interested spectators. Contractor Warren Townley handed the Mayor the initial brick and James Whalen, Mr. Townley's foreman, tendered him a trowel of mortar. With surprising deftness, Mayor Smalley placed the mortar where required. His Honor's next act was to place a fifty-cent piece of this year's coinage in the mortar, and then to place the brick in place.

STREET CAR SERVICE TO TABERNACLE GOOD

The six thousand people who poured out of the Tabernacle after the evening service yesterday and those in the crowd who use street cars, found a long row of cars parked on each side of Front street, and within a few minutes passengers for all points were enroute home. Much comment was heard on the manner in which the Public Service Corporation took care of the big crowd on the first night.

BUNGALOW SKETCHES WILL BE PLACED ON EXHIBITION

Sketches of the portable bungalow to be shipped to Belgium by the Belgium Relief Society, of Plainfield, will be on exhibition in the Plainfield Public Library tomorrow. This building will provide shelter for at least one hundred Belgian babies.

BIEDERWOLF CAMPAIGN

over ten cents for each man.

At the morning service $813.25 was woman and child when entered the Tabernacle was dropped into the collection plates.

At the morning service $800 was received. Dr. Biederwolf last night congratulated Plainfield on the wonderful showing, stating that it broke all records for a first service collection on Sunday morning. It was a third as much again as he had ever received before, he said. Dr. Biederwolf explained that not one cent of this money would be received by him. It goes to pay expenses of the revival services, which will exceed $6,000. Even the salaries of members of the Biederwolf party are not paid entirely out of this money. The local committee pays a part and he pays the remainder out of what he receives on the last Sunday of the services, and his freewill offering that day is all that he gets for his work here. Members of the finance committee were well pleased with the showing made yesterday.

Dr. Biederwolf said that those in charge of arrangements here had practiced every kind of economy and that expenses were being held to a minimum. Although Plainfield has a much larger Tabernacle and a larger organization, its expenses do not exceed those incurred in Norristown.

BIEDERWOLF PARTY STRICTLY NEUTRAL

Evangelist Introduces His Associates to First Local Audience.

In introducing his associates to those who attended the morning service yesterday, Dr. iBederwolf explained that the evangelistic party was neutral—absolutely. This is from necessity, for any war talk among its members would cause strained relations. In the National Male Quartette there are four different nationalities. Mr. Roberts, who sings second bass, is a Welshman; Mr. Sluyter, first bass, is a Dutchman; Mr. Heaton, the leader, is an Englishman, and Mr. Backemeyer, first tenor, is a German. Mr. McEwan, choir leader and tenor soloist, is a Scotchman.

The Biederwolf party numbers ten. It is made up of the evangelist and his wife; Mrs. Marie F. Brake, director of Women's Work; Miss Helen Boals, pianist and secretary to Dr. Biederwolf; William McEwan, soloist and chorus director; James Heaton, business manager and leader of the quartette; Paul L. Roberts, second bass and publicity man; Henry A. Backemeyer, first tenor and director of Cottage Prayer Meetings; Henry Sluyter, first bass and Children's Work director, and Dr. Charles A. Raach, director of Shop Meetings. All are in Plainfield except Mr. Heaton. He has been detained at home because of illness in his family, but will reach here Tuesday.

MUNICIPAL OFFICIALS AT FIRST REVIVAL SERVICES

Mayor Leighton Calkins, of Plainfield; Mayor William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, and members of the Council from both sides of the brook were present at yesterday morning's session. Chief of Police Kiely and Lieut. Maurice Higgins had charge of the special police detachment, and Fire Chief T. O. Doane personally directed the detail of firemen. Health Officer Randolph Chandler was also present.

3,000 HEARD MORNING SERMON ON GOD'S LOVE

A crowd that numbered at least 3,000 people braved the mist of rain and the snow and slush underfoot to hear the first sermon of Dr. Biederwolf at the Tabernacle yesterday morning. The congregation did not more than half fill the big, barn-like but entirely comfortable and inviting temple of pine; but Dr. Biederwolf declared that he was well pleased with the crowd, and there was adequate evidence of the fact that the crowd was pleased with its first impression of the evangelist.

Because of a misunderstanding, only a small number of the choir and orchestra were present at the morning service, but the singing of Mr. McEwan and of the National Male Quartette was pleasing.

Dr. Biederwolf's first sermon was on the love of God; his text, perhaps, the most popular in the Bible: "For God so Loved the World, that He gave His Only Begotton Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have Everlasting Life." It was a straightforward confession of the richness and fullness of the love of God and a plea for a better understanding and appreciation of this.

Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, offered the prayer at the morning sermon, and Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent avenue church, read the scripture lesson. The sermon will be found in another column of The Press.

TABERNACLE ALMOST FILLED TO HEAR EVENING SERMON

By the time Director McEwan stepped on the platform to draw the first notes from his big chorus choir at 7:30 last night, the Tabernacle was comfortably filled, but the crowd kept coming in until a few minutes before Dr. Biederwolf started to preach, and there were not more than 400 seats left in the entire building, even including those reserved for the choir. The Tabernacle will seat approximately 6,500, and the crowd exceeded 6,000. Although it was his first real service with the choir, "Mac" drew from the throats of the volunteer singers of Plainfield a volume of music that carried to every corner of the building and even further, and they sang difficult selections in perfect harmony. Even Dr. Biederwolf commented on the excellent showing made by the chorus and his praise was echoed from every row of seats that faced him. After several songs, the evangelist made the customary announcement, and then called on the National Male Quartette for a selection. Mr. McEwan then sang an arrangements of the sextette from "Lucia" that was applauded, after which Mr. Roberts sang a bass solo, "I am Not Thy Judge."

"Mac" sprang a surprise not only on his audience but on the reporters present just before Dr. Biederwolf went upon the pulpit, by asking the occupants of the press box to sing a duet. Robert Butler sang it by himself. Dr. Atlee stood up, but if he joined in, those further back than the first few rows failed to hear, although they applauded. Mr. McEwan admitted that it was "pretty good for reporters."

It was announced that an important meeting of the ministers had been held in the Y. M. C. A. during the afternoon, at which time arrangements had been made for many surprises during the campaign. One feature will be "Mothers' Day"; another, "County Day," and other special events will be announced later.

The evening prayer was offered by the Rev. B. S. Hudson, and the scriptural lesson was read by Dr. Charles A. Raach, of the Biederwolf party.

Dr. Biederwolf's evening sermon was on the text, "Thou art weighed in the balance and art found wanting," and was an eloquent and fearless presentation of the true Christian. In it he left his subject for a few seconds to declare for "Preparedness." Dr. Biederwolf said that he believed in it, not for Americans, but for others. "I would have the biggest navy and the strongest army in the world," he said. "Not for ourselves, but that we might protect the weak and helpless."

MAXIM GORKY GRAVELY ILL.

Russian Author Said to Be Suffering From Pneumonia at Moscow.

London, April 10.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says that reports reaching Holland through Berlin are to the effect that Maxim Gorky, the Russian author, is suffering from pneumonia at Moscow. His condition is declared to be alarming.

—That funny fellow scoop is on the classified page.

GOD'S GREAT LOVE

Sermon Delivered By Dr. Biederwolf at Morning Service.

I do not know how it ever came about but in my early youth I always thought of God as a frowning ruler of the universe, angry with everybody because of their sin and whose wrath could be satisfied with nothing but the blood of another person whom we have come to know as Christ. Possibly I did not listen to my preacher aright but I am quite sure I did not read my Bible aright if I read it at all; at any rate I always loved Christ better than God because Christ saved me, as I thought, from the anger of God. Really, I think it was not until I had gotten some way along in my ministry that I began to appreciate how really and how truly "God is Love."

A Child's Answer.

A story is told of a child in Luther's time who had been taught to think of God only with dread as she would of a terrible judge. The name of Christ really terrified her. Luther was having his Bible printed and her father was a printer. One day in the office she picked up a scrap of paper and it read "God so loved the world that He gave"—and from there the remaining words were torn off, but it was enough to tell her that God loved the world and that He loved it well enough to give something and it made her heart bubble over with joy and song and the next day her mother asked her what she was so happy about. She put her hand in her pocket and handed out the little piece of crumpled paper and her mother read it, "God so loved the world that He gave," and she said, "Well, what does it mean? What was it that He gave?" Perplexed just for a moment, the little one looked up and said, "Well, mother, I don't know what it was He gave, but if He loved us well enough to give us anything we need not be afraid of Him."

Now we must not forget that there is a sense in which the Bible speaks of God as being displeased with the sinner, but we must not fail at the same time to notice the marked distinction rising up in every part of this world between personal animosity, which God never held toward anybody, even the vilest sinner, and governmental displeasure such as any true father must hold toward a disobedient son, which last my brother is but one of the characteristics of real love.

I believe in proclaiming a whole Gospel in its every aspect but if this verse teaches one thing more distinctly than another, it is that the atonement of Christ originated in the heart of God proceeded from God toward man and was furnished by God because He loved man, and exceedingly unfortunate, I think is the misplaced and exaggerated emphasis of past ages and the needless misconstruction of the word of God which in its expression has been an injustice to divine love and an outrage to human conscience—such construction of the divine message as will permit a man to produce those words of Sir Henry Wotton:

"One rosy drop from Jesus' heart was worlds of seas to quench God's ire," or those utterly abhorrent words of Dr. Cumming when he says:

God Never Hated Us.

"Jesus wiped away the red anger spot from the brow of God." God never had any such spot for you or me; the only place that ever burned was His own great heart of unquenchable love that caused Him to come Himself and seek me out while I was lost and saved me; for God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself, and the incarnation of Christ was but a living relevation of the loving nature of God. Oh, man, oh, woman; see if you cannot bring yourself to believe in the love of God.

If we could only get the world to appreciate God's great love for it the call to the unconverted would cease forever, for it would melt the hardest heart and put a new song in every mouth, even praise unto God.

Every time I turn to this text; every time it comes into my mind, I find myself pondering over just one thing. Sometimes the question arises, "Well, why did He ever love us so?" and I find myself thinking that because He created us and every man is in a very certain sense a child of God, He would have very great love for us, and then though utterly unworthy and undone, possibly for what we are capable of becoming through Him, he loves us. But there is satisfaction enough for me in the thought that "God is Love," and that all there is of love is in God and it's His nature to love, just as it is the sun's to shine.

The Extent of His Love.

Sometimes the question arises of the extent of his love, but that's very plainly set forth in the verse, "God so loved the world;" and there's no room left in that expression for the selfish, self-congratulation that God has chosen you out from the less fortunate to be the object of his special favor, because you were better than some others in the world. There is a divine choosing, but it is not of that sort, and should an angel of His love come down to earth today to carry a personal message from the heart of God to everyone for whom it bleeds, if you would know for whom He gave His Son in love, you would have to go with that angel to every city in this broad land while he knocked at the rich man's palace and the poor man's hovel; up the rickety tenement stairs and down into the vicious brothel, where it seems that all hell has spent its envenomed rage; behind every prison bar, and into every asylum, and then across the fields to every village and farm; and then you would have to follow him in his flight across the frozen waters into the snow-walled huts of Greenland's icy mountains; over the sea to China's teeming millions and down into India's coral strand; across the trackless wastes and into the pathless jungles of the world's dark continent; to the lonely islands of the Pacific where the dark-skinned mother sings her lullaby to the music of the ocean's wave, and then to every unexplored nook and corner in the universe of God, and then, lest somewhere His eye had not lighted on some pood burdered soul of humanity, I think He would write in blazing letters of fire across the sky these words: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life."

The Reason for His Love.

The reason for all his love arises and there's no difficulty in answering that—it is that "whosoever believeth might not perish, but have everlasting life." It is not the will of God that anyone should perish, and if any man does perish it will be in spite of the will of God, but to go out of this world without God, and without hope is to be abandoned to all the powers of hell, but in God's love the child in his creation is safe. There is the story of a man who came to this country from England and later went to Cuba, and when the Cuban war broke out he was arrested as a spy and condemned to be shot. The man was innocent, and the consuls of the two governments demanded a release, but the Spanish officers said: "He has been tried by our courts and found guilty, and the man must die." They brought him to the place of execution; they dug his grave and placed his coffin by its side; the soldiers were ready to level their rifles and fire at the word of command. They were just covering the man's eyes when up rode the American and English consuls and, leaping from their carriage, they hastened to the man and wrapped the star-spangled banner and the union jack about him and then, turning to the officials in command said, "Fire on these flags if you dare." They did not dare, for behind the star-spangled banner and the union jack were the two greatest governments of the world. But friends, think of the great government of the eternal God. "He brought me into His banqueting house and His banner over me was love." Oh, my, brother; oh, my sister, let God wrap that banner about you today, and all the powers of hell can't touch you, neither here nor in the life to come.

But it was not to either of these questions we referred a moment ago. The one thing over which I find myself pondering most when I read that verse is the question of how much love it took for God to give eternal life to men. "Enough," you say, "to give His Son." Yes, but how much did that take? And the answer to that question lies hidden in the little word "so." God SO loved the world. Oh, the height, the depth, the length and the breadth of the love of God wrapped up in that little word "SO."

The Height of His Love.

How high is it? It reaches to the very throne of heaven where this vile body is to be in the fashion of His own glorious body. On the banks of the shining Arno stands Michael Angelo's David in all its splendid beauty today, but he chiseled it from a rejected piece of marble half buried in the refuse of a back yard; and so God, in His matchless love, takes of the very refuse of earth and works upon it by His spirit until it is fit to stand in His glorious presence above.

The Depth of His Love!

How deep is it When Nansen was looking for the North Pole he found himself in very deep water. He tried to take his sounding, but his line would not reach bottom. He took his book and wrote the date, the length of his line and added "Deeper than that." The next day he lengthened his line and dropped it again and again it failed to touch and again he wrote down the date and length of his line and added "Deeper than that." After a few days he gathered all the line there could be found and dropped it down, but it would not reach the bottom and once more he took his book and wrote the date, the length of his longest line, and added the note, "Deeper than that."

"Through all the depth of sin and loss,
Drops the plummet of the cross;
Never yet abyss was found
Deeper than the cross could sound."

Breadth of God's Love.

The breadth of His love. How wide is it. We saw it a moment ago. It's as broad as the bigness of the universe. And as well might the stately oak or graceful lily claim to be a special beneficiary of the sun as for any man to think that because of what he is he has any special claim to the mercy and love of God.

And the length of His love. How long is it? Listen. "Behold, I have loved thee with an everlasting love." The Lamb of God was "slain from the foundation of the world." God always has loved man and He always will love him. It is as unfailing as eternity; as imperishable as God Himself. Someone in his imagination has seen an angel coming down from heaven that he might carry up to the Father the most beautiful and imperishable thing of earth. He took a baby's smile, some flowers of the field and a mother's love, but ere he reached the gates of heaven the flowers had faded and death had stolen the smile, but the mother's love, as fresh and beautiful as ever, the angel laid as the sweetest gem of earth on the Father's bocom. Oh, a mother's love! the height, the width, the length, the depth of it! How like God's!

A Beautiful Story.

During the Civil War a woman in Maine received the following message, "Willie is sick and we fear he is dying." She said to her husband "I GALLEY THREE—DAY. must go and see Willie." "But," said her husband, "you cannot go; between you and him there is a row of bayonets." "I know it," she said, "but Willie is sick and I am going to him." "Well," he replied, "I don't know what will come of this, but if you will go you shall have all the money you want." The woman went down to Washington and the man who sat in the executive mansion and who had a heart as tender as any woman, wiped away a tear as he wrote and handed her a paper, saying as he did so, "Madam, that will take you as far as the enemy's line, but what will become of you after you get there I do not know." She took the pass and going to the enemy's line handed it to the picket. He looked at it and said, "we don't take that thing here." "I know it," she said, "but Willie, my boy, is dying in Richmond and I am going to him; if you must shoot, do it, but I am going on until you do." But who could shoot in the presence of a mother love like that?

Smuggled through the lines she went to the hospital and the surgeon said: "Madam, you will have to be careful; your boy will survive no excitement." She crept past cot after cot until she came to the one where her own boy lay and kneeling at its foot she played in smothered tones, "Oh, God, spare my boy! God spare my boy!" But the sound of her voice had gone clear down into the valley of the shadow of death, where the soul of the young man was slowly going out into its ebbing tide, and as he raised his pale hands from beneath the sheet, he said., "It's mother's voice; it's mother's voice," and as she crept closer up and laid her soft hand on his feverish brow he opened his eyes and said, "Mother, I knew you'd come; I knew you'd come." Oh, a mother's love! It's more like God's than any other that surges through the human breast in its deathless unselfishness. But listen! Can a mother forget her child? "Yea, she may forget, yet will I not forget thee." Oh, man, see if you can't bring yourself to believe in the love of God and do not trample it under your feet.

NEAR PARRAL IN VILLA PURSUIT

Pershing Moves South on Trail to Satevo.

FINDS HERRERA IS LOYAL

Funston Hears Arrests Have Been Made of Some Who Took Part In Columbus Raid—Mexican Authorities Offer Use of Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

San Antonio, Tex., April 10.—The pursuit of Villa has taken the forces of Colonel Brown and Colonel Dodd south from Satevo.

While officers here have no information that either force has gone as far as Parral, they said that the receipt of such information would be no surprise.

General Pershing himself is moving south along the trail to Satevo, personally directing, as far as possible, the pursuit of the bandits and the search of the mountains and plains adjacent to the trails.

A report from General Pershing was received by General Funston. General Pershing said that before leaving his headquarters on the San Geronimo ranch, north of Guerrero, General Luis Herrera, the Carranza general whose defection was reported at one time, called upon him and discussed in a friendly manner the efforts being made by both governments to run down the common enemy.

Some Raiders Arrested.

A few arrests have been made of those who took part in the raid on Columbus, N. M. General Pershing, who reported the arrests, did not indicate where they were captured or whether they were prisoners taken at Guerrero.

The Mexican military authorities have offered the American punitive expedition the use of Mexican telegraph and telephone lines. General Pershing's report did not pass over the telegraph lines, however, but was transmitted via aeroplane and wireless to Columbus. The report was sent from some part of the field of operations, the locality of which was withheld here.

General Funston said his staff are keenly appreciative of the brilliant extension of operations in Mexico, but frank admission was made that without the use of the railroads, a material strengthening of the forces or the establishment of a new base and line of communication the movement into Mexico could proceed but a short distance further unless the advanced forces cut loose from their base.

Hope that permission to use the railroads to Chihuahua City yet may be obtained had not been abandoned. If that permission is denied, General Funston, while not immediately insisting on using more troops, probably will suggest to the war department the movement of the line of communication to some point where the base will be much nearer to the field of operations.

START REFERENDUM ON PREPAREDNESS

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Asks For Views.

Washington, April 10.—The chamber of commerce of the United States has begun a referendum on preparedness, asking 700 commercial bodies in the United States to vote for or against a plan of national defense devised by a committee of which Bascom Little, president of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, is chairman. The bodies to which the question is being submitted have a membership of approximately 300,000.

The committee recommends that a council of national defense be created by law to assist in the development of an adequate and continuing policy; that a staff of mobilization be created by law and maintained in time of peace to insure the most effective use of the economic resources of the United States in time of war; that a program of naval construction be adopted sufficient at least to restore the United States to a position of second naval power in the Atlantic, with a surplus in the Pacific sufficient to protect the coasts, possessions, trade routes, canal zone and adjacent territory.

The committee favors the creation by law of a general staff for the navy by strengthening the present office of naval operations or otherwise. A recommendation is made that the regular army be increased until with its trained reserves it shall be sufficient to furnish the first line of land defense.

TWO SPEECHES BY WILSON.

Both This Week and Will Bear on Presidential Campaign.

Washington, April 10.—President Wilson will deliver two speeches this week which many of his advisers expect to have an important bearing on the coming presidential campaign. The first will be made here Thursday night at a Jefferson day gathering of Democrats from all parts of the country, and the second will be delivered Saturday night in New York at a banquet of the Young Men's Democratic club.

Chairmen of Democratic state committees and members of the Democratic national committee and of the Democratic national congressional committee will be the guests of the Common Council club, composed of government officials, at the banquet before which the president will speak Thursday night. It will be the first distinctly political gathering the president has addressed for more than a year.

WHY POLICEMEN RESIGN.

Another good man has been lost from the Plainfield police department. He resigned last week, after only a few months of service and just as he was beginning to learn the work so that he could give real service to the department and to the taxpayers and property owners. For this the individual cannot be blamed. Neither is there anything wrong with the organization nor with the management of the force. He is not the first who has quit recently and people are beginning to wonder what is the matter with the department. Such a question is easily answered. Policemen are paid too little. The men do not and cannot complain about the treatment they receive at the hands of the police board, Chief Kiely or any of their superior officers. Neither do they complain that the work is too hard. In fact they do not complain at all— they merely resist tempting offers in other lines of business unless they can hold out no longer and then they take off the blue and gold of the police and another green man must be trained and drilled for the important work of protecting life and property.

Plainfield pays its policemen less than any city in the State, according to apparently accurate statistics. It asks of an applicant for a position that he be young, of robust health, quick of brain and body and of good moral character. It asks and demands that he be honest and brave—that he forget self in the discharge of his daily duty and that he face unseen but constant dangers. And for this it offers in return, what? Less than $60 a month for the first period of service. True, he is paid more, but the first year he must spend more than $125 of his salary for uniforms, and he is forced to buy often more to keep constantly neat and trim.

Sixty dollars a month is not adequate compensation for service as a policeman in Plainfield and the city should be ashamed of a false sense of economy which permits clean, intelligent young men from taking these jobs, except through accidental temperament or through temporarily slack business in other and more lucrative lines. The property, the liberty and sometimes the life of every citizen is carried in the hand of each member of the police force. Each night they keep guard over millions of dollars worth of property, and they are paid a measely percentage of that which they save in actual money, forgetting the higher service in maintaining peace and order. We do not suggest a remedy. There can be but one. Plainfield should pay its policemen better salaries.

WELCOME, DR. BIEDERWOLF.

Plainfielders will have no regret because of the Biederwolf campaign, which opened so auspiciously yesterday. That much is proven by the great success of the first services at the Tabernacle. The city is due for a religious awakening that will rattle a lot of dry bones, and will make more than one sanctimonious person realize that a regular attendance at one Sunday service is not the only thing that marks a person as a Christian. And the movement will have its effect, not only on those churches which are participating in the campaign, but upon religious activity of every character and in every denomination. This statement is based upon the effect of similar campaigns in other cities by every well known evangelist.

The Biederwolf services have struck a popular chord. And as they progress they will become more popular, or the sentiments expressed by the crowds yesterday were misleading. Revivalists, such as Dr. Biederwolf, accomplish their greatest good, as has been pointed out in these columns, but the fact that they get to the hearts and minds of the great mass of the people—the man on the street, as it were. They give a welcome to all who visit their meetings such as is not usually found within the four walls of the average church. The features not usually found at religious services will attract many of the curious, and once the revivalist has them within sound of his voice, he does the rest. We know of cases whereby the methods adopted by Dr. Biederwolf and other well known evangelists have completely reformed men who have been immune to all the attention which the regular churches in their home cities have tried to give them. And those men have stuck to their resolve to lead a better life.

Dr. Biederwolf is welcome in Plainfield, as are all of his excellent corp of assistants. The people are going to let them know before the campaign is over that their efforts here are appreciated. There are no finer cities in the country than Plainfield, but before the campaign is over the city is going to be even better than it is now.

The war has caused a shortage in the crop of Delaware shad! It's a fact. The shad fisheries are located along the river in the vicinity of the munitions plants at Carney's Point, and other places below Trenton, and such big wages are being paid there that the shad men have given up the work of catching the tasty fish for the more profitable employment of preparing things to blow out men's brains. So far as the war is concerned, the shad family is delighted to know that it is going on, and they don't care how long it keeps up. Probably the only thing that will make shad fishing popular is for the price of the fish to go so high that there will be more money in catching them than there is in making munitions, for the dollar seems to be the one thing that attracts most men today.

And now New Brunswick is talking about an evangelistic campaign, similar to the Biederwolf one to be held in this city. Well, if we were asked to pick out a place that needed it ——!

NOTED PRELATE HERE.

Monsignor Burke, of New York City, assisted at the services in St. Mary's church yesterday. Father Burke is a noted mission worker and is well known and highly respected, his good work among the Indian and colored missions of this country having won for him much favor. No one has, as yet, been appointed to take Father Sciolla's place at St. Mary's church.

SPOKE IN RAHWAY.

The speaker at the annual vesper service of Div. No. 3, A. O. H., of Rahway, held in St. Mary's church, that place, last night, was the Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, this city. Father Bogan was accompanied to Rahway by several members of the local division. The local Father was pastor at Rahway before his change to this city.

SEVERAL WILL BE BAPTIZED.

The Young People's Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet at 7:15 o'clock this evening and the board of deacons will meet at 7:30 o'clock to consider applications for church membership. Rev. Dr. B. S. Hudson, the pastor, will preach at 8:15 and baptism will follow.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton.

Don't Do It.

One poor deluded mortal tried to figure out the scheme,
The old scheme of existence, and it was his one pet dream
That some day he would solve it and that he would rise to Fame
And that the countless millions would his mastery proclaim.
He tried to figure how some folks could always get along,
And never do a stroke of work and never get in wrong;
How they could wear the finest clothes and eat the finest fare
Without a cent of income of which neighbors were aware.
He couldn't dope their system out. He tried with might and main,
But had to give it up at last; his efforts were in vain.
He tried to figure how it was that crooks seemed to succeed,
While honest folks failed frequently, and were sometimes in need.
He figured on for many years, his fate is sad to tell.
They say that he's still figuring, but in a padded cell.

How to Furnish a House.

A good many young married couples are probably wondering how they are going to furnish their homes. If they will only follow the advice given by the how-to-be-happy-though-married writers in the magazinse their troubles will dissolve into thin air.

A neat and nifty chair can be made out of an old cracker barrel. Stand up on end and saw out a front section half way up, leaving the rear section of the barrel to serve as a back to the chair. Nail in a seat and cover the whole with checked gingham or muslin. Nail a bow of blue ribbon to the back of the chair. No other ornament is necessary. It is not necessary to make the structure very substantial, as nobody will ever sit in it.

A splendid umbrella rack can be made out of a length of old stove-pipe, stood on end and fastened at the bottom to a block of wood one foot square. The stove pipe should be covered with gilt paint and a few cupids or angels painted on it in blue or green. It will hold seven umbrellas, no matter how or where you get them.

It is very easy to make a fireless cooker out of an old soap box and about a nickel's worth of hinges and other hardware. Inside of the box place a large tin can and pack hay or asbestos between the can and the sides of the box. It will cook food as satisfactorily as any high-priced cooker, which may or may not be saying very much.

An old red striped shirt makes a very satisfactory curtain for a small window. The shoulders of the shirt can be tacked to the upper edge of the window, and the tail of the shirt can be split up the back so that it can be draped on either side and tied in place by neat bows of yellow ribbon.

An Oversight.

Department of agriculture has sent out a pamphlet on "The Smut of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Corn." Not a word about movies and musical comedies.

Plainfield Theatre.

ROSE KESSNER,
With the "Midnight Maidens," Plainfield Theatre, Today (matinee and night).

"The Girls from the Movies," a musical comedy playlet with special scenery and costumes, and the kind of funmaking that goes over the footlights with a "punch," will head the new big vaudeville bill which opens at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow and continues until Wednesday night. It is presented by a company of ten people mostly girls, with Charles Happersett taking care of the principal comedy role. "The Girls of the Movies" is replete with songs of the catchy kind, and numerous specialties are introduced as the meagre plot is unwound.

Beside the feature number, five other classy acts direct from New York's leading booking office, are on the bill tomorrow. Among them are Carter and Jackson, presenting an original musical and dancing skit, written especially for them; Fitzgerland and McNamee, sidewalk comedians; Hathaway and Company in a comedy dramatic playlet that is sure to hold the audiences in a tense grip from start to finish.

Every program at the Plainfield Theatre includes photoplay features. Something new and big being shown each afternoon and night. Tomorrow's feature is the Pathe Semi-Weekly, which never fails to please, while showing in animated form the latest doings all over the civilized world. Comedies and dramas also have a place on the bill and the serial "The Iron Claw" is shown every Thursday, and "The Strange Case of Mary Page," every Friday.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME—

But mother has a word to say about it.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY PLANS FOR DEBATES

Will Meet Team From Immaculate Conception Parish, Elizabeth, April 30.

The monthly meeting of St. Mary's Holy Name Society was held in Social Hall yesterday afternoon. After the transaction of routine business the reports of the various committees were given attention. Patrick O'Brien, manager of the euchre team, stated that it was rather unpleasant for him to report that St. Mary's team was not on top in the series of games being played with St. Joseph's of North Plainfield, and St. John's, of Dunellen. The distance between the standing of the locals and of the leaders is a mere matter of six games and can be easily overcome. Arrangements are under way for holding a series of games of "45," the same three parishes to be represented.

Following Mr. O'Brien's report, Father Bogan made a short address in which he took occasion to congratulate the members of the junior debating team for the creditable showing made in a recent contest. Father Bogan also announced that the Holy Name Society of the Immaculate Conception Parish, of Elizabeth, would send a senior debating team to this city to meet a local team, representing the society, and consisting of James Cullen and William Rafferty. The debate will take place on April 30. The junior debating team was not idle, and acted upon a challenge received from the St. James' team, of Newark. A committee consisting of Fred Green, Edward McCann and Joseph Gallagher, was appointed to make arrangements. Paul H. Burns has charge of the boys.

The Newark team is said to be the best in that city, and holds victories over many formidable rivals. However, the local boys, under the able guildance of Mr. Burns, feel confident of, at least, making a creditable showing. No definite date was set for the match, but word will be received from the St. James' Society as to what steps were taken at its monthly meeting, which will be held this evening.

MARIE DORO IN "THE WHITE PEARL," AT PROCTOR'S TODAY.

Marie Doro, the dainty and talented ingenue favorite who was seen here a short while ago in the Triangle production, "The Wood Nymph," appears today in a delightful Paramount picture entitled "The White Pearl." Miss Doro was selected from a hundred others to fulfill the leading part in this feature, and performs in such a delightful manner that the patrons will greet her efforts with pleasure and admiration. It is a romantic adventure story indeed, with plenty of thrills and periods of suspense which are handled in a finished manner. The settings, too, deserve a word of praise, for the director has gone to great lengths to obtain Japanese atmosphere. Not only does he employ many Japanese men and women, but he uses for backgrounds extensive Japanese gardens. There are many scenes taken on board a big schooner at sea. The photography is of a high order—in fact, everything in this picture is supreme in every sense of the word—a fitting feature, indeed, for Proctor's, and one that will go a long way toward keeping up the splendid reputation that that popular playhouse enjoys.

In addition, today, that quartette of funmakers—Si Hopkins, Ham and Bud and Frank Daniels—each appear in their own comedy feature, provoking an abundance of clean, wholesome fun. Tomorrow is Triangle Day, the feature production being one of the greatest and most interesting pleas for "Preparedness" yet made through the medium of the picture drama. It is entitled, "The Flying Torpedo," featuring John Emerson, and tells a gripping and intensely thrilling story of an attempt of foreign powers to crush the United States before an American inventor can perfect his engine of aerial destruction. Added features tomorrow are Hank Mann, the droll Keystoneite who appears at the head of a picked cast of funmakers in "The Village Blacksmith," and the sixth episode of "Mary Page," with Henry Mayo, is also shown. Wednesday will mark one of the greatest days of the season, for on that day only, Theda Bara, recognized as the peer of all dramatic actresses, both on the speaking and silent stage, appears in "Gold and the Woman," her latest Fox production.

GERMAN-AMERICANS LOSE.

Candidates Run Lowest on Wisconsin's Delegate Ticket.

Milwaukee, April 10.—With Milwaukee excluded, the two German-American candidates for delegate at large on the state Republican ticket were the lowest in the race. This was shown by practically complete returns, which indicate that reports of the efforts of Milwaukee German-Americans to help dictate the selection of the presidential candidate were resented over the state.

This, it is held, is evident from the fact that both men are prominent in the state and represent opposing sides in the contest. The two outside of the German center here were Christian Doerfler, pro-La Follette, and Emil Raensch, anti-La Follette.

16 HURT IN TRAIN WRECK.

New Haven Accommodation Runs Into Open Switch.

Waterbury, Conn., April 10.—A New York, New Haven and Hartford accommodation train running thirty-five miles an hour bound from Winsted for this city, Bridgeport and New Haven struck an open switch at Jericho Station, six miles north of here, and was derailed.

Sixteen persons were injured, none fatally. Passengers were hurled from their seats and thrown about the aisles of the four passenger coaches, which were all well filled.

GERARD CONFIRMS GERMANY'S DENIAL

Berlin Disclaims Sinking of Steamer Sussex.

Washington, April 10.—Ambassador Gerard's reply from the German foreign office on the submarine issue has at last reached President Wilson.

As expected, it is a general disclaimer of all responsibility on the part of Germany for the attack on the Sussex. Secretary Lansing described it as a preliminary reply and not the official answer to the information which the United States is seeking from Berlin. But it is understood that the information already received from Mr. Gerard sets forth Germany's attitude as clearly as can be expected.

Germany was not responsible for the disaster to the channel boat Sussex; no German submarine was near the place at the time; Germany was justified in sinking the freighter Englishman and claims justification for sinking other freighters engaged in aiding the enemy—these are described as the salient features of Germany's reply.

They are accompanied by the reassertion of the pledges which Germany has made to the United States not to sink passenger ships without warning.

In response to President Wilson's insistence that American rights be protected Germany calls his attention to some technical differences between passenger carrying ships and freighters. In response to the president's insistence that the principles of humanity for which he is fighting be recognized Germany invites him to look at the whole matter through German eyes.

The whole tenor of Germany's attitude, as described here, is to invite further friendly discussion and again bring the crisis to the note writing stage.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— What a Soldier Did With His Gold.

"What does my lord command?"

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHEN daddy sat down in his big chair Jack and Evelyn perched on its arms while he told the bedtime story. "An old witch once got a soldier to go down a hollow tree and find her grandmother's tinder box. Then to reward him she let him have all the gold he could carry. Soon as he got back on the street he marched off to the finest hotel in town to live just like a gentleman. He picked out the grandest room and ordered the best food, because his pockets were bulging with witch gold.

"The servants who had to clean his boots thought them the funniest boots a gentleman ever wore. He hadn't had time to buy new ones, you see. But the next day he went to a shop and got rigged out in splendid clothes, so that all the town people began to treat him like a gentleman. They told him about all the interesting things in the town, about their king and what a lovely princess his daughter was."

"Oh, daddy, is this going to be a princess story?" cried Evelyn.

"'Where can I see the king's daughter?' asked the soldier.

"'You can't see her,' the town people told him. 'She lives in a great copper castle surrounded by walls and towers. Nobody but the king dares to go in and out, for it has been prophesied that she will marry a common soldier.'

"The soldier wondered if he might be this soldier and wanted very much to see the princess. But there was no way to get permission.

"He now began to lead a merry life. He went to theaters, drove about in the king's park and gave away lots of money to poor people. You see, he remembered how disagreeable it is not to have a penny in your pocket. So he made many friends, who told him what a fine fellow he was, and he liked to be told that. But he spent so much money that at last he found that he had little left. At last he was obliged to move out of his grand hotel. He had to take a tiny attic up under a roof, clean his own boots and mend them himself with a darning needle when big holes came in them. None of his many friends went to see him because there were so many stairs to climb.

"One dark night, when he had not even enough money to buy a candle, he suddenly remembered a copper in the tinder box that the old witch had sent him down a hollow tree to get and which he had taken away from her. So he got out the tinder box and struck fire, and as the sparks flew up the door burst open. A dog with eyes as big as saucers, the one he had met when he went down the hollow tree, stood there, saying, 'What does my lord command?'"

"Oh, daddy, what a nice way to make money!" cried Jack.

Household Hints

THE TABLE

Blackberry Cream Pie—One cup blackberry jam, one cup sugar, one cup cream, four level tablespoons flour, two eggs (separated). Mix flour with sugar, add blackberry jam, cream and yolks of eggs well beaten. Line a deep pie dish with well-made paste rolled thin. Fill with the blackberry mixture and bake in quick oven until crust is set; continue baking in slow oven until filling is thick and firm. Add pinch of salt to the whites of eggs, beat to a stiff froth, adding gradually six level tablespoons powdered sugar. When pie is baked remove from oven, heap meringue on top and brown in slow oven.

Salmon Salad—One-half can salmon, 2 eggs, salt, pepper, cracker crumbs, ½ tablespoon butter, ½ tablespoon vinegar. Boil eggs hard. Remove whites, cut in pieces, and mix with salmon, season and add a few cracker crumbs. Take the yolks of eggs. Mash, season, and add the butter and vinegar. Cook till thick and use as dressing. Enough for five or six persons.

Cream Scones—Pastry flour 2 cups, baking powder 4 teaspoons, salt ½ teaspoon, sugar 2 teaspoons, butter 4 teaspoons, eggs 2, cream 1-3 cup. Mix dry ingredients and butter thoroughly, add well beaten eggs and cream; roll out to one-third inch thickness, cut in squares; brush with white of egg and sprinkle with sugar; bake fifteen minutes in hot oven.

Stuffed Tomatoes—Select large, firm tomatoes; cut a round place from top of each, and scrape out all the soft parts; mix with stale bread crumbs, onions, parsley, celery green or red peppers and salt; chop very fine and fill tomato shells; put a lump of butter on each; butter the pan to bake in and bake in moderately hot oven; see that they do not become dry or burn.

Peach Whip—One cup mashed fruit, white of 1 egg, 1 cup powdered sugar; beat until very light (one-half hour.)

Chocolate Cake—One cup sour milk, 1½ cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon crisco, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 teaspoons cocoa (heaping), 1 egg. Cream sugar and crisco together, put soda in milk, beat well and add; sift flour and baking powder twice and add; then egg, vanilla and chocolate; ice with plain white icing.

Carrot Salad—Grate fresh carrots and mix with equal quantity of finely chopped celery and half the quantity of chopped green peppers; mold in custard cup; turn on lettuce leaf and cover with mayonaise. This salad is inexpensive and easily prepared. This salad very wholesome with French dressing.

Lemon Sauce — One-fourth cup sugar, 2 teaspoons butter, 1-4 cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Make a syrup by boiling sugar and water ten minutes; remove from fire and add butter and lemon juice.

Orange Cakes—One cup granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, grated rind of one orange, ⅓ cup of orange juice, 2 cups of flour after sifting, 1½ teaspoons baking powder. Let stand twenty minutes and stir again. Drop by spoonfuls in gem pans.

Nut Pudding With Lemon Sauce—One-half cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup chopped nuts, 1½ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup cold water. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cream the butter and add the sugar, then the eggs well beaten. Add flour and pour water alternately beaten thoroughly. Add the nuts and pour in a buttered pan and bake one-half hour. Serve with lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce—Two cups sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 teaspoons butter, ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Mix sugar and cornstarch, add water gradually, stirring constantly. Boil five minutes; remove from fire and add butter and lemon juice. Pour over pudding.

Muffins—Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 pint milk, 2½ cups Gold Medal flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Cream the butter and sugar and add the beaten yolks of the eggs. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt with the former alternating with milk. Lastly add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Have your gem pans hot and well greased and bake in a hot oven twenty minutes. This will make eighteen muffins.

Glorified Round Steak — Two pounds round steak, 1 onion, flour, salt and pepper, lard or crisco. Have the butcher cut the steak quite thick and score it well; work in all the flour it will hold; fry onion in fat until brown, then take out and brown steak well on both sides; cover with water and simmer occasionally and if necessary add more water; meat and gravy are ready together without further trouble.

Ripe Tomato Pie—Cook and season ripe tomatoes with salt, pepper, butter and sugar. Pour into buttered baking dish and cover with good baking powder crust, same as for chicken pie. Serve hot as a vegetable.

SAWDUST AND SHAVINGS

The Biederwolf party has arrived; the huge Pine Temple has been completed; the opening day's services have been held and the monster religious campaign has been successfully launched; to the very great delight and satisfaction of those interested.

The great attendance at the opening service on Sunday morning was a fine surprise for the evangelist. The building was more than two-thirds filled with church people.

Undoubtedly all Plainfield musical organizations have a new standard to work to. The McEwan chorus choir in its first appearance last night has proven itself the best choir ever heard in this city or vicinity. Much credit is due Clifford A. Braider, who had full charge of the organizing and drilling of the choir previous to Mr. McEwan's arrival.

The "Scotch Mac" is a card. He "struck twelve" with his choir yesterday. His inimitable Scotch accent and inexpressable witticism won the hearts of all who saw him "work" yesterday.

If "Mac's" solo last night was a fair sample of what Plainfield is to be treated to each night, music lovers will not miss an opportunity to attend every tabernacle service. He sang a sacred arrangement of the sextet from the opera Lucia.

The tabernacle orchestra bids fair in be one of Plainfield's best. At present there are sixty pieces in it.

Dr. Biederwolf announced that Mr. Heaton, leader of the National Male Quartet, would be on deck for the Tuesday night service, when the real quartet would be heard for the first time. The boys used "Mac" for the tenor yesterday and were heartily received by both audiences.

The public spiritedness of Plainfield was manifested yesterday at the tabernacle in the attention and courteousy of the several firemen and policemen that were on duty there.

Dr. Biederwolf took advantage of his hearers last night and "pulled off" a good joke on them. After the singing of a very beautiful selection by the chorus choir, the evangelist asked, "All who like that singing raise your hand." Being a people of truthfulness, every hand in the building went up. Then the preacher with a smile, said, "Now put your hands in your pockets for the offering." Everybody had a good laugh at their own expense.

It required just one minute and forty-five seconds for the ushers to "lift" the collection from the six thousand people last night.

Dr. Biederwolf said last night, "We never request the women to remove their hats in our tabernacles. We demand it!"

No meeting in the tabernacle tonight.

Dr. Biederwolf says, "Every man has a hobby. I have three: The saloon, the divorce and the 'dead-beat.'" He sure did hit the "dead-beat" churchmember a hard blow last night.

The first "men only" meeting will be held in the tabernacle next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A great musical program has been announced for Tuesday night.

Mrs. Brake, who is the director of the women's work with Dr. Biederwolf, will meet all the church women in the First Baptist church on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Roberts, the big Welshman, the basso-profundo of the National Male Quartet, sang a solo last night. Each voice in the quartet is a solo voice and they will all be favorites with the Plainfield audiences as long as they are here.

The first shop meeting will be held Tuesday noon in the Pond Tool Works. Dr. Biederwolf will speak and the National Male Quartet will sing.

PRAYER SERVICES FOR TOMORROW MORNING

Cottage prayer meetings for Tuesday will be held at 10 a. m., with the exception of one late in the afternoon. The morning prayer meetings will be at the following homes and addresses:

Mrs. T. C. Bodine, 549 Second street; Mrs. A. B. Cole, 31 Fairview avenue; Mrs. J. B. Tennyson, 612 Madison avenue; Mrs. I. E. Van Arsdale, 670 Essex street; Mr. A. G. Negley, Jr., 711 Plainfield avenue; Mrs. A. P. Palmer, 810 Second place; Mrs. Rodney Louis, 947 West Sixth street; Mrs. Charles R. Banks, 1308 Watchung avenue.

At 5 p. m. a meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Donato Guiarino, 1338 Lake street.

BOYS' AUXILIARY HOLD SUCCESSFUL CAKE SALE

The boys' auxiliary of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild held a successful cake and candy sale, Saturday, the proceeds from which amounted to $18. This will be used for carrying on the work of the guild. The store on West Front street, where the sale was held, was decorated with flags and bunting. Howard A. Colby kindly loaned his automobile to collect the cakes and candy for the sale, and William R. Codington also generously gave the use of the store free for the sale, and Paul H. Burns was also generous in the loan of a phonograph to entertain patrons of the sale.

FIRE ON WASHINGTON STREET.

New York, April 10.—Fire is raging on the sixth and seventh floors of the Electrical Exchange building on Washington street, extending from Liberty to Cedar streets. The building is one of the older fireproof structures in the lower part of Manhattan. The work of the firemen is being impeded because of the difficulty of reaching the blaze from the outside. Three alarms have been turned in.

SOLOIST FOR ORATORIO.

William Holmes, baritone soloist of the First Baptist church, has been engaged by the Bound Brook Choral Society for the oratorio of "Elijah," to be given Wednesday night, May 3.

RECREATION NOTES

The swimming classes for men and women will be held Wednesday night in the High School. The men's class will meet in the gymnasium at 8:15, and the women will use the pool from 7:30 until 8:30.

Miss Snyder's dancing class will continue as usual in the Washington School this evening. The game room will be open.

The Zephyrs and the Athenians will meet in the High School gym tomorrow night. The former will have use of the floor from 9 o'clock until 10:30, while the latter will use the gym from 7:30 until 9. Miss Wean will be on hand to instruct the girls in drills and floor gymnastics and basketball.

The Big Print Red Letter Bible

Fascinating Figures About The Bible

Over 200 million copies of the Bible have been printed. Touching end to end, they would go 'round the world —25000 miles. Piled one on another, it would take 4000 mountains like Mt. Everest, the highest in the world, to reach the topmost book. But this is not all. The public libraries of the entire world could not contain them. It would take two of the largest ships ever built, loaded to the deck, or a hundred freight trains, with 25 cars to the train, to transport them. Stacked in columns, they would make 100,000 Eiffel Towers, the tallest structure ever built by human hands. To print them would require at least 100 billions of pages of type.

The mere physical facts about the Bible stagger the imagination. All the other books ever printed seem microscopic by comparison. The Bible has been read by more people than any ten thousand other books. Today it forms the basis of religion for several hundred millions of the most enlightened peoples of the earth. The greatest war in history began in 1914, and shook the world from center to circumference. As a result, untold millions of people, startled out of their lethargy, took to the Bible to save their sanity and restore their mental vision. The first year of the war saw more Bibles sold than in any other year since it was printed.

It was the consideration of these facts that led this newspaper, in conjunction with all the leading newspapers of the country, to seize upon the psychological moment in which to inaugurate a nation-wide revival of Bible reading. The edition now offered in these columns is the same as is being offered by the leading papers everywhere—not for profit to themselves—but for the benefit of their readers.

We invite comparison with any other edition of the Bible. We challenge competitive examination; secure in the knowledge that the Famous Red Letter Edition we offer, is easily first —and beyond any ordinary offering by publishers who seek only profit.

EVADE FILM LAW BY NOVEL METHOD

Photograph Original Pictures of Johnson-Willard Fight Across the Border.

The first exhibition of the pictures of the championship fight between Jess Willard and Jack Johnson ever given in this country took place yesterday at the studio of the Duplex Motion Picture Corporation at 178 Fulton street, New York, before a gathering which included many men well known in connection with the boxing game in this country.

The pictures were taken in Cuba on April 5, 1915, but on account of the Federal law prohibiting fight pictures being brought into this country, the films have never been seen here. There was no legal interference with yesterday's exhibition, and the promoters say that the law has been complied with, and they are free to show the pictures anywhere in this State.

A new and unusual method was employed to get the pictures here. Last week the pictures were shown in a tent at Rouse Point, a few inches north of the Canadian border. A moving picture camera near at hand, but on American soil, caught the pictures as they were being shown. All of the twenty-six rounds were taken. The operator, R. W. Ulmer, began his task a week ago yesterday (Sunday), and did not finish until Thursday. More than 7,000 feet of the film were taken.

The pictures of the fight are perhaps the most successful of the kind ever taken. As the contest took place at midday at Havana under a clear sky and a bright sun, the conditions for photographing were of the best. The film is very clear, and at the ring side can be seen many well-known New Yorkers. Several rounds were shown yesterday, and the promoters of the pictures plan to exhibit them at a local theatre this week. As there is a Federal law prohibiting the pictures being taken from State to State, the same method of photographing them at the boundary line beween States will probably be used by the promoters.

The projecting of these films across the boundary line by camera is a new scheme, and a new synchronizing device was used in the work. The camera on the American side, which took the pictures, was only twelve inches away from the original films on the Canadian side.

DIAMOND A. C. TO HAVE FORMER QUAKER PLAYERS

Norman Lynch, former manager of the Quaker Juniors, and William Rielley, former pitcher for the Quakers, are putting out a very strong team this season.

Lynch is going to do the catching and Rielley will twirl, and great results are expected as they have secured "Gussy" Hendricks, who played last season with the Laurel A. C. The line-up will be as follows:

N. Lynch, c; W. Rielley, p; G. Hendricks, 1b; E. Vail, 2b; B. Van Nest, ss; R. Larue, 3b; E. Kieley, lf; O. Friedman, rf; K. Shepard, cf.

Any teams ranging from 13 to 15 years of age, desiring games, call or write Norman Lynch, manager, 324 East Second street, or William Rielley, captain, North avenue.

HANS WAGNER LIKELY TO PLAY SECOND THIS YEAR

Baird in centre field, "Hans" Wagner at second, Smith at short and Viox at third seems to be the final say in the matter of arranging a lineup for the Pittsburgh Pirates to open their season, according to reports wafting Northward from their camp in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

This combination has been used as a part of the regulars' lineup during the past week, and has every indication of being there to stay. Viox at third shows a big improvement over his work at second, while Wagner was slated for the second sack last summer, and is sure to hold his own.

In the Pirates' practice Manager Callahan has devised a "target" to put his twirling squad on edge. With ropes and sticks he constructed an oblong frame, the width of the plate, and the heighth of an ordinary batter. This is arranged over the plate. The cage is pulled up and the players stand behind it to act as judges. The pitchers have to throw a fast one, a slow one and a curve through the opening to make a perfect score. If the sphere touches the ropes it is declared a ball, but if it goes through the centre is it pronounced a strike.

BALL GAMES CALLED OFF.

Weather permitting, the Giants and the Yankees will resume activity at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. A snowstorm prevented Saturday's game, and the bad weather yesterday prevented the Giants-Long Branch game at Jersey City, the Yankees-Newark game at Newark, and the Brooklyn-Bushwick skirmish at Ridgewood Park.

DEMONSTRATE WORK OF THE Y. W. C. A.

Program Concluded With Basketball Game Against S. P. P. H. Team.

Drills, aesthetic dances, relay races and a basketball game comprised the program of the ninth annual gymnastic exhibit of the physical department of the Young Women's Christian Association given in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday night. Despite the inclement weather, there was a large turnout of enthusiastic parents and friends, who frequently gave vent to their appreciation of the various demonstrations by prolonged applause.

Under the personal supervision and direction of Miss Winifred E. Mann, the physical director, the various exercises were given in excellent uniformity and precision, while the dances elicited much commendation. Of the latter probably the most pleasing was the Dutch folk dance, young women taking part being dressed in the native Dutch costumes, even to the wooden shoes. The "La Russe," a Russian folk dance, rendered in costume, was a close second, while the Danish folk dance, "Seven Jumps," and the "Bluette Polka" were all excellently given. The wand drill and the dumb-bell drill, given by a class of the younger girls, were decidedly interesting, the entire group keeping in unison during the execution.

The complete program was as follows: Entrance march, wand drill; "Seven Jumps" (Danish folk dance), pass goal ball relay, "Snowstorm," (Russian folk dance), 'La Russe," all up relay and "Wooden Shoes" (Dutch folk dance).

The young women who took part were the Misses Helen Almy, Gladys Davis, Alice Hicks Florence Hicks, Helen Willet, Cara Castaldi, Evelyn Krymer, Anna Blaich, Meldred Dewey, Evelyn Tennyson, Solita Weeks, Dorothy Ferguson, Ethel Blazier, Ellen Doughty, Margaret Ewart, Mary Mair, Marion Reed, Laura Smith, Gertrude Mair, Lucy Johnson, Mrs. Frank Squire, Marie Pyquette, Ada Van Hise, Mabel Townley, Emily Pleydell, Nettie Steiner, Mildred Bamberger, Estelle Homann, Eleanor Sminck, Alberta Dolliver and Mildred Day.

The program was brought to a close with a basketball game between the local association girls and the Scotch Plains Parish House Sunshine Weavers. The latter were defeated by a score of 20 to 9. The initial part of the games was played without lines. This fact seemed to be a handicap to the visitors, who were kept practically scoreless, while the local girls ran up a comfortable margin. The second period was played with lines. The Misses Ethel Blazier, Nettie Steiner and Ellen Doughty played excellent games for the home aggregation, while Miss G. Head and Miss Ida Bopp put up good games for the losers.

SNOW PREVENTS GOLF AND BALL OPENINGS

Next Saturday Will Mark Beginning of Play on Local Links and Diamonds.

Baseball and golf openings planned for Saturday were prevented by the belated snowstorm which visited this city. All the games and practices planned for local nines were called off, and the links were deserted.

The first play at the Park Golf Club will be done this week, and if Saturday is clear, there will be the first large gathering of the season at the borough course. Holes have been cut and the grass mowed on all of the winter greens.

At the Plainfield Country Club, nine holes are ready for play, winter greens being used. The holes being played are the first, second, third, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth. The entire course will not be ready until the latter part of the month, when it is planned to open the competitive schedule.

The local baseball opening is slated for next Saturday, when Nutley High School will oppose North Plainfield High School on Hyde Field. The Plainfield H. S. team will play at Trenton. The Farmers' A. C. will meet Hope Chapel on the Soccer Field.

GREAT SWIMMER FAILS TO QUALIFY IN THE FURLONG

Duke Kahanamoku, of the Honolulu Boat Club, world's champion and record holder in the 100-meter swim, was shut out in the final of the 220-yard national championship, which will be decided tonight in the tank of the New York Athletic Club, when he finished last in a field of three in his trial heat contested last night in the Mercury Foot natatorium. The defeat of Kahanamoku by Herbert E. Vollmer and Joseph Wheatley of the New York A. C. in 2 minutes 30 seconds came as a decided shock to the hundreds of spectators who witnessed the trial heats for the titular event. It was not so much the Hawaiian's defeat by Vollmer that startled the spectators as it was his failure to score over Wheatley, who was a yard in front of the Duke as they passed under the strip of canvas stretched across the finish.

CARDS LICK BROWNS.

St. Louis, April 10.—The St. Louis Nationals won the city championship from the St. Louis Americans by taking the fifth game of the city series here yesterday. The score was 8 to 4. Extra base hits off Weilman and Crandall gave the Nationals a big lead in the sixth inning. Sallee relieved Meadows in the eighth, and checked a rally by the Americans.

A'S NEED ALL THREE.

A house tournament match between Miles Wilson's A team ant Frank Connors' C five will be rolled at the Columbus Club tonight, and if the A's win three games they will tie the E and H teams for first place. The first-place tie will be rolled off Thursday night.

REO vs. OAKLAND.

KNIGHTS END WITH A WIN OVER HOPES

Chapelites Account for Only One Goal in First Half of Game at Home.

Columbus Club basketeers won at Hope Chapel Saturday night, 23 to 17, in their last game of the season.

The home side scored only one point in the first half of the contest, but in the second session there was litle to choose between the two fives.

George Linke tossed in a quartet of baskets for the winners.

GEORGE STALLINGS WORRIED.

Signs Reulbach Because James' Arm Is Troubling Him.

Manager George Stallings of the Braves had a good reason when he signed Ed Reulbach, the former Cub, who last year worked in the Federal league. Bill James, one of the big three who pitched the Braves to the pennant and the world's championship in 1914, is again having his troubles.

James was of little use to Stallings last year because of a sore arm. This spring James' arm is acting just as it was when he left the Hubtown aggregation in 1915. James is considering having an operation performed in the hopes of being relieved. Reulbach pitched good ball for Newark and should be of some help to Stallings.

K. C. AND PLAINFIE LD FIVE CONCLUDE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Besides winning every game of their Catholic championship series with St. Joseph's and the T. A. B. S. teams, the Knight of Columbus basketeers ended their season Saturday with a string of twelve victories to their credit out of a schedule of fourteen contests. Taken all in all, the indoor court season at the West Front street rendezvous was a decided success both from a sport and financial standpoint. During the winter two games were offered on Thursday nights, the Plainfield Five aggregation playing the preliminaries. Although both the Columbus Club boys and the feminine quintet are considered a little above par among basketball teams around this city, on several occasions only an eleventh-hour spurt saved them from defeat. The total number of games played by the club boys were fourteen, while the girls had trouble in finding opponents, and were able to schedule only nine. Of the latter number they lost one.

The total number of points tallied by the West Front street male players was 507, while their opponents numbered 277. Of the former number Captain George Linke personally contributed 171, his points being divided between 79 field goals and 13 of the one-point throws. William Coyle was a close second, running up 143 points, with 59 goals and 25 fouls. Albert Bryniarski, playing but ten games, stopped with an even 100 tallies to his credit, the versatile player throwing the leather for 17 two-point counts and 66 of the one-point variety. Bryniarski's official position was a guard, but when necessity demanded his substitution at forward was a wise move. Daniel McAfee, playing the pivot position, was indispensible, almost invariably the tall center sending the sphere toward the vicinity of his goal. Joseph Carty, another of the regular team players, threw in 13 field goals and one from the 15-foot line.

Wilson, Kyle, McNamee, Linke and Cullen were fill-in men and each did creditable work during the few games they played.

The individual table of points made follows:

	Ga.	G.	F.	P.
George Linke, f	14	79	13	171
William Coyle, f	11	59	25	143
Al Bryniarski, f, g	10	17	66	100
Daniel McAfee, c	13	24	0	48
Joseph Carty, g	13	13	1	27
John Wilson, g	4	6	0	12
Jim Kyle, g	1	1	0	2
Jas. McNamee, g	1	1	0	2
Gerald Linke, g	3	1	0	2
James Cullen, g	1	0	0	0
Totals		201	105	507

The scores of the games follow:

Knights of Columbus, 29; T. A. B. S., 13.

Knights of Columbus, 25; Plainfield A. A., 18.

Knights of Columbus, 47; Canadian Boys, 6.

Knights of Columbus, 48; St. Joseph's College, 18.

Knights of Columbus, 70; St. Paul's Parish House, 10.

Knights of Columbus, 12; Fordham College, 23.

Knights of Columbus, 31; Recreation Club, 32.

Knights of Columbus, 38; Madison Five, 20.

Knights of Columbus, 26; Plainfield A. A., 22.

Knights of Columbus, 54; St. Joseph's, 27.

Knights of Columbus, 21; T. A. B. S., 20.

Knights of Columbus, 34; St. Joseph's, 27.

Knights of Columbus, 49; Hope Chapel, 24.

Knights of Columbus, 23; Hope Chapel, 17.

The Plainfield Five established another record for feminine players hereabouts, the sum total of their points being 248 to their opponents' 72. The young women who have layed together for two seasons have demonstrated their supremacy, the fact becoming significant many times through the scarcity of opponents to play against them. The one defeat registered to them was a game played in another State, and under a code of rules entirely foreign to the Plainfielders. Remarkable accurateness in shooting, coupled with a peculiarly individual method of handling the ball, Miss Helen Hummel, one of the forwards on the team, is recognized as the peer of feminine basketball players in the State. During the seven games in which she played, she caged forty-four goals and thirty-seven fouls—a total of 125 points. Her adeptness at caging the leather sphere was strikingly demonstrated recently on the Columbus Club court, when she was credited with nineteen field goals in a regulation thirty-minute game. Thus she contributed over a point a minute to her team, a feat which she many times equalled, and on several occasions surpassed. Captain Helen Bryniarski, her team mate at forward, numbered twenty-one field goals and twenty-one fouls, turning in a card of sixty-three points to her credit. Miss Bryniarski formerly played the pivot position, but because of the withdrawal of Miss Ida Hummel, through an injury, she filled in the forward vacancy. Up to the time of her leaving, Miss Ida Hummel tallied forty-six points. The remainder of the regular team was composed of the Misses Clara Smith, Theresa McCullough, Mildred McAuliffe and Elsie Debele. The two former, playing guard, have been the stumbling block of many opposing forwards.

The point standing of individuals follows:

	G.	G.	F.	P.
Helen Hummel, f	7	44	37	125
Helen Bryniarski c, f	8	21	21	63
Ida Hummel, f	4	23	0	46
Marjorie Burtis, f	1	4	0	8
Mildred McAuliffe, c	9	2	0	4
T. McCullough, c, g	4	1	0	2
Clara Smith, g	9	0	0	0
Ellen Doughty, g	5	0	0	0
Elsie Debele, g	1	0	0	0
Totals		95	58	248

The scores of the team's record follows:

Plainfield Five, 64; St. Mary's Social Club, 2; Plainfield Five, 19; Canadians, 17; Plainfield Five, 14; Scholastics, 10; Plainfield, 18; W. K. BATTING EYE STAYS LONGER.

Remains When All Other Essentials Depart From Player.

"Pitching arms may fade out and legs may wabble beneath the strain of quick starting and sudden stopping," says Grantland Rice, "but we have always contended that the batting eye is the last essential to depart from a ball player."

Those who wondered whether Frank Baker could hit again as in the old Mackian days will soon find this out. Baker so far has only been slipping into shape. But even this soon and with a wounded hand he still has that same old mighty swing and the same keen eye. If he does not bat around .320 or higher with the New York Americans those who have been observing his early performances will be more than willing to quit guessing.

Davis Will Join Braves In June.

Pitcher George No Hit Davis of the Harvard Law school has signed a 1916 contract to pitch for the Boston Braves. Davis will report to the team before June 25. That is the latest date on which he can report, according to the terms of the contract which was given him by Stallings. By June 25 Davis will have finished his law school course and will have received his degree.

Jennings Uncovers Star.

Manager Jennings is confident that he has discovered a good understudy for any one of his well known outfield wrecking crew. In the early games Recruit Harper has been displaying Cobb-like speed, a Sam Crawford wallop with the bludgeon and a regular Veach throwing arm.

LOBERT TAKING THINGS EASY IN SPRING GAMES

Hans Lobert is not showing any of his old-time form for McGraw's team this year, and it looks like a trip to the bench for old Honus.

Lobert is playing fair ball. He is playing much better the last few days than he was before the Detroit series started. But his arm is quite weak, and he is either afraid to run fast or can't.

Knowing Lobert's speed of other years it seems hard to believe the latter. It must be that the little German is afraid to take a chance of pulling up with some trouble with his legs before the season opens.

One is inclined to commend him for his aparent shrewdness when this phase first strikes home. Then you think of it this way. Lobert has been down training under ideal conditions, beneath the sun that has shone midsummer warmth daily for nearly four weeks. If he is afraid to let himself go out now, when is he going to find out if he can stand the strain of big league play?

Lobert has bad legs. He has trouble with his knees. He was out of the game quite a while last season with injuries to them.

It is obvious that he fears a return of the trouble. He never lets himself out on the bases. He does not run fast or slide.

McGraw has put together such a formidable-looking aggregation for the coming campaign that it is possible the Giants might win with a third baseman afrad to play the game for all that is in him for fear of bringing back old injuries. It is possible that that the club could do this, but extremely doubtful.

To the man on the fence who likes Lobert, but has the interests of the club primarily at heart, it would seem best for the third sacker to find definitely what he can or cannot do now. Why wait? If McGraw is going to have to replace him with Fred Brainard at third eventually, he had better know it at once and make the change before the season starts.

Can you imagine a man of Lobert's reputed speed being thrown out at first on a rap that a third baseman kicks behind him and finally picks up? That happened last week. Can you imagine the old Lobert being caught at second on an attempt to steal standing up? He was caught that way recently

Valuable Tips for Auto Owners Who Want to Know Their Cars

Cause of "Missed Explosions"—Operator's Ears Should Be Alert to Any "Knocking" in the Car—"Safety First" Suggestions—Do Not Take Trolley Tracks—Condition of Tires.

One of the best methods a motor car driver can use for finding out whether anything is wrong with the mechanism is to be alert to new sounds anywhere in the machinery as the car moves over the highway.

It is not at all difficult for a person who has driven a car several months to note unusual noises proceeding from the machine, and by discovering the cause and attending to it at once he may save much inconvenience at a later date. Missed explosions occur not infrequently during cold weather, due to poor vaporization of the feul. This type of missed explosions is particularly noticeable when first starting the motor and may continue until the motor is thoroughly warmed, when it will generally cease if the ignition is in good condition.

Modern carburetors are water jacketed with water from the radiator, but this does no good until the motor has been run long enough to heat the water; therefore, in addition to the water jacket, hot air pipe with an expanded end surrounding the exhaust pipe should be connected to the carburetor air intake.

The first few explosions will heat the exhaust pipe and the air passing to the carburetor will thus be heated, with resulting improvement in the vaporization of fuel.

Sometimes this "missing" is caused by defective ignition. Possibly there is a loose connection, a spark plug may be cracked, or the breaker points in the magneto need adjusting. In order to detect whether the motor is firing evenly the cut-out should be opened occasionaly, but if there is no cut-out, the car should be slowed down to about ten miles per hour, when any irregularity of explosion will make itself manifest by a jerking motion.

Good modern motors operate very quietly, and thus the operator's ears should be alert to any knocking or pounding proceeding from the following sources. The most common causes of knocking are:

Spark advanced too much, carbon in the cylinders, causing pre-ignition and overheating due to some defect in the cooling system. The radiator may have sprung a leak, the water pump may have stopped working, or the water jackets and radiator may be clogged with sediment. After a motor has been run for a long period the bearings are likely to be worn, which will cause a noticeable vibration. Knocks from this cause will be more of the nature of a rap as compared with a sharp, metallic sound for the first mentioned causes. In the event of a continued metallic clang in the motor, the car should be brought to an immediate stop. Otherwise the over-heating pats will work serious injury to the reciprocating parts, melting out the lining metal of the bearings and even causing the pistons to "seize" or stick past in the cylinders. Unusual rattling sounds proceeding from the chassis or body indicate that something has broken loose which may be in need of immediate attention. A sudden snap occuring while the car is passing over a rough road should be taken as a warning that a spring has broken. If this is found to be the case, the car should be driven most slowly and carefully until a repair shop can be reached. Very often an ordinary country blacksmith can forge a spring leaf which will serve as a substitute for the original until such a time as the spring can be conveniently repaired.

Two pieces of old spring about twelve inches long and two spring clips fitting the springs will serve the purpose of an emergency repair and take very little room in the tool box. One piece of spring is to be placed on top and one of the bottom of the broken spring with a spring clip surrounding the whole at each end, or if the break is near the end of the spring both the repair pieces may be put on the bottom, extending past the break and both clips put at one end around the whole.

If neither of these devices are at hand, a temporary repair may be made by placing the largest wrench in the tool kit so that it spans the break and closely winding the whole with strong cord about one-quarter inch diameter.

The condition of the tires is a matteer to which the driver should give his careful attention. Nothing is more exasperating on an otherwise enjoyable trip than many tire changes. If the car, while traveling over a smooth, dry road, evinces a tendency to skid to a certain side of the road or if it is hard to turn the steering wheel, a tire is flat. This should be remedied immediately, as running on flat shoes even for a short distance cuts the tube to pieces besides breaking down the side walls of the tire.

One should not take trolley tracks, crosswalks and similar obstructions at high speed, as by so doing several piles of fabric are almost sure to be broken. When the car is housed for the night it is a good plan to examine and remove from the tires any obstructions which may have lodged therein, filling the resulting cuts with some plastic compound. Tires should always be run with the pressure recommended by the makers, unless they are oversize tires, which may permit running a little softer.

When the motor car coasts down a hill occasion should be taken to see if the brakes grip with their accustomed firmness. Either set of brakes should hold the car on any hill where traction can be obtained. The novice not infrequently starts off with his emergency brake set. If this is not detected soon, the brake lining will probably be burned out, besides throwing a heavy strain on the driving gears and wasting gasoline.

During the stop for luncheon the driver ought to make a cursory examination of the chassis to see that there are no broken springs or bolts. There should be no dripping of the gasoline permitted for an instant on account of the fire hazard. If the gasoline drips, it is probably caused by the float valve of the carburetor not seating properly, or possibly of there is a leaky pipe. Many cases of overheating can be traced to the petcock on the bottom of the radiator jarring open, thus allowing all the water to run out.

SCOTCH PLAINS INCLUDED IN NEW ROAD CONTRACT

The durability and practicability of cement roads have been demonstrated thoroughly on a small patch of this material in Summit and the Union County Board of Freeholders will soon lay six miles of this road from Springfield to Scotch Plains. The cost, including grading, will be somewhere about $20,000 a mile, but the Freeholders beelieve the investment will be profitable, particularly when the upkeep is considered. The roadbed will be twenty-two feet wide, but the road proper will be sixty-six feet in width.

The small portion of cement road in Morris avenue was put down last fall as an experiment. There was also put down at the same time a portion of amiesite road and a stretch of tarvia, the idea being to determine the wearing qualities of the respective materials. The past winter was particularly severe on all kinds of improved roads, but the cement "stood up" well, and on this account it was decided to build the seven-mile stretch from Springfield to Scotch Plains. Besides its wearing qualities its smooth surface is said to appeal to automobilists.

VALVE STEM CORES.

Two or three removals of the valve core will ruin the small rubber washer that retains the air. Have new ones on hand.

TO STOP SPRING SQUEAKING.

Flake graphite between the leaves of the springs will prevent them from squeaking and keep them from rusting.

KENTUCKIAN LOVES AUTO AS WELL AS HIS HORSE

The Kentuckian loves his horse, but he is getting to love his automobile more. The distribution of automobiles in that state this year promises to be larger than ever before.

Hugh Ramsey, Deputy State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, says of the automobile situation in that state:

"About 10,000 new cars were registered during 1915, which paid only the proportional part of the fee to January 1, 1916. These cars will pay the full fee, averaging $7.50, making a total of $150,000 for 1916. Over 1,500 cars have been registered for 1916 to date, and a sale of 10,000 cars is anticipated for the year, which will contribute $50,000 in license fees, making an estimated total of $200,000 for the year on automobiles alone."

ANOTHER AUTO STUNT.

A Jeffrey automobile, driven by Frank C. Riggs, of Portland, Oregon, has broken all endurance records connected with the history of Mount Hood by driving through ten miles of snow and plowing snow two feet deep for the last four miles leading up to Government Camp, at the base of the mountain. Never before has an automobile reached this point so late in the year, and never has one attempted to make the trip after the fall snows have come.

90,000 TONS OF RUBBER.

In the United States the consumption of crude rubber in 1915 was in the neighborhood of 90,000 tons, while in the production of all grades of manufactured rubber merchandise is estimated at 140,000 tons.

ROADS GREATLY IN NEED OF ATTENTION

Winter Snows Have Left Many Thoroughfares in Bad Shape for Traffic.

Spring and the departure of snow finds New Jersey's roads much scarred and rutted; in fact, more so than in any recent year. This is due principally to the necessity of using chains on cars and trucks since the first heavy snowfall of the year, which occurred in December. Since then, save for a short period in January, the highways have been coated with snow and ice, with the inevitable result of heavy rutting and deep tracks. While some of these ruts have vanished with the ice, others have penetrated into the surface of the roads themselves and will necessitate repairs. Stock-taking by the highway authorities has started in and it is expected that a large amount of repairs will be found necessary. This is not confined to rural sections, but is true of urban highways as well.

One effect of the winter has been the start of disintegration of some notable highways that motorists have come to regard as immune from wear and tear. One of these that has suffered is the famous Seven Bridges road, from Maplewood to Springfield. This fine thoroughfare, one of the most important in this section, is pitted in many places and has crumbled at its edges. The bulk of it is still good, however, and a little repair work done quickly, will save it. Morris avenue east of Springfield has suffered somewhat in the same manner, while the stretch of fine road from the crest of Hobart Hill toward Chatham is also in need of attention.

A new ferry from South Jersey to Wilmington, Del., will be in operation before long, unless plans miscarry. It will be operated from Wilmington to Carney's Point, Fenton's Beach, Pennsgrove and Salem. This provides an additional exit from this State for motorists bound South who do not wish to follow the customary road through Philadelphia. This and the fact that South Jersey roads are making constant advances in condition will afford new tour variations.

Excellent touring conditions will be found on Cape Cod this summer. Except for a little re-surfacing work by the Massachusetts Highway Commission, the roads there will be free of all construction work during the summer months. These repairs, too, will be out of the way before the tide of touring sets in late in July.

In the recently announced plans of highway work made by New York State no reference is made to any protected improvements to the Greenwood Lake highway. This means that if the work is to be undertaken at all, it will be by Orange county itself or by the local authorities.

WAR EMPHASIZES NEED FOR LIGHT AUTOMOBILE

In the European war has been seen the need for a new wave in motoring. It had been urged before but there had been no definite reason advanced for the need of a light car. Now it has been pounded home by a thousand and one instances. The heavy cars in the war zone have been found wanting. They have gone to pieces over the heavy roads and over those battlefields where roads have been second consideration.

The light, well-balanced cars have skippped easily over the rumpled map of Europe, performing their duties with such brilliant effect that there is now no room for doubt that the day of the heavy car is past.

NEARBY ROAD REPORTS.

Elizabeth, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville—Amiesite in good condition to Plainfield. Between Plainfield to Bound Brook passable, but in bad condition. From Bound Brook to Somerville, four and one-half miles, fair macadam, rather rough in places.

Somerville, Belle Mead, Rocky Hill, Kingston—Through Woods Tavern to Belle Mead, macadam, built in 1898, but still in fair condition. Belle Mead to Kingston, old macadam, but in very good condition.

Somerville, Whitehouse, Clinton—Water-bound macadam to Whitehouse, badly broken up in places. From Whitehouse to Clinton, bituminous surface, in good condition, broken places having been repaired. From Lebanon the five-year-old trappist pavement, resurfaced last summer with amiesite, is in excellent condition. Whitehouse to Flemington, macadam, in good condition.

NEEDED VALVE INSPECTION.

Inlet valves are not subjected to the same degree of heat in the operation of the motor as are the exhaust valves. Since the inlet valves do not become so hot they do not expand as much, and, therefore, the normal amount of clearance between the inlet valve stems and the push rods should be less than the clearance in the exhaust valves. It is a good plan to give the inlet valves a glance once in a while to see that they are seating properly.

SUNSHINE NOTE FOR THE GASOLINE USER

German Chemist Said to Have Discovered Substitute for Valuable Fluid.

German chemists are said to have discovered a substitute mixture for pure gasoline. The announcement was received by American fuel experts and motorists hopefully, in view of the price of gasoline, but they are inclined to wait until practical tests have been made before committing themselves.

The new spirit, which possesses a specific gravity of ninety to ninety-five is mixed with benzole or gasoline in the proportions of one to five, and scarcely any carburetor adjustment is found necessary for its satisfactory use. It is said that millions of gallons will shortly be manufactured by German firms, which will materially relieve the scarcity of gasoline throughout the country.

Substitutes for rubber tires and, indeed, all rubber goods are, however, not so readily discovered, and in Berlin there is said to be so serious a shortage of the raw material for the manufacture of tires that no civilians except doctors are permitted to drive automobiles. Rubber is smuggled into the country in many ingenious forms, the latest vehicle for this traffic being sausage skins. All rubber floor cloth and rubber scraps of every description are being carefully collected and used to supply the deficiency.

In Austria a general requisition of all auto tires, new and old, has been made, and a government order recently issued compelled owners to hand over their precious tires within twenty-four hours or undergo a year's imprisonment.

In one respect at least motoring in Germany may possibly benefit eventually from the war. Most German roads have generally borne a reputation of being in very fair condition, but in certain parts, notably in the north, many of the roads were deplorable. This is now being set right at practically no cost to the localities by employing war prisoners on making and repairing the roads wherever the necessity for such work exists.

DRIVERS' EXAM SCHEDULE.

Under the new schedule of drivers' examination dates, which goes into effect May 1, it will be possible for an applicant to take the examination almost any day in the week except Sundays and holidays. Every Monday and Friday has been assigned to Newark, Wednesday to Jersey City and Saturday to Morristown. At Paterson the exams will be held the first, third and fifth Thursday and at Passaic the second and fourth Thursdays. The first and third Fridays have been assigned Hackettstown and the first and third Thursday to New Brunswick. By running down to Long Branch, it will be possible to take the examination the first, third and fifth Tuesdays. At Asbury Park the days will be the second and fourth Tuesdays.

"HOLE-IN-THE-WALL" ISSUE.

The road situation around Perth and South Amboy, with special reference to the "Hole-in-the-Wall," is particularly active. During the last week all sorts of improvements were discussed except an aeroplane service for automobiles from Woodbridge to Keyport. One idea is a traffic bridge across the railroad in South Amboy and another is a new steel bridge across the Raritan to replace the present structure, which costs $26,000 a year to keep in even poor shape. At any rate, the situation is receiving attention.

LIGHTS ON AUTOS.

Automobilists who have traveled the River Road are complaining of the dangerous condition of the highway in some places. The road is hub-deep in mud and is over a hilly country that makes traffic perilous.

Berlin, via London, April 10.—The following official statement was issued by the German war office: Four of our seaplanes dropped twenty bombs on the Russian aerodrome at Kelkond. Two enemy aeroplanes were brought down. Our machines returned safely.

HIGH GAS PRICE DUE TO JUGGLING

Trade Commission Demands That Congress Make Investigation.

Washington, April 10.—In a preliminary report to Congress on its inquiry into the high price of gasoline the Federal Trade Commission today declared that an immediate investigation of the gasoline situation is necessary. Where prices are found to be higher than formerly or higher than in other sections of the country, making proper allowance for quality of product, freight and marketing conditions the inference is clear, the report declares, that the increased price is partly due to artificial manipulation. The Commission then gave a resume of the methods whereby it is making the inquiry into the prevailing gasoline prices.

COST OF GASOLINE A "TRADE HAMLET"

Main Topic of Conversation Among Auto Owners These Days.

Gasoline continues to play a leading part in the automobile world—a sort of trade Hamlet, melancholy to behold—obsessed with the soliloquy, "To rise another point today, or not to rise another point today." A large audience awaits each decision and is pleased to note every day of procrastination. Right here in Plainfield the price of gasoline is an ever engrossing topic of conversation. A question of much interest among automobile users is how high is gasoline likely to go before the present upward-bound comes to a termination. Acording to a man in close touch with the situation the advance is likely to ascend to thirty-five cents a gallon, or even forty, before the top price is reached. As the silver lining to the cloud, the whole situation may be relieved in the next two or three months.

This may come either through a lessening of the heavy demands from abroad or through a larger supply. According to the person in question the immediate problem is more one of transportation than it is one of production. On acount of the lack of facilities for economical transportation from important producing centers there is an unusual shortage of supply in New York city. This was notably in evidence, according to all acounts, in the case of the California field.

The shutting up of the Panama Canal cut off that water-way route, with its reduced freight charges from the coast to New York city. The oil now coming from California to the East must pay trans-continental gasoline railroad rate. The oil produced in Eastern Mexico was practically all going to England in tank steamers requisitioned by the British government. It has been difficult to obtain figures reliable and up to date as to the increase in consumption in gasoline in the United States in recent years. The following statistics come from a source that should make them dependable.

In 1900 the total gasoline consumption in the United States was 5,000,000 barrels. In 1905 it had risen to 5,800,000. In 1910 it had climbed to 10,000,000 barrels. By the end of 1914 the consumption of gasoline had again practically doubled, the figures being 20,000,000 barrels. The estimated consumption of gasoline in this country in 1916 is placed at 30,000,000 barrels. With increases like this ahead the pressure for some low-priced fuel that may be used as a substitute for gasoline will continue, with growing force.

BRITISH LABOR RESTLESS.

Truce of Railway Workers and Government Menaced.

London, April 10.—J. H. Thomas, Laborite member of parliament, in a speech before a mass meeting of railway men said that the truce between the railway workers and the government is threatened. If the political truce is broken, he said, labor agitation is likely.

He added that there must be an equal sacrifice by establishing a national service. He continued:

"I sincerely believe that never since the war began have things looked so black as at this moment. If the war is to be won it will be won only by uniting the nation, one standing with the other.

"The working classes will not tolerate a further extension of this so called 'conscription.'"

CAN RESTORE DROWNED?

Johns Hopkins Doctors Have Life Giving Serum, It Is Said.

Baltimore, April 10.—Some time ago physicians at the Johns Hopkins hospital investigated a machine to restore to life those apparently dead from drowning. The machine proved successful on animals that could be put under treatment immediately after the accident.

With the idea of restoring life some time after the accident, the physicians began to search for the desired serum. This has been found. It has been tried on animals in the laboratories and in a number of cases has proved successful.

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST

Dr. Biederwolf's Sermon at Sunday Evening Service.

I read a story some time ago about a poor old "geezer," who had never been to the city. He went once and when he came back to the village people said. "Old Johnson's mighty stuck up since he's been to the city; see how he leans back and throws up his head." "Oh," said one, he can't help that; he got that bend in his back looking up at the tall buildings." I've always had great sympathy with the old man, for I always spend a part of my own time doing the same thing. The modern sky-scrapers are wonders to me but I want to tell you tonight, if you'd been in Babylon during the time of Belshazzar, you'd been looking up some too. We have got a good many architectural wonders today, but in some respects we've never yet touched the ancients. Babylon was a city of wonders. The walls of the old city were 60 miles in circumference; there were 25 gates of solid brass on each side of the square. Old Nebuchadnezzar built a mountain 400 feet high; great terraces ran around it, supported by huge arches above which the soil was piled so deep the largest trees had room to anchor their roots, and there far up above the city below blossomed and bloomed all the beauty of the flowery trophies until it seemed as if the angels of God had come down and planted the clouds with the flowers of paradise.

But I can't stop to tell you of this wonderful city. If it was beautiful in the day, it was doubly so in the night. It is night now and I want you to come over to the king's palace with me. A royal feast is on. Young Belshazzar, the second ruler of the realm, is to do himself proud tonight.

Belshazzar's father was the real king, but while he was off on a military expedition, the Medes and Persians besieged the city. They shut the father of Belshazzar out, and they shut Belshazzar in, and so Belshazzar had to assume the reins of government. He got puffed up over his power; he got chesty, as you say today and he proposes to give a royal banquet as a sort of inaugural ceremony. The palace is brilliant with beauty. A thousand of his lords are there and ladies too; his wives and his concubines; the "bonton" of society and the high rollers in general.

Description of Scene.

Hark to the rustle of the silken robes; to the music of harps; and cymbals. See the flashing candelabra and the blaze of the jewels, clustering on fingers and arms and necks of the Babylonish beauties. The song and the dance begins. The wine flows and they wax wanton and lewd. The half-naked dancing women come on and with music to suit, they wriggle and worm their way in and out among the tables, with sensual contortions of the oriental dance, while bachanalian laughter echoes from wall to wall, and they shout in daring revel, "Oh, King Belshazzar live forver." And every minute the king's head kept swelling; he imagined himself about the biggest thing in the universe, and he wanted to show his contempt for that little God the Jews called Jehovah, and sent over to the heathen temple for the holy cups of gold and silver which had been placed there by his grandfather, Nebuchadnezzar, who had brought them back as trophies, out of the temples of Jerusalem. "Fill them up," he cried, "drink to your king," and while they sang the praise of the gods and gold and silver and brass and wood and stone, they blasphemed and sneered at the God of the Jews, and cried, "Huzza, huzza, for the great Belshazzar."

But look, look, look—what strange thing is this. For suddenly as they reveled, the stillness of death fell on them, and out from the air shot the mysterious fingers of an armless hand, and on the plastering of the wall wrote in letters of living light.

The Writing on the Wall.

No wonder some people can't understand the things of God. They expected to put the king wise, but they had never seen hieroglyhic of this fashion before, they stood there speechless, and then the king was told about Daniel—that he was a man of God, a captive, who had been brought by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem, and Belshazzar told them to bring him quick, and he said to him, "Daniel, I'm mighty glad to see you." That's the way with a lot of you; always glad to see the preacher when no one else can help you. Just let the doctor shake his head, and then the preacher's welcome. "And he said, "Daniel I've heard about you, and they tell me the spirit of the gods is in you, and that you can make interpretations and dissolve doubts, and I want you to read that handwriting on the wall there. I've a bunch of ninnies here on fat salary, but they can't read it, they're up against the real article now, and they are all in. Now if you can discipher that writing, get busy, and I'll give you a purple suit, and you can ride in a chariot, and be next to me in the kingdom.

Couldn't Bribe Daniel.

And Daniels said, "Keep your chain and your gifts. I don't want them." Daniel was a boy you couldn't buy. He'd rather walk in righteousness over cobblestones with bleeding feet, than ride to hell in the finest chariot a king ever drove. He said, "Don't you remember Nebuchadnezzar, how he got the big head and thought he was the whole thing, and passed God up, and didn't God send judgment on him, and make him go out and eat grass with the cows and live like a beast? And here you are blaspheming God and living like the devil. Haven't you got sense enough to see that it don't pay to sneer at God? Keep your chain and your robe and give your rewards to another, but I'll read the writing for you. This is it. 'Mene, God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it; Tekel, Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting. Upharsin, They kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

As the words of Daniel died away, the tramping of a mighty army was heard in the streets below. The river Euphrates ran under the wall, and through the city, and Cyrus had dug a channel and turned the river out of its course, and walked dry shod under the wall along the river bed and the army of the Medes and Persians is thundering at the palace gate. There's a mighty crash, then tramp, tramp, tramp, up the stairs they come. The drunken guests start for the doors, but they burst open, and slaughter rushes in with a thousand gleaming knives. The palace of mirth becomes the hall of death. Belshazzar stands fixed with fright, as a mighty cimeter comes down upon his head and he drops. In a few minutes the whole thing is done and nothing is left but the debris of broken vessels and torn banners and the slush of wine, mingled with the blood of murdered men and women and the kicked and spurned and bleeding body of a dead king, for "That night was Belshazzar the King of the Chaldeans slain."

How much do you weigh?

"Tekel" is the text tonight, "Thou are weighed in the balance and found wanting."

"I want to find out how much you weigh in God's scales tonight and I want to find out how much I weigh. It's God's scales we are to get into tonight and not man's. Public opinion don't help you out any in God's sight. Maybe you've got three inches in "Who's Who in America?" but that won't help you out any in hell. You can be a heavyweight of the first water in your neighbors' estimation and a featherweight in God's. Let us see what we weigh in God's scales. You'll find the weights over in Exodus. Everybody knows them.

The First Weight.

The first one is: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me." Every man has a god. There is something in the center of his life around which his whole life revolves and that, whatever it is, is God for that man. If the true God isn't enthroned in your life then a false god reigns and that is your idol. You don't have to go to Africa or China to find heathen. If you are putting something else before God, black face, yellow face, or white face, you're heathen.

Some men worship themselves. It's a big I and little God. Some men worship money. They make an idol of wealth that wouldn't be any more true of some men if they got on their knees and prayed to it. The American dollar has got "In God We Trust" on it, and it ought to stay there in spite of Roosevelt's fool notion it ought to come off. Horace Greeley called it the "Almighty Dollar." We held up our hands at this irreverence, but its true that some men trust a mighty sight more in the dollar than they do in God. The lust for gold is the curse of the age. Men will defy God and sell their conscience to add a few more dollars to their bank account and increase their rating a little more in Bradstreet and Dunn.

Some people worship society. You dress the way you do and you do the things you do because society expects it. If you'd put God first the society lot you gang with wouldn't have any use for you and you'd have to skidoo. The woman who has the most withering, mildewing, influence on face of God's earth is not the poor woman who has lost her virtue; it is the wine sipping, lunch guzzling, fudge eating, trappe sucking woman who lives for mere dress and social functions.

There are women living in Plainfield now and if they should die tonight you wouldn't have to preach any funeral sermons. Put them in their coffin and go get their jewelry and their decollette dress and their eyebrow pencils and their number 18 rogue and pile them on their coffin and you'll have the story of their life and know what they lived for. Society was their god.

Second and Third Weights.

The second commandment is: "Thou shalt not bow down to any graven image. "It's a right to make images and pictures of the Christ, but it's all wrong to bow down to them and to worship them. You don't need any picture or any prophet or any preacher or any priest or any person, but God wants you to come right into His presence and worship Him.

Now let's look at the third weight. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

Get in the scales and see how much you weigh.

Let the slightest provocation arise and some men think they've got to cuss.

Like the little boy who said one morning, "Mamma, the ash man's a better man than my papa, ain't he?"

"Why no, by son, what do you mean by saying the ash man is a better man than your papa?"

"Well, mamma, the ash man's a more religious man than my papa, ain't he?"

"Why, no Willie, what do you mean by saying the ash man is a more religious man than your papa?"

"Well, mamma, when the ash man came around this morning with his mule cart after the ashes, he got the barrel just up on the edge of the cart and the mule started up and the barrel fell on his toe and spilled the ashes all over him and he went around to the head of the mule and told him all about God and all about hell."

The Language of Men.

And that's about the way with some of you. When a man can't do anything but cuss under such circumstances, he's pretty low down in my opinion. But some men just cuss without provocation. You've just been at it so long it's become a habit with you. Talk about being a gentleman! Could your wife stand around on street corners and chew, sit and cuss and damn and be a lady? Could your mother do it? No, of course they couldn't. Well, neither can you do it and be a gentleman. Its the language of hell; God says He won't hold the profane man guiltless; and that word guiltless in the original is "clean." God won't hold him clean. And if there's anything shows a man's rotten and putrid and low down character, it's to see him stand around and cuss and chew and vomit out a whole string of ear-besmirching devil-pleasing profanity. If you call a man a certain name, no matter how mean or God-forsaken he is he'll fight you in a minute because it reflects upon his mother. He'll say, "you take that back or I'll smash your mouth," and yet no mother ever loved you as God loved, or ever did for you as God did, and a man's got to get pretty low down when he's got no respect for God, and God isn't going to hold him guiltless. How much do you weigh?

The Fourth Weight.

Now look at the fourth weight. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

More than one far-seeing statesman from abroad and at home, has declared much of the secret of America's greatness to be in her past high regard for the Lord's day. If that is so, and I believe it is, we need to look out, for we're getting mighty careless about it in these days. Chief Justice McLean said: "Where there is no Christian Sabbath, there is no Christian morality, and where there is no Christian morality, there can be no national greatness."

Continental Sunday.

Some people want a continental Sunday. If you'd think twice you wouldn't. I am an American first, last and always, but no one is more ready than I to welcome the foreigner to these shores, and to our citizenship. My father was foreign born, but I say if a European don't like the laws of this country let him stay at home. Why does he come over here and make war on our institutions? Who are the anarchists: Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who are the people demanding a wide-open Sunday? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who are the saloon keepers and brewers? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Schlitz, Anheuser-Busch and Budweiser, and the rest of them. Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. And we've dipped our colors to 'em and lowered our standards and now they're asking us to kick the Bible out of the public schools. It makes my blood boil. Our fathers came to the white sands of Massachusetts Bay, and there to the music of the ocean wave and the whispering pine they solemnized the marriage of liberty and religion and founded this glorious nation on the everlasting word of God, and they sealed with the richest blood that ever flowed through patriots' veins and if the atheists and infidels and other rebels against Jesus Christ don't like our public schools where the word of God is read let 'em take their kids and hike out and found schools of their own. That's what I say and I stand here tonight and prophesy to you that in this fight that's going on now all over this land, the old Bible and the forces of righteousness are going to win out in the end, in spite of the supreme court of Illinois and others of its kind.

Denounces Sunday Newspapers.

I say some of the greatest enemies of the Sabbath are the preachers and church members, who by the example of secular reading and conversation and work and travel and amusement, desecrate it, and stab it. You allow all kinds of trade wagons to stop at your door on Sunday. You're a libel on what God wants a Christian to be. You could get a double portion of ice on Saturday if you would, but you've got to keep the iceman at work on Sunday when your Christian fathers never saw ice from melting time till freezing time.

It took five weeks in your father's day to get mail from New York to San Francisco, but you can get it in five days, and yet you keep a thousan workers toiling on Sunday to bring your mail to you over the road and in the town where you live. It took two months to get news from Europe in your father's day, but now you can get it in a flash and yet you have to have a Sunday newspaper to keep the news from getting stale.

You say you can't get along without it. You don't want to. I'd think more of you if you'd tell the truth. What Newman Smythe said of one Sunday newspaper can be said of all the rest. He had been urged by an impertinent reporter to write a brief crisp paragraph on the subject of "Hell" for the Sunday edition. He politely acquiesced and sent into the office "Hell in my opinion is the place where your Sunday edition should be published and circulated."

There is some, though little, fit reading for Sunday in every such paper, but for the most part they are mere sewers for criminal intelligence, scandal and social filth.

You can get 98 pages of that stuff for 5 cents, but a man with a bunch of stuff like that in his hands on Sunday don't look any more like a Christian than a turkey buzzard looks like a bird of paradise. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

This is a time of revival, but heavens give us a revival of God's day.

Obedience to Parents.

The Fifth Commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother, and thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Campbell Morgan has well said. "A boy will never be a man if he always must obey his parents." There comes a time of individual responsibility, and the young man must choose for himself, even though his choice disregards the wish and judgment of his parents.

But there is a time when God expects him to obey. And many a young fellow is playing checkers with his nose behind his prison window, who might be traveling the highway of prosperity today if he had only listened to his mother's advice.

There's a lot of useless gum-chewing, gadding, good-for-nothing girls in these days who look upon mother as a necessary institution provided for the home, so they can gad about with a frivolous set and have a good time. They call mother "old fashioned," and pity her and pass up her advice when she tells them to give up certain society and to be in at decent hours, but some day when she's gone the limit and sits weeping with her illegitimate offspring in her arms, she'll know that she was a fool and that her mother had a little sense after all.

But the word honor means more than obey; it means to reverence.

Dr. Torry in a sermon on heroes and cowards tells of a young man whose mother made the greatest possible sacrifice to send her boy through college. He became the valedictorian of his class. He insisted that his mother must go to the commencement exercises, but she said her clothes were too poor. But he said, "no, mother, you must go," and helped her with her plain clothes and faded shawl proudly down the aisle and gave her a good seat and when he received the gold medal he stepped down before the crowd and pinned it on her shawl and kissed her and said, "mother, if it hadn't been for you, I'd never have won it."

Did any one think less of him? No, they honored him for it. Show me the young man who is ashamed of his old father and mother, and you can just mark it down that he's a trifling, good-for-nothing, and will never prosper. "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Many a young fellow is ashamed to use the word father in presence of his companions, and thinks it a sign of smartness to talk about the "old man" or the "old woman," but I'll tell you sir, you may be ashamed of his calloused hands, his bronzed cheeks and stooping form, but they are all the marks of his concern for you, and had he paid a little more attention to himself and less to his ingrate son he might have looked a little better now, and had some of the intelligence which you think you got because you walked into school and maybe into college over a way paved for you by his work and toil and sacrifice.

The same thing is true of mother, God bless her, the dear old woman with roses gone from her cheeks. God help you young men, and God help you young women, too.

Opposes Capital Punishment.

The Sixth Commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." My what a text for a whole sermon!

You wouldn't murder anybody in cold blood, of course, but there are other ways to kill. You don't have to use a dagger or a gun to do it. You can do it inch by inch.

Do you want to kill your wife? You don't have to take an axe and chop her head in two. Just neglect her. Cut a bloody gash into her heart every day with your brutal, acrimonious tongue. Be false to your marriage vow and kill her with your base infidelity.

Do you want to send your mother to an early grave? You don't have to take a gun and fire its load into her breast to do it.

Like a godless dissipated son who came home one night from his sin and his father met him as he came in and said: "My son, I have just loaded this gun, both barrels; your mother is lying on the bed upstairs sick with heart ache and worry over your Godless life. Now take this gun and go up and put the barrels to her breast and fire both loads into her heart at once." "Why, father, what do you mean by talking like that to me?" "I mean just what I say," he replied. "Oh, my boy," he said, "your mother is dying of grief because of your wicked worthless life. Take this gun and go up and do the work at once; it would be an act of mercy. You can't kill my precious wife by inches the way you are doing now."

Listen, boys, many of you, if you would go home tonight and put your ear down to your mother's heart you could hear the blood drip, drip, drip.

Thou shalt not kill.

Social Impurity.

The next weight is an awful one. I would like to leave it out of the scale if I dared, for I hate to think about it. But if I had a month I couldn't say all that ought to be said.

Don't think you can be guilty and escape the judgment of God. We need a good deal more conscience than we've got on this thing. There is too much of a tendency to pass lightly over it, and condone it, but when a man for the smile of a vile demirep will trample the affections of a pure wife beneath his feet, or through his lustful infatuation for some other man's wife will hurry to the divorce court and get a bill of divorce on the ground of incapatibility of temperament it's, no time to look for palliation and excuse. It's time to douse the lecherous old cuss in a barrel of pitch and ride him on a rail to the penitentiary.

There's no meaner, lower or more contemptible moral pervert on God's earth than you.

Look at this damnable, rotten, stinking divorce business. It's a blow at the very throne of God, and it's the devil's nitro-glycerine under the foundation of human well-being.

Some of you say, "Never guilty." Then go and read Matthew 5:28-32, where it says, "He that looketh with lustful eyes." The charge passes from the covert act to the secret thought. We might plead innocent to the first, but God help us when he says, "He that looketh." But let us pass on.

The Eighth Commandment. It says "Thou shalt not steal."

Ways to Get Money.

There are just three ways to get property: Have it given to you; work for it, or steal it. The first two the Bible recognizes as right and proper. Of the third, it says, "Thou shalt not."

Now maybe you never slipped your fingers into another man's purse and lifted his coin, although maybe you have. But there are other ways to steal. A man steals whenever he takes anything for which he does not give an adequate return either in money, or property, or work.

A man or a woman who bets is a thief. No matter whether they bet on a horse race, an election, a football game or anything else. No matter whether he throws his cards at Monte Carlo or for some stake at the average bridge whist party.

A young lady came from the east to Leavenworth, Kasnsas, some time ago, and was invited as a guest at one of the frivolous, trifling, fudge-eating, character blighting, Godless afternoon card parties, with a lot of mush-brained, doodle-wit women that havent's got sense enough to appreciate the Bible or high-class literature and they euchered her out of $300 which she had. Monte Carlo is decent compared to that, and a professional gambler is a gentleman along side of such women who pass for ladies.

The Board of Trade is a gambling joint pure and simple. It is one of the most damnable iniquitous, blood-poisoning carbuncles that ever fastened itself on the neck of the body politic.

It's a crime for the newsboy to shoot craps in the street, but when a plunger in Wall Street gambles his millions and gets a corner on wheat and hogs and corn and bulls the prices up, and then unloads on the small tradesmen all over the country, who are big enough fools to send their hard earned money into the brokers, we don't call him a criminal. We call him a specualtor; but he's a thief and a big one.

The only difference is we send the little thief to jail and the big one to the legislature.

I tell you there are robbers of various kinds, and one ain't any better than the other. The working man who does not give to his employer a fair day's work for a fair day's wage is a thief—a thief just as much as the employer who takes advantage of the situation and the poor man's necessity, and does not give him a fair day's wage for a fair day's work.

And you, Mr. Merchant, did you say it was imported when it was made in New Jersey; did you say it was wool when it was half cotton? If you did you're a thief. Did you sell it for pure when it was adulterated; did you send out a lying advertisement; did you short-measure your customers? If you did you're a thief. And you, some of the rest of you, did you neglect to pay your carfare because the conductor neglected to collect it? You're a thief. You might as well go behind the counter and help yourself because the clerk's asleep and neglects to wait on you. Thou shalt not steal.

What we need is downright honesty. God give it to us.

Sin is sin and the sin of theft will damn your soul as quick as any other sin.

The Ninth Commandment.

I wish I had time. The devil can do more harm in human society through some dirty, lying, slandering tongue than all the courts of justice in the land can undo.

The law of libel don't even allow you to spread the truth if it's derogatory to a man's character, but you miserable, guilty, old gimlet-eyed gossipping, scandal monger, you don't even stop to find out whether that thing is the truth or a lie. You'll tell a lot of stuff and then say, "I'm so sorry," but you're a liar, for if you were sorry, you'd keep still about it.

Yes, sir. I tell you a man or a woman who peddles news in this fashion about the community is a coward; a liar and a thief. You're a coward because you strike behind one's back, and give the one you aim at no chance to make correction. You are a liar because the report you peddle is false and is therefore the opposite of truth; you're a thief because,

"Who steals my purse steal trash,
But he that filches my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And makes me poor indeed."

There are other forms of false witness, but I haven't time to mention them.

Just a word about the last weight. The Tenth Commandment, "Thou shalt not covet."

The word covet means more than desire; it means to pant after, to set the heart on, to lust after. It's all right to see your neighbor's automobile and desire one for yourself, and go buy one if you have the dough. But to set your heart on one with increasing desire, when there is no way for you to get one, except through unlawful means; this, God forbids.

My, how searching is the word of Almighty God—who can declare himself guiltless?

In God's Balance.

Thou are weighed in the balance and art found wanting. Men and women art undone. Remember in whose balance it is you are weighed—not man's but God's. It's of little consequence what your lodge thinks of you, or how you stand in the public eye. But the great question you ought to be concerned about is the light of what has been said tonight is, "What does Almighty God think about you?"

Come, get in the scales.
Come on society leader.
Come on worshipper of gold.
Come on drunkard.
Come on gambler.
Come on adulterer.
Come on scandal-monger.
Come on extortionist.
Come on Sabbath defiler.

God pity you if you've got to stand in the presence of the judgment with the record of a broken law behind you.

But you say, "preacher, you've been a sinful man yourself; what will you do?" Listen, I'll get into the scales; I'm ready now. Pile in all the commandments, and then put on top of them that other commandment, the first and greatest of them all, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all they heart and with all thy mind and with all they soul," and I'm ready this minute to get in on the other side.

But you say, "Preacher, haven't you been guilty, too."

Oh, my God, yes. But I'm ready to jump in and jump in with a shout. But I'll not go in alone, I'll say, "Come on, Christ, you step in with me, for thou are righteousness and my hope is in thee." Jesus came not to destroy the law but to fulfill it. He kept it absolutely and he paid the penalty for every sin or transgression and if you've ever broken the first commandment or the second or any one of them, or all of them, God through Jesus Christ will forgive you if you'll let him do it. Will you let him do it tonight? It may be your last call—and some day—some awful day, you'll be asked to step into the scales and be found wanting. I beg you step in tonight and let Jesus step in with you. Will you do it?

Unnecessary Telephone Attachments

MANY of our subscribers have been approached by persons who wish to sell devices to be attached to our telephone instrument. It is usually claimed for these attachments that they will improve the transmission, eliminate noise, supplant the telephone directory and in other ways add to the convenience or efficiency of the service.

All of these attachments are unnecessary. Many of them get the lines and instruments into trouble, cause a deterioration in the transmission and lessen the convenience of using your telephone. They cost you money and only degrade your service.

The telephone instrument provided and maintained by this company is the result of nearly forty years of careful scientific experimentation. It is designed to produce the best results possible and it will give the highest quality of service if used just as it stands.

In the interests of good service you are requested to make no attachment of any kind to your telephone. We are prepared to furnish standard apparatus to take care of any unusual conditions.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearacne.
